BELLS FOR CARILLON ARE NOW INSTALLED IN SOLDIER'S TOWER

The Gift of The Alumni Association Will Be Completed Before Dedication

CEREMONY ON THURS. OCT. 6

Percival Price, Dominion Carillonneur Will Play A Concert During Program

The long-heralded carillon has now been installed in the Soldiers' Tower, and the finishing touches are thereby applied to the monument erected by the living sons of the Alma Mater to the glorious dead. The bells will be handed over to the University by Canon Cody, Chairman of the Board of Governors, in a brief ceremony on Thursday, October 6th, at 5.00 p.m. A special section has been provided for undergraduates attending the dedication, and it is hoped that they will be present in numbers vast enough to do credit to this great University.

The exact programme for the dedication has not yet been approved, but a concert is to be played by Percival Price, Dominion Carillonneur, who arrived yesterday from Ottawa.

The bells have been erected by the gift of the Alumni Federation, who let the contract last winter to Gillett and Johnston, of Croydon, England. A piece of the original University bell, melted in the great fire of 1890, was thrown into the cauldron, by Canon Gould. The carillon is unsurpassed in its class, and is also to include a two-faced clock to strike the hours.

For the past three weeks the workmen have been busy with brute force, donkey engine and tackle, hoisting the twenty-three bells to their final resting place. The combined weight of the bells is about nineteen tons, and each had to be raised to the top of the tower on the outside, then lowered

HART HOUSE THEATRE UNDER NEW DIRECTOR

Carroll Aikins Comes To The University As Guest Director

MRS. AIKINS TO ASSIST HIM

Plans for the coming season at Hart House Theatre are well under way. Mr. Carroll Aikins, director of the Theatre for the 1927-8 season, informed "The Varsity" yesterday.

"My status being merely that of guest director for the next five months, I cannot assume the responsibility of inaugurating any vital changes in the procedure of former years," answered Mr. Aikins in reply to a question on his policy. During the coming season six plays will be produced, which will include "The Swan" by Franc Molnar, "The Doctor's Dilemma" by Bernard Shaw, and for the usual Christmas pantomime, an adaptation of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland." On the same evening as this pantomime, the Director intends to present an original adaption of well-known fairy tales, which will be entirely in pantomime in silhouette, against a background of changing colour. The policy of Hart House Theatre in giving all encouragement to Canadian Drama, will be carried out by including the usual bill of Canadian Plays in the season's programmes.

GREAT EFFORT URGED ON WYCLIFFE COLLEGE IN JUBILEE SPEECH

Closing Message In College's Golden Jubilee Celebration Delivered By Canon Cody

SIX OTHER SPEAKERS

Sincere Appreciation Expressed for Work of Principal O'Meara

Wycliffe College and its graduates were urged to greater efforts, inspired by the success of the past fifty years—not indulgence in self-gratulation and self-complacency, but the reviewing of mistakes and limitations of the past that such might be outgrown and the next fifty years be still more fruitful than the past—in the closing message of the college's golden jubilee celebration delivered by one of its most distinguished graduates, Rev. Canon H. J. Cody, at a banquet in the Great Hall of Hart House.

There were six other speakers chosen to represent the varied fields with which Wycliffe came in contact. Bringing greetings from the University of Toronto, the Chancellor, Sir William Mulock, expressed the hope and confident belief that Wycliffe in the future would prove as effective an instrument for the public welfare as it had in the past.

Rev. Provost F. H. Cosgrave of Trinity College, representing sister Anglican colleges in Canada, expressing a feeling of pride in Wycliffe since it belonged to the Church of which he was a humble member, declared that "the things which we hold in common are vastly more important than the things which we differ."

A sincere appreciation of the work of Principal O'Meara was expressed in an engrossed address presented to him at the morning session. Recognizing the heavy responsibility which he had borne during the 21 years of office as Principal and 40 years' association with the college, the address paid tribute to his leadership and influence, and declared that "it will strengthen your hand in God's work to know that from coast to coast and in all lands whither our Wycliffe graduates and friends have gone daily prayer is being offered up on your behalf that God may grant you the needed strength and wisdom in your all-important task."

Centenary Ball Tickets

Tickets for the Centenary Ball must be obtained by students through their respective faculties as in the case of tickets for the Hart House Masquerade.

Sonnet in Memory of Bertram Forsyth

This was a man, whose noble beauty lay
In face and soul and heart; a man of dreams
From whose untainted source sang those strong streams
Of England's grand Elizabethan day.
His voice put music in our sombre play
Called life, whose stage of blackened beams
Awaits the acts of ages; in pale gleams
Of candle-footlights our brief lines we say.
He taught us with majestic heart of these Rich fruits of genius ripened in the rains
Of Time, of English countryside, of Trees
That Romans and the Norman knew. Death drains
Another flowing cup. This soul he frees,
Whose curtain falls, but whose calm voice remains.

ANNUAL TRACK MEET WILL TAKE PLACE FRIDAY OCTOBER 7

U. of T. Intercollegiate Team Is As Strong As Ever In Most Events

McKENZIE IS CAPTAIN

Anyone With Ability Should Report To Coach Halbus at Once At Stadium

The annual interfaculty track meet of the university will be held on Friday afternoon, October 7th, at 2.30 sharp in Varsity Stadium. All athletes intending to try for places on the intercollegiate team should report to Coach Halbus at the stadium at once. Daily workouts are being held about four o'clock.

The U. of T. Intercollegiate team is practically as strong as ever despite the loss of Shanacy, Adams, Morrison, and Sparrow. Varsity should make a clean sweep of the track events in the meet with Queen's and McGill on October 22nd. Russell, intercollegiate 100 yds. record holder, Johnny Fitzpatrick of Hamilton, the interscholastic sprint champion of the United States, and Mabee, crack sprinter of University College will undoubtedly prove far too formidable for the other colleges.

Varsity is just as strong at middle distance with Morrison Mitchell and Allan Christie. Mitchell is the national half-mile champion and the intercollegiate record holder for this event. His time of 1.57 at the Canadian championships was remarkable and he should again break his own record at Kingston. Allan Christie, president of the U. of T. Track Club, has been invincible at the quarter winning the intercollegiate championship three years in succession. Al is out for a fourth triumph in his specialty and with Mo Mitchell credited with the good time of 49 3/5 secs. in this event he will have to get down to record time to win.

The mile run will likely be handled by Vic Burn and Alex. Grant, both members of the championship team of last year.

Wally Graham and Ken Crozier look like the logical choice for the three mile run. The fans will remember the thrilling battle between Graham and Trenouth at last year's meet. The record of 15.12 3/5 established by Trenouth in his remarkable finish in the neck-and-neck battle with Graham will likely be broken again this year as Graham is running in better form than ever and seriously threatens to get under 15 minutes for the distance. It is in the field that Varsity is vulnerable. Jack Davenport, intercollegiate pole-vault champion and Hugh Crawford of Meds should score heavily in the pole-vault but Varsity

STUDENT PARADE TO BE MILE AND HALF LONG

Cup And Shield Will Be Offered for The Two Best Floats

At a meeting of the student Centenary Committee held last night in Hart House, it was learnt that the student Parade next Wednesday will be over a mile and a half in length, will contain some forty floats, from various faculties and over 600 undergrads will participate. The cup and shield which are to be offered for the two best floats are now on display in Hart House. At present it is expected that the parade route will be from the back campus, under the towerarch, to College, east to Yonge, south to Adelaide, west to Bay, north to Queen, west to University, thence to the Arena. This route is subject to the approval of the police authorities.

HART HOUSE WARDEN DECLINES KING POST

Mr. J. B. Bickersteth Prefers to Remain At The University of Toronto

DECISION IS DEFINITE

J. B. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, has definitely refused the position of executive assistant to the Prime Minister and will remain at the University. Contradiction of Ontario newspaper reports predicting his appointment came from Mr. Bickersteth in the course of an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday.

Premier King in placing the amount of eight thousand dollars in the estimates last March provided according to his explanation, for an executive assistant to the Premier, having the status of a deputy Minister. Mr. King was considerably influenced in his creation of the new post it is stated, by his observation of the services rendered the British Premiers by the Cabinet officer. He had noted this work with interest in his visits to England.

Mr. King's offer of the position was made to Mr. Bickersteth who after much consideration preferred to remain at Hart House in spite of the unique importance of the position. From the time Mr. King first spoke to Mr. Bickersteth, newspaper reports have connected his name with the appointment.

University Band Meeting

The University Band will hold its first meeting on Thursday, afternoon, at 5 p.m., at the C. O. T. C. Headquarters, 184 College St.

It is hoped that all students who can play instruments will attend this meeting. All who can will please bring their instruments.

With the kind permission of Col. T. R. Loudon and officers, the band will provide the music at the various sporting affairs of the university.

Do not forget to be on hand, this evening at 5 p.m. and enroll.

PRESIDENT FALCONER GREET'S UNDERGRADS IN OPENING ADDRESS

Deals With Winning Of Canadian Responsible Government And Confederation

STRESSES HISTORY STUDY

Asks Students To Co-operate In Participation Of Centenary Events

The winning of responsible government and the achievement of Confederation were two political accomplishments which Sir Robert Falconer dealt with in his opening address to the Students of the University yesterday afternoon. He declared that Canada's outstanding position in the British Empire to-day was due to "the extension of old principles to new environments", referring especially to the attainment of political liberties and the introduction of old institutions.

"A tremendous act of faith" was his description of Confederation. In summarizing the obstacles which had to be met, he pointed out that Upper and Lower Canada were "at daggers drawn", while the Maritime Provinces were separated and uninterested. The West was cut off by an almost impenetrable barrier, while across the prairies lay three huge mountain ranges, before the Pacific was reached. Declaring emphatically that Canada was more united to-day than ever, the president showed how the people of Ontario had transplanted their institutions and customs to the west after the passing of the buffalo and the Hudson's Bay Company had paved the way for the march of civilization. He pointed out the contribution of the University of Toronto to western life was "simply enormous." It was an encouraging factor for unity that the immigrants in the west had taken a keen and enthusiastic interest in the Confederation Celebrations this year.

CENTENARY DINNER IN VARSITY ARENA

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6

All The Faculties And Colleges In The University To Be Represented

Arrangements have now been completed for the dinner which is to be held in the University Arena on Thursday, October 6th, in connection with the Centenary Celebration. It is anticipated that two thousand covers will be laid. Of this number definite reservations have been made for graduates and undergraduates. Already the graduate reservation has been entirely taken up and a waiting list of some three hundred is being added to daily. Of the four hundred seats reserved for undergraduates, over three hundred have already been booked. A few faculties are still to be heard from and one or two colleges have not yet sent in their request for tickets. Students are urged to apply at once either to their college, faculty, or student council for the tickets they require, as it is anticipated that there will be none available by the end of this week.

This dinner will undoubtedly be one of the most important functions of the celebration, not only will all the delegates be present, including the student delegates but it will take the form of a great re-union dinner for graduates.

HASTY SPECIALIZATION

This week hundreds of students will have their first taste of University life. To some it will be the beginning of a well-planned course towards a definite goal. To many this whole year will be taken up with an attempt to find themselves, to determine the nature of the various subjects of study and to decide in what direction their own talents lie.

All this leads us to the problem of specialization. University courses have been planned to give a required degree of specialization and at the same time to avoid turning out a stereotyped product. In some cases specialization must necessarily begin earlier than in other cases or scope of the course made more narrow. In practically every case, however, the specialization is not as great in the first year as in later years and it is in this year that the student must make sure of himself. There are those who undertake a line of study hopelessly unsuited to their individual tastes. Some discover their mistake soon. Others go through their whole undergraduate days feeling that academically they are out of place. The importance of the first year in this respect cannot be overlooked.

President Rightmire of Ohio State University has been extremely active in urging the students of that university to postpone choosing their vocations until they have had two years of general college work. With the organization of courses as it is at Toronto this rule would be entirely impractical. Graduates in business or professional life on the other hand remember particularly that they spent much time in studies which were apparently of little use to them in later life. The perplexity of the problem, now long past, is forgotten. Their advice is early specialization. This is sound enough where the student is firmly convinced of the branch of work which it will be to his best interests to follow. Most students however are not so situated. To them the matter is one of deep thought; their whole happiness or success may depend upon it. To advise a student to settle that fairly ascertained his own tastes and talents, is to advise unwisely if problem definitely before he has fairly found himself, before he has not foolishly.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

It is with deep regret that we learn of the death in New York City of Bertram Forsyth, former director of Hart House Theatre. Mr. Forsyth was dear to the hearts of those who knew and understood him during the period in which he was connected with this university and when he left Hart House to take up duties as director at Margaret Eaton Theatre many who had worked under him at Hart House associated themselves with him in his new venture. To all who knew him the report comes as a severe shock.

Mr. Stacey, editor-in-chief of "The Varsity" during the past year, leaves to-night for Oxford University where he has been awarded the Parkin Trust scholarship. He carries with him the best wishes of "The Varsity" and of the many who came in contact with him in official and unofficial capacities during his four years as an undergraduate here. Mr. Stacey will pursue graduate studies at Corpus Christi College.

CHOIR SINGERS NEEDED DURING OPENING CEREMONY

Dr. MacMillan Wishes To Meet
All Undergraduates Who Are Willing To Co-operate

Dr. MacMillan desires to meet with all undergraduates male and female, who are willing to co-operate with him in forming a students choir for participation in the Opening Ceremony of the Centenary Celebration. It is hoped that there will be at the very least two hundred voices in this choir and all those who are willing to co-operate are asked to meet Dr. MacMillan in Convocation Hall on Friday, at 5 o'clock for the purpose of holding a first rehearsal.

It is very essential that there should be a good choir of voices to lead the singing in this Opening Ceremony and Dr. MacMillan feels that he can rely on the student body to rally around him.

DIVINE SERVICE IN ARENA ON SUNDAY, OCTOBER 9th

Rev. Dr. Cody Will Conduct
Services In Connection With Centenary Celebration

Divine Service will be conducted by the Hon. and Rev. Dr. Cody, in the University Arena on Sunday, October 9th, in connection with the Centenary Celebration. The Mendelssohn Choir under the direction of Dr. Fricker will render several selections and the Toronto Concert Band under the baton of Cap Hayward will lead the singing, and will also play prior to the service. This service is open to the public and it is anticipated that there will be a great demand for admission. Definite reservation of 1500 seats has been made for the student body and these tickets may be had on application.

2,500 are registered in the first year at Ohio State University.

DILIGENCE IN PLAY URGED BY WARDEN

Mr. Bickersteth Explains Advantages of Hart House to Newcomers

HOUSE STAFF IS LAUDED.

"The day is brief; be diligent in play" said the Warden of Hart House speaking to the undergraduates in Convocation Hall on the occasion of the President's Opening Address and added that in this phrase Robert Louis Stevenson meant "play" in its ardent sense. Life in Hart House was nothing if it was not gay but what was of real value were the experiments being carried out in Music, Art, the Theatre and debating. Mr. Bickersteth pointed out that amongst the most outstanding events last year were the visits of the Prime Minister and of the Leader of the Opposition who had took part in a debate or a question of national importance. Their visit was a well-deserved tribute to the members of Hart House.

Music was being developed in many interesting ways and a special reference was made to the Songsters. The Warden commended the work of the Rev. F. J. Moore, whom he described as popular Chaplain of Hart House, and a very "human parson." The Theatre promised to have an interesting year under the direction of Mr. Carroll Aikins, the well-known Canadian playwright and producer from British Columbia. Members were advised to keep in touch with the Sketch Room when the opening exhibition by Ontario artists is now on view.

The Warden paid tribute to the Staff of Hart House all of whom were working hard to serve the undergraduate to the best of their ability. He made special reference to Mr. Gile, Mr. Cowan, and Mr. Hornal all graduates of this university, and to Mr. Campbell, Superintendent of the Great Hall.

HART HOUSE VISITED BY ROYAL GUESTS

This Is Third Time The Prince Of Wales Has Been In Hart House in Seven Years

KEEN TUSSLES AT SQUASH

Of all the visitors to Hart House during the summer none were more thorough in their inspection or more enthusiastic in their praise than H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and Prince George.

His Royal Highness who was making his third visit in seven years was particularly anxious that his brother should miss nothing in the House. They began with some keen tussles on the squash courts. Mr. A. B. Fennell, chairman of the Squash Racquets Committee, Donald Gunn and Mr. Bickersteth, confessed to exhaustion under the rain of shots produced by the Prince of Wales. Equally strenuous was a trial of the running track around which the royal brothers ran in their overcoats. They were determined to test the banking of the track which looked steep at first to Prince George.

The Visitor's Book was duly visited and signed by both princes, the Prince of Wales signing below his signature of his last visit in 1923.

In contrast to the crowd that attended on the former occasion, there were practically no members present. A swarm of pressmen and their photographers arrived but as their exclusion was understood they were met by the police and other officials.

CHAMPUS CAT

MEOW! and the cat comes back again, booted once more into the welcome limelight of publicity. "To scratch—that is the question, whether 'tis nobler in the mind to claw some Panabaker"—and at that dear name, our feline heart leaps within us, for there was a cynic—whence comes such another?—Well, let him rest. He earned it nobly.

C—C.

Many an underdone frosh and unsophisticated freshette will wonder what Champus Cat is—and although it is not our custom to define or inflate ourselves, we are like all our predecessors, a low ribald fellow, fond of the frothy stories told by theologs. After dark, we are eager to squelch both the Modern John Held Jr. type of heavy collegian as well as the bulky-browed and intolerant intellectual who reads nothing lighter than Edgar Guest. We warn all correspondents that we forbid some discussions, and we will not allow them to tread upon our prejudices. Anyone who attempts to discuss the pictures at the C.N.E. Art Gallery will be at once suffocated and galvanized.

C—C.

A short history of this column follows:

Years ago—founded as Campus Chat by D. M. Halliday, who is now one of the star prevaricators in the S. E. Corner of the well-known Daily. Some years later—Given added pep and impropriety by one J. M. Lasier, "Jno." to his intimates. Jno was nearly beheaded for putting the following joke in his column:

"I call my cat the 'Mayflower'." "Why?"—as we say Jno. was nearly beheaded for this—call at the Varsity Office for a solution or submit your own.

1924—In this year a night editor arrived at the Press singing the Horse Song from "Ben-Hur" and was proceeding to set up the words Campus Chat, however the "H" popped and appeared in the word Campus as Champus and thus arose our title "Champus Cat." We earnestly request the contribution of short poems, witticisms, and sallies of a high calibre. These should be, let us say within the easy comprehension of a Ph.D., and of a propriety that the most exacting touch-driver would demand. Now submit some material, won't you, new arrivals? Tell us of the howling times in the old home town and the pranks in the old prep. school. Tell us how to improve the university for we have run out of ideas. Address all communications to "Champus Cat, Esq., 'Varsity' Office, Hart House. A prize of one chocolate bar is offered at intervals.

EXTRA—Watch for the 1927-8 edition of the Students' Handbook or "Bible"—newer and better subtitles than ever before!

C—C.

There once was a sophomore sad who sold loud cravats to each lad, Said: "Frosh, get your tie!"

But one passed him by And smiled with the smile of a grad.

C—C.

We will make no jokes about freshmen and freshettes. There is more tragedy than comedy in their wide-eye innocence. Little do they know what lies before them!

THE BLUE COLLEGIANS vs. CADETS AT STADIUM SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Hello Everybody! Are you all ready and willing to do your bit to make Centenary Year the best and biggest in the Athletic history of the University.

Under the coaching of Ronnie McPherson and Les Blackwell the rugby boys are doing their best to put Varsity's right foot forward by being in shape to beat McGill here one week from Saturday, and ultimately to repeat for the Intercollegiate championship. At the request of the General Centenary Committee, the first Intercollegiate fixture was moved forward a week and the Blue will swing into action on October 9th. The majority of McPherson's prospects drifted into town some two weeks ago, but the coaches here and at McGill will find their hands full with a last minute rush of candidates from amongst the latecomers. That means hard work for both players and coaches for the remainder of this week and the first part of next.

Hit by the graduation of such stars as Snyder, Stollery, Irwin, Bales and the two quarters, Hargraft and Rous, McPherson will find his task difficult when it comes to rounding up an organization that will follow in the footsteps of that great squad of a year ago. Snyder and Stollery would be missed from any team, the fine tackling of the former and the good plunging of the latter being particular assets that will be hard to replace. However, in Young, Sinclair and Trimble, Varsity has a fine trio of halves as a nucleus for this year's team, while Rykert, Murray Snyder, Freddie Dundas, Masters and Lou Carroll give the Blue five experienced men along the line. Of the newcomers, Allan Stollery is demonstrating his possibilities as a successor to brother Howard, with Buss Stuart and Baillie showing up well at quarter and half a dozen huskies making a valiant fight for the line positions.

What should be the best attended track meet in the history of the University will take place at the Blue Stadium one week from Friday when the Interfaculty Meet is scheduled to take place. While it is unfortunate that the meet should come so early in the year it was nevertheless felt that the thousands of graduates who will be in town for the Centenary Celebrations should be given the opportunity of scanning the prospects for this year's team. The majority of last season's championship club, who are back, have been in competition throughout the summer months and will be in shape to give a good account of themselves while numerous other aspirants have been working out at the Stadium daily for the past few weeks. Track men from the arriving freshmen will, no doubt, be especially urged to compete, even though the early date will have prevented the various faculties from selecting their most representative men in faculty meets.

While the Blue lost their opening football tussle of the season, an exhibition fixture with Toronto Argos on Saturday, by a 14-10 score, the students made a fine showing and led their op-

FOOTBALL MATERIAL VERY ENCOURAGING

Coach McPherson And Associates Working Hard To Put Squad In Shape

SEASON OPENS IN ONE WEEK

With the greatest amount of football material ever available at the University of Toronto on hand Coach Ronnie McPherson and his associates, Les Blackwell and Mike Pearson are putting in some strenuous afternoons at the Stadium as they endeavour to whip their prospects into shape for the opening of the rugby season one short week away, when Shaughnessy and Old McGill will come to town.

Their appetite whetted by their fine showing of last year when they carried the Blue to the last ditch before the latter were able to clinch the College title, and by the fact that the Toronto team will be without the services of Snyder, Stollery, Bales and other outstanding stars, the Shagmen can see nothing but a championship before them.

While the Red and White still have St. Germaine and the majority of last year's fine team still available and McPherson is faced with the task of almost completely rebuilding his machine hope of a repetition of last year's achievement is anything but dim in local circles. Never before have so many candidates responded to the clarion call of football and, from the day of the first practice on September

Men's Rugby Tickets

Freshmen of all Faculties are reminded that the only rugby tickets available for first year men are those supplied through the Rooter's Club. A limited number of these tickets will be placed on sale in the West Common Room, Hart House, on Monday afternoon at 1 p.m. The price for the ticket, admitting holder to five games provided that he attends Rooter's practice, is $1.25, and a first year registration card must be submitted at time of purchase of the ticket.

The Student's Season tickets, admitting bearer to the five games and priced at $2.50, will be placed on sale Tuesday, at 1 p.m., and Registration Cards must be submitted and punched at a certain number. One ticket to each student.

Billie Hughes former Queen's trainer is now training the University of Manitoba football squad.

MANY RUGBY STARS QUIT COLLEGE RANKS

Tricolour Squad Suffers Loss Of Voss And Chantler On Backfield

BILLY HUGHES ALSO LEAVES

When the Intercollegiate rugby season opens this year many of the stars of past seasons will be missing. The Varsity team in particular will have many new men on the line-up but Queen's and McGill have also suffered by the graduation of some of their stars. Voss and Chantler are lost to the Tricolour and they will be sorely missed on the backfield. Voss indeed is out of amateur sport for good having signed with Connie Smythe's Maple Leafs.

Early reports from the Limestone city were to the effect that Monohan their star middle would again be on the Queen's line-up but this has since been contradicted and it is now practically certain that he will not wear the Tricolour this season. Ottawa have been claiming him all season but as yet he has not turned out with the Rough Riders.

down inside. All that now remains is the installation of the playing mechanism, and the local representative of the contractors has announced that he expects no difficulty in finishing the job in time.

"A carillon is a set of bells tuned to the notes of the chromatic scale," says the technical definition. A "carillon" is a "chime of bells" on a large scale. Divergence of opinion is rampant as to the pronunciation of the word, but it is understood that "carill-yun" to rhyme with "union", or "care-ohn" in the approved French manner are equally correct.

HART HOUSE THEATRE UNDER NEW DIRECTOR

Theatre, Mr. Aikins was a conspicuous figure of the Little Theatre Movement in the west, having founded "The Home Theatre" in the Okanagan Valley in 1921. He has several plays to his credit, his "The God of Gods", being one of the few plays of Canadian origin to be produced abroad.

In Mr. Aikins' opinion Hart House Theatre is almost unique in Canada, its nearest counterpart being the Players Club of the University of British Columbia, an organization which produces three bills annually, taking its spring production on a three or four weeks tour at the end of the term.

Mr. Aikins will be assisted in his work by his wife, herself an accomplished actress.

Any man with ability in these events should report immediately to the coach at the Stadium. The first and second men in each event at the interfaculty meet constitute the members of the intercollegiate team, subject of course, to the final decision of the coach.

McKenzie, captain of the team, and winner of the 120 high hurdles should repeat in this event but the team is badly in need of a good man at the 220 low hurdles.

PRESIDENT FALCONER GREET'S UNDERGRADS

Sir Robert made a plea for closer intercourse between east and west and broader study of Canadian history. The obstacles of the present were not as great as those of the past, and he felt that the future should be faced with optimism.

Referring more particularly to the University, the President mentioned the death of Professor Duckworth, and the retirement of Professor Wrong. The late Professor H. T. F. Duckworth was, he declared, "one of the finest scholars we ever had, and a gentleman in every sense of the word". He acknowledged Professor G. M. Wrong's contribution to better the teaching and the writing of Canadian history, and felt that most of the undergraduates to whom he had lectured would consider him their best friend. With regard to the Centenary of the University of Toronto, Sir Robert said that the celebrations had been postponed from June till October in order that the students might be present and asked them for their co-operation and participation in the events.

Perhaps the greatest loss that Queen's have suffered is the retirement of Billy Hughes from his position as coach. Hughes coached the Tricolour to four successive Intercollegiate Championships and raised Queen's from comparative obscurity to the highest position in Canadian rugby. However in Professor Carson they have an experienced man who will be able to get the most out of the material at his disposal. Of course it must be remembered that "Red" Batstone will still be kicking around and he will probably help out with the coaching duties.

Despatches from Montreal contain very little information about the strength of this year's McGill team. Toronto fans however, will have an opportunity to look them over on Saturday when they meet Balmy Beach in an exhibition game. Incidentally the teams will use a form of the forward pass and this experiment is drawing a lot of attention from students of the fall pastime. Shaughnessy has for years been a strong exponent of the American game and has advocated the incorporation of the forward pass in the Canadian code.

15th when 68 players were on hand until yesterday when well over one hundred were in uniform there has been a continued influx of new arrivals. Never before have the coaches had so much material to choose from and never before have the prospects of four strong teams appeared so bright. To predict that the Intercollegiate squad will be as strong as that of last season is an impossibility and no doubt an exaggeration, but one fact must be realized—the material is there and, by dint of hard work on the part of both coaches and players, a team should be rounded up that will ably carry on the traditions of Varsity football.

Trimble, Sinclair and Young, with a year's experience together behind them, form a promising back-division for any coach to work on. Morry Snyder, Lou Carroll and Daly are outsiders with experience and the two former, at least, should star in every game that the locals play. Masters, at snap, has plenty of experience while Morgan, Freddie Dundas and Rykert, with the possible addition of Don Carrick, will give strength along the line.

In the game against Argonauts Freddie Dundas and Rykert showed up particularly well, both plunging well while the former made himself conspicuous by being up on every kick and turning in some fine tackling. Of the backfield men, Al Young did some particularly fine ball carrying, showing a nice turn of speed but somewhat handicapping his efforts by an unwillingness to pass the ball. Trimble and Sinclair broke away at times, but they were not afforded sufficient protection and were well watched by the Argo wings.

Judging from last season showing McGill should have one of the strongest squads in recent years and they should attract a big following ponents by ten points at one stage of the contest. Better conditions on the part of the Argonauts actually told the tale. Both coaches took advantage of the opportunity to test what material they had available and, as a consequence, weakened their team from time to time but it was the general opinion in the stands that both would go far in the season's race. Varsity's chief weakness appeared to be in giving Trimble insufficient protection on his kicking with, consequently, a slowness on the part of the Blue outsiders. However, that should be improved with two weeks practice in team-work.

The Varsity Intercollegiate team will play its second exhibition fixture at the Stadium as the first half of a double-header at the Stadium on Saturday afternoon, the R.M.C. cadets being the expected guests.

PROMISING MATERIAL FOR VARSITY TENNIS TILT IN VIEW

Many Outstanding Racquetters
To Represent Blue and White
At Montreal

VARSITY MEET ON MONDAY

Annual Tournament To Be Held At Toronto Tennis Club's Courts

The annual Varsity tennis tournament begins on Monday at the courts of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club. Interest in tennis around the University has reached a very high pitch and this year's tournament will doubtless be a record breaker both from the standpoint of quantity and quality. A large entry list has already been received and by Saturday noon many more are expected.

Not only is the annual University tournament attracting wide interest but the Intercollegiate meet which will be held in Montreal is also the subject of much speculation. This year Varsity have a team which many think is capable of lifting the Intercollegiate title now held by McGill, and which has not been held in Toronto since before the war.

Outstanding on the squad is the 20 year old Gilbert Nunn of Toronto, who was a member of Canada's Davis Cup team this year and who scored many notable victories over some of leading racquetters of both Canada and United States. Chief among these victories was his win over Lewis White of Austin, Texas, who was sixth ranking player in U.S. this year.

Don Gunn is another of last year's team who is back and playing very consistent tennis. Gunn has improved his game tremendously since last season and he will no doubt help considerably to bring tennis honours to Varsity.

Walter Martin, of Regina, Saskatchewan, champion and runner-up in the Canadian Junior championship is another one of Varsity's hopes. He also has advanced by leaps and bounds over

UNIQUE SERVICE PROVIDED NON-RESIDENT STUDENTS

Bureau Supplying Information Regarding Rooms Established
In Hart House

DEMAND FOR SINGLE ROOMS

A rather unique service was provided for the men students of the University this year, when a bureau offering information about rooming facilities was established in the West Common Room, Hart House.

A list of over 360 rooms, representing about 190 landlords, was prepared for students seeking board or room. Of these rooms, over 150 have been inspected.

Of those who have so far applied, the overwhelming majority have asked for single rooms, near the University, and without board. This would seem to speak well for the quality of Hart House meals.

The attendant remarked that of the rooms inspected, many were extraordinarily good; in fact, quite superior to the usual run of rooms available to students.

Until yesterday, the attendant has been in West Common Room all day. Henceforth, those desiring to consult the list of rooms should apply to the office of the Students' Administrative Council in Hart House. The service is free of charge.

The women Seniors of Victoria upheld the traditions of the college by entertaining the freshmen at a house-party over the week-end at Annesley Hall and Wymilwood.

The old Hall welcomed back the Seniors on Friday night and by Saturday afternoon the house-party had reached the 200 mark. 371 Victoria is rather more cosmopolitan than usual, including girls from India, Japan, and Bermuda.

On Saturday afternoon the freshmen were taken on a hike up Hogs Hollow where some Hot Dogs and marshmallows managed to escape the flames.

Saturday evening the freshmen entertained the women at Burwash where a film depicting the history and development of the University was shown.

Sunday morning most of the girls "walked" to Timothy Eaton Memorial Church where Dr. Trevor Davies addressed them, and in the evening the S.C.M. expounded its aims and ideals.

NOTABLE MEETINGS CROWD HART HOUSE

Sustains Its Reputation as "Logical Location" for Convention Gatherings

FOUR ASSOCIATIONS MEET

Hart House sustained its reputation as the "logical location" for conventions when four notable associations gathered in session there during the three summer months.

Doctors from all parts of Canada attended the convention of the Canadian Medical Association in the middle of June. The meeting of the American Library Associations which followed gave the officials of the House the task of serving three meals a day for six days to the two thousand delegates. Early in August came the Convention of World Educational Associations and the Great Hall was again the scene of mid-term activity.

On August 25th members of the very interesting Empire Mining and Metallurgical Conference gathered in Hart House. It was attended by the Hon. Mr. Byrnes, Minister of Mines in the Heriotg Administration in South Africa and Sir Richard Redmayne eminent British expert on coal.

INSTALL FLOODLIGHTS TO ILLUMINATE TOWER

A blaze of illumination which will flood Hart House, the Soldiers' Tower and University College is to be a novel feature of the Centenary Celebration. A battery of sixteen floodlights was completed and tested yesterday, upon the tower of the old Observatory. These will light only Hart House. Each light totals two thousand candle-power. Additional lights are to be installed to illuminate the Tower and University College. Those who have noticed the lighting of the Parliament Buildings will appreciate this attraction. The complete spectacle will be ready for Monday.

Personal Significance in Dedication

CEREMONY OCT. 5

Tablets Under Vault of Tower

In one of the most solemn ceremonies of the celebration of Centenary Year the dedication will be held on Thursday, October the sixth of the carillon bells which have been installed in the Soldiers' Memorial Tower, at Hart House. Personal significance is added in the dedication of each of the twenty-three bells to some individual or group of persons that paid the supreme sacrifice or that served in the World War.

Many of the faculties, Alumni Associations and fraternities have taken this opportunity of inscribing the names of their honoured dead on the tablets under the bells that will ring out the tones as long as the Tower of remembrance stands.

Two men that returned to their University after the war to take a leading and honourable part in its activities are remembered in the inscriptions on bells number six and number one. These are Colonel Lang formerly beloved commander of the C.O.T.C. and instructor in military studies and Maurice Cody, brilliant graduate and benefactor of the University who died in Northern Ontario last summer.

In the memorial record chamber, under the vault of the tower, where hang the bells themselves, are 23 tablets set into the walls, and on these tablets are engraved the names of the donors and of those whose memories are kept sacred by the gifts of the bells. Following are the inscriptions on each of the tablets:

I. Gift of Rev. H. J. Cody, M.A., D.D., LL.D., Chairman of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto in loving memory of his only son, Henry Maurice Cody, B.A., died July 14, 1927.

II. To honor the memory of Lieut. Gordon S. M. Gault, M.C., R.F.A., R.F.C., B.A., '15 U.C., killed while flying March 25, 1918.

III. Class of '82, U.C.

EAST AND HUTTON HOUSES LOSE DEANS BY MARRIAGE

Dr. and Mrs. J. M. D. Olmsted are now at Berkley, California
After Trip to Mexico

East House and Hutton House have both lost their deans in residence through the marriage of Dr. J. M. D. Olmsted and Miss Evangeline Harris, formerly lecturer in classics at University College. After a trip to Mexico they returned to Berkley, California and to the University where Dr. Olmsted is now stationed.

Miss Harris is succeeded as dean of '94 by Miss Pantan, M.A., an instructor in food chemistry at the household science building. She is keenly interested in athletics for the residents of Hutton House.

THE MODERN GIRL IS NOT ANY WORSE THAN MOTHER WAS Principal Hutton Addresses

U.C. Freshettes On Modern Customs

NO EXPLANATION OF LIFE

To Escape Modern Democracy
Youth Admits Jazz As Good Music

"The modern girl is no worse than her mother or her grandmother but no better," stated Principal Hutton in his address to the freshettes of University College at Mrs. Kirkwood's At Home held at the Women's Union yesterday afternoon.

"Nature continues to equalize the virtues of each successive age by making an average of quality from age to age," continued the Principal. There is no use swimming against the stream and the wise woman shrugs her shoulders and becomes reconciled to her age."

Nowadays everything had become an open question and especially did people not trust the religious instinct because in that sphere, the truth is beyond proving. Many were inclined to criticize the modern young person and call her by such Greek words as sceptic, agnostic. To the Greek an agnostic was simply one who frankly states he did not know the purpose and meaning of life. After all, one could not demonstrate anything about life except that it is mysterious, complex and unsolvable. "Our ancestors," stated the speaker, "could not demonstrate truth but bet their lives on the truth of religious instinct." To-day, people did not believe in the reality of nature but think a great deal more in terms of fashions and conventionalities."

People were tired of the government of the man of the street, of Main Street and Babbitt. To get away from this modern democracy, they are willing to call jazz good music and Cubism fine art.

INCREASED REGISTRATION CROWDS VIC RESIDENCES

Annex Shelters Freshman And Fills Well Planned Tapping Parties

The overcrowding of all residences at Victoria College has caused the heads much worry and necessitated many changes in the housing plans. The Board of Deaconess Training School was kind enough to allow 40 second and third year girls the privilege of sharing its residence.

Because of the inclusion of the Knox College men this year, the men's residences also are proving inadequate. South and West Hall, Burwash, and 63 Queen's Park have been taken exclusively by the theologs. The Annex has been given over to the freshmen under the care of a house-mother. This arrangement so far has been successful in excluding all attempts at sophomore tapping parties.

The regulations governing students in the branch residences are the same as those of all other residences.

At last Victoria College has come into her own. For many years her doorway has been likened to a fireplace; her red sandstone criticised as out of place, her situation inaccessible.

Yesterday, however, as a Varsity reporter appeared on the doorstep, a little lady reverently approached and inquired, "Is this the Parliament buildings?"

WORLD-WIDE INTEREST IS AROUSED BY CENTENARY CELEBRATION

GREAT HALL MORE POPULAR THAN EVER WITH STUDENTS

Earlier Breakfast Hours For School Men Results In Increased Numbers

More students than ever are discovering the nourishing qualities of Hart House soup this term. On Thursday 874 men had lunch in the Great Hall exclusive of the Faculty and Graduate Dining Halls. Within the next few days it is expected that all previous records will be broken. The feat of accommodating so many, is the more noteworthy when the small seating space, only 300 at once, is taken into account. This year a new departure has been made in starting breakfast at 7.30 a.m. for School men, resulting in increased numbers at breakfast, 230 being there yesterday morning.

Four conventions this summer, doctors, teachers, librarians, and miners, helped to tide the Great Hall over the 'lean' months. So much indeed that winter is scarcely regarded as the busy season now.

FROSH RESPLENDENT IN CHEQUERED TIES

Compassionate Spirit Results
In Installation Of Signs
And Arrows

ONE SIGN LACKING

There is a visitor at U. C., namely, the frosh with his necktie. The ancestral red and white skull cap, which could be carefully stowed away in the hip pocket when the sophomores were not looking, has given way to the new fad of the tie—and such a tie! Red and white in large squares, yards of it banging out over quiet brown or grey waistcoats, shrieking out from under the chins of quiet, perplexed faces. A most annoying thing, the tie. One can't go about changing ties every time one sees a sophomore, and the sophomores will pull the ties out as often as they are carefully tucked away under the vests. The new U.C. frosh is resplendent, but he does not seem to thrill to it.

U.C. freshmen had at least a fighting chance, yesterday, to keep from getting lost. The rooms in the old college are notoriously hard to find for a beginner, for the odd and even numbers are in opposite wings of the building. In other years freshmen and freshettes too have been left to find this out for themselves, but the spirit of friendliness, (with perhaps a wish to save bother all around) has descended with large direction signs bearing numbers of rooms and arrows. One very necessary sign's still lacking, though. It should read "No Parking".

Dr. Hunter Lectures On Food

House

"Food and Food Values" was the subject of the lecture delivered yesterday at Hygeia House by Dr. Andrew Hunter, M.A., B.Sc., Ch.B., Professor of biochemistry.

Students of household science from the university as well as from the technical school and city institutions attended the address.

Two Hundred and Fifty Notables
From Other Universities To Be In Attendance

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE

Toast List Includes Men
Of World-wide Reputation

Arrangements are now virtually complete for the reception and entertainment of the official and student delegates to the Centenary Celebration of this University. It is increasingly evident that the hundredth birthday of a great Canadian institution has attracted world-wide interest. Two hundred and twenty-five delegates have already signified their intention of attending, including notables from universities and learned societies in almost every country of the World.

The Centenary Celebration will be officially set in motion on Thursday, at 1.30 p.m. with an impressive parade. The delegates and guests, and the men's staff will collect at Convocation Hall. The parade will be honoured by the presence of the Cabinet of the Province of Ontario, the Mayor of Toronto, the Board of Control, the heads of the military, delegates, student delegates, and the members of the Students' Administrative Council. The parade will be headed by a Scottish pipe band.

All delegates are to be met at the Union Station by representatives of the University, and conveyed to the campus. There will be an information booth where information will be issued to delegates as they arrive. Cars will then be provided to take them to the University library to register and to drive those billeted in private homes to their destinations. Besides the regular delegates it is expected that all graduates of the University who are attending the Celebration will also register at the library.

The student delegates are to be housed in various College dormitories, and Fraternity houses. Twenty-five will also be accommodated in Hart House. They will be lunched by the Board of Stewards of Hart House on Wednesday and entertained at tea by the U. C. Women's Union after the football game on Saturday.

Three Prime Ministers will be present in the parade: The Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Hon. G. H. Ferguson, and Hon. L. A. Taschereau.

DR. GORDON EMPHASIZES GREAT NEED FOR GYM

University Women Have No
Adequate P. T. Quarters Says
Medical Adviser

"The awful necessity of a gymnasium for the girls at the University of Toronto cannot be overemphasized," stated Dr. Gordon, Medical adviser to the women students when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday. "If I am driven to setting up a portable office on the Main Campus or if Miss Coventry is seen giving instructions in folk dancing in the Rotunda perhaps this need will be realized and the girls will have a gymnasium all to themselves," she continued.

Dr. Gordon has been forced to give up her office in the Household Science building "The Varsity" was informed, by the lack of space in the building and her new room is consultation room, office and examining room. Even this arrangement is not definite since Miss Laird has stated that she may have to take over these quarters from Dr. Gordon.

TORONTO, SEPTEMBER 30, 1927

"POOR FROSH"

Co-incident with the donning of spectacular ties, comes the annual cry, "Poor Frosh." It is a hackneyed phrase,—somewhat of an anachronism in 1927, and, moreover,—misplaced. The freshmen are fortunate to be in the University of Toronto at any time, and especially this centenary year. They are honoured in being given a place in its history and tradition. They are to be envied in having four glorious and inspiring years ahead of them. For their benefit each preceding year has left its contribution. Lucky Frosh! Well may they wear their ties abroad with pride and arrogance.

They have arrived.

However, in comparison with the wisdom and experience of the other years—they must appear improvident, indeed. They wander into fourth year classes—and never know the difference. They inquire for men's residences and innocently enter the Lillian Massey building. They walk up to sophomores and deliberately step into a well-laid snare. They are ignorant, awkward, and green,—and as long as last year's freshmen graduate into sophomores, and, in the process of time, become juniors and seniors, the first year will retain its well-known appellation—poor, unsuspecting frosh!

FRIENDLY RELATIONS

An international journalistic exchange, unique in the history of College newspaper endeavour, was last year effected between the University of Manitoba and the University of North Dakota. Editors of The Manitoban visited Grand Forks where they were placed in complete charge of one issue of undergraduate daily there. From North Dakota a similar party of editors journeyed to Winnipeg. There they were faced with the problem of adapting themselves to their new surroundings in a minimum of time.

The event has significance from a journalistic point of view and as well contributes to the development of inter-university relations. But its importance does not end there. Tomorrow these two universities meet on the rugby field in what is to be the first International game in football circles in Western Canada.

With over three thousand miles of undefended border between them, Canada and the United States have enjoyed over one hundred years of peace. That such a state will continue depends on the friendly intercourse of the peoples of these two countries. Manitoba every indication that the event will become an annual affair. Five plans to play a return game at Grand Forks next Fall and there is centuries of devotion to sport led to the statement that, "The Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing fields of Eton." Sport developed the traditions of self-sacrifice for team play and of playing the game to the bitter end. Sport can also teach fair play, self-control and a sympathy and understanding for the other team.

WIDE INTEREST AROUSED BY VARSITY CELEBRATIONS

The body of the parade will then proceed through the Tower Arch to the University Arena, which has been specially decorated by Mr. Lisbourne, completely changing the interior.

The programme of the Opening Ceremony will start with the singing of "O, God our Help in Ages Past" by the Students' Choir under the direction of Dr. Ernest McMillan. A prayer will follow by the Reverend Canon Cody. Sir Robert Falconer will then deliver a brief address.

After the Opening, the formal presentation of the delegates will take place. Then the entire party will form up and proceed to the dedication of the Carillon in the Soldiers' Tower. The evening of the Opening day of the Centenary Celebration will be occupied by the great dinner in the University Arena to delegates, student delegates and undergraduates.

The assembly will be presided over by Dr. Cody.

The list of speakers forms one of the greatest collections of notables ever assembled in Toronto. Six toasts will entail sixteen speakers in the proposals and replies. Among other world-wide figures the following will speak: Dr. Livingston Ferrand, President of Cornell University, Sir Bland Suttan, eminent surgeon, Member British Medical Association, Sir Charles Sherrington, representing the British Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. Samuel Angus, representing St. Andrew's College, Sydney, Australia.

Among the great public figures will be the Prime Minister of Canada, Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King; Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the University; Hon. William Phillips, United States Ambassador to Canada; Hon. Thomas Smiddy, representative of the Irish Free State at Washington; Hon. H. Puyredon, Ambassador from Argentina to the United States.

Following the dinner the general public will be admitted to the side seats to listen to the speeches. It is also anticipated that radio broadcasting will be provided.

An old schoolmaster in Swabia, in a service of fifty-three years, according to his own faithful statement, administered 911,500 canings, 121,000 floggings, 209,000 custodes, 10,220 ear-boxes, 22,700 tacks, 136 tips with the rule, 700 boys to stand on peas, 6,000 to kneel on sharp edged wood, 5,000 to wear the fool's cap, 1,700 to hold the rod—in all, 1,282,036 cases of punishment.

last year and his play will be watched with interest. Paired with Nunnas he will play in both tournaments and this team are strong favorites for Inter-collegiate honours.

Another Varsity standby Ken Salmond is again on hand and will doubtless make a strong bid for a position on the team. He seems to have curbed his erratic tendencies and can be counted on for some sterling performances this fall.

With such outstanding performers as these, Varsity's chances are exceedingly bright and Jack Wright and Co., at McGill may well be in perfect condition to defend their honours when the Intercollegiate tourney starts in Montreal two weeks hence.

W. A. HIGGINS APPOINTED TO VACANCY ON S.A.C.

Succeeds G. F. Bannerman On The Executive of Council

Warner A. Higgins, B.Sc.F., has been appointed to fill the vacancy as secretary-treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council due to the resignation last summer of G. F. Bannerman, B.A., to become an account director in the Advertising Service Company.

In the person of Mr. Higgins, the University of Toronto has a very capable executive to fill the post left open by Mr. Bannerman. A graduate of our own university in the faculty of forestry, he will be no newcomer. Not only was he editor of Torontoensis in '25 but managing editor of the Varsity in '23 when it changed from a bi-weekly to daily.

CHAMPUS CAT

Yesterday we were chatting with a friend of ours who chanced to have gone on a student's tour to Europe this summer. All went well until the return passage over the frolicky Atlantic. Just in the middle of the ocean, the storms grew fiercer, mountainous waves leapt aboard, and passengers were recumbent below. Next morning our friend lay pale and wan propped up on a deck-chair. The steward came up with a tray and said pleasantly: "Here is your breakfast, sir."

"Well," said our friend "just toss it overboard and save time."

C—C.

Prof. Can you tell me what is the difference between a red onion and a white onion?

First Year Pass. "No Sir."
Prof. (severely) Boy, you don't know your onions at all!

C—C.

Speaking of contributions again, the "Varsity" runs a Student Verse Column once a week, and all offerings will be carefully reviewed. If they appear, well, that will be fine, but, if not, it will be their own fault. While rummaging about in last year's files we came across a contribution to "Student Verse" that someone had passed by. We apologize very deeply for printing it in this heaven-forsaken column, but it is a gem, and if A.F.R. is still in our midst, we want him to come again and often. As we remarked before, we apologize for so lovely a thing appearing under our benighted heading.

Only a whisper glad
Out of the heart of the night—
But the darkness has faded to dawn—
And the world is wrapped in light.
Only a lilting song
Out from the lips of a maid—
But the world has turned to its sunrise
And desire of my heart is staid.

A. F. R.

C—C.

To the new arrivals in our midst, we offer sympathy and advise them to display fortitude and meekness. Once we had to suffer all the indignities which they must; that was away back in the palmy day when Mayhem and attempted murder were pleasant outdoor sports—but all that is, thank Heaven! far, far away. Initiations were like the greeting that the prehistoric cave-man gave his bride—a playful fracture of the skull just to make one feel absolutely at home and welcome.

The Women's Editor of "The Varsity" regrets to state that the request for reporters, appearing in yesterday's paper, had reference only to the Men's Staff. The Women's Staff is fortunately well-manned, but if any who have left their names in the Women's office care to go on probation, kindly call in between 10 and 12 to-day.

TWO GAMES AT STADIUM SATURDAY; TENNIS MONDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

With hundreds of delegates from Universities throughout the world and thousands of graduates returning to the University for the Centenary Celebrations next week the Varsity-McGill football game one week hence promises to have an attendance practically replete in University folk. In fact, it is believed that every available seat in the Stadium can readily be absorbed by Toronto Graduates and Undergraduates.

The Varsity-R.M.C. game will be staged as the first half of a double-header, starting at two o'clock while the second game at 4 p.m. will be a league fixture between Camp Borden and Hamilton Tigers. The second game was originally scheduled for Hamilton but, owing to the unfortunate loss by fire of the Tiger's Stadium a few days ago, a change of venue was forced upon the club. As it is the two games should provide an attraction that will go far to rival the McGill-Balmby Beach game at the Beachers new Stadium, even though Major Forbes and Shaughnessy of McGill will demonstrate their pet theory of a forward pass.

The University tennis tournament, which begins Monday, provides an opportunity of which all tennis enthusiasts in the various faculties should avail themselves. Of late years the team has gradually been gaining in strength and last season the showing of the team at Kingston was very creditable indeed. Entries must be filed at the Offices of the Athletic Association, Hart House, not later than Saturday noon and it is to be hoped that Freshmen in particular will avail themselves of the opportunity to experience the game as it is played at Varsity.

No one can afford to overlook the O.R.F.U. squad this year, either. Mike Pearson has a capable squad of candidates on hand and, while many of them may be lacking in experience, the majority have the size to enable them to successfully compete with such huskies as grace the Balmby Beach roster. In Gordie Beal at quarter the "Orphans" have perhaps the most experienced pivot man in University ranks while Lorne McIntyre ranks with the best of the backfield men now at Varsity.

The O.R.F.U. team will open its schedule with a game at Balmby Beach a week from tomorrow. As usual, the Pearsonites are handicapped by a schedule that forces them to play in the city on a day on which the Intercollegiate squad is staging a particularly big attraction but the schedule will allow of no other arrangement. At that, the overflow from the big game, and there promises to be a large one, should carry many student supporters to the north end of Stadium.

The two Carriek brothers, Don and Alex, were notable additions to the Blue workout last night. Don came along rapidly last season and his re-appearance will give the locals another reliable performer along the line while Alex, an U.T.S. star, who only registered yesterday, is certain to prove useful.

The Evening Flower - A Glistening Bag - Pearls That Flatter - The Filmy Hose - For the Shawl - A Beautiful Fan

An Evening Ensemble

Is just as smart as its component parts. Frocks that will score a triumph at the Centenary Ball, at the Graduate Dinner, will be accompanied by a graceful shawl or a luxurious wrap—will flaunt the newest flower, the most sheer of hose—subtle accents to a perfect whole. The Store is brimming over with suggestions for everything for evening wear, the latest dictates of Fashion—among them:

Gay Dancing Frocks

Vivacious and charming the frocks from Paris with their air of youthful sophistication—the glitter of rhinestones, the piquant irregularity of hem line, the suggestion of the period frock with its hem that trails in back. Taffeta, chiffon, georgette, velvet, satin—in white, peach, rose, green, blue, black. In the Mises' French Room—$35.00 up.

Fourth Floor—Queen St.

The Shawl is Smart

With the graceful insouciance of youth, the shawl plays an important role in the Fall Fashion world. You will find charming new arrivals in all white, in white with contrast of vivid sort, in black, brilliant rose or blue—in short, in colours to harmonize with the season's shades.

Third Floor—Centre

A Glistening Bag

May hold a vanity, a handkerchief—the little feminine trifles—with great smartness if it be one of the new rhinestone affairs. In the hand bag department, $12.50 and up.

Main Floor—Centre

The Filmy Hose

More often than not will match the frock—in cobwebby fineness—and, of course, silk to the top. It is priced from $1.95 to $4.50. In shades for evening wear.

Main Floor—Yonge St.

Pearls That Flatter

Are distinctly youthful and take new forms—triple rows, sometimes combined with rhinestones, sometimes alone—white, pink or peach to suit your taste. Priced from $3.50 up.

SENIOR TEAMS TRAIN FOR SATURDAY'S TUSSELE

First Team Shows Steady Game, With Reliable Secondary Defense

Both senior teams put in a good couple of hours practice at the Stadium in preparation for the game next Saturday afternoon when the big Blue team will play R.M.C. in what will really be the opening of the local football season as last Saturday's tussle with Argos was not much more than a good workout for the two teams and gave the Varsity supporters very little idea of what the team is capable of.

The Intercollegiate squad had a snappy signal drill which was followed by a scrimmage with the O.R.F.U. team and while the Intercollegiate made a few mistakes most of their plays got away with precision and very obvious results. Carrick and Stollery smashed through on several nice line plays while Sinclair and Young ran the ends in fine fashion.

If there was one thing that caught the attention of the railbirds it was possibly the steadiness of the first team. There were very few openings in the line and when one did occur it was well looked after by the secondary defense.

Westwood was in at quarter again and handled the team in splendid fashion his two handed passes being very effective on extension plays. The O.R.F.U. have several promising newcomers this year. With two smart teams in the making, Varsity supporters should have little to worry about unless the other members of the league reveal unexpected strength.

STADIUM USHERS

The following men have been appointed Head Ushers, and are requested to report to-day, at 2.00 p.m.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP REIGNS AT SCHOOL FROSH SMOKER

371 Learns S.P.S. Songs And Yells Under Leadership Of Mr. Workman

The men of the first year in the faculty of Applied Science and Engineering were welcomed at the reception held in the east common room at Hart House last night.

Every man wore a tag with his name inscribed, and good fellowship was furthered by a sing-song when the freshmen learned the S.P.S. songs and yells under the instruction of Mr. Ross Workman. Explanatory addresses were given by J. B. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, Rev. Mr. Moore, of the Student Christian Association and William Duncan, president of the Engineering Society.

People watching with interest the repair of the hundred and ten foot flag pole by the Observatory will be disappointed to learn that its only claim to historic importance is its age. The vicissitudes of some twenty years or more have rotted the top from the lower spar and the former is now being replaced.

Staff Positions Open

Candidates for positions on the Sporting Staff of "The Varsity" will please get in touch with the Sporting Editors in the Hart House Office immediately. Experience is not essential, but openings are available for men who are willing to work and show initiative.

There is something more in learning and something more in life than a mere knowledge of science, a mere acquisition of wealth, a mere striving for power. Our colleges will fail in their duty to their students unless they inspire them with a broader understanding of the spiritual meaning of science, literature and of the arts.

Our colleges must teach not only science but character.

INTERCOLLEGIATE RUGBY SQUAD SWAMP ROYAL MILITARY COLLEGE

President Broadcasts

In connection with the Centenary Celebration, Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University of Toronto, will broadcast over radio station CKN at 9.15 tonight a message to all graduates and undergraduates of the University and others interested in its activities.

CENTENARY CALLS ANOTHER REUNION

Engineering Alumni Gathering in King Edward Next Thursday

FULL PROGRAM ARRANGED

A second great reunion at the same time as the Centenary Celebration will take place under the guidance of the Engineering Alumni Association, a unit of the Alumni Federation. This year, in addition to the Centenary of the University, includes the fiftieth anniversary of the old School of Applied Science, now the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. From advance registration cards which have been received, it is expected that from six to eight hundred Engineering graduates of the University will be assembled here from Canada and the United States.

The headquarters of the School men will be the King Edward Hotel, where rooms will be provided for rendezvous and registration on the mezzanine floor. All School men are expected to register here, and only registrants will be given tickets to the various functions.

A crowded programme has been provided by the Reunion Committee, yet no School event is to clash with any University event. The Reunion will open with a luncheon at the King Edward, on Thursday, and from that time on the celebrants will be beguiled with "The Ceremony of the Ritual of the Calling of an Engineer", a smoker, receptions, a dinner dance, buffet luncheons, and a final wind-up banquet on Saturday. School men will also attend the various events of the University Centenary Celebration. These activities have been arranged by the Reunion Committee under the chairmanship of A. E. K. Bunnell, '06.

Prof. V. W. Bladen Appointed Resident Dean of East House

East House during the coming term will have Mr. V. W. Bladen as its Dean in Residence.

Mr. Bladen graduated from Balliol College, Oxford, in Modern History. After obtaining his degree he came to the University of Toronto and received a position in the Department of Economics, and last summer was appointed assistant professor.

In addition to his academic activities, Mr. Bladen has taken a keen interest in debating, as he is chairman of the Hart House Debates Committee. He is on the Advisory Board of Student Publications and takes a great interest in "The Varsity."

Confer Honorary Degrees at Special Convocation

A Special Convocation will be held in Convocation Hall, on Friday, Oct. 7th, at 2.45 p.m., for the purpose of conferring Honorary Degrees on the occasion of the Centenary Celebration.

Cadets Provide Sufficient Opposition to Perfect New Machine

TWO GAMES AT STADIUM

Hamilton Tigers O.R.F.U. Team Nosed Out Camp Borden 4-3 In Second Game

In the first half of a double-header, staged at the Stadium Saturday afternoon, Varsity Intercollegiate Rugby Champions, romped away from the intermediate champions, Royal Military College, by a 37-1 margin. The heavy though inexperienced Cadets provided just sufficient opposition to enable the locals to ease the roughness always apparent in new machinery. Seldom were the signals messed up, and the strengthened line made holes or held as the occasion demanded, while the halves plunged or ran at will with almost faultless ball-handling.

Westwood, the diminutive quarter, was the star of the game, and besides filling in well at the pivot position, he made two spectacular runs of forty and forty-five yards in the third period. Wilton, Traynor, Snyder and Daly tackled well on the wings, while on the half line Sinclair stood out in booting and running, with Bailey not far in the rear. For the lovers Molson and Darling were the best, Darling getting away some pretty locks under difficulty. Ross at flying-wing made some pretty tackles.

Varsity's start was not auspicious as R.M.C., returning the kick-off, secured the ball on our forty-yard line. They did not keep it long, and Bailey started the attack by a thirty-five yard plunge. Al Young later carrying the ball over for the first counter, which Sinclair converted. Varsity 6, R.M.C. 0. The kick-off was returned, and on a fumble Toronto secured the ball. Yards were made twice, but a forward pass annulled it, and Sinclair brought the total up to 9 by a pretty drop kick. The cadets handled the ball loosely. Another drive was attempted, but only a rouge secured. The locals still pressed the attack, and by a pretty though daring pass, Young to Sinclair, the line was crossed again, and the converted touch brought the score Varsity 16, R.M.C. 0, at the end of the period.

Early in the second period, a hybrid-airade provided diversity by assisting tacklers of both squads, being later aided by a young police dog. Both sides used subs freely. The Cadets still fumbled badly, and Sinclair made his second drop kick of the game. Ross broke through and blocked a Toronto kick, R.M.C. securing possession. An attempted drop kick went astray, and Young ran it out. Later Bailey pulled a neat play, making a twenty yard sprint after fooling the tacklers by preparing to return a punt. Score at half time—Varsity 19, R.M.C. 0.

Rooters' Practice at 4.15 for Centenary Singers

Today at 4.15 there will be a meeting in Convocation Hall of all those students who would like to help in the singing during the Centenary Celebration. Dr. Ernest Macmillan, who will conduct the singing, is anxious to have it as well organized as the rooting at a rugby game.

"We don't want just choir singers, but everyone, and there is no suggestion of voice tests," Dr. Macmillan told "The Varsity." "What I am thinking of is simply a rooters' practice, with singing substituted for yelling."

FIRST YEAR LEAD IN REGISTRATION

1927 FIGURES PASSED

Approximate registration figures for the 1926-27 session reveal an increase in the Faculty of Arts over last year. The total, according to the most recent information compiled, is 2,468, compared with 2,369 at the same time last year. University College leads with 1,330, of which 719 are men and 611 women. The first year has the largest number, 265 freshmen and 174 freshettes. Victoria College, where only total figures are available, has 674, about 30 ahead of last year. St. Michael's and Trinity are about the same, the former with 234, and the latter with about 230. St. Michael's figures by years are 84 in the first, 65 in the second, 43 in the third, and 42 in the fourth. Trinity College has some 45 students more than last year, while it is probable that there will be a slight increase at St. Michael's.

Of the other faculties at which figures are available, S.P.S. reports 525, and Medicine 734. The largest year at S.P.S. is the first, with 185 enrolled; the others follow in order, with numbers respectively 141, 105 and 94. Third year Meds leads in that faculty with 144; the smallest year is the 6th with 108.

Allowing for late registration, of which there is always some, it is expected that total figures will be slightly ahead of last year's.

Indian Co-Ed at Vic In Native Costume

A bright figure at Victoria this year is Miss Checha Eipe from India, who wears the costume of her native country about the campus—in startling contrast to the short skirts of the modern co-ed.

Miss Eipe, whose home is in Travancore, is a graduate in Natural Science of a college in Madras, and intends taking the work of the third and fourth years of Household Economics here, with a view to teaching household science in her own land.

Miss Eipe is at Victoria on a Mrs. Massey Treble scholarship—which allows the interest on $10,000 for the assistance of women registered at Victoria and studying household science for use in missionary work.

Novelty, Intrigue, Mystery Reign At Undergraduate Centenary Ball

Once every hundred years comes the Undergraduates' Centenary Ball. Those who miss this one are not advised to wait for the next. Just enough intriguing details have been released by the Committee in charge to make it plain that the Ball of 1927 will be something to be mentioned with hushed and reverent voices by the great-grandchildren when they come back in 2027. Even the programmes will be taken, yellow with age, from the old trunk up in the attic, and fondled by careful hands. Each one has been hand-painted in colors; they are both artistic and futuristic; one part shows dancers in 1827, abundantly clothed, next come the 1927 revellers

BOOK EXCHANGE IN FULL SWING

S.C.A. Ledger Carries 400 Accounts in Beating '27 Business

CONSCIENCE OR AVARICE?

With a volume of business averaging between three and four hundred dollars a day and a ledger containing more than four hundred accounts, the S.C.A. Book Exchange bids fair at least to equal, if not surpass, the business done last year, in spite of the reduction of business operations from over a period of thirty days to fourteen.

The foregoing figures give evidence of the increasing popularity with the student body of this branch of the Students' Christian Association, which has operated the book exchange for several years on a self supporting basis.

Students of French seem most eager to "cash in" on their education, several shelves being devoted to their discarded texts. The ones who have been exposed to the rigors of Latin lectures also prefer to transform their volumes into more liquid assets.

The prices are not set by the S.A.C., this being left to the conscience or the avarice of the former owners, with the result that the cost of the books on any particular subject vary as to their condition and the temperament of the individual seller.

Miss Mary Rowell Secretary of S.C.M.

Miss Mary Rowell, graduate of Victoria College 1925, has been appointed Women's Secretary of the Student Christian Movement in the University of Toronto. There has been no secretary for the Women's work since Miss Helen Nichol resigned three years ago.

Miss Rowell spent last year studying in England and on the continent—where she had close contact with the Student Christian Movements of Great Britain and France. Her office is in the Household Science Building. She will be glad to meet any students interested in the work of the Movement.

The Toronto Women's Council has spent the past week-end with Miss Rowell at Oakville making plans for the coming year.

Memorial Service

The late Reverend Professor Hugh Thomas Forbes Duckworth, beloved professor of classics at Trinity College, will be remembered by his colleagues and students in a memorial service which will be held in the college chapel on Tuesday at 4.45. Professor Duckworth, it will be remembered, died in Rouen, France, last summer after an operation.

not by any means so well dressed, and next
Mysterious and awful things are to take place during the orgies, the Committee whispers, and at a certain hour a Hand will scatter caps, decorative, dunces and otherwise, from Unknown Sources. Then, too, while the thirty-five piece orchestra is collectively resting its weary lips during the intermission, a massed song will take place. Over five hundred dollars have been spent in prettifying Hall and arranging fancy lights in a beautiful and appropriate manner. Novelty and merriment will be the middle name of the first Undergraduates' Centenary Ball in the University of Toronto.

FRESHETTES LEARN OF S.C.A. MOVEMENT

University College Women Given Tea Sunday Afternoon at the Union

STUDY GROUPS LISTED

The First Year women of University College were given an introduction into the meaning of the Student Christian Movement within the University, at a tea Sunday afternoon at the Women's Union. Miss Helen Allen, President of the University College organization, told the group what the Student Christian Association was doing to promote a study of Christian ethical principles. Miss Mary Rowell, who is the University Women's head of the movement, was introduced to the gathering. Miss Rowell prophesied a splendid year with such an active executive for this year. The visit in November of Mr. Bruce Curry, who will conduct a series of study groups, was announced.

Miss Margaret Lovatt, Study group convener, listed the different groups which would be conducted during the term. Among these leaders will be Mr. Moore, who will conduct a group in the discussion of the Ethical Principles of Jesus. Professor McKenzie will lead a group on the topic of Internationalism; Mr. Ward on Psychology and Religion; Mr. Arthur Lismer on Appreciation of Art; Miss Beatrice Abbott on Dr. Sharman's book; Mrs. Brookes, wife of the general secretary of the S.C.M. in Canada, on India; and it is hoped Dr. Taylor on a Study of the Life of Jesus. A list will be posted on the bulletin board in the women's cloak room in University College.

Mrs. Dow brought the group to a happy closing with the singing of some Negro Spirituals. Among the guests was Miss Rutherford, who is well known to the S.C.M. in the University.

St. Paul's Director to Guide Victoria College Music Club

The Victoria College Music Club announces that Mr. Crawford, musical director at St. Paul's Anglican Church, will direct the club in the production of a comic opera which will take place early in the winter term. It is reported, unofficially, that the opera will be "The Emerald Isle," which was begun by Arthur Sullivan before his death, and completed by Edward German.

Definite details of this year's programme will be given at the open meeting of the Music Club in Wymwood tonight at 7.30.

Report of the Carnegie Foundation Ranks Varsity With Harvard and Swarthmore

STUDY IS A MAJOR SPORT

Conducts Special Curricula For Selected Students In Various Subjects

That the University of Toronto is one of the three leading universities of the western hemisphere in its devotion to high standard academic work is the conclusion of the twenty-first annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Improvement of Teaching. Harvard and Swarthmore Universities share the high ranking with Toronto in the bulky volume, extracts from which appear below:

"The University of Toronto, a Canadian institution of great interest, embodying as it does many English traditions worked out under conditions resembling our own, admits students only by examination. It offers two forms of matriculation, one for the "pass" course and one for honors. The first, representing approximately the equivalent of graduation from a good high school here, admits to a four-year course similar in general to that of the average American college. "Pass" students at Toronto in 1926-27 constituted forty-three per cent of the 2,344 undergraduate students in Arts. Men were admitted to the pass course in 1926 at an average age of twenty years; women, at eighteen years and seven months. The second examination, that for honor matriculation, requires at least one full year of additional secondary study and often more. It admits to a course quite unlike the usual college course with us, as will be noted later. The honor students last year numbered fifty-six per cent of the undergraduates in Arts, and the entrants of this grade last fall came in at the age of eighteen years and six months, both men and women.

"The purpose of the honor course at Toronto is to provide the best possible intellectual training for capable minds, and it is on its accomplishment with these that the University bases its reputation. The criterion of selection and exclusion is as nearly as possible the evidence of independent work. In 1926 seventy-seven per cent of the first-year honor group passed the final annual examinations. Of the remainder, four-fifths were transferred at once to the pass course."

The report has this to say in connection with the curricula and examinations at Toronto:

TORONTO, OCTOBER 3, 1927

MAINTAINING STANDARDS

The twenty-first annual report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Improvement of Teaching names the University of Toronto, Swarthmore and Harvard as the three leading centres of learning in the Western Hemisphere, judged from academic standards. That Toronto should be given such a rating is obviously an indication that the organization of departments and courses here is of high order. It leaves the University faced with the difficulty of maintaining that high standard.

Toronto may well give the greatest attention to her future development. The best Universities on this continent are faced with glaring defects which time alone can remedy. Rapid rise in registration has created problems which have necessitated the employment of "machine" methods. In some cases universities of two and three thousand students have sprung up from a few hundreds in incredibly short time.

While Toronto has many problems to face, her greatest task will be guiding her development in the best channels during the next ten years. The traditions of English Universities have played a great part in the past, and their influence will continue to be felt. Proximity to institutions in the United States has also had a very considerable effect.

This University must retain the best features of both systems and reject those which appear objectionable. Toronto's future, however, depends on how well she strives to create purely Canadian traditions adapted to her own peculiar requirements as a leading Canadian University.

ORGANIZED SINGING FOR THE CENTENARY

Evidently thirty students in the University of Toronto are anxious to share in the musical part of the Centenary Celebration. At any rate, that number responded to Dr. Macmillan's appeal for help in organizing the singing for this week's activities.

Organized singing will provide the only opportunity for the whole student body to take part in this greatest event in the life of our university.

In our news columns to-day we publish the announcement of a meeting in Convocation Hall, at which Dr. Macmillan will try a second time to arrange for same student music. We would strongly urge all students to attend this meeting, for we feel that the importance of music on this occasion cannot be over-emphasized.

Poor Frosh!

An extremely dignified class—second year honours—nervously awaited their prof. Was he going to waste their precious time and dismiss them before the appointed hour, or was he going to feed them knowledge with the tasty morsels of Latin?

A new element entered their conversation; a twitter of concern ran around the room. Why the presence of the red and white check ties? Enter the prof. With the stately tread of learning he crossed the floor and reached his desk. He turned. He stared. His eyebrows rose in unrestrained disgust. His lips curled in an uncontrolled snarl.

"Ahem!" he coughed. "May I ask if this lecture is English or French?" "English," came the confident, respectful murmur from the dignified sophs. Nothing came from the offending red and white check ties.

Seven red and white ties shuffled slowly from their seats. Seven red and white ties slumped nervously out of the room.

A dignified class of honour sophomores gave a dignified expression of unrestrained mirth. A learned professor gave a stately sigh of relief, and proceeded to emit the tasty morsels of truth.

Can it be possible that seven red and white ties do not know the difference between English and French—that both are Greek to them?

EXAMINERS BEAT EVEN MEASLES

"Measles"—Fancy German, or plain English. A kind to suit every taste. 10 per cent reduction to Varsity students.

A bargain, and a student looking for a bargain. The two came together last spring. The student was not so pleased with his bargain, as the bargain was satisfied with the student. So into the ranks of exam-fraught students strode an enemy more dread than the examiner—The Frosh looked both the devil and the deep blue sea in the eye: the sea was unknown; the devil was at least known from rumour. The frosh chose the devil and found that he has lost in the sea all the same, while his happier companions managed at least to be towed to land.

"Shall I congratulate or sympathize?" asked the doctor. The student soon knew. Exams in quarantine, with an individual examiner and not the slightest hope of being able to help oneself gently over.

But even quarantine can provide entertainment, especially when, with the isolation ward full, the victim spends his imprisonment next the psychiatric section.

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Theatre

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Aikins propose to hold a series of auditions for undergraduates, with a view to selecting a group of about twelve, with whom they wish to work two or three weeks during the next two or three months in pantomime, diction and the general technique of acting. It is their hope to use individual members of this group in certain of the Hart House Theatre productions, and it is possible that the group as a unit may undertake a portion of the programme for the Christmas production at Hart House.

For further particulars regarding this course application should be made to the Director's office at Hart House Theatre between the hours of twelve and one o'clock during the first ten days of October. Mr. and Mrs. Aikins extend a cordial invitation to any members of your group to participate in this work.

The above announcement has been mailed by the Director of Hart House Theatre to the secretaries of the various undergraduate dramatic societies of the university. Simple though the announcement may appear, it has unique features worthy of sincere and most favourable comment. The fact that a Director of Hart House has finally and formally announced his intention of assisting, encouraging, training and welcoming all undergraduates interested in the drama is, in itself, a thing of prime importance. Never before in university dramatic circles has there been so frank and friendly a statement from the head of Hart House Theatre that there will be earnest and continued co-operation between himself and all Theatre Guilds in the University. So often one has seen obvious flaws in undergraduate productions which a skilled director would have eliminated, and equally often one has seen outsiders in minor roles of Hart House productions which trained undergraduate actors could have undertaken with a greater measure of success—and Mr. Carroll Aikins bids fair to ring down the curtain on such remediable scenes by his searching intention of drawing all dramatic spokes in the wheel firmly into their proper and commodious centre, Hart House. In no small way will Mr. Aikins be assisted in his efforts by Mrs. Aikins, and at last, one may believe that the undergraduate will feel more at home and welcome in Hart House Theatre than ever previously. In our midst we have Canada's finest Little Theatre, where in the undergraduates should be found—and it does seem that Mr. Aikins' first step augurs well for whatever ones he may take in the future.

N.A.B.

Malbrouch s'en va l'en guerret N.A.B., who capably Jesus this daily hegeira up Mt. Parnassus, has gone instead to Ward's Island, for reasons unknown, but suspected. We think well of our N.A.B., so our formal construction is that he is sitting on the lap of the Muses swigging Ambrosia now and again, mostly now.

Undertaking to act as custodian of this feline menagerie, we add that in our pants-pocket nestles a one-way ticket for Omsk, as N.A.B. comes back tomorrow. The anecdote anent the sea-sick passenger last Friday calls to mind the utterances of another sufferer. Gazing earnestly over the rail to contemplate the vastness of the deep, he gasped: "It's the bologna!"

C-C

We notice that the star feature-writer of a certain weekly paper has been shooting off more front salads about the University. Gregoire is learning fast, but the decorations depicting Varsity in 2027 are pure Schrecklichkeit. The artist has the same idea of collich as the star-eyed soul who writes the movies of goils and bhoys at Lacmille University.

C-C

Our Latin Prof. tells us that Horace was widely read. Well, if Horry hoisted the flag on as often as he lets on, he probably was widely red.

C-C

We know a Professor who refers to the Frosh as "My Real-Estate Class" because they are such a vacant lot. DEE.

C-C

We have just pulled in to the Office after a particularly tough voyage on the "Luella"—and a good week-end. It is very distressing to find that our trusted minion "Dee" has given us unnecessary publicity. If our whis-kers are wet, that is due entirely to Lake Ontario's playfulness.

C-C

Down at S.P.S. there is a furious moustache-hunt in progress. The Sophs decided to treat the frosh as human-beings, but at this display of gentleness, the Juniors have taken it upon themselves to reduce the Frosh to a state of absolute zero. We have been told by the Chief Clipper that he has already amputated four moustaches and a beautiful set of side-burns—and they are still chasing the wind-teasers with redoubled vigor. More power to their elbows! School Spirit is one thing that you can't buy in bottles.

U.C. Women Are Guests of Mrs. Kirkwood at Tea

On Friday afternoon Mrs. Kirkwood held a tea for the fourth year of University College. Miss Valentine and Miss Ford poured tea. Professor Alexander was a distinguished visitor and also Miss Carey, who has taken Miss Harris' place as Professor in Latin.

At 5.15 Mrs. Kirkwood gave a few minutes' talk. Mrs. Kirkwood thanked the W.C.A. and the Heads of Houses for their help in entertaining the First Year on Thursday. She also gave a resumé of Professor Hulton's address to them elaborating when applicable to the Fourth Year. Freshness and naturalness, Democracy, Intellectual Honesty, and a certain spiritual quality in spite of doubt as to dogma, were emphasized by her as necessary to the senior who can help those younger and less experienced in the university, and who is about to take her place in the world beyond the university.

S.C.A. Groups Formed, Addresses Planned

It is announced that S.C.A. discussion groups in many subjects are in process of formation and that all students or groups of students who are interested in any particular subject are invited to form such groups for the discussion of these subject, rooms and hours being provided by the Student Christian Association.

Rev. F. J. Moore, B.A., B.D., director of the Students' Christian Association, gives notice of a series of addresses which will be given Thursday evenings in November in the music room, Hart House, at 5.15 p.m. The subjects and speakers are as follows: November 3rd, "Roman Catholicism," by Sir Bertram Windle; 10th, "Protestantism," by Professor R. Mercer-Wilson; 17th, "Modernism," by Dr. Richard Roberts; 24th, "Liberal Judaism," by Rabbi F. M. Isserman.

We hear that there will be upwards of 40 floats in the big parade. We also lay a wager that there will be double this number of "floats" at some of the big grad. functions. Time will tell.

C-C

The Grad of eighty-two came down in whiskers from his native town. He cried: "They'll welcome me, by gosh!" Too bad they took him for a frosh. N.A.B.

VARSITY SENIORS DEFEAT R.M.C. IN EXHIBITION TILT 37-1

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Intercollegiate staged something of a come-back on Saturday when they took R.M.C. into camp by a score of 37 to 1. Of course the Cadets are not a senior outfit, but even at that Varsity's showing was considerably better than a week ago. That was particularly good when you consider that Trimble, the star half, was not in the line-up. With Sinclair, Young, Bailey and Trimble available, Ronnie McPherson should have little worry about his back division.

Saturday's game also saw the return to the game of Don Carrick, star middle wing. He should strengthen the line considerably, and although he has only been out for a few practices will be at the top of his form by next Saturday, when the squad meets McGill.

McGill showed little out of the ordinary in their game against Balmy Beach. But of course one would not expect Shaughnessy to disclose any of the plays which he intends to use next week. However, the team as a whole did not seem particularly impressive, and unless they were keeping a lot in reserve Varsity should get no worse than an even break on Saturday.

The much discussed forward pass made its first appearance in the Balmy Beach-McGill game, and while the fans were somewhat bewildered at times by the rules governing it, nevertheless it certainly provided a few thrills. The teams were not very familiar with the play, and this accounts for the fact that so many efforts were unsuccessful. Twenty forward passes in all were attempted, and of these only five were completed.

Beach's complete three and McGill two. The only touchdown of the game came as a result of an intercepted forward pass. Cawwell nabbed the ball and went half the length of the field through a maze of Red and White tacklers.

Beach's passes were more successful because they did not try to pass the ball too far. Most of McGill's unsuccessful efforts went over the head of the receiving player.

It seemed odd that McGill, who have for so long favoured the use of the forward pass, should fall victims to it. Their first effort made on their first down was intercepted, while Balmy Beach's first attempt resulted in a 35-yard gain.

The play did not meet with the unanimous support of the spectators. On a couple of occasions the play was called back for no apparent reason, and everyone wondered what it was all about, but it happened that the pass had gone inside the defending team's 40-yard line. The play can only be used to take the ball within striking distance of an opponent's line and cannot be used inside the 40-yard line. There is no denying, however, that the forward pass certainly provides thrills, and when successful is one of the prettiest plays in the game. Given a season's practice in its use, the players would not appear so much at sea every time it was called. But you cannot expect a couple of teams to learn and perfect a new style of play in two weeks at the first of the season, particularly when it is only to be used in an exhibition game.

HIGHLY TOUTED RED AND WHITE REVEAL BUT LITTLE HERE

Visiting McGill Ruggers Lose to Balmy Beach by 12-4 Score

FORWARD PASS BEWILDERS

Shaughnessy's '27 Edition Fails to Extend Self, Saturday

Toronto fans got their first view of Shaughnessy's 1927 edition of the McGill football team on Saturday when the Red and White met Balmy Beach senior O.R.F.U. champions, in an exhibition fixture at the new Oakwood Stadium. And the highly-touted McGill outfit came out on the short end of a 12-4 score.

The game attracted considerable interest on account of the use of the forward pass. Shaughnessy has long been an exponent of this play as a means of opening up the game, and his idea was put into effect on Saturday. It had the crowd bewildered at times, because every time a pass went inside the defending team's 40-yard line the play was called back. However, it certainly provided plenty of thrills due to its uncertainty, and though the great majority of attempts were fruitless it was a decided threat at all times.

McGill came up with the reputation of being the team to beat for the Intercollegiate title, and many of the fans were out to see just how good they were. But Shaughnessy crossed them up by using nothing out of the ordinary in the way of plays. And while the Red and White were trying

WILL FRESHIES REPEAT IN U.C. TENNIS TOURNEY?

Last Year's Women Stars will Again Wield Wicked Racquets, Tuesday

TO PLAY AT ROSEDALE

The annual U.C. Women's Tennis Tournament begins on Tuesday at the Rosedale Courts. With favorable weather it is hoped that the tourney will be completed inside of ten days. The schedule will be posted in the women's cloakroom, and all those who have entered are asked to play their games according to schedule.

Last year the U.C. sextette, three of which were freshies, were successful in winning the championship cup held the previous year by St. Hilda's. This victory is well worth noting, as it is a few years since U.C. held the cup. The entries, thirty in number, are for this year not as many as last year, although there seems to be a number of freshies showing enthusiasm. Some real tennis ability is expected from new players.

Last year's winning team was made by three first year women, and there are three vacancies at least to be filled.

Jean Kennedy will be out again with her same steady game. Ruth Higgins, star racquet wielder, and Thelma Standeven, another keen player, are with us again this year. With such players as these and many more enthusiasts there are great prospects for an exciting tournament.

U.C. TRACK MEN FAIL TO LOWER RECORDS

Mabee and Finlayson Struggle for Individual Honors; Ten Event Program

HEAVY TRACK AND BREEZE

The annual University College Track Meet was held Friday afternoon at the Stadium. A slight breeze and heavy track made it impossible to lower records, but all of the ten events on the programme were well contested.

The struggle for individual honors was particularly close between Cain Mabee of 279 and Bill Finlayson, 370, the former securing 10 points, one point more than "Linn," who won three field events.

Mabee ran a pretty 100 yard dash in 10 seconds flat, thereby equalling the Intercollegiate record. In the 220, however, Alan Christie, the quarter mile champion, ran a strong race, just catching Mabee at the tape in 23 seconds. Finlayson looked good in the discus and broad jump, and "Freddy" McTaggart showed his class in the javelin throw, doing 135 feet against a strong wind.

The results of the events are as follows:

Throwing the Discus—1, Finlayson; 2, Mabee; 3, McKay. Distance, 103 feet.

Running Broad Jump—1, Finlayson; 2, McKay; 3, Putnam. Distance, 19 feet 2 3/4 inches.

100 Yards Dash—1, Mabee; 2, Smith; 3, Riggs. Time, 10 sec. flat.

Running High Jump—1, Putnam; 2, Dennis; 3, McKay. Height, 5 feet 4 inches.

Shot Put—1, Finlayson; 2, Currie. 34 feet 5 1/2 inches.

220 Yards Dash—1, Christie; 2, Mabee; 3, Smith. Time, 23 flat.

Throwing Javelin—1, McTaggart; 2, McKay; 3, Mabee. Distance, 135 feet.

44 Yards Run—1, Christie; 2, Mabee; 3, Jermyn. Time 51 4/5 secs.

One Mile—1, Johnson; 2, Currie. Time 5.20.

Pole Vault—1, Dennis; 2, McKay; 3, Mabee. Height 10 feet 2 inches.

Unless our halls of learning are real temples which are to be approached by our youth in an attitude of reverence, consecrated by the worship of truth, they will end in delusion.

Books contain not only the priceless records of the past but they are also the hope of the future.

all the time they did not extend themselves unduly. They are capable of playing far better football than they did against Balmy Beach.

Tremaine and St. Germaine did the booting for McGill, but Yip Foster of the Beaches proved their superiority at this department of the game. His punts were high and long, and he out-kicked his opponents on almost every exchange. Foster's booting was the Beaches main threat. They were leading 6-2 at half-time, and all six of their points came from Foster's kicking.

Balmy Beach outweighed the visitors on the line, but despite this advantage were able to make very little headway on plunges. Spears and Littlefield were the best of the McGill plungers, while Ogden Reeves and Croser made some good gains for Balmy Beach.

Despite the great reputation of McGill's half-line, it was in the back divisions that Balmy Beach had their edge. St. Germaine and Tremaine caught well and passed the ball faultlessly, but they were unable to break away for very many big gains. On a couple of occasions end runs netted them nice gains, but on kicks they seemed unable to get away. Foster, Robertson, Cawell, and Moore, who subbed for the Beaches, were right on their game. Foster's kicking accounted for seven of the winners' points, and Cawell grabbed in a McGill forward pass and galloped 50 yards for the only touchdown of the game.

Robertson also featured with a pretty run in the third frame when he took one of St. Germaine's punts behind his own line, evaded his tacklers, and ran the ball back to centre field. It was one of the nicest efforts of the day.

Lovering at flying wing and Brown at quarter for McGill gave promise of breaking into the headlines before the season is over.

Line-ups:

McGill—Flying wing, Lovering; halves, Little, Tremaine and St. Germaine; quarter, Brown; snap, Munroe; insides, Spears and Littlefield; middles, Sharpe and McTeer; outsiders, Grainger and Taylor; subs, Brazier, White, Carson, Jones, Altimas, Laishley, Dalton, Taylor, Simpson, Harris, Petch and Blair.

Balmy Beach—Flying wing, Hamlin; halves, Foster, Robertson and Cawell; quarter, Ponton; snap, Newman; insides, Ogden and Crowhurst; middles, Reeves and Croser; outsiders, Keith and Menzies; subs, Moore, Hendry, Ames, Trimble, Billings, Wright, Clarke, Johnson, Sanford, De Witt, Johnson, Smith, and Lewis.

Westwood started the third period by a beautiful 45 yard sprint through the line, and Bailey went 35 more for a try. An exchange of kicks, and Toronto secured the ball fourteen yards out on a fumble, Sinclair carrying the ball over on the sixth down.

Score—Varsity 29, R.M.C. 0. Westwood again flashed a forty yard gain, and the ensuing drop by Murry Snyder finished the scoring for this session. Varsity 32, R.M.C. 0. In this stanza Darling got away with some nice kicking, while Daly and Snyder following up under good punting, tackled hard.

The Cadets fought gamely in the final session. When a Toronto back lost a bounding ball ten yards out, they tried an inside kick, and Molson following up hard, grassed Bailey for a lone counter. Young bucked through centre for thirty yards, and Dundas went the remaining four for Varsity's fifth try of the game. The Kingstonians fought hard, and the game finished with R.M.C. in possession at centre. Score—Varsity 37, R.M.C. 1.

In the second half of the double bill, Hamilton Tigers earned a 4-3 decision over Dave Harding's Camp Borden Squad in the opener of the O.R.F.U. Loose ball handling by both teams featured the game, and it also provided plenty of excitement. Early in the game the heavier Bengals forced the play, Harding being forced to rouge. The flyers came back strong and Ault kicked touch in goal, ending the scoring until the third period.

Plunging and kicking was the menu, with end runs the exception. Harding and Ault teamed well in the back field, providing thrills galore in returning punts. The fumbles were remarkable, both sides contributing equally, and the results gave Hamilton two dead-line kicks and a rouge, while Camp Borden secured a safety. Score—Hamilton 4, Camp Borden 3. Gib Hunter and Crawford were good for the Bengals, while Harding, Ault and Sampson stood out for the losers.

Line up for first game:

Varsity—Flying wing, Traynor; quarter, Westwood; halves, Sinclair, Bailey, Young; snap, Masters; insides, Dundas, Calnan; middles, Carrick, Bean; outsiders, Snyder, Daly; subs, Spencer, Harrison, Dunlap, Monkhouse, Hallam, Stewart, Wilton, Morgan, Rykert, Kelly, Reid, Stollery.

R.M.C.—Flying wing, Ross; quarter, Pirie; halves, Darling, Michal, Molson; insides, Francis, Vokes; middles, Hassie, O'Brien; outsiders, Graham, Parker; snap, Chapman; subs, Smith, Savage, Clarke, Massie, Higgins, Carswell, Ringsmill, Raimie, Allison, Burns, Jaquays.

UNIVERSITY INCLUDED
AMONG LEADERS
IN REPORT

"For the purpose before us the significance of the University of Toronto rests in the fact that it conducts special curricula for a specially prepared and selected group of students numbering more than half of its entire undergraduate attendance. These curricula are grouped about twenty-six different subjects, or combination of subjects. Although there is no final comprehensive examination, the courses in these subjects are laid out in an obligatory sequence as though they were, and they are supported by other related requirements, usually with narrow options, drawn from either the honors or the pass list.

"The examinations are annual, covering only the work of the year. They must be passed regardless of term work, although this is considered in arriving at a final verdict for promotion. While pass students are held to course requirements, the honor students are, within limits, free to do as they like. Those who fail may be transferred to the pass course during the first two years, but with difficulty thereafter, because of the sequences enforced in that curriculum.

"The policy with regard to examinations is not the unanimous verdict of the University on this point. It reflects local conditions during the development of the institution, and to some degree the influence of procedure in the United States. Certain members of the faculty who have had their training in England would gladly modify it in favor of a general final examination."

Discussing the American technical terms of education the experts explain why "study is a major sport" at the University of Toronto:

"This universal concern with the 'unit' and the 'point' has made it difficult for many to think of education in other than quantitative terms. Quality is an element that we admire and approve but hesitate to touch in comparison with the comforting security of 'credits'; our pupils and students catch the cue at once and do the same. The system is regarded with amusement and incredulity abroad. It has been on trial for many years, and neither in theory nor as exemplified in its effects upon Americans who go to study in other lands, can even the most intelligent European there or here find reason for regarding it as other than absurd.

"The moment that permanent, precisely drawn aims are established, this flimsy fabric necessarily disappears. In many colleges and universities there have developed since the war 'honor' groups of carefully selected students who are relieved from the usual engagements and are allowed, under the guidance of their professors, to read independently for examination. This is encouraging so far as it goes, but for many years in our colleges small groups of so-called 'honor students' have been, in a way, parasitic on the main body. The clear intellectual atmosphere in the University of Toronto, by which many university faculties in the United States have profited, is due not to the existence of an honor system, but to the fact that fifty-six per cent of the undergraduate body are doing a definitely intellectual job. The reason the students attitude at Harvard and at Swarthmore has been completely transformed within a decade is that seventy per cent of the Harvard eligibles are working for a degree 'with distinction,' and forty per cent of the Swarthmore upper classmen have a single, clear-cut purpose that for twenty-four months remains fixed and compelling. Study is actually 'the major sport' in these institutions, and is so understood by those who are not, as well as by those who are, honor students."

TRACK MEN HARD AT MEET

Freshman Year Has Many Aspirants; Johnny Fitzpatrick Out

The Victoria College track meet will be held in the Stadium from 1:30 to 4:00, Tuesday afternoon. This promises to be one of the best Vic. track meets ever held, as aside from such old-timers as Stevenson, Crosby, Lautenslager and Partridge, the incoming Freshman year has encouraging material. Most notable of these is Johnny Fitzpatrick, the crack sprinter from Hamilton Collegiate and a Canadian Olympic candidate.

All Vic. track men are invited to take part, especially aspirants of the class of '31.

PACIFIC RELATIONS INSTITUTE HOLDS JULY CONFERENCE

Many Nations Represented to Discuss Problems of the Pacific Area

CONVENED IN HONOLULU

Canadian Delegation Was Led by Sir Arthur Currie of McGill

Professor T. F. McIlwraith and Professor V. W. Bladen were members of the Canadian delegation which attended the Conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations which met at Honolulu in July. The Canadian party was led by General Sir Arthur Currie, President of McGill University. The other nations represented at the Conference were the United States of America, Great Britain, Japan, China, Australia, New Zealand, Korea, and the Philippines. The opportunity of meeting, travelling and living with so many interesting men and women of different nations, scholars, businessmen, lawyers, politicians, journalists, missionaries, etc., was considered very valuable.

The subject first discussed was the political problem of China. The so-called unequal treaties were discussed at length, especially foreign control of the tariff, foreign enjoyment of extra territorial rights and the foreign concessions. The difficulties in the way of a solution seemed to be the absence of a unified government, the undue optimism of the Chinese and pessimism of the foreigners as to the possible efficiency and the adequacy of the guarantee of security of property of any Chinese government which might be established, and the difficulty of concerted action by the Powers.

The problem presented by Japan was economic, and perhaps constitutes a more serious menace to world peace. Industrialization has accelerated the rate of increase of the population of Japan, so that her people can no longer be fed by home grown food. She sees tariffs increasing all over the world, embargoes on the exportation of raw materials being seriously considered, restrictions on the migration of peoples becoming more general, an age of aggressive economic nationalism developing. Her population is likely to continue to increase for some time, and can only be fed if her industries can get raw materials, and then find markets. Perhaps in the not

Women's "Varsity" Staff Sell "Hot Dogs"

The Women's Staff of "The Varsity" has acquired an office of its very own. Since the beginning of time—its time—"The Varsity" has shared Room 82 with the other women's societies. This year the table which has always held the sign, in vain, "This table is the Women's Office of 'Varsity' Staff—Keep off," has been removed to Room 2, University College.

The Editorial Staff expresses deep thankfulness, as greater utility and co-operation are possible, and a more central location facilitates news hunting. The only proverbial fly in the ointment is the absence of a telephone in the new and convenient office. And as the new office unfortunately has no telephone, the women have decided to raise the necessary amount. Tomorrow morning these energetic "reporters" are selling "red hots" to the rugby ticket line-up, in the basement of University College, and will welcome the support of the student body. Help us, and a new telephone will help us to help you!

SPOTLIGHT ILLUMINATION OF SOLDIERS' TOWER

During the past week many have watched with curious interest and great expectations the lifting of the huge spotlight to the roof of the Observatory. Yesterday afternoon the men put the last touches to their work and last night for the first time the beautiful yellow light was turned on the Memorial Tower. The effect is not in the least artificial, and from the distance closely resembles moonlight. The light is focused on the Memorial Tower, but Hart House and University College are quite brightly illuminated. Illumination by spotlight was successful at the Parliament Buildings during the summer, but this is the first time anything similar has been attempted at the University.

A BRILLIANT RHODES SCHOLAR GRADUATES

Studied Modern History at the University of Toronto and Balliol, Oxford

BLINDED AT SOMME

Announcement of the graduation with first class honours of Mr. Donald James McDougall from Oxford has been received here. Mr. McDougall was the holder of a Special Rhodes Scholarship which was granted him in 1925, and a graduate of this University. Comparatively few are aware of the tremendous handicap under which this brilliant intellect has had to labour to its rich reward.

Blinded on the Somme in 1916, he entered the University in 1921, taking the first year Pass Work, and then taking the Modern History Course. On account of his war service, Mr. McDougall was allowed to graduate in 1925, ranking among the leaders of his class. His case was brought to the notice of trustees of the Rhodes Committee in London, England, and they promptly granted him a Special Rhodes Scholarship. Entering Balliol College, Oxford, the following autumn, he has since pursued his studies in Modern History. In consonance with his previous record, he has graduated with the highest honours in his class.

It is considered impossible for students who have not known the awful lack of sight to appreciate this remarkable achievement. Mr. McDougall has done all his University work, both here and at Oxford, by listening to readers. Were we not told of his handicap, we would certainly not guess its existence from his record.

Mr. McDougall's success constitutes a unique illustration of the power of perseverance, to which no parallel is known to exist in the annals of twentieth century higher education.

SMALL GROUP ASSEMBLES TO JOIN IN MASS SINGING

Students Sing University
Songs Directed by
Dr. Macmillan

Yesterday afternoon about one hundred students assembled in Convocation Hall in response to Dr. Macmillan's appeal for organized singing in preparation for the Centenary. Though Dr. Macmillan expressed his disappointment at the small number present, he led the group in the singing of "Oh, God Our Help in Ages Past," "O Canada" and several university songs.

Members of the group hoped that this small beginning might be the means of organizing some form of mass singing in which all the students might take part.

SUPERIOR RATING ACCORDED TORONTO ON HONOUR COURSE

High Standard of Development of This System is Responsible, Says Principal Hutton

COMMENTS ON EXAMS

Large Number of Canadians on Faculties of American Universities

That the high standard of development which the Honour System had attained at University of Toronto was very likely responsible for the superior rating accorded this University by the report of the Carnegie Foundation for the Improvement of Teaching, was the comment of Principal Hutton of University College when the report which ranked Harvard, Swarthmore and Toronto as the three leading universities of the continent, was drawn to his attention. Principal Hutton mentioned the fact that the United States drew proportionately an exceedingly large number of the faculties of their universities from this country, not only in classics, a subject whose field is swept by Canadian teachers and professors, but also that Canada was exceedingly well represented in other fields.

At Toronto the English honour system may be seen at the highest point of development yet attained on this side of the Atlantic. Harvard and Swarthmore have also taken steps to develop this system after the English fashion, the results so far attained and as shown by the finding of the Carnegie Foundation goes far to discredit the elective system as a means of securing a thorough academic education.

The honour system by its highly specialized courses developments interest where an elective system embracing a large number and variety of courses might fail. The same may be said for the honour system in regard to thoroughness which is imperative for the proper understanding of any subject.

Mention was also made in the report of General examinations as opposed to annual examinations. There are some of the faculty who are of opinion that much could be accomplished by the abolition of annual examinations, substituting general examinations to be held once or twice in the college course. This system, with much in its favour, was once used by the University of Toronto, but later abandoned in favour of the annual examinations. At present it seems that there is little likelihood of the abolition of the annual examination or the adoption of any other system.

REGISTRATION AT O.C.E. IS TWO-THIRDS WOMEN

Budding Pedagogues Begin to Feel Themselves Part of Large Institution

"Everyone who has taught five years or more is a little crazy." Thus Professor Carlisle of the Ontario College of Education encouraged the budding pedagogues who enrolled last week as teachers-in-training.

The registration is about the same as last year, that is approximately over one hundred and ninety. Of these almost two-thirds are women.

So far there has been some confusion interpreting time-tables, locating classrooms and discovering to which group one belongs. But already the students have begun to feel themselves a part of the large institution which was so unfamiliar in the beginning.

The dull grind of observing lessons, attending lectures and performing the inevitable gymnastics in P.T. periods has been lightened to some extent by frequent humorous situations. Notable among these was the amusement caused by the answer a fourth form U.T.S. boy gave to the question, "What has contributed mainly to the breaking up of family life in modern times?" "The emancipation of women, sir." Loud laughter from the O.C.E. students resulted.

PRESIDENT FALCONER EXTENDS WELCOME

Spoke of Various Activities Planned for Centenary Week
Over C.K.C.N. Last Night

STUDENTS' AFTERNOON

"As the moment of the Celebration approaches, I extend my best wishes to all graduates of the University of Toronto in Canada, the United States and the whole world," said Sir Robert Falconer when speaking over C.K.C.N. last night.

President Falconer went on to speak of the various activities planned for this week. He described Wednesday afternoon as "the students' afternoon" and mentioned the undergraduate parade scheduled for that day. He spoke of the Ball, the dinners and the rugby game, and the peculiar interest attached to each.

After he had welcomed the delegates Sir Robert expressed the hope that all graduates and undergraduates of the University would attend the Celebration. He felt that it should be a matter not only of desire, but of duty, that everyone connected with the University should share in this unique event.

ELECT BRYDON PRESIDENT OF 279 VIC TO FILL VACANCY

Was a Strong Contender in Election Held Last Spring;
Annual Hike Oct. 15

At a meeting of the class of 279 of Victoria College, held in Room 18 at 1.30 p.m. yesterday, with "Bill" Munroe in the chair, it was unanimously decided that Jack Brydon should occupy the position of president, left vacant by Ed Fennel, who failed to get his year. The new president was a strong runner-up in the election last spring.

The treasurer announced that there was roughly $25 in the treasury from last year, and that the class fees would be $3.00, which sum was to include the 15c fee for the floats for the parade. A committee of four is in charge of the comic float to be entered by the class.

With regard to the annual hike, Oct. 15th was suggested as the tentative date. It was proposed that the year join 278 in going to Niagara Falls.

INITIATIONS

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Initiations! Yes, initiations! Here we are again in the throes of the great annual battle between the Faculty and all right-thinking students of the University.

Shall we initiate our Freshmen? The servile bowing of the undergrads to the wishes of the Caput et al has often grieved me. Where, oh where, oh where, is the spirit of '23? Where, may I ask, is the once-proud independence of the undergraduate?

The Frosh grieve me. Yes, of course. The Sophomores grieve me, and no wonder. Twice was when a Freshman received his just dues at the hands of the Soph. But now, alas and alack, there is no more of the old Varsity spirit. The University has literally "gone to the dogs." Individuality has been crushed in the tentacles of the giant octopus "Obedience." To the interior of Hades with such foolishness!

Let us get back to the days when students were students, and best of all, red-blooded, virile, independent-thinking individuals. Those were the days when men were men and frosh were frosh—poor measly frosh. The arrogant conceit of the glorified High School hero must be eradicated from the University Campus. The Frosh must learn to know his place and to keep it. Otherwise, our University will become nothing more nor less than the laughing-stock of the whole community.

What we want is men who are not afraid to express themselves, men who, learning well the lessons of their

The UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Greeting

On March 15th, 1927, one hundred years have elapsed since His Majesty, King George IV, granted a Charter for the founding of a University for the Province of Upper Canada to be known as King's College at Toronto. In 1850 the name was changed to the University of Toronto, in 1853 University College was created, and under the Act of 1887 a federal system inclusive of other universities and colleges of the province was called into being. The legislation of 1906 inaugurated a period of great expansion in which the University, keeping pace with the spirit of modern learning and science, has developed its faculties and departments and is endeavouring to fulfil its function through the diffusion of knowledge and the promotion of research.

The University has decided to commemorate the centenary of the granting of the Charter of King's College, Toronto, on Thursday, October 6th, 1927 and the two following days, and is inviting the Universities and the Learned and Scientific Societies of the world to join with it in celebrating that event.

The University therefore has much pleasure in extending to you an invitation to participate in the celebration by sending a delegate on your behalf, and it will assist us in the conduct of our arrangements if the name of your representative be communicated to the Secretary of the Centenary Committee, University of Toronto, Toronto 5, Canada, not later than June 15th, 1927.

Dated at Toronto,

Above is reproduced a copy of the invitation forwarded last spring to several hundred universities and learned societies throughout the world. The invitation has been accepted by over two hundred of these institutions and societies in all parts of the world whose representatives will be present during the three days of the Centenary Celebration.

GROUP PRESENTATION OF CENTENARY DELEGATES

One Outstanding Representative in Each Group will Speak on Behalf of Entire Group

When the delegates from other universities and learned societies are presented to the Chancellor of the University on the occasion of the opening ceremony of the Centenary they will be presented in groups representing certain countries. Thus all the delegates from Europe, Asia and South America will be grouped together. When the names of all these have been called, as the group remains standing, one outstanding representative will speak on behalf of the entire group and express the greetings for those countries.

In a similar manner all the universities and learned societies of the United States will be grouped together, and those of Great Britain and the British Dominions other than Canada will form another group. The Canadian Universities will constitute a group by themselves.

VIC. WOMEN'S LIT. AGAIN ORGANIZED IN SEVERAL GROUPS

Many of the Leading Musical and Literary Men of Toronto to Direct Them

EXTENSIVE PROGRAMME

Series of Open-house Debates for Those Interested in Public Speaking

Some of the leading musical and literary men of Toronto have taken groups for the Victoria Women's Literary Society for the coming College year.

The most notable of the Music Department is the group to be sponsored by Mr. Atkinson of ten meetings with most interesting and varied subjects. At the first meeting some of Mr. Atkinson's pupils will give demonstrations of the characteristics of the old masters such as Beethoven, Bach and Mozart; while later ones will be based on such subjects as the organ, Russian music, the orchestra, relation of art to music, and there will in all probability be one whole meeting devoted to jazz.

Professor Robins is also taking a group of students to learn the French-Canadian Folk Songs just published this year.

Following in their successful footsteps of last year, the Art Department has again enlisted the services of Mr. Arthur Lismer, who will take a group of twenty-five only, under conditions of compulsory attendance and a waiting list, to study both modern and mediaeval art.

There will also be groups in Interior Decorating, meeting every three weeks and led by Miss Nora Clark; and a Poster Group which is entirely an innovation. The programme consists of six meetings in all—four with experienced leaders and two practical objects.

ST. MIKE'S FLOAT TO BE IN PARADE

Type of Entry Remains Shrouded in Mystery

UNCERTAINTY CLEARED UP

It has just been definitely ascertained that St. Michael's College is to have a large float in the Centenary Parade on Thursday. Some doubts were at first expressed as to the likelihood of an entry from the College, but these have proved groundless.

While interviewing a member of St. Michael's College this morning, "The Varsity" put a query as to the probable size and design of the float. Although nothing entirely final was learned, it was intimated that something quite original is forthcoming. One of the largest and most widely known houses of decoration in the province has been let the contract for the work, which is already well under way.

From another source has come the rumour that some prehistoric monster is included in the representation. A more probable theory is that the great heavenly military strategist himself will put in an allegorical appearance.

Whatever direction the design may take, its artistic qualities are guaranteed to be brought out to advantage; the execution is certain to be worthy done, and St. Michael's is thought to be certain of a high place in the ranking of floats.

Notice

Hart House officials announce that for the convenience of students the Great Hall will open for luncheon during the Centenary period as follows:
Thursday, 6th October—11 a.m.
Friday, 7th October—11.30 a.m.
Saturday, 8th October—11.30 a.m.
On Wednesday 5th October, and Friday, 7th October, the Great Hall will be closed at 6.30 p.m. sharp to facilitate the re-arrangement necessary for the Undergraduate Dance and the Graduate Ball.

A particularly brilliant and cosmopolitan array of university delegates are arriving in town to-day for the Centenary Celebration.

The Very Reverend Boleslaw Bojanowski is coming from the Catholic University of Lublin, while from the University of Malta comes Silvio Lanzon, C.E. Dr. Cappelen Smith represents the Norwegian Institute of Technology. Louis Filch, K.C., is from the Hebrew University of Palestine, and Dr. A. Austregesilu heads a party from the University of Rio de Janeiro. Paris, West China Union, West Japan, St. Andrew's, Bombay, South Wales and Western Australia are universities from all parts of the world that are sending delegates.

French institutions represented are Caen by Michel Polier, Lille by M. Chapelon, Institut Pasteur by G. Ramon, head of the serum section, and Institute de France, Academie des Sciences Morales et Politiques by Mr. James Brown Scott.

ARENA RESPLENDENT WITH MANY BANNERS

and Arrows

LARGE SIGNS EVERYWHERE

All roads will lead to the Varsity Arena to-morrow. Lured on by signs of surprising dimensions, graduates, undergraduates, delegates and the great retinue of University dignitaries will assemble in the Arena for the formal opening of the Centenary Celebrations. A new floor has been laid for the occasion. The decorations are many and colourful. The high walls are almost completely covered with Union Jacks, and flags of all nations flow in brilliant array from the ceiling. At the north end of the Arena a dais has been raised. Here the Chancellor will formally address the vast throng. Back of the dais hang black velvet curtains on which are displayed crests of our colleges and universities. The drab rows of tiered seats are transformed by yards of bunting, a profusion of Union Jacks and Toronto's own "blue and white." To the hockey fan the Arena appears at first glance much smaller in its holiday garb, but a closer examination shows the great seating capacity—a seating capacity that will be taxed to the utmost to-day at the formal opening of Centenary Week.

PLANS FOR PARADE BY THE UNIVERSITY ARE NOW COMPLETE

Procession Expected To Be Two Miles or More in Length

ROUTE NOW MADE PUBLIC

Parade Starts at Noon and Lasts Until
Two-thirty

Plans are now complete for the great parade on Thursday afternoon, and, although the various faculties are endeavouring to preserve secrecy, the floats promise to do credit to all concerned. It is now expected that the parade will be at least two miles long, including forty floats and vehicles and undergraduates from all faculties and colleges.

Comprehensive details have been issued by the committee in charge of Mr. T. N. Scott, Trinity, regarding the regulations of the march. All floats must be in line on Hoskins Avenue and Devonshire Place by 11 a.m. on Thursday, Arts first, taking precedence by age of college or faculty, then Meds, S.P.S., Forestry, Dents and so on. Students marching must be in line on the back campus at 12 sharp, and falling in behind their respective floats as each passes Trinity College. The parade as a whole moves at 12.30. The route will be the west side of Queen's Park Crescent, in the University gate, past U.C., west side of the campus past the judges' stand in front of the Physics Building, down to College and along to Yonge, down to Albert, over to James, to Queen, west on Queen to University Avenue, up to Queen's Park and Bloor, over to the Arena, where the parade will disband for the Opening Ceremonies. The paraders should finish at 2.30 at the Arena, where 600 seats will have been reserved without tickets. The floats will proceed and disband on Devonshire Place. The parade will be directed by marshals from various faculties and colleges, and will wear special badges.

Free Food For Famished Faculty Centre of Centennial Celebration

"Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown." This also applies to the mortal board. In other words, those who are cursed with an education are having a tough time of it to-day, at least that is the intimation which "The Varsity" received after it had approached sundry members of the various faculties as to their intended occupations during the few days' relaxation from lectures, which the celebration of the Centenary affords. The man with ten or twelve languages at his command will be well occupied in welcoming visitors from all over the world, from every foreign country, including the Scandinavian, such is the tale of some members of the faculties. Of course there is a silver lining, something which these gentlemen, no matter how many degrees they may bear, are quick to recognize. There will be many speeches delivered, incidentally over vast fields of snowy cloths and steaming viands, so "it's never so bad that it couldn't be worse," as Schopenhauer said.

With the student body the case is similar. Those holding responsible and distinguished posts are occupied in their particular parts in the Centenary programme and spend much of their time in rounding up their fickle elec-

A very few tickets for the Undergraduate Ball can still be had this morning, on application at the S.A.C. Office. This is the last chance for any student to avail himself of the opportunity to attend the dance of the century.

TORONTO GRADUATES LEAVE FOR ENGLAND

Oxford and Cambridge Claim
Five More Students
From Here

FOUR HAVE SCHOLARSHIPS

The departure of five Toronto graduates in Arts for England this year brings to mind the opinion, somewhere expressed, that Oxford is gradually losing its distinctive individuality, and is taking on more and more the aspect of an international, almost a cosmopolitan, college. The influx into Oxford and Cambridge of students who do not reside in Great Britain is due chiefly to the operation of the Rhodes and other scholarships, which, in the majority of cases, make it possible for those students to go there.

Four of the men going to English colleges from Toronto this year are going to Oxford. Escott Reid, Rhodes scholar for 1927, has been travelling in Europe since midsummer, and will register at Christ Church. F. A. C. Duxee, who won the Edward Kyle award in Modern History at Victoria College this year, will be at New College. C. P. Stacey, last year's editor in chief of "The Varsity," and winner of the Parkin Trust award, will register at Corpus Christi College. B. Plouffe, of U.C., goes independently to Christ Church. One lone Torontonian is this year added to the Cambridge student roll. He is Gilbert de B. Robinson, U.C. 27, who is the proud possessor of a Special Moss Scholarship.

It is hoped that these young men, representing Canada and Toronto as they do, will prove worthy ambassadors of our University.

LIBRARY CHANGES HELP MED STUDENTS

Congestion at Main Desk
Causes Opening of New Reading Room

STACK WELL SUPPLIED

A decidedly welcome addition to the facilities for study at the University of Toronto Library is the new Medical Reading Room, shortly to be opened.

At its meeting last spring, the Library Committee decided to take steps, firstly, on account of the growing congestion at the main stack and desk, and secondly, because of the fact that Medical students have not in the past had easy access to the specialized material, especially periodical literature, which they required to use. On these accounts, it was decided to open a special medical reading room.

The room formerly used as the University Press has been prepared for this purpose. It is situated on the lower floor of the Library, between the Graduates' Common Room on the south, and the History and Political Science Reading Room on the north, and is entered by the same door as the former. All medical books have been transferred to the new room, and the necessary periodicals will soon be put there. The assistants in charge of the room will do only medical reference work.

The preparation of this new feature of the library has involved the laying of a new floor, composed of durable mastic flooring, the same material as that which composes the floors in the Electrical and Anatomy Buildings, lighted, and about half of its space is occupied by well-filled stacks. The remainder is given over to reading tables, divided from the stacks by the delivery desk.

For the present it is not proposed to keep the Medical Reading Room open in the evening, but books will be given out to students before closing each day. Should the necessity arise, the room may be open evenings, although that is not provided for in the present estimates.

The Librarian remarked that in the past, medical students have not been a noticeable proportion of those using the reading rooms in the evening.

HISTORY OF U. OF T. BY PROFESSOR WALLACE

An outstanding feature of the Centenary Celebration and a lasting contribution to the literature of the University is the publication by the University Press of "A History of the University of Toronto," by William Stewart Wallace, M.A., Librarian and Associate Professor of Modern History.

"Though this book has perhaps an official aspect, in that it is published in connection with an official occasion and through arrangements made by the Board of Governors of the University, the narrative itself is not official," explains the author in his preface.

"It has been the chief aim of the writer to weave together a story which might be read with some degree of interest, and in attempting to do this, he has taken the liberty of regarding himself as free from severe official restraints. He ventures to hope that no one will find that this liberty has been abused."

An account of the famous rebellion of 1895, a description of the early political tangles and current information with copious appendices on the constitution of the university, complete the volume.

HART HOUSE EN FETE

Over Two Thousand Guests
Will Be Assembled
There

Hart House to-night passes another milestone in its social career when the Undergraduates' Centenary Ball will throng its halls and corridors with music, revelry and dance. The final touches as announced last night by the student Centenary Committee show Hart House in gala array to receive its guests.

Under the canopied ceiling of the big gymnasium lit by amber spotlights and soft pastel shades the dancers will live again the faint memories of a century ago's more sedate parties. From the upper railing of the gymnasium 2,200 paper hats will be distributed and great quantities of serpentine.

UNOFFICIAL MELODY FLOATS OVER CAMPUS

Workmen Testing Bells Charm Strangers and Students

SEARCHLIGHTS ALSO TRIED

"The new Memorial Carillon will ring out for the first time at 5.00 p.m. on Thursday, October 6th," says the official programme of the Centenary Celebrations. But students walking slowly across the Campus yesterday afternoon found to their delight and surprise that an impromptu concert was being given by the workmen as they placed the bells in position. Down from the heights of the tower drifted soft mellow intonations. One note, a series of notes, spread out across the grounds of the University, causing professor and student to stop in their path and look towards the source of the sound. High up in the tower workmen crawled about, inside the belfry. "Clang"—one of them taps a bell with his hammer. He listens carefully. Then, seemingly not quite satisfied with the note given by the bell, he takes his stand beside and between several, and in rapid succession taps them, listening to hear if they blend properly with each other.

Then later on when the few passing by and those leaning on the fence of the back campus had turned away, comes the sound of a real melody, and folk stop to peer up at the tower, as one does in church, to find the artist. Was the carillonner practising? The rugby players booting the ball through the air across the setting sun stop in their tracks to listen.

Then when the bells have ceased after their trial and night has fallen, the symphony of sound is succeeded by the sweep of searchlights over Hart House and University College. Bathed in the golden glow stands the Tower, a beautiful fact not to be marred by the tawdry alliterations of journalists. From the very first rumour of the events of this week the Soldiers' Tower has been the centre of interesting developments, the very core of the celebration. It is an appropriate standard for the rejoicing and review of the University's Centenary. This monument to the Four Glorious Years.

TO-DAY THE PRELUDE

To-day the prelude to the Centenary celebrations will be enacted. All through the day graduates and representatives of institutions in all parts of the world will arrive in Toronto. Registration will be made to-day.

The Undergraduate Ball this evening will inaugurate the programme of social events. The formal opening of the celebrations, however, does not take place until to-morrow.

The programme which has been prepared for the next three days is remarkably well balanced. Events have been placed on the list which should interest and appeal to graduates and undergraduates; to professors and to students. The social side and the intellectual side have been well looked after. The list of speakers includes some very excellent men.

Of particular interest are the dedication of the Carillon in the Soldier's Tower on Thursday and the service at the Arena on Sunday, where Dr. Cody will officiate. The music for the latter function will be supplied by the Mendelssohn Choir. These events round the list into a well balanced programme.

Thursday has been called "Undergraduates' Day." The celebrations will be opened officially by Canon Cody in the Arena in the morning. At noon the student parade takes place. The Carillon will be dedicated at five o'clock, and a dinner to the delegates will be given at the Arena in the evening.

The various committees and individuals concerned are to be congratulated on the excellent way in which the events seem at this moment to be shaping up. Their work in planning and preparing the way has been satisfactory in every respect. Every detail reveals a desire to keep things up to a high standard of excellency. To them the active work immediately before them will be even more strenuous. The success of their efforts is assured by their work to date. Their work in the next three days will make it a reality.

TIME—AND THE CARILLON BELLS

Our long-felt need of a campus clock is being filled in a very beautiful manner. For many years, time, or lack of time, has been a source of some irritation in University life—student watches seemingly running slow at the beginning of lectures—and professorial time-pieces erring at the close of the hour. Then everyone's time has differed to some degree, causing discussions as to correct sources—city hall, jeweller's or radio announcer's.

The installation of a clock on Memorial Tower will make it possible for members of the University to work in closer harmony, one with another. Not only will the clock act as a guide for those who pass that way, but the carillon bells will chime the hour to every corner of the campus. Then the bells, bearing their mute message of heroism and courage, will peal a new message of time, as the soul of the past, calling to the present to toe the mark, and carry on.

VICTORIA WILL SUPPLY FOUR FLOATS IN PARADE

The College as a Whole and Three Senior Years Subscribe

Victoria is to be well represented in the Centenary Parade. Four floats will be entered. One will be representative of the College itself, depicting its old and new traditions, while the other three will be in charge of the second, third and fourth years respectively.

The floats will be of a semi-humorous type showing the advances which the College has made and is making in Academic and other lines. The good old days (when the College was in Colborne) will be represented, and the modern student in all his industrious glory will also occupy a prominent place.

The committees in charge are putting forth every effort to make the floats a success, and, according to reports, Victoria will be a strong contender for the Shield.

Trinity College Loses a Popular Graduate

The funeral of the late Reverend W. R. R. Allen will take place to-day from the home of his parents at 199 Westmoreland Avenue. The Reverend Mr. Allen, who graduated from Trinity College last spring with the class in divinity of 1927, met his death in an auto accident in Manitoba. He had gone there to assume his first charge in the Anglican ministry. Mr. Allen's worth has been revealed in the message sent back to Toronto by his superior, the Bishop of Brandon, who asked the authorities here to send out more men of the calibre of the deceased.

First Official Delegate

The first official delegate to the Centenary Celebration to arrive from abroad is Dr. Edward V. Appleton, M.A., F.R.S., of King's College. Dr. Appleton arrived at the Union Station last night from Montreal. He will be a guest of Professor McLennan at 74 St. George Street.

Art, Music and Drama

The Victoria College Orchestra will soon commence weekly practices under the capable direction of Mr. Frank Blachford of the Toronto Conservatory of Music. This organization to open to students of all faculties who are anxious to widen their experience in truly orchestral work. Modern and classical compositions of varied types are studied, the practices

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
I am lost in amazement when I consider our intellectual advances over the bygone ages. We can now concoct schemes that those of the past could not have evolved in their most profound moments. For example, the ancient Vandals could break a great statue, but the infinitely more subtle idea of investing it in a hoop skirt and leaving it there, or say putting a clock on memorial tower, could only be conceived by an educated man of to-day.

I sincerely hope that advances will continue to be made and that coming generations will become more and more artistic—less and less given to chronology. Then eventually students will mutter amongst themselves, will gather in wild-eyed and wrathful myriads, and, scaling perilous ladders, will rend that clock wheel from pinion. "May I be there to see"—and help!

Yours,

N. D. Clare.

Programme is Arranged for Centenary Delegates

A full programme has been provided for the Student Delegates to the Centenary Celebration from Canada, the United States, and abroad. The entertainment of these visitors has been in the hands of a committee headed by Mr. Archer Baldwin.

The delegates will be met by four Toronto men at the station, conducted to the University Booth, which is on the Basement Floor near the Front St. exit, then conveyed to their billets. A number will be lodged at Hart House, others at the following fraternities: Kappa Alpha, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Sigma Chi, Nu Sigma Nu.

Tea dances are being arranged by various fraternities; in addition the following programme is arranged for Wednesday:

CENTENARY PROGRAMME FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 5

6.45 p.m.—Formal dinner for the Students' Delegates and the Joint Executive of the S.A.C. in the Junior Common Room, U.C., assembled first in the English Department, West Wing, U.C.

are not too long, and it is to be hoped that this year will find the orchestra strengthened by incoming musicians of all colleges.

Everyone interested is invited to a Re-organization Tea which will be held Monday afternoon, Oct. 10th, from 4 to 6 in Annesley Hall Common Room.

R. V. W.

We have just received a number of interesting letters, but one could scarcely call any of them contribs. in the true sense of the word. They are, shorn of adornment, as follows:

(1) "Dear Cat,
I heard a very interesting discussion yesterday between 2 co-eds as to whether the coming celebration was in honour of the 50th or the 75th anniversary of our fair University. And about the Centenary, how do you pronounce the dam thing, any? Is it 'Cent-inery' or is it Cent-in-ry? The Co-eds called it both."

D. K.

For the enlightenment of all co-eds, this is not the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of U.T.: it is merely the fourth commemoration of our twenty-fifth anniversary. As to the pronunciation of the word Centenary, the accent falls on the first syllable as in "Ouch!" and the last syllable is ignored as the Q in "giraffe."

C.-C.

C.R.T. writes that he noticed in one issue the statement that the "Women's Staff was fortunately well-manned." C.R.T. says that he is very glad that the dear girls will be able to attend all the parties this year. In that case the Men's Staff of "The Varsity" will be fortunately well-womaned, in our humble opinion.

C.-C.

Someone strangely like the ghost of Panabaker has written to us and signed him(?)self "One interested in Chocolate Bars."

Dear Sir,
It seems to me that for a cat you are strangely unobservant and incurious" (but, sir, one cat was killed that way). "To make your column a success you must allow your prejudices, not merely to feel the weight of many feet but the weight of a steam-roller also. Then, when they are neatly ironed and helpless, allow our famous art-critics at Varsity to dance upon them, flinging epithets of wonder at the C.N.E."

Surely then, surely, you will be more renowned in Champus Cat annals than the unpronounceable Jno."

N.B.—Jno. stands for Jonathan Morley Lazier, a ribald Rabelaisian well worth knowing.

C.-C.

We want more letters, more contributions and more arguments. Where are all those friends of yesterday, W. K. Speirs, Kaytee, and the rest? Is everyone contented? Does no one know any more jokes? Where is the facile pen of "I Wonder"?

Against our better judgment, we have decided to conduct an "Advice to the Love-lorn" column and have signed a contract for its conducting, with the Beeton expert, "Aunt Boadicea."

Victoria Finds Car-Pushing a Thrilling Invigorating Sport

The grand old sport of car pushing was indulged in by the men of Victoria after the annual stunt night held last night at the College.

The gentlemen of the first year put on the stunts demanded of them by their seniors in lieu of the old kind of initiation. After refreshments some of the more ebullient spirits pushed, cheering and yelling all the while.

Rugby Tickets

Individual game tickets, a certain portion of which will be sold, two to each student, will go on sale at the Athletic Offices at 9 a.m. to-day. Line-up will commence at north door of Athletic Office and around Hart House.

There will also be available approximately seventy student season tickets, which will go on sale at a second line-up at the same place at the same time.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

While Major Forbes' set idea of the forward pass has been turned down just as often as it was brought up at meetings of the rugby officials its inception at the Balmy Beach-McGill game gathered the new idea many converts, and it would not be at all surprising if, with persistence on the part of the Montreal men, the idea took hold generally within the next few years. The idea of the whole play is to strengthen the attack of the defending team when within a short distance of their own goal-posts, while at the same time it decreases the defensive strength of the opposing team, and this minimized the danger of fumbling the consequent loss of a game through one faulty catch on the part of a back.

More and more it becomes apparent that accommodation at the big Varsity Stadium will soon have to be increased by tearing down the old stands and completing the cement horseshoe. For the past three seasons seats at the Bloor Street plant have been at a premium, but the demand has never been as great as it is for the game here on Saturday. Of course, the influx of Grads and Centenary guests has created an extra heavy demand, but it must be realized that their requirements can be met only at the unfortunate expense of the down town public.

Motto: "Get your subscriber's season tickets early."

Saturday's colour scheme will be by far the greatest ever attempted in Toronto, comprising, as it does, the entire student body some three thousand strong. Its effect can only be properly carried out if all those in the student sections will enter wholeheartedly into the spirit of the affair, and tickets are sold to the undergraduate sections only on the understanding that the person using the ticket participate in all colour schemes.

also performing creditably with the javelin.

McTaggart of U.C., who was second to the record holder, Rahmanop of McGill, in the javelin last year, will likely give the McGill man a merry battle. In the U.C. meet McTaggart threw the javelin 135 feet against the wind, and can hit 150 feet in practice.

McKenzie, the captain of the team, will represent Varsity again this year in the 120 yards high hurdles and the broad jump. He holds the intercollegiate championship in the high hurdles, and placed second to Shaney in the broad jump. Agnew of Queen's will likely furnish McKenzie's opposition in the latter even as Shaney is not back this year. Marshall, who is also slated for the high jump, will likely be McKenzie's team-mate in the high hurdles, as Sparrow is ineligible.

Somerville, a veteran on Varsity track teams, is making unexpectedly good time in the 220 yards low hurdles. A number of men are trying out for this position, but it is altogether likely that Somerville will get the call.

The high jump is very much of an open event this year, although Marshall and Burke are the logical men for this event. Varsity will certainly score heavily in the pole vault, with Davenport, the Canadian champion.

VIC. TRACK MEET DISCLOSES TALENT OF THE FRESHMEN

Newcomers Score Over All the Other Years Combined

SOPHS A POOR SECOND

Johnny Fitzpatrick First; Gets Highest Individual Score

In the annual Victoria College Track Meet held yesterday afternoon at the Stadium, the frosh romped away from the other three years. JTI piled up 53 points, while the sophs trained badly with 26, and the seniors and juniors brought up the rear with 18 and 2 respectively.

Johnny Fitzpatrick was the hero of the day, and besides winning the individual honours, he presented his year with 30 points. Crosby of fourth year was second with the unlucky 13. The erstwhile Hmilton Collegiate wonder took five firsts with little difficulty and on the slow track he did the hundred in 10 2.5. In the hundred, two-twenty and four-forty "Fitz" broke the tape yards ahead of his nearest competitors and will prove a true point winner for Vic in the interfaculty meet on Friday. King, another frosh, looked good in the longer distances, winning both the half-mile and mile.

In the high jump Hopkins '28 took first place at 5 ft. 2 in. without going the limit. With condition and training, Hopkins would go a long way for he has the grace and ease of a jumper.

Results:
Shot put—Crosby, 37 ft., Fitzpatrick, Partridge.

100 Yards—Fitzpatrick, 10 2.5, Partridge, Crosby.

High Jump—Hopkins, 5 ft. 2 in., Davison, Fitzpatrick.

220 Yards—Fitzpatrick, 23 2.5, Lautenslager, Crosby.

Javelin—Fitzpatrick, 120 ft. 4 in., Wood, Snell.

Broad Jump—Fitzpatrick, 17 ft. 7 in., Wood, King B.

1 Mile—King, 5 min. 12 sec., Partridge, Holmes.

440 Yards—Fitzpatrick, 55 sec., Lautenslager, Crosby.

FAVOURITES TRIUMPH IN TENNIS MATCHES

Close Games Feature Both Singles and Doubles Tournaments

PROLONGED STRUGGLES

Varsity tennis team aspirants completed the first round in the doubles and the third round in the singles tournament at the Toronto Tennis Club yesterday afternoon.

The favourites came through in fine style to win their matches, although J. Johnston and H. Johnston were expected to the limit to defeat their respective opponents, Armstrong and L. Smith. These two matches provided the feature play in the singles.

The doubles offered two decided upsets to the followers of tennis in Varsity circles. Chief of these was the defeat of Gunn and Hiltz by Buchanan and Coupland. As much to their own surprise as to the spectators, Nunn and W. Martin only barely emerged as victors from Corruith and Noyes to the score of 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

THIRD ROUND

Nunn def. Plumtree 6-0, 6-0.

Rose def. Leake 6-1, 6-4.

J. Johnston def. Armstrong 4-6, 8-6, 6-4.

Boulbee def. Evans 6-2, 6-3.

Gunn def. Zimhonn 6-2, 6-2.

Corruith def. Sarjeant 6-1, 6-1.

BLUE RUGBY SQUAD PRACTICING HARD FOR NEXT CONTEST

Great Strength of Team Lies In Its Line Work

FUMBLING IN EVIDENCE

O.R.F.U. Aggregation Ready to Tackle Balmy Beach

After its convincing defeat of R. M. C. the Intercollegiate squad has settled down to serious practice for the big game next Saturday.

At the practice yesterday afternoon all the regulars were out there with the exception of France Trimble, who was in uniform but didn't get into the game. Coach Ronnie McPherson isn't taking any chances with his star half.

The drill provided a good fast workout for both squads. The O.R.F.U.

team provided stout opposition for Coach Ronnie McPherson's hopefuls. The Intercollegiate rearguard looked good as usual. "Chuck" Baillie, filling Trimble's place, pulled off a number of good runs. Sinclair was his usual tricky self on the attack and also was kicking well. At Young was on hand playing a fine steady game. Although not on very long, Harrison was conspicuous with several nice plunges.

This year's line seems to be well balanced and strong, contrary to the pre-season views of many experts, and it is going to make McGill sit up and take notice next Saturday. Dundas, in particular showed up well. He gave a fine display of the plunging art. The whole frontguard was working smoothly, and consequently individual effort was not so evident.

The O.R.F.U. squad are by no means weak sisters. They gave as good as they received yesterday and will make things very lively for the Balmy Beach's highly-touted crew. Baillie on the backfield and Woods at outside looked very good.

The Blue and White are not yet perfect, and fumbled more plays in the practice than they should have, but this condition can be remedied with a few more drills.

MEMORIAL SERVICE HELD FOR PROF. DUCKWORTH

Hundreds gathered in Trinity College Chapel yesterday afternoon to pay their last respects to the memory of Henry Thomas Forbes Duckworth, late professor of Ancient History at Trinity College. Professor Duckworth died in Rouen, France, in September, and yesterday's memorial service demonstrated the high esteem in which he was held in the University.

Sir Robert Falconer, president of the University, paid high tribute to the late Professor for the quiet strength and sincerity of his character and for the high standard of his scholarship. Sir Robert declared that he was present to express a universal sympathy for the death of a professor whose departure would be the loss not only of Trinity College but of the whole University. For twenty years Mr. Duckworth had moved about the college thinking little of himself and making no demands on his friends, so that others came without restraint to seek his friendship. As a scholar Professor Duckworth was unsurpassed in the field of the later Greek period. He was devoted to the study of a subject which had no broad appeal, but his associates realized how genuine a scholar he was. Sir Robert declared that the late professor's memory would long remain in Trinity College and always in the minds of his associates.

The sentences from the simple Anglican burial service were read by Archbishop Potheringham. Provost Cosgrave read the lesson, and Bishop Sweeney offered the closing prayers. The musical part of the service was led by the choir of the chapel under the direction of Mr. Richard Tattersall.

Prominent among the freshmen trying out for the team are Williams and King of Hamilton, both good middle distance men. Pete Smith, likewise of Hamilton, should do well in the sprints, although the competition with Fitzpatrick, Russel and Mabey is a little too fast.

servations to the Technical School and the Grange. The Department is hoping that this Group will prove popular, so as to raise the standard of poster decorations, which adorn the bulletin boards of every college.

The Literary Department has great things in store also. They have very fortunately secured Dr. Lawler, Dr. Pratt and Dr. Edgar to take discussion and reading groups. As a special feature there will be a new group organized on Children's Literature and fairy tales which, it will be hoped, will be popular with the Freshettes.

A series of open-house debates has been arranged for those interested in public speaking, and there will probably be a critic at one or two of these debates to point out mistakes and make corrections.

Under the heading of Current Events comes a group led by Dr. Wallace, University Librarian, on modern statesmen such as Baldwin, Gandhi, and Mussolini. There will also be discussion groups of events of to-day and a group on social problems led by Professor Lane.

This programme is by far the most complete and extensive that the Literary Society has ever attempted, but with the great influx of students and the continuing increase in demand for group study such as this, the executive is confident of a most successful year.

Several Important Changes. in Trinity College Staff

During the summer months several changes were announced on the staff of Trinity College. R. K. Hicks, M.A., has been appointed Acting Head of the French Department to take the place of Professor R. E. L. Kittredge, M.A., who was recently married and is on a leave of absence for a year. Professor Hicks previously was on the staff of Queen's University. He is a graduate of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. Frank T. H. Fletcher, M.A., has also been appointed to the French staff as Associate Professor. He holds the degree of Docteur from l'Université Nancy.

One of Trinity's own graduates, the Reverend John Lowe, M.A., has been appointed as lecturer on Religious Knowledge. He is also a graduate of Christ Church, Oxford.

Professor H. C. Simpson, B.A. (Magdalen College, Oxon.), M.A. (Trinity), and A.M. (Harvard), professor of English Literature, is on a year's leave of absence and is on a tour of the continent.

At a rather advanced hour last night workmen could be observed perched on a scaffolding, at work on the south face of the Memorial Tower Clock.

Their work was facilitated by the intensely bright light which flooded the Tower and its surroundings, and was accompanied by occasional melodies from the carillon. The latter were listened to by an interested little knot of passers-by.

PRESIDENT REQUESTS GOOD WEATHER HERE

Sir Robert Falconer Asks the Delegates to Keep the Good Weather With Us

DELEGATES ENTERTAINED

A most delightful luncheon was held on Wednesday, when the Board of Stewards of Hart House entertained as guests the undergraduate delegates from other universities.

Three tables decorated with red roses held the small party of thirty odd. The luncheon was of a most quiet and informal nature, speeches being reserved for the dinner in the evening.

Mr. J. B. Bickelsteth briefly welcomed his guests to Hart House. He requested them to make themselves thoroughly at home and expressed a hope that their stay would be most pleasant. President Falconer also extended a most hearty welcome to the delegates on behalf of the University. The President also made a request that since the delegates had brought such fine weather with them, they should continue the good weather and let us have the same kind weather for the rest of the week.

FAST TIME PROMISED AT THE TRACK MEET FRIDAY AFTERNOON

The Hundred and Two-twenty Will Be the "Tid-bits" of the Day

FITZPATRICK IS FAVOURITE

Graduates Will Have Real Olympic Material to Look Over

The Interfaculty Track Meet here next Friday is going to provide possibly the fastest races the University has ever seen.

The hundred and two-twenty will be the "tid-bits" of the day. These two races are between Russell, Fitzpatrick and Mabey. Consider the records of these men. Harley Russell has won the Intercollegiate "hundred" for three years. His time has been consistently 10 seconds flat. Johnny Fitzpatrick of the Hamilton Collegiate, who has just come to Varsity, has the reputation of being the fastest schoolboy in America, or, for that matter, in the world. He demonstrated it twice last spring, first at Milwaukee, where he won the Intercollegiate Championship of America in the hundred and two-twenty, and secondly, when he won the Intercollegiate Championship at the University of Pennsylvania in the same two events. In both cases he broke the record in the century by finishing in the marvelous time of 9 9-10 seconds.

These records had stood for years at 10 seconds flat. Incidentally Lawson Robertson, coach of the American Olympic team, made every effort to have Fitzpatrick come to the University of Pennsylvania to complete his education. Robertson is quoted as saying that Fitzpatrick is the greatest sprinting prospect he ever saw in his life. He compares him to Charley Paddock and claims he has everything a sprinter needs.

Cam Mabey of U.C. has improved tremendously in the past year. At the recent U.C. Track Meet he finished his hundred in ten seconds flat. Here then are three men whose records of 10 seconds, 9 9-10 seconds and 10 seconds respectively ought to provide a hairbreadth finish in the race on Friday. Never since the days when Frank (Continued on page 2)

DISTINGUISHED GRADS BACK AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Monsignor Pace of Catholic University of America Is Delegate

St. Michael's College is to be visited by many of her distinguished sons as well as by delegates from other seats of learning during the present Centenary Celebrations. Among the outstanding "old boys" expected are Thomas Mulvey, Under Secretary of State, and Senator McGuire. Among the representatives of St. Michael's who are figuring prominently in the celebrations are her University senators O'Connor, Kelly, Lellis and Bennett.

A few of the delegates who are to visit St. Michael's will be Monsignor Pace, rector of studies at the Catholic University of America, Henry Loureys, delegate from Louvain, and Very Rev. Boleslaw Bojanowski, of the University of Lublin, Poland.

The dinner planned by the graduates of '25 for the King Edward on Saturday night should prove a most interesting and colorful affair. Mr. Paul Martin, B.A., president of Osgoode Hall Young Liberals' Club, is chief organizer of the event.

PORTRAIT OF CHANCELLOR PRESENTED TO TRINITY

Picture of Sir John B. Robinson is Gift of F. B. Featherstonhaugh

A portrait of Sir John Beverley Robinson, Chief Justice of Upper Canada, and the first Chancellor of the University of Trinity College, is to be unveiled and presented as part of the University Centenary programme, in Convocation Hall on Friday afternoon.

The portrait, which is the gift of F. B. Featherstonhaugh, K.C., is a copy made by the Toronto artist, E. Wyly Grier, R.C.A., vice-president of the Royal Canadian Academy, from the portrait, hanging in Osgoode Hall Library, painted by Georges Theodore Berthon, the French artist.

The portrait is to be hung in Trinity College.

VICTORIA GRADUATES TO HOLD RE-UNIONS

Joint Dinner of Alumni and Alumnae Will Be Held Friday

PUBLISH HISTORY OF VIC.

In the gathering of the Victoria Graduates to their Alma Mater, the Centenary Celebration has a three-fold appeal—that of University, College and Class.

With the biggest dinner ever held in the history of Victoria College, Burwash Hall will be the scene of a joint dinner of both the Alumnae and the Alumni on Friday night at 6.30, at which a number of older classes have signified their intention of holding their Re-union. The greater number of class Re-unions, however, will be held on Saturday night, to which the halls of Wyndolwood, Annesley Hall, and Burwash Hall will be available for use. The following classes have announced that they are arranging to hold Re-unions: '27, '26, '25, '23, '21, '19, '17, '02.

Mr. Arthur R. Egd, editor of the London Free Press, a member of the Board of Regents of Victoria College and graduate of the class of '03, will deliver the toast to Victoria College at the Alumni Dinner, Friday night. Chancellor Bowles will reply to this toast. After the dinner the Victoria College buildings are to be open for inspection.

In connection with the Centenary Celebration, the Board of Regents, in co-operation with the Victoria College Alumni Association, have published "The History of Victoria College," by the late Doctor Burwash. This work, while completed several years ago, was purposely delayed for the Centenary Celebration.

Delegate from Univesitty of Budapest Welcomed By Signs, Not By Official

An impressive foreign individual approached the undergraduate in the information booth for delegates yesterday morning at seven in the Union Station. The individual seemed affably. "Is dis?" he asked, "is dis th' Univesity of Toronto Information Booth?" "Yes sir!" responded the member of the welcoming committee, favourably impressed. "I am from th' Univesity of Budapest!" explained the arrival, ponderously.

The undergraduate burned the wires in telephoning to the head of the welcoming committee, who at that time was in bed. It developed that no one was expected from Budapest so soon.

Next Will Be in 2027 When The University Bicentenary Will Be Celebrated

BRONZE GOD DONS FINERY

Decorative Lighting Effect in Quad Where Sing-Song is Held During Intermission

The Ball of the Century has come—and gone. Not for one hundred years will Hart House see the like. Masquerades may come and go—but not until 2027 will the Ball come again, as the Bicentenary. The Patronesses were Mrs. Monk, Mrs. Howard Ferguson, Lady Falconer, and Mrs. Vincent Massey. Mingling with the crowd were seen many prominent University figures, including Principal Hutton, Dr. Ernest McMillan and the Rev. F. J. Moore.

Five lively orchestras catered the music. All hands entered into the spirit of the occasion with good humour and taste. Even the bronze gentleman with the coin in the quadrangle donned a piece of the millinery provided, and wore a tasteful corsage of serpentine. No untoward incidents occurred, although many gullants found that the rendezvous system—"Meet me at the East Stairs!" frequently fell short of requirements.

The guests soon discovered the "slow" and "fast" floors—and the various interpretative forms of modern dancing were on display—the Sinks Jiggle, Cavart, Pump-handle and so on. The gentlemen soon resembled Horse Marines, French Sailors and Swiss Yodellers when the fancy caps had been distributed, and the serpentine provided the usual hilarious entanglements.

The Committee provided a novel system of decoration and lighting. The big gym had a false ceiling of blue and white bunting; yellow floods cast their glow over the dancers while the electricians performed playful tricks with the many-coloured spotlights. The quad, too, was lit by floodlights in amber and rose, and provided a cool and delightful relief to over-exerted dancers. A fantastic coloured fountain also squirted merrily in the swimming pool.

Supper consisting of coffee, sandwiches, cookies, nuts and ice-cream was provided in two instalments. These were served cafeteria-style in the Great Hall, which was lit by candles. Punch was also served continually, most appropriately in the boxing-room. (Continued on page 2)

SCHOOLS' DINNER DANCE TO MARK ANNIVERSARY

Will Be Held at Casa Loma Hotel at Seven o'clock on Saturday Night

Those in charge of the celebration of School's Fifthieth Anniversary announce that the last event of the celebration will take place Saturday night at Casa Loma, when those present will enjoy a long-to-be-remembered dinner dance.

At seven o'clock a full course dinner will be served in the Ball Room, the main dining room and the private mahogany dining room and will be augmented by dinner music and entertainment par excellence.

The entire programme will be carried through according to schedule in order that as much time as possible may be devoted to dancing.

At the conclusion of the dinner, all will retire to Peacock Alley and the lounge for a very few minutes until dancing commences in the ball room and main dining room, to the strains of the orchestra.

STUDENT FEDERATION THE COMING THING SAYS PRES. GREENE

The N.F.C.U.S. Will Be a Force to Bring Different Sections of Country Together

PROGRESS HAS BEEN GOOD

Future Leaders Will Find There Are Other Places Besides Own Universities

"The National Federation of Canadian University Students is the coming thing in Canadian student life," remarked Mr. I. L. Greene, President of the Federation, to "The Varsity" yesterday. Mr. Greene, who is representing the Federation at the Centenary Celebration, comes from Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Quebec.

The N.F.C.U.S., it will be remembered, was organized last winter. The objects of the organization, as set forth at that time in the Draft Constitution embodied in the report of the Conference of Representatives, are these: "To promote in every way possible a better understanding among all students; a greater degree of co-operation between all Canadian Universities for the promotion of national interests; and to provide a means for developing international relationships with student groups in other countries."

That the Federation would bring different sections of the country into closer co-operation was Mr. Greene's firm belief. "With our ideas of the exchange of students between Universities."

Activities, intercollegiate debates, athletics, and so on, we are bound to be a force in that direction," he said. "Let alone the material benefits in the way of reduced rates which we will be able to provide, these activities will also be of great value in letting students see what Canada as a whole has to offer. The country's future leaders will have a chance to find out that there are other places besides their own university."

"Progress so far has been good," continued Mr. Greene. "A debating team composed of representatives of (Continued on page 2)

The Hon. L. A. Taschereau Presents His Views in Convocation Hall To-day

FERGUSON TO-MORROW

Premiers of Canada's banner provinces will contribute to an important and timely discussion on the subject "Aspects of Canadian History Since Confederation," in their addresses in Convocation Hall on Thursday and Friday mornings.

This morning at eleven o'clock the Honourable L. A. Taschereau, Prime Minister of Quebec, will present his particular views on Canadian history. Mr. Taschereau, whose family has contributed leaders to the people of Quebec from the earliest times, including the great Cardinal, Taschereau, has reigned politically for many years in Quebec after the retirement of Sir Lomer Gouin.

At the same hour on Friday morning the Honourable George Howard Ferguson will address an audience composed of people interested in the various phases of his career from the time he graduated with honours in political science until he was called to (Continued on page 6)

TORONTO, OCTOBER 6, 1927.

THE UNIVERSITY WELCOMES HER GUESTS

To the visitors from sister universities and societies, returning graduates and guests—welcome. The undergraduates, the professors and officials of the University of Toronto are your hosts. To you is extended the hand of fellowship.

May the exchange of ideas in the intercourse of the next few days leave something of lasting benefit to Toronto, and may each delegate take back something of worth to his own institution. The event should also contribute to a greater political understanding between the countries represented.

THE YEAR'S ANNIVERSARIES

The year 1927 is one of anniversaries in educational circles. Besides Toronto, the Law School at Rio de Janeiro is also in its Centenary year, the event being celebrated in July. This week the University of Manitoba is observing its Semi-Centennial, and this is also the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Wycliffe, St. Michael's, and the School of Practical Science.

THE FACULTY AND THE UNIVERSITY

One small unnoticed incident of last night's Undergraduate Ball, which by the way was an entire success from start to finish, may be mentioned. During the intermission, faculty yells were heard in the quad, later followed by a "Toronto."

Never the best of taste at an all-university function, college yells should at least be preceded by the University yell. There will be plenty of opportunities to express faculty spirit. Friday's track meet is one of them. Strong faculty feelings are a good sign, for "college spirit" at any large university depends on the spirit of its component parts. In the case of an entirely non-faculty function, however, University loyalty should receive foremost expression, and faculty allegiance should stand second.

FAST TIME PROMISED AT THE TRACK MEET

Halbus and Lou Siebert used to bring the stands to their feet in split-second finishes, has Varsity had such a group of sprinters.

The other events are by no means behind the sprints in providing close finishes.

The quarter mile is bound to be a "hum-dinger." "Mo" Mitchell of Meds, the Canadian half-mile champion, and almost a sure member of next year's Olympic team, recently ran one of the fastest quarters ever done by a Canadian. His opposition is Alan Christie of University College, who represented Canada at the last Olympic Games in the quarter mile. He has won the Intercollegiate title for three years and his best time is very little different from that of Mitchell's.

The half mile should go to "Mo" Mitchell, but Carmen King and Hal Williams of Victoria ought to give him a good run. King was the best half-miler of the Hamilton Collegiate last spring, and is a former Canadian Inter-collegiate champion.

The "dope" calls Wally Graham to win the three mile. Ken Crozier, however, who has been working hard all Fall, is trained to the minute and an upset in this direction is easily possible.

Jim McKenzie of School, and this year's track captain, should have no trouble winning the hurdle events. Many men, including Peter Smith, the crack sprinter from the Hamilton Collegiate, have been training for the 220 low hurdles, and Jim will have to "watch his step" to win.

The high jump is anybody's. Varsity lost their good high jumper last year, and nobody has any idea who will take his place. A few of the best known of these are as follows: Putnam, Dennis and McKay of U.C., Woodside and

TORONTO'S FIRST CENTENARY BALL

During the intermission massed singing led by Dr. Lorne Deaton was held in the open quad. "Alouette," "Sweet Adeline" for male singers only, "Show me the way to go home," and other songs of Bachus and conviviality were featured. Then came University, College, and Faculty yells.

All in all, the Ball was worthy of the Century. The general tone of the evening, the music, the decorations and the rest, reflected credit upon the University and made a great tribute to the efficiency of the Undergraduates' Centenary Ball Committee.

Frosh at the University of Colorado present their best man with a brown derby each year.

—Minn. Daily.

Burke of School and Marshall of Dents.

The weight events are much like the high jump—anybody may win.

Bill Fialayson, Intercollegiate discus champion, will be closely followed by Belachy, a "School" frosh. Gerry McVean and Corky Burke, two more "School" men, ought to score heavily in these field events. Belachy and McVean show much promise.

The pole vault, with Crawford of Meds, Davenport of "School," Dennis and McKay of U.C., should provide excellent competition. Crawford is doing 11 feet in practice at the present time.

It is very fortunate that such a galaxy of stars are gathered at Varsity for such a year as this, the Centennial Celebration Year. The competition will be the strongest ever provided at an Interfaculty Meet, and the grads will have some real Olympic material to look over.

STUDENT FEDERATION THE COMING THING

Several Maritime universities have been formed to form another team from central universities, which will tour the central States.

"Contact has already been established overseas. Eugene Forsey, Rhodes Scholar from McGill, now at Balliol College, Oxford, attended the conference of the National Students' Union of Great Britain and Wales, at Bristol, on our behalf. Escott Reid, Rhodes scholar from Trinity College here, this summer carried to Rome our petition for membership in the Conference International des Etudiants. We have been accepted, and will become active members on the first of the year."

Schemes now under way call for the insuring of students, and fire insurance is also being considered. In addition, a Federation Bulletin periodical is contemplated, to which student organizations all over the Dominion will contribute, and which will serve as a medium for the exchange of problems and ideas. "We are negotiating with one of the prominent Canadian athletic supply houses," said Mr. Greene, "and things look extremely promising for an arrangement whereby Universities will get a substantial reduction in the purchase of athletic goods."

The annual conference of the Federation is to be held during the week between Christmas and New Year. The place has not yet been decided upon, but will probably be in Western Canada. Thirteen of Canada's leading Universities are members of the Federation, and four more from the Maritimes are in touch with the secretary's office. It is hoped that these will soon be full-fledged members.

"Everybody connected with the Federation is particularly enthusiastic about it," said Mr. Greene. "At the last meeting all difficulties in connection with its formation were considered and disposed of. The feeling now is that the Federation is an assured success. It is a marvellous thing," he added, "that within so short a time the Federation has been endorsed by the leading universities in the country."

Mr. Donald Wallace, also of Bishop's University, agreed with Mr. Greene in finding the University here quite attractive. Bishop's University, an Arts and Divinity Institution at Lennoxville, Quebec, is over eighty years old. The students there, Mr. Wallace informed "The Varsity," publish "The Mitre," a magazine which appears three times a year.

U.C. ENTERS FIVE FLOATS IN STUDENTS' PARADE

"Advent of Co-education" is Title of One; Rank and File of U.C. Follow Floats

According to reports the part to be taken by University College in to-day's procession promises to be a large one. Five floats depicting outstanding events in the history of the college and the University will be one of the foremost features of the procession.

The five floats will be preceded by a party of eight, consisting of two heralds, who will lead the University College contingent. Behind them a red and white banner bearing the name of the college and the date of its founding will be borne by six standard-bearers, after which will come the floats in chronological order. The first of these will be a tableau depicting Governor Simcoe of Upper Canada granting the charter to King's College in the name of his late Majesty George the Fourth. A space denoting a lapse of a generation will then follow till the next float appears, which will illustrate in tableau the laying of the corner stone of University College, followed by a period almost equal in chronological length; but most interesting of all will appear the float entitled the "Advent of Co-education." The period of the Great War with all its poignant memories and sacrifices will be symbolised in the float entitled, "In the Cause of Justice." The succession of floats will then be concluded with one depicting modern Toronto, followed by the rank and file of University College.

CHAMPUS CAT

As filler in one of our recent issues there was the following astounding wise-crack:

"I do not believe in the versatile student."

—Godfrey de Courcy.

With a name as flossy as that Mr. de C. could get away with almost anything. We suspect him of being one of those ills, "a brilliant Oxonian." Mr. de C. may not believe in the versatile student, but nevertheless the animal exists.

Our office has just been overwhelmed with the letter of one "School '23," which is not only a primitive but prime piece of foolishness, wearing a seeming cloak of virility. The day will come, perhaps in 1950 A.D., when students speaking of the initiations of 30 years ago will smile and say: "Initiations? Amusing but uncouth." What a jolly time good old "School '23" could have had four centuries ago in Spain helping the gentle Torquemada instil some real "old Spanish spirit" into the heretics at the time of the Inquisition! If covering a fellow-human with rotten eggs, green paint, feathers, shellac, and other odorous unguents is helping to do anything else to that human other than to make him wish to heap similar messes on his successors, then we are a boiled owl.

We are in receipt of a letter from George W. Methuselah, U. of Palestine, 6600 B.C. He wires, "Sorry I miss your big Centenary this time, but will certainly be there for the next in 2027."

PASTORAL

(After the manner of A. E. Housman) When lads have done with labour In Beaton one will cry: "Let's go and rob a neighbour," And t'other answers: "Aye."

So this one takes Tom's cattle, And that one steals Bill's sheep, And joyously they prattle Of secret profits deep.

Nor moo nor squeal will stay them, Nor bleating of the lamb, For well the drovers pay them For mutton, beef, or lamb.

The farmers snore in Beaton With snores that stir the dead, Morn finds each thing with meat on Mysteriously fled.

But, oh, to be in Beaton!

For, lad, they make no sale. When lusty lads of Beaton Lie locked in Barrie Jail.

O.R.F.U.'s DRILLING HARD FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

With Many New Stars Team is Considerably Strengthened This Season

Last night at the Stadium was staged as keen a battle as was ever waged in practice. Every man in uniform was working at top speed, and Coach Pearson allowed no let up. As soon as one lagged, he was yanked "pronto" and another with more pep put in. The "orphans" realize that in Balmy Beach, they are running up against a first-class aggregation, which is looked upon in many circles as the 1927 champions of Canada. Therefore, instead of accepting these prophecies as facts, the Varsity entry is going to do its best to dispose them.

This year's team is considerably strengthened, as many of last year's intermediate and junior squad are stepping up, while not a few have been drafted from the Mulock series. The squad has been cut to a more wieldy size, and "Mike" is whipping the boys into shape. "Gay" Kirkpatrick, of last year's junior championship team, looks to be a sure starter on Saturday in the new Oakwood Stadium.

Colleges Attach Great Importance To Varsity's Centenary Celebration

Majority of the Delegates From The States Are Presidents or Deans of Colleges

19 SOCIETIES ACCEPT INVITATIONS

Approximately eighty colleges and universities in the United States have signified their intention of sending staff representatives to the Centenary Celebration. That much importance is attached to the event by the institutions to the south of us is evinced by the fact that the majority of the delegates are either Presidents or Deans of their respective universities. Among the delegates will be Dr. Livingston Farrand, President of Cornell University, who will speak at the dinner Thursday evening; Dr. Frederick Robinson, President of the College of the City of New York; Hon. Newton Baker, from Washington and Lee University, former member of President Wilson's war-time cabinet; Dr. George Frederick Kay, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, State University of Iowa, a Toronto alumnus; Dr. McCracken, President of Vassar College. Nineteen learned societies are also sending delegates; among these are the American Surgical Association, a famous surgeon; Dr. Samuel P. Capen, President of the Archaeological Institute of America; Dr. Francis X. Dicum, President of the American Philosophical Society.

The following is a complete list of delegates from universities and societies in the United States:
Allegheny College, Rev. Bruce S. Wright, D. D., Pastor; Amherst College, Arthur Stanley Pease, A.M., Ph.D., President; Barnard College, Columbia University, Frederick J. E. MILITIA SHOOTING PROVED VALUABLE

Instruction Given by Rifle Association Aided Members While Overseas

FOUNDED IN 1904

The University of Toronto Rifle Association was organized on March 4th, 1904, by a small group of enthusiasts who were anxious to see rifle shooting take its proper place in the activities of the university. Dean McLure was the first secretary. The organization was a small one, having a membership of less than forty. In 1907 Professor G. H. Needler became captain and Professor W. Lash honorary captain of the Association. The energy of these two gentlemen led to a great expansion in the Association. They desired to teach as large a number of undergraduates as possible the use of the rifle and arranged to have targets available at Long Branch throughout the month of October and the early part of November. The membership increased to three hundred and twenty-five and during the next seven years it was a flourishing Association with over three hundred members each year, taking on some hundred and eighty new recruits. It worked out an elaborate system by which real instruction was given and the shooting average rose to a very high level. On the outbreak of War, Professor Coventry had succeeded Professor V. E. Henderson as captain, but before the captain returned from England steps had been taken by the members of the OVERSEA FELLOWSHIP ANNOUNCED BY I.O.D.E.

Nine Post-graduate Scholarships of $1,400 Will Be Awarded Each Year

ONE FOR EACH PROVINCE

The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire has announced the condition of its Overseas Graduate Fellowships which it awards as part of its work to perpetuate the memory of those men and women that gave their lives in the Great War. The rules and qualifications are given as follows by Mrs. Hugh MacMillan, Educational Secretary for the Order in Prince Edward Island.

1. Nine post-graduate scholarships—one in each Province of the Dominion—are offered annually, to enable students to carry on studies at any University in the United Kingdom, in British and Imperial History, the Economics and Government of the Empire and Dominion, or any subject vital to the interest of the Empire. In most Provinces, if the Committee of Selection so decide, the scholarship may be awarded for a second year to the same candidate, providing his or her record is satisfactory.

2. A Committee of Selection has been appointed in each Province, consisting of the three representatives of that Province on the National War Memorial Committee, and two or more educational representatives chosen by the I.O.D.E. members of the Committee.

3. The selection of a candidate will

Pond Was Centre of Attraction On The Campus Fifty Years Ago

(From "The Varsity," Jan. 19th, 1923)

That the theatre and whole basement of Hart House is constantly in danger of being flooded by water from a hidden spring or underground creek is a fact not generally known to the undergraduate body. Investigation reveals the interesting information that running through the heart of the University there once was a tiny creek, which, at its broadest point, was never more than five feet in width. Fed by underground springs, Taddle Creek, as it was called, commenced somewhere in the high ground north of Bloor Street, just a little east of McMaster University, and meandered south through the tiny ravine on whose east bank the Royal Ontario Museum is built. Crossing the fields, where now stand the University residences, and which were then a cow pasture, across what is now Hoskin Avenue, the creek bubbled noisily down a steep hollow (now filled in) on which one wing of Hart House is located.

At the road leading from Queen's Park to the theatre the creek passed under a culvert, where a dam diverted its waters into the hollow above mentioned, as far as the road leading north to Hoskin Avenue. The pond was called "McCauley's Pond" (after the first President of the University) and "University Pond," and was filled the year round with clear fresh water to the extreme depth of seven feet. The overflow from the pond trickled south through the well-defined ravine on whose west bank stands the Library, east of the Engineering Building, across College Street and through the grounds now occupied by the old Technical School—then a pleasant little ravine called "Sleepy Hollow." South of Orde Street the creek turned east and crossing University Avenue near McCaul Street School it made its way to the Bay near the foot of Church Street.

In the early seventies the creek was a thing of beauty. Thanks to the care bestowed on it by the University ground keepers, its course was free of weeds and rubbish and its bottom was paved with round pebbles of varying size over which the creek's waters, never more than a foot in depth, murmured musically.

It would seem that a pond near the Main Building and residences would be a source of continual temptation to students for initiation and hazing purposes. Strange as it may seem, it is a fact that there is not on record a single instance of the ducking of a student in the pond. The explanation

At the right is the central section of the Tablet, and below is a view of the Tower from the east, where one battery of floodlights has been placed.

MAIN DOORWAY, U.C.

Men have come and gone and expansion has made necessary many changes in Varsity scenery that make things unfamiliar to the old graduates; but the celebrated Norman door of University College having weathered all vicissitudes and gathered its meed of praise from the thousands of every summer's visitors stands as a welcome sign to the men of former years.

THE CAMPUS OF YESTERDAY

POND WAS CENTRE OF ATTRACTION ON CAMPUS

Just as the fact that initiations of thirty years ago were more or less convivial affairs. The students, older and more mature, than the undergraduates of today, were wont to initiate the freshmen in the "vaunt" of University College and when the ordeals were over the freshmen and sophomores joined forces and marched in a body off to a tavern at Yorkville (near Bloor and Yonge streets) to celebrate the occasion with several kegs of beer.

On Saturday and Sunday afternoons, forty and fifty years ago, the pond was the meeting place for all the small boys who owned dogs in the towns of York and Yorkville. These races were run by dogs in retrieving sticks thrown into the water by their masters, and naturally more than one dog fight and dog and cat fight took place. The pond grew so popular in the late seventies that it became a nuisance and it was decreed that it be drained and the nuisance be thus abolished.

With the passing of the pond came the passing of Taddle Creek. When the basin of the pond was filled up the waters of the creek were diverted from its channel, and with the rapid growth of the district the creek gradually disappeared.

Executive to make use of the facilities of the Rifle Association to promote the organization of an Officer's Training Corps. This led to the membership in the Association running up to over sixteen hundred students. But as the C.O.T.C. developed the Rifle Association naturally fell in abeyance and Professor Lash Miller took over the duties of captain and managed affairs of the Rifle Association during the interregnum up to 1920. In 1920 steps were taken to reorganize the Rifle Association. Professor C. N. Cochrane became captain, but it was found that the Association had been disbanded by the Department of Militia and Defense, and it required a considerable effort to have its charter reissued.

Prior to the War, plans had been formed for the construction of an indoor range. These plans were completely upset by the building of Hart House, but representations made by the Rifle Association led to Mr. Vincent Massey providing space and partly equipping an indoor range. Professor Cochrane and his Committee completed this indoor range, and revived the Association in 1921. Since then the efforts of Mr. F. L. Mills and Mr. Hayhurst, have gradually rebuilt the Rifle Association which now has some eighty members. This is a far smaller number of members than the Association would have were it not for the C.O.T.C. which also provides shooting for its members. But the Association undoubtedly provides a field for these undergraduates who are not serving in the C.O.T.C., or for those members of the C.O.T.C. who wish to become more expert in the rifle, enabling them to get a more thorough knowledge of match shooting both indoor and outdoor, than would otherwise be possible. The Association has always been interested in teaching the beginner how to shoot and plans are being laid this year which will increase the facilities for the tyro.

The advantage of this civilian Rifle Association with its plan of instruction in militia shooting proved its great value at the outbreak of the War and hundreds of those who through the Rifle Association had first learned to shoot, served during the Great War, and can testify to the advantage that their training in the Rifle Association gave them.

INTERFACULTY TRACK FRIDAY; MCGILL AT STADIUM SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

In all the excitement about the Varsity McGill game the Blue and White senior O.R.F.U. team is in some danger of being overlooked. But don't think for a moment that they are in any way a secondary consideration. They are every inch a senior team, and this statement will be demonstrated when they meet Balmy Beach on Saturday. Beathes, last year's champions, have every bit as strong a team as last year; indeed, their line-up is practically the same. But Coach "Mike" Pearson has been rounding out a team which will give the East Enders a merry run for the title.

The O.R.F.U. squad is faced every year with the problem of building up a team from new material, and even when an outfit of championship calibre is collected some of the stars are always liable to be drafted to the Intercollegiate. Despite this, Varsity has always been represented by a strong team, and have always been strong contenders for the title.

Balmy Beach are pre-season favourites for the title this year, and have been called by many critics to repeat. On their showing against McGill they certainly look like the team to beat. Their backfield is one of the strongest in the game, and they have a good line. It is no easy task that face the Blue and White on Saturday, but it would come as no surprise to those who have been watching their workouts if they toppled the Beathes and got the jump on them in the first game. Anyone who attends the game, which, by the way, will be played at the new Oakwood Stadium, will see a good game, and it is certain that they will see this year's champions in action.

Both rugby games this Saturday will be the well-known "crucial tests" for the Varsity squads. McGill are strong contenders for the Intercollegiate title, and a victory over them will put McPherson's team well on the way to another championship, while a victory over Balmy Beach will make the O.R.F.U. squad strong favourites for the honours in the Ontario Union.

There has been a strong demand for student season tickets, and the last were disposed of at the Athletic Office yesterday morning. There are still a few rooters' tickets to be distributed, but it is expected that these will all be taken up before Saturday. Not all of the single tickets for the McGill game were sold out, and the remainder will go on sale downtown. Many students have taken advantage of the holidays from lectures to go home for the week-end, and this explains the fact of the tickets not being all taken up. However, with the influx of graduates for the Centenary, there should be a large crowd present, rivalling even the crowd at the Queen's game in past seasons.

Last year Varsity retained the Intercollegiate track championship won from the previous year when McGill's long string of victories was finally broken. This year the team appears to have an even better chance of repeating, but unfortunately for Toronto fans the Intercollegiate championships will be held in Kingston. But the Interfaculty meet on Friday will give all and sundry a chance to look over Varsity's team and judge Varsity's chances. Entered in the various events will be several Canadian champions, and men who are practically assured of a place on the Canadian Olympic team, and some of the existing records will probably go by the boards.

ANNUAL MEET WITH SOPHS WON BY SCHOOL FRESHMEN

Southon, Ballachey and Emerson Are High Men, with 18, 16, and 14 Points

The S.P.S. Soph-Fresh Track Meet held yesterday afternoon at the U. of T. Stadium was won by the freshmen 65-42. The individual honours went to Southon with 18 points, Ballachey 16 points and Emerson 14 points. "Ronnie" Taking No Chances and is Driving Players Through Their Workouts

LINE IS NOW STRONGER

Coach "Ronnie" McPherson is certainly taking no chances of dropping the first game of the Intercollegiate schedule to McGill. He is driving the players through their workout, and what is more important still, the players are working their hardest and coming back for more. Probably the fact that some critics have been calling the Red and White squad to cop the title in the College loop has something to do with this, but whatever it is, the boys certainly are trying, and it looks more and more as if they will be returned winners in Saturday's little mix-up.

At McGill Shaughnessy has inaugurated secret practices, and the team is working out daily behind closed doors. Whether this means anything or not is hard to say. "Shag" is one of the foxiest coaches in the game, and this is probably more bluff than anything else. At any rate, Varsity is still practicing in the open, and no one is losing very much sleep over any trick formations that McGill may spring. Their last great innovation, the "huddle" system, was nothing to rave about, and in the game last Saturday against Balmy Beach it cost them a down on two separate occasions due to the length of time spent in figuring out the play in the "huddle" conference.

The Varsity squad, beside their regular afternoon practices, are working out every morning at the Stadium, and with a practice at seven-thirty in the morning and one at night they are quite ready to follow the orders of "Ded at ten sharp."

The line which looked to be pretty well shot at first promises to be as

Four Survivors in Singles Are Last Year's Intercollegiate Team

MATCHES AT 10.30 TO-DAY

Excellent progress was made in the Varsity tennis championships which are being held on the courts of the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club. As a result of the day's play both events are down to the semi-finals, and the four surviving men in the singles are those who represented Varsity in the Intercollegiate meet last year. Gilbert Nunn advanced fours, but Don Gunn, received unexpected opposition from Boulbee. This had took the middle session from Gunn, and he extended him to the limit in the deciding set. Art Balfour played very well against Walter Martin, and he extended him especially in the first set. Salmon easily reached the fours. In the doubles Beath-Drury caused somewhat of an upset when they defeated Buchanan and Coupland, who had unexpectedly beaten Don Gunn and Hills on the previous day. Gilbert Nunn and Don Gunn meet at 10.30, and at the same hour Ken Salmon tackles Walter Martin. At twelve o'clock the semi-finals of the doubles will be played, and these games should also produce some good tennis.

Nunn def. Rose 6-1, 6-3.

strong as the one which carried Varsity to a championship last year. Carrick is back again, and his return has made things look rosy indeed. Freddie Dundas is going better than ever, and promises to be one of the brightest stars in the game, and his partner at inside, Calman, is not far behind him. Dean and Rykert at middle wing are going great guns, and with Don Carrick should look after this position quite capably.

Daly, Snyder and Wilton look good at the outside positions. They are showing nice speed, and their tackling leaves little to be desired. Traynor, from Regina Pats, looks like a good bet at flying wing, and as he has had plenty of experience in the west should be a very valuable man.

take place during the month of November, 1927. The candidate selected must be prepared to begin his or her course in Great Britain in the autumn of 1928.

4. These scholarships are subject to the following conditions:—

(a) Candidates may be men or women. They must be British born, naturalized allies, or naturalized neutrals, with at least five years' residence in Canada, and unmarried. Except in the case of a returned soldier, sailor or airman, they must have passed their 19th but not their 27th birthday in October of the year during which they begin their course. In the case of a man who has served in the Great War, he must not have passed his 33rd birthday in October of the year during which he begins his course. Each candidate must either hold a degree from a recognized University or degree-granting College in the Province in which he or she is making application, or be in his or her final year proceeding to a degree, and shall be entitled to apply in the Province in which the University from which he or she graduated is situated, irrespective of his or her place of residence in Canada. In Provinces where there is no University, the War Memorial Committee in that Province shall grant the scholarships to a man or woman from that Province, who has graduated from any Canadian University or College or is in his or her final year proceeding to a degree. Candidates from a Province having no university may apply only in that Province, not in the Province where they are attending college or have taken a degree.

(b) In choosing the scholars, the Committee of Selection will consider not only literary and academic attainments, but also personal character and physical fitness. Other conditions being equal, preference will be given to a returned soldier, his sister, son or daughter.

If possible, personal interviews with the candidates will be arranged. Each committee will also ascertain whether the record of the candidate and his or her aims and ideals are consistent with the aims and ideals of the Order, and whether he or she intends to live in Canada on returning from overseas. The Committee should also ascertain whether, in the event of the candidate wishing to secure a British degree, he or she could finance the second year in the event of the I.O.D.E. Scholarship covering only one year's study.

5. Each scholarship is of the value of $1,400 per annum. The payment will be made in three instalments, the first ($500) in the second week of September, the second ($450) in the second week of January, and the third ($450) in the second week of March. Payments will be made in sterling at the exchange of the day.

6. It is the wish of the Order that all I.O.D.E. scholars shall return to Canada and live there after the completion of their work in a British University. The Order will give any assistance in its power to help a returned scholar to secure a position in Canada.

7. If, in any year, in any Province, there be no candidate of the proper standard, the scholarship shall not be awarded, and the money shall revert to the War Memorial Fund.

8. Every candidate for a scholarship is requested to furnish to the Educational Secretary, I.O.D.E., for the Province, not later than October 25th, 1927, the following:—

(a) Certificate of birth or other satisfactory evidence of date of birth.
(b) A statement by the candidate as to whether he or she, his or her father or brothers served overseas, together with details of such military service.
(c) A written statement from the President or Acting President of the College or University of which the candidate is a graduate or from which he or she expects to graduate, stating that he or she is approved by the University as a candidate for the scholarship.

(d) A record, certified by the Registrar or some other responsible official of the College or University, of the courses of study taken by the candidate.

(e) A statement by the candidate regarding his or her activities and interests at College.

(f) A statement by the candidate as to the line of work which he or she proposes to follow in Great Britain, mentioning also the University, and (in the case of Oxford and Cambridge) the College at which he or she would prefer to study.

(g) Testimonials from three persons concerning the candidate's qualifications.

(h) References to three other responsible persons, whose addresses must be given in full, and of whom at least two must be professors under whom he or she has studied.

9. Each scholar may make his or her arrangements for tuition and residence at the British University selected, and is advised to consult the staff of his or her University regarding such arrangements. The National Educational Secretary should, in each case, be kept informed of any arrangements made or proposed. Early application is necessary for admission to an Oxford or Cambridge college.

10. Candidates should bear in mind that no degree can be obtained at Oxford in less than two years; if a candidate for a scholarship wishes to obtain such a degree, he or she should be prepared to remain for a second year's study, and should make a statement to this effect in submitting his or her application.

11. Application blanks may be obtained by eligible candidates from the Registrars of the different Universities who will furnish any additional information desired.

PREMIER OF QUEBEC REAFFIRMS BELIEF IN CONFEDERATION

Hon. L. A. Taschereau Addresses Crowded Audience in Convocation Hall

QUEBEC LOYAL TO EMPIRE

Prosperous and Successful Canada—a Result of Friendly Spirit

"I am a firm believer in Canadian Confederation."

"Confederation must live and will live."

In these emphatic words the Hon. L. A. Taschereau expressed his approval of the British North America Act, speaking before a crowded audience in Convocation Hall yesterday morning. The Premier of Quebec, who was introduced by Sir Robert Falconer, had as his subject "Some Aspects of Canadian History since Confederation." He laid particular stress on the friendly relations between Quebec and her sister provinces, on the spirit of unity and prosperity which dominated the country, on the loyalty shown to Great Britain on the importance of education in Canada to-day, and commented favourably on the abolition of Regulation 17 by the Ontario legislature.

The speaker conveyed to the audience the cordial greetings and goodwill of the province of Quebec, and declared that the invitation which the University had extended to him was an honour to himself and to his province. In a brief, but striking, comparison between the Canada of 1827 and the Canada of 1927, he showed how the University of Toronto, in its hundred years of existence, had witnessed many great and significant changes. It was a far cry from the dimly-lit, disaffected and unrest of 1827 to the Canada of to-day, with its newly acquired seat on the council of the League of Nations.

Dealing with the difficulties and problems of Confederation, Mr. Taschereau pointed out that, in her hour of need, Canada had produced the men capable of facing the situation and arriving at a satisfactory conclusion. Macdonald, Cartier, Brown, Tupper—all the fathers of Confederation were looking for the union of Upper and Lower Canada with the Maritimes, and later on, the addition of the West.

The most remarkable feature of the country which led up to the passing of the British North America Act was the spirit of compromise. That men like Sir John Macdonald and

GRADUATE SEMINAR HELD FOR HISTORY STUDENTS

Possibility of Endowment is Expectation of Professor Woolryche

Last June the Board of Governors of the University asked Professor W. Stewart Wallace, University librarian, to become Professor of History in the University, and to take special oversight of the graduate students in Canadian History.

As a consequence, Professor Wallace informed "The Varsity," he has been planning to build up a graduate seminar in Canadian History, with the possibility of a special endowment.

In order to relieve Professor Wallace of some of his duties, Miss Hilda Woolryche, B.A., formerly head of the regulation department in the library, has become Assistant Librarian in charge of administration. Miss Woolryche is an honours graduate of University College.

REGISTER AT LIBRARY FROM FAR AND NEAR

Many Graduates of Toronto Here in Capacity of Delegates

FROM KOREA AND BOMBAY

All day yesterday graduates and delegates to the Centenary pressed in to the lower reading room, registered, received their tickets for the many social functions, and filed out again. The hurried activity in the room was quite in contrast to its usual air of studious quiet, and many students of other days must have found it quite unfamiliar.

Graduates of the University of Toronto have come from all parts of America to be present at the Centenary. It is said that a former student who once roomed with Dr. Brebner and graduated with him in 1889 has come from Korea for the event. Some have returned to their Alma Mater as delegates of other universities with which they are now affiliated. Chief Justice Riddell of Edmonton is present as a graduate of 1884 and as a delegate from the University of Alberta. Another early graduate is Rev. D. G. McQueen (1884); he is also from Edmonton. Centenary work has attracted wide attention, and delegates from all the great universities of the world were to be seen registering in the Library Hall yesterday. Dr. G. Ramon with Dr. R. Mason were present from the Institut Pasteur, Paris, and Dr. Emile Sergent from the Université de Paris. The West China Union University was represented by W. R. Shaw, and Queen's University, Belfast, by Dr. R. W. Livingstone. Notable among the American delegates was Hon. Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War for the United States. He represented Washington and Lee University. Dr. J. McKeen Lattal was present on behalf of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He lectured for many years at Columbia University, and is editor of "The Science."

Dr. Farrard, President of Cornell Proposes Toast to University of Toronto

GREETINGS FROM IRELAND

Distinguished Array of Speakers Honour Huge Centenary Function

One of the most brilliant assemblies of educational men and women of all countries and representatives of learned societies gathered in the University Arena last night, to celebrate the hundredth birthday of the University of Toronto.

At the supper over fourteen hundred and fifty people were seated, and many more crowded the gallery to hear the speeches. Among the notables seated at the head table were the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada; Hon. Howard Ferguson, Sir Arthur Currie, G.C.M.G., Hon. Vincent Massey, His Excellency the Hon. H. Puyreardon, His Excellency the Hon. Timothy A. Smully, Hon. Wm. Phillips, James Brown Scott, Sir John Bland-Sutton, Bart., Dr. Livingston Farrard, Dr. R. W. Livingstone, the Right Hon. Sir William Mulock, K.C.M.G., Professor S. Angus, Miss E. F. Pendleton, the Hon. and Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors, and Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University.

The Arena decorated by Arthur Lismer, presented a vastly changed appearance. Draped with flags of the Empire and other countries, above which the blue and white of Toronto was predominant, it took on a festive attire. The speakers were seated amongst ferns and palms, upon a huge dais at the north end, above which was draped large, coloured curtains with coats-of-arms emblazoned on them, and presented a most imposing sight.

Extending a welcome to all delegates on behalf of the University of Toronto, Canon Cody, chairman of the dinner, opened the speeches for the evening. After proposing the toast to the King, he called upon Dr. Livingston Farrard, President of Cornell University, to propose the toast to the University of Toronto.

Bringing greetings from a sister university, Dr. Farrard stressed the significance of a celebration of this character, showing that the day of isolation of both thought and contact was a thing of the past, and that it was no longer possible, socially, for a community to exist alone. He pointed out that members of sister institutions hall with gratitude the chance to congratulate the University of Toronto on its hundredth anniversary, all of whom have a common aim, insuring a safe future. Parading Proclivities in Peril When Internal Maladies Menace Motor

Scott speaks of the "racing and chasing on Canobie Ice," but it was not in it by half with the racing and tearing on Hoskins Avenue yesterday morning. After several false starts amid much jolting and tipping, the undergraduate parade slowly got on its way across the front campus.

The general atmosphere of tense excitement and general unpreparedness rather reminded one of a back stage scene just before the first curtain goes up—leads set and primed to start, but waiting for the "noise without." In this case the "noise without" consisted of the Vic float repatriating the original granting of the charter to Victoria College, which was last to rush to the scene.

Finally, however, despite the fact that McGill and "Western" nearly

PARADE OF STUDENTS FEATURED BY FLOATS MOVES THROUGH CITY

WAS TWO MILES LONG

Precedence Given to Age in Arrangement of Faculties and Colleges

Headed by the C.O.T.C. band, the big Centenary parade, extending for nearly two miles, stopped the wheels of commerce in Toronto's business section yesterday afternoon from 12.30 to about two o'clock. Starting from in front of Trinity College, the parade moved down the west side of Queen's Crescent, in the University Gate, past U.C., down west side of the Campus, down to College, and along Yonge Street as far as Albert Street, where it turned west to James, along Queen, and up Avenue Road to Bloor, and as far as the Arena, where the parade disbanded. The total route was about three miles.

In the parade, all faculties and colleges taking precedence by age. University College, headed by two heralds, was in front, with five floats, representing the growth of the College, from the granting of the Charter to King's College, the laying of the cornerstone of University College, the advent of co-education, the Great War, and finally a float depicting the modern College, after which walked the undergraduates of the College.

Following University College came the three Trinity floats. The first one depicted the original class of the University of Trinity College. The other two floats represented the major events of the College's history. The final entry carried an orchestra and a choir to lead the singing, College songs being sung intermittently en route.

St. Michael's followed with a large float representing St. Michael performing his duties as heavenly military strategist. Following St. Michael's came Victoria with a float representing in red and yellow, contrasting the Fresh and Sophs of 1827 and those of 1927. This concluded the arts colleges.

Much mirth was aroused over Varsity Meds' entry, which featured a large stork, with his traditional burden, on which was written "Doctors in Embryo." The School of Science, led by two heralds on horseback, followed this faculty in a body.

Much favourable comment was passed on the Forestry entry, a float which must have entailed considerable work. (Continued on page 4)

WELCOMING COMMITTEE GREET GUESTS AT STATION

University Information Booth Near the Trains Directs Visitors on Arrival

The arriving delegates to the Centenary Celebration make their first contact with Toronto at the Union Station, where they are met by members of the welcoming committee attached to the University Information Booth. This is just an unassuming desk and telephone at the foot of the ramp leading to Front Street, yet yesterday morning between five and eight o'clock the head of the booth assisted by one undergraduate met and directed one hundred and six delegates. The arrivals were lined up like so many students waiting for football tickets. The facilities of the large taxi company in Toronto were completely exhausted in carrying away the delegates turned over to them for transportation to the King Edward Hotel, Hart House, or private homes as the case might be. Among those who came in yesterday morning were the Hon. Thomas Smiddy, Minister from the Irish Free State to Washington, Sir John Bland Sutton, President Royal Society of Medicine; Sir Charles Sherrington, representing the Royal Society of London; Dr. Paul L. Koserman, from the University of Tartu, Estonia; Dr. Irving Maurer, President of Beloit College; Dr. F. J. E. Woodbridge, Dean of Barnard College, Columbia University; Monsignor Vincent Joseph Piette, Recteur de l'Université de Montreal; Dr. W. P. Mustard of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

CENTURY REVIEWED BY THE PRESIDENT

Development of the University Dealt With in Centenary Publication

FOUR EPOCHS IN PERIOD

"The First One Hundred Years" is a review of the University, published by the University for the Centenary. Sir Robert Falconer outlines the history during those One Hundred Years as the original King's College grows into the present University of Toronto. He divides the period into four epochs: "King's College and its progressive secularization, 1827-49; the University of Toronto in isolation 1850-89; the Consummation of Federation 1889-1905; Unification and Expansion 1905-27," and traces the steady growth to maturity throughout.

Following this is a summary of the University of to-day—its government, its faculties and its achievements. Interwoven throughout, is a pictorial survey of the various buildings.

Sir Robert Falconer concludes with a ringing note of pride: "To educate the citizens of the country into a liberal and tolerant mind; to provide the people with the best professional services; to cultivate the spirit of learning and of scientific investigation, and to send forth those who shall transmit to others the sacred fire which has been received from ancient academic hearths—these are the functions of a great and living university. We are not fearful of having our University put to these tests. . . . When then will say that the earlier struggles have not availed? Shall we not rather rise up and praise the good men before us who, with much toil, in many anxieties, but with steadfast purpose laid the foundations of the present University of Toronto?"

Hundredth Anniversary of The University Opened With Pomp and Dignity

MESSAGE FROM THE KING

President Outlines the History of a Century's Progress

In the presence of one of the most dignified and representative assemblies ever before gathered within the confines of this University, the ceremonies opening the celebration of the hundredth anniversary of this University were held in the University Arena yesterday afternoon, with pomp and dignity reminiscent of the middle ages.

Under the presidency of the Chancellor of the University, Rt. Hon. Sir William Mulock, K.C.M.G., LL.D., the proceedings opened after an imposing procession of notables in fields, political and scholastic, in full academic robes, from Simcoe Hall to the Arena.

Seated on a dais at the north end of the building was the Chancellor resplendent in the black and gold official robe. At his right, also under the canopy, was His Honour D. Ross, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, and at his left, Sir Robert Falconer, K.C.M.G., LL.D., D.C.L., president of the University. Others on the platform were Rt. Hon. W. L. M. King, Prime Minister of Canada; Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of the Province; Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Premier of Quebec; Hon. H. Phillips, United States Minister to Canada; Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States; Col. Alex. Fraser, Dr. R. T. Noble, head of the Alumni Association, and Hon. Dr. H. J. Cody.

After the procession, composed of the above notables, as well as the Governors of the University, Heads of Colleges, Deans of Faculties, the professors and staff, delegates and other guests of the University, had been seated, the proceedings opened with the hymn, "O God our help in Ages Past," followed by a prayer read by Canon Cody.

The message of congratulation from His Majesty the King was read by Premier Ferguson.

In a short but comprehensive address Sir Robert Falconer sketched the history of the University of Toronto from the time of its earliest inception by Governor Simcoe, to the time when the efforts of John Strachan, Bishop of Toronto, succeeded in obtaining a charter for King's College in 1827. The president sketched the struggle which took place between the Bishop and the civil authorities, how the civil authorities at length prevailed and succeeded in obtaining the complete secularization of the college, and which led to the commencement of teaching and later to the construction of the building which is now University College. After explaining how rival institutions were growing up at the same time, with brief mention of their differences and hardships, the President went on to explain how the union of colleges of various denominations was effected. Wives of Delegates Entertained at Informal Luncheon

The wives of delegates and the women representatives from other universities were delightfully entertained at a very informal luncheon at Anneley Hall at one o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Some of the delegates lunched at the University College Women's Union on St. George Street—the two colleges thus dividing the pleasure of entertaining them.

ONE HUNDRED

Yesterday the carillon bells tolled once for every year of the past century. Collectively, these chimes represented the ideals and glorious endeavours of the men who have made our history. Individually, they stood for one hundred periods of varying toil and triumph.

In 1827 the royal charter was granted to the old King's College, and a university for Upper Canada,—for so long the mind child of Bishop Strachan, became a reality. In 1842 lectures began in Victoria College, Cobourg. In 1850 King's College became, in name, the University of Toronto, and, having resigned from the presidency of the College, Bishop Strachan founded the University of Trinity College in 1852. The year 1859 saw the completion of University College building on its present site.

For many years, visionaries had dreamed of a federation of colleges, and thanks, partly, to the combined efforts of the late Dr. Burwash, and Chancellor Mulock, their dreams were realized in 1889. In 1903, Trinity College became affiliated with University College and Victoria, to be joined, in 1910, by St. Michael's. Fifty years ago, School men first attracted attention. The first lecture in medicine was delivered in 1844. In 1907, a department of pedagogy was formed, and Forestry established.

And so our University grew, and came to occupy the place it holds to-day in the world of thought and science. But the carillon bells have not tolled for some ten or twelve outstanding years of our history; they have rung for one hundred years of progress, culminating in the magnificent assemblage which has opened and so far featured the Centenary Celebration.

THE NEXT HUNDRED YEARS

The past hundred years of the history of this University have witnessed at regular intervals the founding of subsidiary colleges and the affiliation of already existent institutions. The registration of the University and its Colleges is now around the 5,000 mark.

In one hundred years many things may happen. It is obvious that the organization of new colleges and the establishment of new affiliations cannot continue indefinitely. In fact, the curriculum is unwieldy enough with the registration organized such as it is to-day. In this, the Centenary Year, a new college union theological, has been admitted to the privileges of affiliation with the University.

Canon Cody, speaking before the Alumni and guests of Wycliffe College two years ago, ventured to picture a strong theological school at Toronto, whose strength might lie in the co-ordination of its component parts. Each college would retain its identity, but all would be centralized under one head.

The University of Toronto must of course enlarge. The foundation is well laid. May the future history see a development of closer understanding and simplicity of management between the different divisions rather than an increase in the complexity of organization. The University has nearly reached its maximum of diversity in organization. Centralization is now required before the traditions of the past may be continued with any degree of practicality.

At the request of a number of the graduates visiting their Alma Mater, the very beautiful film depicting the progress of the University during the past hundred years will be shown in Room 22 of the Mining Building at 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. on Friday, and on Saturday at an hour to be stated on a notice outside the Mining Building on College Street, opposite McCaul Street.

"In our American colleges the tendency has been very strong during the past ten years to emphasize a line of cleavage between the first two college years and the last two. . . . In my experience there is no question that during the first year or two of college life the students are not able to carry completely their responsibilities. They are boys, not men. I am just as clear that juniors and seniors are much better able to carry their responsibilities because, for the most part, they are men rather than boys."—Dean Hawkes.

accomplished, and to stress the significance of such an achievement by which the world was shown how such a union between these colleges could be consummated, how they should work in unison for the same ends and with the same standard, and yet maintain their individuality, undermining the religious beliefs of no one.

The achievements of her graduates were mentioned, their eminence attained in all branches of the Arts, Literature, science discovery and research and their enormous representation on the faculties of other Universities, Schools and Colleges. In contemplating these achievements there must be borne in mind all the sacrifices, sufferings and struggles of the founders through whose efforts this success was possible.

Remarking to Sir William Mulock that although he was now about to congratulate, as Premier, the University on the occasion of its hundredth birthday, he hoped sixteen years from now, also as Premier, to congratulate Sir William on the occasion of his centenary, Premier Howard Ferguson was greeted with hearty applause.

Thanks to the use of loud speakers, every word of Premier Ferguson, as well as of the other speakers, was distinctly audible, and amid a general hush the Prime Minister of Ontario went on to congratulate the people of the province on the fact that they had such an institution so devoted to their interests and which was so well equipped to train their professional men. At the same time the Premier deplored the fact that so few of our graduates found scope for their activities in Canada; he went on to point out that now the tide was changing and that opportunities were fast opening in this country for individuals of every calling, and that a new era of opportunity was at hand.

The Chancellor and staff were to be congratulated because of the enormous interest shown in this University, as evidenced by the great delegation which had assembled from Europe, Asia and Africa, as well as from the United States, to honour this University on the occasion of its Centenary, and who recognized the work being done by the University of Toronto.

Presentation of delegates from Universities, Colleges, learned and scientific societies, to the Chancellor, then took place. For this purpose the 246 delegates were divided into three classes and presented in the following order: First, those from Europe, Asia, South and Central America; second, those from the United States of America; third, those from Great Britain and the British Dominions other than Canada, and, lastly, the forty-two delegates from the other Universities, Colleges and learned societies of the Dominion.

Response to the President's address of welcome was made in French by Dr. Emil Sergeant of l'Université de Paris, on behalf of delegates from Europe, Asia, South and Central America. Hon. Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war for the United States, replied on behalf of the delegates from that country, while Sir Charles Sherrington, Immediate Past President of the Royal Society, spoke his appreciation on behalf of the delegates from Great Britain and the rest of the Empire. Great interest was shown in the address of Mgr. Vincent Joseph Piette, P.A. of the University of Montreal, who addressed the assembly in French and English in conjunction with Leonard S. Kinckle, D.Sc., President, University of British Columbia, on behalf of the delegates from the other Universities of Canada.

Telegrams of congratulation from the heads of many of the principal universities of the world, some of whom had been unable to send delegates, were then read. Berlin, Prague and many other Universities extended

BIOLOGICAL EXHIBIT WILL BE ON DISPLAY AT ONTARIO MUSEUM

Problems Connected With Fisheries Bulk Large in Biological Research

STATIONS DO GOOD WORK

Entomology and Science of Heredity Also Represented in the Exhibits

During the Centenary Celebration there will be special exhibits of the research work carried on in the Department of Biology and at the various Biological Stations. These exhibits will be on display in the Biology Building and in the gallery of the Royal Ontario Museum, and primarily will consist of sections devoted to such work as is carried on in the Fisheries Research Laboratories of the Department, the Marine Biological Board of Canada, some of whose work is carried on in the Department Laboratories, and the Zoology Museum of the Royal Ontario Museum. The special work under the direction of Dr. Walker will also be demonstrated. This Conversation is being put on for the benefit of the delegates and visitors to the Celebrations.

As well as exhibits of work in Neurology, Genetics and Entomology there will be a section devoted to natural history photography. These photographs are of great interest to students of the naturalist group and are the result of painstaking and careful technique.

A visitor to this exhibit is impressed by the fact that problems connected with our fisheries, both fresh water and marine, bulk large in the research work of the Department of Biology. It is pointed out by those in charge that our fisheries are the last of the industries based on the natural resources of our country to have science applied to their problems. There are schools of Agriculture, Mining and Forestry in the University, and the industries concerned have benefitted from the scientific work of such institutions. The object of the fisheries (Continued on page 4)

BRAZILIAN VISITOR BRINGS GREETINGS

Dr. Austregesilo is Distinguished Representative of South American Institutions

BRAZILIANS KNOW CANADA

Dr. Austregesilo, of Brazil, who arrived yesterday morning, to take part in the Centenary Celebration brings a greeting to the University. "In name of medical faculty of Rio de Janeiro, I send a very friendship compliment to professors and students of celebrated University of Toronto, a centre of intellectuality of America, and general civilization."

Dr. Austregesilo is one of the most interesting of the delegates who are gathering from all parts of the world. He represents the University of Rio de Janeiro, and the Brazilian Academy of Letters, and is himself a professor in the Medical College which has an enrollment of three thousand people. The law school in connection with the Brazilian University, has just last August, passed its century mark.

Ode

On the Centenary of the University of Toronto 1827-1927

By-Nathaniel A. Benson

Reprinted with permission of Toronto Saturday Night

I.

Awake, Remembrance, in the hearts of men!
Go forth to meet this kingly Hour that comes Rising majestic, robed in tenfold ten
Most glorious years, with bugles blown and drums
Rolling their thrill of deep and august voice.
In joyful pride and full solemnity
Behold this Spirit-king ascend his throne—

Awake, all hearts, rejoice!
Sceptred with learning's immortality,
He reigns this moment, god-like and alone.

II.

Within this Hour, triumphant over time,
The primal ancient soul which bore this last
Ripened a century in rain and rime:
A future's promise pillared on the past!
These years were carved blocks 'wherewith we made
In pure Carraran symmetry and strength
An hallowed temple meet for Wisdom's shrine
That shall not fall nor fade,
But stand unshaken through the ages' length,
An heritage and dwelling-place divine.

III.

Whence comes the soul to keep this holy flame
Inviolable, undying, and undimmed?
Magnificent and effortless it came
Of sacred scenes which on the mind are lined
Forever and forever.—We have seen
In spring the long-awaited sun-warmth wake
The trees, the grass, the ivy on grey towers
In unimagined green,
And, after this, the summer-months that make
A Paradise of smiling, leafen bowers.

IV.

We have beheld that old romantic Shape
In sleep immortal on a summer sky
Clothe its slim spires in stainless, cloudy drape,
A vision beautiful that cannot die!
Windows like flames at sunset, winter moons
That shower spectral day on roofs and domes,
Starlight above our fields, and dazzling glow
Of January noons—
These scenes our sires remembered in their homes,
These are the wanderer's when life burns low.

V.

These sights are holiness, and robes of peace
Kept thus unsullied when the brazen wings
Clashed down in thunder at the War's release,
Annihilating sound and all that sings.
On that red Day arose our peaceful sons,
Put on war's panoply, changed pen for sword,
Held altar, hearth, and honour triply high—
And still their life-blood runs
In rivers of remembrance, in each word
Man speaks of heroes unafraid to die.

VI.

A House of Souls, the white and solemn Tower
Eternal watch is keeping in their name.
Theirs was the seed of everlasting flower,
And life, the shining sacrifice, their fame.
Blow, golden bugles! Sound the final call,
Stand forth, strong Tower—tell the ages this:
"I rise as frozen music in the night;
I am in sight of all,
The constant bride of Youth's unfading kiss,
The symbol of his courage rich with light."

VII.

Forget not those who, long ago, in wars
Poured out their youth to keep our Torch bright-burning—
But now remember our exemplar stars:
The good grey men who lived their lives for learning,
The steadfast guides who laboured through the years
To lead young steps up Wisdom's snow-browed peak
Where knowledge and serenity are one.
In laughter and in tears
They strove with fortitude to lift the weak,
Theirs, too, a task that only Death finds done.

VIII.

For these have made us men whose hearts are whole,
Who preach the Sanctity in star and clod
With tolerance and gentleness of soul,
With mystic mind, the attribute of God.
From here there came the givers of the law,
Firm judges strong for Justice' august aske,
Wise statesmen who have broadened out the land
Their hopeful fathers saw
From greatness where Atlantic rollers break
Westward to touch the far Pacific's strand.

IX.

Hence come the warriors with foes unknown,
The knights that raise their shield against disease,
Fronting in haggard weariness alone
Mankind's grim enemy, and one of these
Gave hope and comfort to a waiting world.
Hence stride the spanners of a continent,
Marching with steely step across the hills
And mountain-torrents whirled
In vain defiance and in fury spent,
Immortals bending to these mortal wills.

X.

On many well-won fields this strength was learned
Where active courage moved abreast with mind,
When friendly enemies were backward turned
And proud our colours streamed before the wind.
Hence come the beauty and the kindness
Of women meet to bear a noble race,
To make our sons the equal of our sires,
To give deep loveliness
And love that lights each well-beloved face
In eager sacrifice to purest fires.

XI.

Sometime at twilight, or in falling rain
Walked lonely worshippers and men of dreams
Who paused to listen, and translate again
Singing unheard in all creation's streams.
These lived to speak their own and others' story,
These sang the praise of love's own golden wine,
They sensed the throbbing of tremendous things
And told of truest glory,
Then, folding beauty in a single line,
Took nobler stature than the state of kings.

XII.

Awake, Remembrance, in the hearts of men!
Behold our legions march this deathless day
With cohorts ranked in gleaming ten times ten,
Their banners flashing far to yesterday!
We are a part of all that all have done,
The deeds of all, our legacy and pride,
We are descendants of the warrior-sages,
With Wisdom growing one,
Our song resounding as the years divide,
Rolling in reverence through vaulted ages.

CARILLON RINGS FORTH

Great Bell Peals Forth One Hundred Strokes for University's Age

The great gothic tower which watches over the campus, linking the past with the present, and carrying the traditions of the University on into the future, is now complete. The Silliers' Tower, erected by the graduates and friends of the University in memory of the Glorious Dead, now carries in its belfry a set of matchless bells, which will peal out melodies over the fields which have seen pass one hundred years of University history. In a brief ceremony yesterday afternoon, the set of twenty-three bells, and the clock, were presented to and accepted by the University of Toronto. A large crowd was assembled on the lawn before Hart House, and with the arrival of the academic procession, made a colourful and notable picture.

Promptly at five o'clock the long procession filed down from the Arena, where the Opening Ceremony had been held. The march was headed by a pipe band of Highlanders. The dignitaries took their position upon the small platform south of the Memorial Tablets: the rest were placed upon the lawn and terrace by University College. The C.O.T.C. Band played the hymn, "O, Valiant Hearts." Thereupon Dr. Robert Noble, President of the Alumni Federation, asked Mr. H. D. Scully, Chairman of the Carillon Committee, to make the formal presentation of the bells to the University.

Mr. Scully explained that soon after the Armistice it had been felt that some tangible recognition of those members of the University who had paid the supreme sacrifice should be erected. A scholarship was established. Then the Tower, which should stand as a lasting memorial upon the campus in the sight of future generations, was begun, and finished in 1924. (Continued on page 4)

The thirty undergraduate girls living in Wymilwood have very gladly given over their rooms during the Centenary Celebrations for the accommodation of delegates and graduates, and expect themselves to be in Annesley Hall during that period.

Some of the distinguished delegates to be guests at Wymilwood are: Pres. and Mrs. Fred Lent, Elmira College; Pres. Fred H. Robinson, of the College of the City of New York; Rev. Bruce S. Wright, pastor of Allegheny College; Rev. Lemuel H. Merlin, L.L.D., De Pavn University of Indiana; Pres. J. M. Hoffman, L.L.D., Ohio Wesleyan University.

The remaining rooms are being used by other special guests, some of whom are Victoria graduates.

Dr. Austregesilo is keenly interested in the people of the University of Toronto and the people of Canada. He does not know enough about his country. "Canada doesn't know well Brazil knows well Canada."

The country of Brazil larger than Canada or United States has all the climates of the world, and all the races. It is a big country with a big heart and a bigger falls than Niagara's situated there.

In connection with his University there is an undergraduate newspaper which is published six times a week by the medical faculty.

The main sports are tennis and football and the students are very enthusiastic about swimming, rowing and sailing although there is no private club for students.

Dr. Austregesilo confessed to having a spring for himself, "but now I do nothing I play my book and my guitar."

The University welcomes Dr. Austregesilo, officially and unofficially, as "very glad to come to Toronto and to our hands."

research work, now being carried on through the Department of Biology and related organizations such as the Marine Biological Board of Canada, is to place our fisheries on the same scientific basis. Research students are engaged in studying every phase of the life history of a variety of fishes including the sturgeon, the whitefish, the fresh water herrings, the haddock, and the trout. These studies involve a determination of how rapidly the fish grows, at which age and size it begins to spawn, under what conditions it lives, what it eats, what are its diseases and enemies and in fact every factor that affects its distribution and abundance. Other problems are concerned with the production of fish food in various bodies of water including a study of the floating microscopic life-plankton of the water, which, it is pointed out, is the ultimate food of all aquatic organisms. The method of attacking these intricate problems is illustrated by many interesting exhibits. Here, too, is shown the equipment used in carrying on this work in our lakes and rivers and on the sea. For instance, there is shown a drift bottle of the kind put out to determine the direction and nature of the currents along our coasts. These bottles contain a postcard which the finder is asked to return to the Biological Station giving the locality where the bottle was picked up. Nearby are maps indicating what has been learned to date, by this means about the water movements off our Atlantic coast.

Researches in entomology are represented by exhibits of some species of flies whose maggots sometimes occur as intestinal parasites of man. Others occasionally cause boil like humors under the skin especially in infants. In this section is exhibited the very primitive insect Grylloblatta discovered some years ago by Professor C. M. Walker in the Mountains of Western Canada. The life history of this very remarkable insect is being slowly unravelled by studies carried on in the Department.

Genetics or the science of heredity is represented by an exhibit of work carried on in this field within the Department. The wide scope of the research being carried on within the Department is suggested by the following titles of various exhibits "Duration of Life as Controlled by Heredity and Environment, Neurology, Musculature

MEMORIAL TOWER REPLETE WITH BELLS AND CLOCK

The bells, however, were still lacking. These had been manufactured by the order of the Federation, and were being presented to the University upon its hundredth birthday. The bells contained metal from the old University bells before 1890, and would thereby link up the Tower with the fondly remembered bells of the past.

The Honourable and Reverend Canon Cody accepted the bells gracefully on behalf of the Board of Governors of the University of Toronto. Dr. Cody then delivered the Dedication Prayer:

"O God, to whom glory is sung in the highest, while on earth peace is proclaimed to men of good will, and who through the mouth of Thy prophet of old hast declared that all souls are Thine, accept and bless, we beseech Thee, these bells which we now dedicate to Thy glory and in loving memory of our brothers who served their country. Grant that all who hear their sound now and in the days to come may ever be mindful of this University and its service to mankind; and may daily realize the constraining call of duty, the glory of loyalty, courage and self-sacrifice; the joy of faithful work; the inspiration of noble comradeship; the worth of peace and brotherhood; and the power of an endless life, to which may God vouchsafe to bring us all, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

"Amen."

As the prayer came to an end, the C.O.T.C. delivered the salute. Then

The work of the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology is represented in connection with the Natural History survey of the province being carried out by the Museum. A map of the province shows in red the areas already covered in this survey. The specimens exhibited include birds and animals and a series of living specimens of our common garter snake showing the wide variety of colouration found in this common reptile.

Any anglers visiting the exhibit will be pleased with the display of Canadian trout which includes some ten or twelve varieties.

and which contained, in perfect scale, a fire ranger's look-out tower, and other adjuncts of forestry work. Occupational Therapy's float is also worthy of mention.

The parade was, on the whole, orderly. A slight disturbance was caused on University Avenue when some humorous minded bystanders, presumably from a rival faculty, directed some ill-timed remarks at the Trinity section of the parade. With commendable celerity the Trinity men left the parade and duly routed the disturbers. A triumphant Trinity yell ended this contretemps.

Much speculation was heard on who would win the coveted cup. The official announcement is as follows: The cup was won by Trinity, and the shield by Meds. Very high honourable mention was given by the judges on Forestry's entry. The judges were: Professor Arthers, Associate Professor of Architecture; Professor Wasteneys, graduate member of the Ontario College of Arts, and Frederick Haines, of the Ontario College of Art.

from high up in the Tower came the clear notes of a fanfare of trumpets. When the final note died out, the great carillon spoke, and the rousing strains of the fine old anthem, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," poured out upon the air. The National Anthem closed the service proper.

While the C.O.T.C. marched away, the carillon, Percival Price, struck one hundred notes upon the great bell, one stroke for each year of the University's life.

Upon the platform were the great University triumvirate, Sir William Mulock, Chancellor; Canon Cody, Chairman of the Board of Governors, and Sir Robert Falconer, President. The Prime Minister of Canada, the Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, was an interested spectator and alumnus. There too were the Premiers of Canada's two greatest provinces, Ontario and Quebec. Dr. Robert Noble and Mr. Hugh D. Scully represented Federation which made the presentation, and His Worship Mayor Foster represented the City of Toronto.

TICKET SEEKERS WELCOME WEINERS

Savoury Redhots Also Welcomed by Genial Gendarmes and Janitors

TELEPHONE A CERTAINTY

"Once more into the break, dear friends, once more!" was the cry of the Varsity women's staff as they surveyed their trays, laden with steaming hot dogs. True to their reputation the puppies filled the bill and wagged their way along the line-up for the big game.

By 8:30 o'clock, everyone seeking women's tickets was or had been the proud possessor of a luscious dog. With still some dogs to spare, several of the staff wended their way to Hart House where they were received with great applause by the hungry mob of ticket-seekers.

The students at Vic supplemented their early morning breakfasts with some of the tempting red-hot dogs and went forth, the better equipped to face the day's adventures.

Between lectures at the U. C. Women's Cloak Room, it was considered quite the thing to eat a hot dog while enjoying a few minutes conversation with one's friends.

The stalwart officers that keep the peace on the University grounds were not a bit averse to munching a tasty dog, while on patrol duty. The Varsity girls were given a royal welcome by the janitors of the College who generously partook of their viands.

By 11 o'clock all but one of the puppies had vanished and this dog was used to revive an enthusiastic tennis player after an especially heated set.

A telephone for the Women's Varsity staff is now an assured thing and the reporters offer their humble thanks to the notorious hot dog. The new office quarters will be quite complete, at least until Christmas, as after that more funds will be needed to keep up the good work. However, perhaps some other kind friend will come to the rescue, if not, the Varsity girls will again resort to the inevitable hot dog.

Meetings of French Club Commence Next Wednesday

The French Club of University College will hold its first meeting at the Union on Wednesday of next week. The executive expect a large membership. Invitations to join have been sent to all freshmen; posters have been erected, and the club introduced to the students through the W.U.A. It is planned to hold a series of short lectures on several of the provinces of France, and it is hoped that representatives of those provinces will deliver the lectures.

be represented instead of the usual song play, and later in the year new shorts and French games will be learned.

Although the play has not yet been selected, the annual presentation will take place later in this term.

SPECTATORS AT INTERFACULTY MEET WILL SEE FUTURE OLYMPIC STARS

Faculty Spirit Will Predominate When Star Track Men Contest for Honours

KEEN CONTESTS EXPECTED

The Interfaculty Track Meet to-day will be the last chance that Varsity students will have to see their Olympic prospects in action before they sail to Amsterdam next summer to compete with the world. The Varsity Track Club contains some of the cream of Canada's material.

Faculty spirit will be the predominant note of the day. The track material this year is spread evenly over all the faculties, and to attempt to pick a winner would be pure folly.

Victoria College, seldom heard from in track circles, has some real stars this year. In Johnny Fitzpatrick, Victoria has one of Canada's hopes in the next Olympic Games. It is not very often a high school boy can compete with—and beat—the best sprinters in a country like Canada. Johnny has to his credit a victory over Cyril Coaffee in the 220 yards in 22 seconds flat over a bad track. Coaffee has been the peer of Canadian sprinters for years. Besides Fitzpatrick, Victoria have sure point winners in Carmen King and Hal Williams, the half-milers and milers.

The sprints have prominent men from each faculty. School has Harley Russell, thrice Intercollegiate champion; U.C. has Cam Mabee and Alan Christie. Christie will probably attempt the 220. He has defeated Cam Mabee twice recently at this latter distance. Mabee, Russell and Fitzpatrick are all capable of 10 seconds flat and better. It would not be in the least surprising to see the ancient record of 10 seconds, held by Halbus and Siebert, go by the boards.

The quarter mile is between Meds and Arts. "Mo" Mitchell and Alan Christie should have one awful battle for first place in this event. Meds ought to get the half-mile with "Mo" Mitchell, for he is considered the best half-miler in the country, and is looked on by the Olympic Committee as practically a sure starter at Amsterdam, if he does as well next year as he did this year. His performance to-day will be carefully watched.

It looks like School in both the hurdle events. Jim McKenzie, Varsity's long, lanky track captain, plans to heat the field. A hurdle race, how-guard for liberty and high standard of living by always probing for the truth, and a devotion to the great ideal of federation.

Dr. R. W. Livingstone, Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University, Belfast, brought the official greetings and congratulations of the Isle that sent us so many sons and daughters. That the fruits of a university were, he said, not only degrees or a training in the knowledge of words, but the knowledge of civic interests. In replying to the toasts, Sir William Mulock, who was acclaimed with vociferous clapping, likened Dr. Livingstone to a man transplanted, but noted that it was the first time he knew an Irishman to agree with anyone.

Principal Maurice Hutton responded to the chairman's call to propose the toast to the sister universities, to which Miss E. F. Pendleton, President of Wellesley Ladies' College, in replying, stated that university men and women the world over were characterized by their passion for excellence, thus always pushing forward the frontier of knowledge. As she brings greeting from sister universities, it is not the celebration of loyalty to a country which gave us birth, but the friendship that comes of seeking after the truth.

As an emissary of a great state university, Professor R. M. Wenley brings with him former memories of the University of Toronto when he acted in an advisory capacity during the crisis of '05 and '06. This University is unique in the tradition of accepting rather than excepting, producing men of more than academic nature, and he would with great expectations watch the future of the University of Toronto.

Sir Arthur Currie summed up the progress of the University in the last 100 years as identical to the great achievements made by man. It was a way from Bombay as delegate of the University of Bombay. He has never been in Toronto before, but is intensely interested in our educational system. Delegates were registered from all the Canadian Universities and Colleges, as would be expected. However, among all the graduates and delegates Chief Justice Riddell stands out as having the unusual distinction of representing three Universities—Wesleyan University, Colby College and Boston University.

prond day for a university to look back from the hilltop of a 100 years. The next speaker, Professor S. Angus, of Melbourne University, said the ideal student was of the mediaeval idea, a general seeker of truth and knowledge. Immediately following Professor Angus was the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who made the significant statement that this was the largest gathering of learned and scientific societies ever held in the Dominion, and to whom he proposed a toast. He showed how all present-day progress was largely due to the great advances made in science. In replies to this toast, Sir John Bland-Sutton, Bart., dwelt on the tremendous strides in medicine. James Brown Scott reviewed many accomplishments of the University of Toronto in the field of science, and likened them to a prelude of greater things yet to come.

"One hundred years of useful life dedicated to ideals," so said His Excellency the Hon. H. Pueyrredon, Ambassador of the Argentine to the United States, "and it is to be hoped in the not far distant future, Canada and other Western nations will be discussing their problems together."

The Hon. Timothy A. Smiddy, Ambassador of the Irish Free State to the United States, and the Hon. Wm. Phillips, United States Minister to Canada, completed the evening's orations by two short speeches.

PREMIER OF QUEBEC REAFFIRMS BELIEF

George Brown, whose views were so entirely different, could have buried their quarrels and worked together for a common end, was ample evidence of this. Everyone came to the Quebec Conference prepared to yield something, and the meetings, had the aspect, not of a group of foreign elements, but of a family gathering. The aims of the delegates were ably expressed in the words of George Brown: "to settle differences forever, to do justice to all the provinces, and to place everyone on a footing of equality."

A comparison between the Canada of to-day and the Canada of 1867, said the speaker, showed that the broad ambitions of the fathers of Confederation had, in a large measure been achieved. To illustrate this, the Prime Minister pointed to Canada's leading place among the nations of the world, her vast quantities of trade, the number of immigrants that were flocking in, her great transcontinental railways, and overseas shipping routes, and her "smiling fields extending from ocean to ocean." George Brown, who had predicted "a great and powerful people" within a generation, had not been wrong.

"A great stride towards unity and good feeling," was the way Mr. Taschereau described the steps taken by the Ontario Government to reorganize the school system. He visualized the Premier of Quebec speaking at the University bi-centenary in 2027, and referring to these steps as a turning point in Canadian history.

The speaker depicted four courses which might be taken by Canada in the developments of the future. She might be annexed to the United States; she might break loose from the British Empire and become independent; she might split up again into the original provinces of 1867 and so end the work of Confederation; or she might follow the course which had been pursued so far. "Speaking for the majority of the province of Quebec, I cannot but choose the last course," he declared. "The yoke of the mother country is light upon us." The loyalty of the fathers of Confederation, who strove anxiously to pierce the future and visualise the outcome of their endeavours, was no less than the loyalty of the present generation. The Great War, with its terrible sacrifice of dead and wounded, was ample evidence of this.

"The fealty of the people of Quebec to the Crown is the greatest tribute which could be paid to British institutions," Mr. Taschereau affirmed, and he went on to point out the value of "full partnership" in the British Empire, of which "mutual sympathy winners in the field events. These are the events which will decide just which faculty will be the Interfaculty champions. Another point in this respect is that the seconds and thirds will do a great deal towards deciding the winner.

The high jump may go to any faculty, for nearly every one of them have strong men in this event. Entrants in the pole vault are many. Crawford of Meds, former champion of Alberta, and Davenport of School, the Canadian champion, seem to be the two best in this event. Arts with Dennis and McKay, and Victoria with Snell, should not be far behind.

Bill Finlayson has mean intentions on the discus record—he has been throwing it farther than ever. The shot put, javelin throw and broad jump have so many unknown entrants that it would be well nigh impossible to call winners. Such good men as McTaggart of U.C., Belachey, McVean and Burke of School, offer problems in relative ability that can only be settled on the field.

The race between Wally Graham of Dents and Ken Crozier of U.C. for the and esteem" was one advantage. Public opinion was everywhere in favour of the course so far allowed. While paying tribute to the vast resources and tremendous energy of the United States, the speaker felt that "Canadian pride and national spirit" were too strong to succumb to the advantages which annexation offered.

In conclusion, the Prime Minister emphasised the need of education as the field to be developed if Canada wished national unity and harmony. To the Universities of the Dominion fell the task of producing men capable of guiding the destiny of the country through the years to come. Ontario and Quebec, as the two big provinces, must maintain their friendly relations and help to lead Canada into an even more prosperous and successful era than that of the past.

three mile ought to be a stirring one. Both of these men have been training hard for the event.

All the meet needs to be a success is a fine day. Faculty interest is running high and a big crowd is looked for.

A limited number of Rooters' Club tickets will be placed on sale at the Rooters' practice this afternoon.

Varsity Crew Confident

Writer Says Outside Wings and Line Will Decide

By James W. Robson

Playing before what is practically an all-University crowd, and what is certainly the largest number of learned men to ever witness an athletic contest in the Dominion, Varsity's Big team, her pride and joy and certainly her hopefulness for the 1927 campaign for Canadian Intercollegiate honours, will swing into action at the U. of T. Stadium this afternoon.

Weather conditions yesterday portended little favourable for to-day, but toward evening a coolness in the air and a brisk wind whistling through the trees gave fair indications of a fine football atmosphere and a perfect setting in which colours, bunting and streamers, should strike a predominant note.

Can the Blue turn back the threat of old McGill? From McPherson down to the water boy the locals are quietly confident that they can, but shyness, with claims of his greatest machine in nine long years, can see nothing but a victory for the Red and White. St. Germaine, Little and Tremaine no doubt give the Mounties one of the best rear-guards in Canada to-day, but careful consideration can hardly give them the edge over the Sinclair-Trimble-Young combination.

Rather, the teams will stand or fall by the strength of their outside wing positions and the steadiness of their line. It was the McGill backs that fell down before the onslaught of Balmy Beach, their line being strong, and, it is said, has ever been improved for to-day. But Masters, Dundas, Rykert, Carrick, Bean, Wilton, Snyder, and have proven themselves often enough to ably look after the wing department for the Blue.

Despite prospects of dampness it is improbable that to-day's game will be decided on a fluke or fumble. Rather the game will provide a sprinkling of sparkling plays, with, however, the brunt of attack and defence being borne by the line with the prolific use of an aerial attack.

In addition, the guests consumed 750 pints of soup and 60 bags of potatoes. At the end, just to show that 700 chickens had not dampened the popularity of the occasion, the epicureans

Explains Functions Of Ductless Glands

Sir John Bland-Sutton Says

Stresses Diet Factor

Before an audience composed largely of Medical and Dental graduates and undergraduates in Convocation Hall yesterday morning, Sir John Bland-Sutton, of London, England, in an illuminating manner set forth the functions of duct and ductless glands and their importance in the development and mentality of the growing child.

"The value of animal substances and secretions was known to some degree by early pioneers in the medical field," stated Sir John in his opening remarks. "Ants, grasshoppers, livers of frogs and brains of sparrows were regarded as essential physiologic elements in the treatment of various diseases. The old faith is still present in a newer form, and the secretions and extracts of the ductless glands of the body are known to be very beneficial and essential in (Continued on page 4)

Stays in Provincial Field?

LAUDS COUNCIL

Pleases Convocation Crowd

Premier Ferguson in speaking on "Some Aspects of Confederation" at Convocation Hall this morning in connection with the Centennial celebrations, paused sufficiently while making his address to reassure Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King at his side that he was still adhering to his previously announced decision not to accept federal Conservative leadership.

"I consider the provincial field to be vastly more important than the federal," he explained, with his eye twinkling. While the audience manifested its delight at his declaration, he turned to Premier King and others on the platform and remarked: "I say that to put Mr. King at ease."

He first enlarged on the constitutional side of Confederation, and took occasion to score those "narrow minded" politicians who would abolish appeals to the privy Council and do away with the post of governor-general, the King's representative in Canada. With regard to privy council appeals, he said: "I am convinced that this principle is as solidly rooted in our national organization as any other part of our constitutional system." The privy council was a safeguard of Canadian liberty.

"We hear occasionally in this regard," he said, with reference to the office of Governor General, "politicians of stunted stature express resentment of the appointing of anybody by the King for Canada. I've even heard it said that we should appoint a business man from Canada, one of our own citizens. I don't believe in that at all. Under our system, the Crown is an integral part, and if we are going to be a daughter in our mother's house, we ought to have some constitutional authority in the guise of the governor-general, appointed by the crown."

With their minds diverted and riveted more and more to individual interests and local situations in commercial and industrial lines, rather than to great questions of the future of the national structure whose responsibility rested on the people, the men of to-day did not possess such ability in public life as the Fathers of Confederation, he thought. He made a whimsical exception of himself, Premier King and Premier Taschereau, with him on the platform.

He applauded the conference of provincial 'premiers to adjust provincial matters. Provincial politics settled the matters of most import to national (Continued on page 4)

Hands of Time Stayed At Command of Experts

Those on the campus who have an eye to the time of day will have noticed that the clock upon the Tower is a trifle slow, having stood at five o'clock since its installation. The hands, as a matter of fact, are wired down, and it was expected by many that the hands would begin revolving at the Dedication Ceremonies. The delegate mechanism, however, was disturbed by the rule from Montreal, and while it could have been repaired by Thursday evening, the experts concerned thought it better to leave it over until Monday. Accordingly, beginning with Monday morning, the clock in the Soldiers' Tower will take on its intended duties.

CONFERS 27 DEGREES

Event

In the presence of a great throng of graduates and delegates in their colourful robes of office, twenty-seven honorary degrees were yesterday afternoon conferred by the University of Toronto at a special Convocation held in connection with the Centenary.

President Falconer, in opening Convocation, announced that representatives of Canadian, American, British and European Universities were being honoured. Inasmuch as this was the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the School of Applied Science, several degrees were being given to graduates of that Faculty. In conferring the honours, the graduates of the University of Toronto in all cases received first consideration as was fitting on the occasion of the hundredth anniversary of the founding of King's College. The President introduced each man and briefly sketched his career. The Chancellor conferred the degree, and each signed his name in the Golden Book, in which are inscribed the names of all those who have been honoured by honorary degrees from the University.

L.L.D.'s were conferred on W. D. Ross, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; G. Howard Ferguson, Prime Minister of Ontario; Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States, and John Huston Finley, Editor of the New York Times.

Honours were granted, among others, to Stephen Leacock, the humorist, and Professor of Political Economy at McGill; Livingston Farrard, President of Cornell University; Frederick Paul Keppel, President of the Carnegie Foundation, and to James Lewis Morris, who has the distinction of being the first graduate of the Faculty of Applied Science.

Of the twenty-seven degrees conferred, three went to women. Two were honour graduates of the University of Toronto.

After the presentation of the honours, Hon. Vincent Massey briefly addressed Convocation. He wished, he said, to regard the tribute paid him as having nothing personal in it, but as being an expression of understanding between Canada and the United States. Dr. Ramon, of the Institut Pasteur, Paris, tendered his thanks in French. While conferring degrees upon Dr. Ramon and Menseigneur Roy of Laval, the Chancellor took in French. James Cruickshank Smith, Chief Inspector of Schools for Scotland, spoke briefly of the feeling of fellowship (Continued on page 4)

GRADS REVEL AT CENTURY DANCE AMID SCENES OF UNRIVALLED BEAUTY

HART HOUSE IS UNIQUE UNPARALLELED ANYWHERE

Hon. Timothy A. Smiddy Finds
Youth Here More Responsible

"An institution that is unparalleled anywhere," was the opinion of Hart House as voiced by the Hon. Timothy A. Smiddy, Minister Plenipotentiary of the Irish Free State to the United States, when interviewed yesterday by "The Varsity" at the home of the Hon. Wallace Nesbitt, where he is staying as a guest. "Hanan Hostel" of University College, Cork, he likened to Hart House, but on a smaller scale, where, prior to his resignation in 1924, he was professor in political economy and dean of the faculty of commerce.

That students on this side of the Atlantic appeared to have a more serious outlook on things in general and more prepared for responsibility, was the envoy's judgment of those with whom he had come in contact, but does not wish to be held responsible for the statement till he is in a position to make further investigation.

QUEEN'S EXPRESSES STERLING TRIBUTE

Sink Differences in Joy
Over "Big Sister's" Centenary

WORK TO COMMON END

From Queen's University comes this sterling tribute to the University of Toronto centennial:

"The University of Toronto will this week celebrate her centennial. From far and wide her sons and daughters will trek to Toronto to join with her many undergraduates in reviewing a century of progress and achievement. We of Queen's are not strangers to the joy which accompanies such an event, having celebrated our eighty-fifth anniversary last year.

"Queen's men and women feel a kinship with the people of our big sister university. While University of Toronto's great size sometimes gives rise to temporary jealousy among smaller universities, this is dispelled by realization that all universities are striving towards a common end—the development of the highest possible type of men and women.

"Certainly, University of Toronto's record for the last hundred years speaks for itself. Her students have set high standards in both academic and extra-curricular realms, while on her graduate roll are to be found the names of many of the foremost names in Canada's public and professional life to-day. Typical Varsity men are Premier King, ex-Premier Meighen and E. W. Beattie."

SHADED LIGHTS LURE

Floors Crowded From Start While Five Bands Play in Hart House

Last night, for the second time in a week, Hart House was the picturesque setting for the dance of a century, when, rivaling in decoration and colourful gaiety the Undergrads' Ball of Wednesday night, the graduates and delegates to the Centenary Celebration made merry.

Many of the decorations had been left from last Wednesday night, and others added. The false roof of blue and white bunting over the lower gym added to the beauty and seemed to increase the length of the room. The walls were decked with flags and Varsity colours. This same design was carried out in the small gym.

The naturally beautiful corridors of the house were made more so by dimming the lights with coloured shades. Dim coloured lights were also in use in the Music Room.

Five orchestras dispensed up-to-the-minute dance music, in the Upper and Lower Gym, the Reading Room, East Common Room and the Music Room. All floors were crowded to capacity practically from the start.

The hours of 10.30 to 12.30 were set apart for supper hours. Unfortunately, however, everyone appeared to be seized with a desire for supper at identically the same moment. But the crowd was easily handled, and supper was served with a minimum of crowding.

A feature of the dance was the fountain in the swimming pool. Multi-coloured lights played from the base of a slowly revolving fountain. The result was a beautiful effect in liquid colours.

Despite the cool atmosphere, the quadrangle was much in demand. Due to the cold air, and the flimsy frocks of the ladies, it was necessary to "screw courage to the sticking point," take a long breath, and make a dash across the quad. However, it was a quick and sure cure for the "Overheated brow."

The fifteen dances on the programme were run off with clockwork like precision in all of the five dancing rooms. As the same dance was being played in each room simultaneously, no difficulty was encountered in keeping rendezvous.

Cars extended from Hart House, around the campus as far as Simcoe Hall, in addition to those parked on Queen's Park Crescent.

Although the merry-making was at a high pitch throughout the dance, it was remarked that there was a less informal atmosphere than at Wednesday's dance. This was due, it was jocularly stated, to the responsibility of the degrees which the dancers (most of them) possessed.

It was estimated that well over two thousand were in attendance.

SCHOOLMEN DEDICATE GALBRAITH MEMORIAL

The Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, professors, alumni and students will gather at noon today in the Mining Building to honour the memory of the "dear old dean" John Galbraith who did so much for school during his lifetime.

The unveiling and presentation of the Galbraith Memorial, presented as proof an outstanding event in the celebration of the Centenary.

LOST—A BUILDING

Round about the campus are swarms of graduates and undergraduates. Reunions and rejoicings are the order of the day. What more fitting place for Bill to meet Harry than Hart House;—but where, oh where shall Mary meet Helen? How simple it would be if we had a Women's Building.

Every year the registration of women students increases. Every year the University of Toronto is becoming more and more a co-educational university, not a place for men where women are tolerated. The crowds of women graduates come back to their Alma Mater just as faithfully, if not more so, than the men; and as yet they have no centre at which to rally. It is true that every college has its own little stamping grounds, but has it not been said that we suffer from too much college spirit and lack true University spirit? Surely a place which would be common to all the separate colleges would go far towards correcting this fault.

Much, very much, has been said about a Women's Building and little, very little, has been done! Somewhere on the campus they tell the tale of a little bottle of ink placed in a box in the library. Every penful of ink brings two cents in to the Women's Building Fund.

Each year some of the Women's Intercollegiate teams are given the use of Hart House gymnasium on certain occasions.

Few can play on these teams, but there are interfaculty teams, year teams, all sorts of teams! Certainly we do not lack the opportunity to play! The burning question is where. Every year the girls of U.C. are forced to seek outside gyms. Last year they met for baseball practices at a church gym three miles from the college grounds. Vic girls have to use the men's gym at odd hours when the men do not want it. If only we had a Women's Building our games and our practices would not have to be held just "any old place" around the city.

The feverish pace at which the modern college girl lives, the press of social engagements, the whirl of meetings, and incidentally the odd lecture sandwiched in, puts a terrific strain on the physical resources. Would it not be a good idea to provide a suitable place where every women student would have the advantages of gym equipment and an opportunity to play an active game.

LOOK INTO THE OLD CORNERS

Do you know your University?

This is not meant entirely for freshmen, for they have at least four more years to learn about things at Varsity. But how many seniors know what the stacks of the library are like? How many even know how many books the collection contains?

A book binding industry is situated on the campus and a carpentry workshop where extensive repair work is done for all departments of the University. Do you know that the extension division in Simcoe Hall sends lecturers and professors to several centres in Ontario, where regular courses are conducted leading to degrees in the University of Toronto.

How many seniors in Arts or Medicine know anything of the elaborate "lab" equipment in the various departments of the engineering faculty? Do you know that the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph is a faculty of this University, and that a few miles north of Toronto there is an experimental farm where the University has an experimental farm in connection with the Medical faculty, which played a great part in the insulin work of the Connaught Laboratories.

Look around a bit. Do some investigating. Then when you go home you will not be completely bewildered when some one says, "I see that the Meteorological department keeps its seismograph in the basement of one of the University residences because the Bloor Street cars effected it in the Meteorological building."

PORTRAIT UNVEILED PRESENTED TO U.C.

Painting of Professor Keys
Was Drawn by Charles McGregor, O.S.A.

CEREMONY IN CROFT HOUSE

Croft Chapter House was the scene of the unveiling and presentation to University College of a painting of Professor D. R. Keys. A large number of the graduates of the University of Toronto were present. Misses Davis and Phyllis Hamilton the twin daughters of Mr. R. J. Hamilton of the University Press, unveiled the picture which was then presented to Professor Keys by Principal Maurice Hutton.

A warm reception greeted Professor Keys when he arose to accept the gift. In his speech, Professor Keys made mention of his long connection with the University and of his appreciation of the many colleagues who had worked with him.

In accepting the painting on behalf of University College, Rev. Canon Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors mentioned the fact that he was one of Dr. Keys' oldest pupils. Dr. Cody stressed Dr. Keys' work at the University, the personal interest he took in the students and his faculty for making friends with them. Dr. Cody offered his congratulations on the work of the artist, Charles McGregor, O.S.A.

Sir William Millock was present and spoke in his usual humorous vein. Prof. Archibald MacMechan of Dalhousie University also said a few words.

Dr. Harley Smith who presided extolled the unselfish efforts of Professor Keys and stated the means the graduates had taken to honour these efforts. It was quite fitting that the walls of Croft Chapter House should bear Dr. Keys' likeness as an appreciation of his 40 years of duty and loyalty on the teaching staff.

WOMEN'S TENNIS

All colleges are requested to have their women's tennis tournaments run off before Oct. 11 and the names of the winners given to Helen Dore Hill, 3845, in order that the interfaculty draw may be completed.

Although it is very late to speak of it, the Undergraduate Ball was an unqualified success. The appearance of Hart House, and of the grounds thereabout, seemed far too lovely to be real, and took on the semblance of something very like Fairyland. To the Committee all honour—and in mentioning the fine features of the dance, let us not forget the names of Harry Foss, Eddy Hyland, Harry Sneath and George Delane, the four minstrels in the Reading Room. They did NOT give us a nickel to mention their names—we asked for them. Four musicians who will respond to the old cry "More!" with encores lasting from 1.15 until 2 a.m.—and such encores as they were, deserve more than these few lines. Let us beseech the ruling powers that this quartette be present at all future functions.

C-C

We were once horrified beyond measure at the Undergraduate Ball. A man bumped into us, and from his breath we caught the unmistakable odor of Life Savers! This vice must be stamped out at once!—Who knows but that the next step may be moth balls?

C-C

Someone reports that the great heavenly military strategist will be in the parade, perhaps on the St. Mike's float. The very moment that His Imperial Incandescence, or Sulphurous Majesty, Lucifer, appears, we are off on the run—and we know ten intimates who will not be far behind. Our eventual encounter in the Grand Finale with good Old Nick cannot be avoided, but as long as we have any means of motion, we intend firmly to avoid a premature and unnecessary scorching. The Meds promise an active Ballet of Skeletons, and perhaps worse. Some jovial spirits are always showing us the future much too vividly for comfort. The lads from School will present an initiation scene of 1890—four freshmen tired of life have volunteered—there's nothing like the old courage, but —. Forestry will show us an Oak being treated for Acorns with the newest Bluejay method. But all this is prophecy.

Much later —

C-C

We only guessed right about the Med float, and we did not have to run from Beelzebub. If our award of a chocolate bar is of any use, we give it to Forestry for their float and their banner-bearers, real He-Foresters if we ever saw any. One part of the parade was inexplicable. We asked the M. Ryan his opinion of it and he said: "S'hell of a trick!"

C-C

We clipped the following fine item from the eminent Dundalk Herald:

A rather peculiar accident happened Saturday afternoon when a half pound stone smashed through one of the windows of Miss M. A. Morgan's store. Thinking some mischievous boy had thrown the stone through the window, she rushed out to see who the miscreant was. It turned out that one of the tires on Jack Langdon's big oil truck had thrown the stone from the road and the window just happened to be in the line of travel. The store window had another pain Saturday.

School Men Flock to Mystery Ritual

Fifteen hundred school men of all years from 2T7 back to the days of J. L. Morris '81, who is the oldest graduate of School, attended the School Smoker which was held in the 2nd year drafting room last night.

All these engineers had previously attended the Ritual ceremonies at Convocation Hall. The installation of the calling of an engineer was written by Rudyard Kipling and is under the direction of Prof. Haldane of the mining department. All engineers must go through these ceremonies in order to be distinguished from others who call themselves engineers, and are not college graduates.

SHAUGHNESSY BRINGS SERIOUS THREAT TO STADIUM TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

At least two, and possibly three, colour schemes will be attempted at half-time at the Stadium to-day, the colours extending from the centre of the press box to the south-east corner of the open stand.

The first scheme presents a red letter on a solid white background, that is, all white markers show WHITE, and all others BLUE. The student band will parade south from the centre of the press box, and, as they pass, the students immediately behind or east of the band will raise the coloured sheets designated by their markers. That is, the colour scheme will unfold in a wave from north to south.

The second scheme is white letters on a solid blue background, that is, all white markers show WHITE, and all others BLUE. The student band will parade south from the centre of the press box, and, as they pass, the students immediately behind or east of the band will raise the coloured sheets designated by their markers. That is, the colour scheme will unfold in a wave from north to south.

If a third scheme is attempted the band will turn at the south end and parade north, and blue letters on a solid white background will be shown, that is, as the band passes back, those immediately behind or on the east will show WHITE if they have a blue marker, while all others will show WHITE.

To-day's football crowd will, almost to a man, be pro-Varsity. True, Sir Arthur Currie and a few earnest McGill fans will be on hand with fond hopes of watching old McGill commence her romp for Intercollegiate and Canadian titles, but they will be decidedly in the minority when it is considered that something like ten thousand tickets went to Varsity grads and their families, four thousand to the student body, and about one thousand to city supporters. And it may be expected that the three hundred delegates will root, if root they do, for their hosts of the occasion.

Indicative of the friendly and kindly spirit which has existed for so long between the staff and undergraduates of McGill and Varsity is the gift of a "jousting flag" bearing the emblem of McGill to be presented to the U. of T. Athletic Association from the McGill graduates in Montreal.

This, along with the presentation of a University of Toronto play, will be made at half time to-day, and each will be raised at opposite ends of the field whenever these two teams meet in combat.

It will be recalled that, in days of yore, when men, being men and knightly bent, engaged in games of mortal chance, 'twas a quick lance and a steady steed that proved superiority. 'Tis known that at each end of the field there stood a tent, and to each of these wended his way a daring warrior, guided by a bit of bunting, a whisp of rag, a jousting flag. And from hence, mounted on his noble steed, the warrior charged to victory or to death, in love and honour of his knighthood, and the reputation, as signified by his 'bit of bunting, his whisp of rag.

The attention of all students is called to the fact that no parade has been authorized down town to-day. It is expected, however, that the Varsity and McGill teams will parade to the Stadium behind the Varsity band at 2 o'clock, followed by the cheer-leaders, while the students, if they feel the urge, may follow the band back to Simcoe Hall after the game. All parading must be confined to University grounds.

In McIntyre and Kirkpatrick are two tricky halves who will stand a lot of watching, not only by spectators, but also opposing teams. These two were on the championship Humber side team of 1925 and work together with rare precision. Bill Woods will help them a lot too, as he is a seasoned player. Beal at quarter would be an asset to any team, and shows great generalship. The line is rather impressive too, as besides having Calman and Swartman of last year's squad, such huskies as Little, Gray, Scott and Christie are after much the same job. Keith at centre is another good one and has a fast accurate snap.

The outsiders are well protected, and what end runs are attempted will well earn the gains they make through Smith, Dunn, Jeffries and Cartwright. These four men are about on a par so "Mike" can keep fresh men on the wing without appreciably weakening the team. Dunlop at flying wing has been showing some good stuff and likely will be used throughout the game.

Those on the line-up are: Flying wing, Dunlop; halves, McIntyre, Kirkpatrick, Spencer, Davy, Woods; quarter, Beal, Reid; wing, Calman, Scott, Swartman, Carrick, Gray, Christie, Little; outsiders, Smith, Dunn, Jeffries, Cartwright; subs, Riddell, Morgan, Daley.

O.R.F.U. TO BATTLE BALMY BEACH TEAM

Widely Heralded Football Squad Will Be Extended By Strong Varsity Outfit

LOCAL LINE IS STRONG

This afternoon at the new Oakwood Stadium on St. Clair Avenue, the Varsity entry in the O.R.F.U. series meets the much touted Balmy Beach, present title holders and picked by many as the team to beat for the 1927 race. However, they will have to be at the top of their form to pull away from Varsity, as Coach Pearson has been working the boys at top speed all week and they are in fine fettle to give the Balmy boys a good battle.

The Varsity Stadium will be packed and those who can't secure tickets for the Intercollegiate match will make no mistake if they travel to see the O.R.F.U. fixture. It won't prove time wasted, because the locals after taking the short end of the stick in practice games with Ronnie McPherson's proteges, are out to show that they can play football. This year's team is composed largely of sophomores, last year Junior Champions. They know the game, and although of little senior experience, are primed up to show all and sundry that they are "Seniors" in every respect.

The first celebration of Holy Communion in Hart House Chapel for this term will take place on Sunday morning at 9.00 o'clock. Graduates and delegates will be especially welcomed. The Celebrant will be the Rev. F. J. Moore.

Will Exchange Tags For Silver Linings

In and out, through and around the University this morning and afternoon, fair undergrads will wander, bearing among them a stock of 10,000 blue and white carillon bells.

Each co-ed has been directed to exchange one bell for anything in silver that the pockets of University fr-quenters may disclose. Each "tagger" is a "T" holder or on the Athletic Executive of one of the colleges, and will wear the University colours, besides a blue slicker if the Weatherman is unfavourably inclined. The proceeds received from the tags will be devoted to the entertainment of the various women's Intercollegiate basketball and hockey teams, when they visit the University in the coming season.

HUNGARIAN ENGINEER AT TORONTO FOR REST

Learned English at Moose Jaw, and Furthers His Education at Toronto

Mr. John Grotz, a Hungarian engineer, was an interesting visitor to "The Varsity" office.

Mr. Grotz who is a graduate of the Budapest School of Engineering has been in western Canada for some time. He is enthusiastic in his liking for the country, but after his hard work in the west he thought he would come to Toronto's celebration for a rest and change of scene. He started to learn English in Moose Jaw and as he quickly explained he came here to further his education.

School Grads' Wives Are Guests at Bridge

Wives of S.P.S. graduates were the guests of honour Friday afternoon at a bridge held in the Granite Club.

There were fifty tables prepared, but due to a misunderstanding over the time of commencement, not all were used. Artistic perfume bottles decorated in varied hue were awarded as prizes.

These ladies who were unable to arrive earlier in time for bridge, were present, however, to partake of the light repast provided after the play ceased.

Hostesses of the afternoon were: Mrs. Edgar Brandon, Mrs. Arthur Lang, Mrs. W. A. Buck, Mrs. C. Armour, Mrs. Dobson and Mrs. Hookway.

U. C. Alumnae Entertains With Large Bridge Party

The Alumnae Association of U. C. entertained a large number of U. C. graduates at a bridge party in the Women's Union. Forty tables were arranged in the common rooms, the library and upstairs hall, and all the rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers.

The prizes of which there was one for each table, were small Italian leather purses. A buffet supper was served in the dining-room, where the tables were set with mauve and yellow chrysanthemums.

VARSITY ARENA IS VENUE

As a fitting end to the ceremonies of the Centenary celebration, Divine Service will be held in the University Arena on Sunday, October 9, at 3:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The Honourable and Reverend H. J. Cody will preach, and the Mendelssohn Choir, directed by Dr. Fricker, will sing three anthems. The T.T.C. Band, led by Captain Heyward, will accompany the Choir.

The opportunity of hearing Toronto's world-famous choir and the splendid music of the Band proved so attractive to members of the University and Torontonians in general that in less than a week after the tickets were received from the press, the first 600 were exhausted.

The Centenary Committee, to provide for as many as possible joining in this service of Thanksgiving, arranged additional seating accommodation, and printed a second supply of tickets. These were all taken in two days. To meet as far as possible the demands of those who have not been successful in obtaining tickets, the Committee now announces that the doors of the Arena will be open to ticket holders until 2:45, then the doors will be thrown open to the general public.

OSHAWADIFFUSION OF IDEAS DEFINES EDUCATION

Dr. Smith Outlines Ideas by Which a Civilized Society Lived

DELEGATE FROM SCOTLAND

"Education may be defined as the diffusion through a society of the characteristic ideas by which that society lives and which are embodied in its institutions" stated Dr. J. C. Smith who has been engaged in the administrative end of education in Scotland for some years and who is present in Toronto as a delegate from Scotland at the Centenary Celebration. Dr. Smith gave the first of two lectures on educational topics at the Normal School yesterday before a large audience composed of the staff and students of the Normal School and of the Ontario College of Education.

Dr. Smith proceeded to outline the ideas by which a civilized society lived and the distinctions in which they were embodied. Devotion to kin was embodied in the age-old institution, the family; loyalty embodied in the armed forces of a nation; law and order embodied in the police force; personal holiness embodied in the institution of the Christian Church; the idea of property embodied in the institution of commerce; love of truth or knowledge in the University; and the idea of equal opportunity for all which was embodied in the institution of a system of state education.

In summing up Dr. Smith said that visitors from Canada and the United States found Scotland more like home than England which was less democratic. The average Scotsman was after all to the superficial glance, not very different from the average Englishman or the average Canadian.

life. The federal house, he thought, had exercised its power of disallowance over provincial legislation too frequently in the past.

Population had jumped from 3,400,000 to 9,400,000 since Confederation, he said, in showing a material side of progress. He admitted that there might be some reason for complaints that population had not increased at a sufficient rate. There was one compensation. "If we haven't had numbers, we have had people who were prepared to assimilate the spirit of the country. I prefer that we should grow slowly on safe lines, rather than have an influx of an undesirable character."

Development of water power, the forests and mineral resources had only been carried on during the last 10 or 12 years, he averred. He continued with a reference to public education. "The public should get inspiration from the universities. We are fortunate here in Ontario in having a university doing not only personal service, but a great public service. In 1867 fully 20 per cent. of the population was illiterate. The percentage had now decreased to five.

The duct glands must not be forgotten as they play an equally important role in bodily functions. Milk, which is a vital necessity in the child's diet, contains Vitamin A. Green plants, such as grass and clover, are the important factors in the production of Vitamin A, and the cow after digesting the green food releases the Vit. with the milk through its udder.

In closing, Sir John said he was sure the time was near at hand when Vitamin A could be isolated by chemical processes, and that in the not far distant future we would put Vitamin A, in a crystalline form, into our tea and coffee along with milk and sugar.

Sir Robert Falconer in a vote of thanks expressed gratitude to the distinguished visitor for the lucid manner in which the address had been presented, and he felt sure that everyone present had received something which he could take away with him.

Chief Justice Harvey, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the University of Alberta and official delegate to Toronto from that institution, was found by "The Varsity", chatting with his friend the Rev. They spoke of the days when examinations were tried in the old Convocation Hall, when the Women's Varsity Office was the janitor's office and mail for the whole college was distributed there, and when Bloor Street was the end of city property. Dr. McQueen told a story of the long and continuous warfare between Trinity Meds and Toronto Meds, neither of which was at that time affiliated with the University. HISTORIC CASA LOMA SCENE OF GAY PARTY AS SCHOOLMEN REVEL

Semi-Centennial Celebration of Engineering Society is Gala Event

PROGRAM BROADCASTED

First University Function at Famous Castle Proves Most Successful

As a happy ending to the many functions which School's 50th anniversary has brought forth, the Engineering Society's Semi-Centennial Dinner Dance held on Saturday evening at picturesque Casa Loma was indeed a fitting one.

A chicken dinner was served at 7.30 in the ball room to over 150 couples, during which the eyes were also fed, being catered to by a dainty miss, an exponent of the Russian School of Dancing, who gave several charming dances in the subdued coloured lights of the handsome panelled ball room, formerly the library.

Jean Goldkette's orchestra of nine pieces provided nourishment for the third sense. Favours for the ladies were freshly cut roses. At the conclusion of the dinner the guests strolled through the halls and rotunda, returning to the ball room to continue dancing until midnight.

Several times throughout the gay evening the lofty ceilings of the castle resounded to familiar college yells, including McGill. The music was broadcasted and incidentally one of the "Tolke Oikes" was broadcasted through the ether, which thus greatly increased the range and carrying power of the school men's mighty efforts.

Many members of other faculties were noticed present. The patronesses were: Lady Falconer, Mrs. C. H. Mitchell, Mrs. C. H. C. Wright, Mrs. J. H. Parkins, Mrs. T. R. Loudon, Mrs. E. A. Allcut.

CENTENARY CELEBRATIONS CLOSE WITH INSPIRING DIVINE SERVICE

GRAND PROCESSION SEEN LAST FRIDAY

Academic Gowns Produce Imposing Display Across University Campus

MANY COLLEGES PRESENT

Toronto will seldom again witness so imposing a sight as the procession of scholars and men of science which crossed the University campus Friday to enter the Varsity Arena. Arrayed in the academic dress of their Alma Mater, it was possible to ascertain to which College or University the separate delegates were graduates. The academic hood of scarlet cloth, lined with crimson silk, marked the Oxford M.D., and doctors of Civil Law, and Divinity the scarlet cloth gown. The same distinctive hood marked the Cambridge graduate, as well as the graduate from the University of London, or Trinity College, Dublin.

The University of St. Andrews copies the hood as worn in the University of France. Here the scarlet hood lined with white satin distinguished the academic dress of the Doctors. The Universities of Australia copy the Cambridge or Oxford B.A. hood, and the lining in most cases is of blue silk.

Most of the American Universities seem to copy the Oxford or Cambridge gown, with a distinctive hood of their own. In the University of Toronto the hoods have a white cord on the inside about an inch from the fur or the edge. The LL.B. hood differs from the Oxford B.C.L. in being of pink silk, with fur, instead of blue silk; and the M.D. is lined with blue silk, instead of pink. Thus pink is the recognized colour for the Faculty of Law, and blue for Medicine.

The University of Bombay B.A. was represented. The hood is of black, edged with blue silk.

Five Thousand Persons Attend University Service in Varsity Arena

CONDUCTED BY CANON CODY

Many Students As Well As General Public Turned Away From Arena Doors

One of the most inspiring moments of the Centenary Celebration was when the five thousand who attended the divine service in the Arena, yesterday afternoon, stood up and sang, wholeheartedly, "O God our help in ages past, our hope for years to come." The service was dignified and inspirational throughout, and a note of thanksgiving was sounded at its close, with the Hallelujah Chorus.

The Rev. H. J. Cody conducted the devotional service, assisted by Sir Robert Falconer. The Mendelssohn Choir, under Dr. H. A. Fricker, led in the singing of the hymns, and rendered three anthems.

Dr. Cody, in his sermon, spoke of the close relationship of the past to the present, that one was incomplete without the other.

"What can the present do for the past?" he asked. "The present gives to the past, completion and consummation. Our ancestors began works which, by the shortness of life, they were unable to finish. One age sows, the other reaps."

"How can we pay our debt, in the University, to those who have gone before us? For this generation and those to come, we can pour out our souls in service. The treasures of the University will be the men who have made it, and the men, in turn, it seeks to make."

Dr. Cody mentioned the University motto, "Men grow like a tree as the years pass by," and remarked that the tree on the University of Toronto crest was an oak—which grew upward. It was, he said, a symbol of the breadth and range of the University, and he hoped that, in the future, (Continued on page 4)

Second Appeal Following So Closely on Carillon Campaign
Deemed Inadvisable

The meeting of the Alumni Federation of the University of Toronto at Hart House on Saturday, October 8th, ratified the recommendations made by the Alumni Council of the Federation with only few modifications.

Dr. T. Noble reported that $120,000 had already been repaid out of a total of $165,000 advanced, and that payments on the balance were being received at the rate of $1,100 per month.

Dr. Noble also presented the recommendation of the Alumni Council that a new fund providing for scholarships and loans to students be established.

Mr. H. D. Scully doubted the success of an appeal following so closely on the carillon subscription, and proposed that the War Memorial Fund be added to for the purpose. A rider was added and approved to the recommendation that no part of the monies was to be used for athletics. Thus no danger of subsidizing athletics through loaning money to students in need of assistance would be incurred.

The suggestion was approved by Mr. Justice Masten if a suitable manner of judicious expenditure of the monies could be formulated. The establishment of the fund was referred to the board of directors for consideration and necessary action, but the views of the Federation are to be considered in any action taken.

A resolution of thanks for the able services of Mr. Scully, chairman of the Carillon Committee, was unanimously passed by the Federation.

CLASS '84 REPRESENTED

The graduates of School set a high water mark for undergraduate functions in the Engineering Alumni Reunion Dinner Dance held in the Crystal Ball Room of the King Edward Hotel on Friday evening.

Over six hundred guests were present, who were received by the patronesses, Lady Falconer, Mrs. C. H. Mitchell, Mrs. J. M. R. Fairbairn, Mrs. T. H. Hogg, Mrs. A. E. K. Bunnell and Mrs. C. Arthur Scott. During dinner several delightful dances were performed by Miss Jean Hemsworth. The class of "1923" were very much in evidence throughout the evening. During dinner they put on three skits (Continued on page 4)

The bright sun, the crisp clear atmosphere and the light breeze from the south-west were ideal for spectator and player alike, while a soft turf seemed to promise an easy game on the players.

Old grads felt young again, and expectant ones thrilled as the old "Toronto" came booming forth from the bleachers, and the two teams, gay in their blue and red, trotted smartly on to the field and went through brisk signal and kicking practices. At every mark of foot on ball, at every running catch, at every practice play the crowd enthused. Yes, a good game seemed in the air. It had to be. It was.

Starting with the picturesque elevation of "jousting flags" bearing McGill and Toronto crests, from the grads of old McGill, headed by Major Forbes, and the S.P.S. Alumni, respectively, stretching of the players across the field, "God Save the King," and a hearty Toronto, and the game was under way. And then, within a minute, a long boot from the kick-off, a foisted punt by McGill and a longer one by Sinclair and the Blue led 1-0. That took the breath out of the Red and White, and the old grad settled (Continued on page 3)

Trace Development of Various Departments and Faculties of the University

SHOWN DURING CENTENARY

A most interesting feature of the Centenary Celebration was the showing of the University film in the Engineering Building Friday morning and afternoon. The film is an outline of the beginning and development of the University during the past hundred years. It opens with a scene showing John Strachan reading the Royal Charter of George IV, which granted the founding of King's College in 1827. Immediately following is a picture of the board of governors in the Senate Chamber of the University, one hundred years later.

By means of dates and a sketched campus, the gradual development of the University into one of the great centres of learning in the Empire is shown. Pictures of the various departments, faculties and federated colleges, with all their activities, makes a very impressive whole.

MEDICAL PROFESSION HEAR PROMINENT MEN

Professor McCallum of John

England Speak

ALL THREE SPEAK WELL

Medical graduates and undergraduates were privileged to hear three popular lectures given Saturday morning in the Physics Building by outstanding men of the medical profession.

The first speaker was Sir John Broadbent of London, England. In a humorous vein Sir John stated his impressions of the University, and especially of the sport facilities, the equal of which he declared were not to be found elsewhere. A delightful story was told by Sir John concerning the creation of woman. The Almighty gave woman to Adam, and he found her not to his liking, so he sent her back. Finding that he could not do without her, he asked that she be given back to him again. Again he was not satisfied, but the Lord said, "As you can neither live with or without her, you must put up with her." So she remains to the present day.

The second speaker was Professor McCallum of John Hopkins University. In his opening remarks he said he deeply appreciated the hospitality extended to him after 33 years' ab-

COLLEGE HUMOUR

The popular conception of college humour is, no doubt, founded on the humorous college magazines in circulation. In these, the college man, usually inebriated, is found beautifully mixed up with bell trousers, telephone poles, absent-minded professors, flappers, and fraternity pins.

A scientific conception of college humour has been advanced by Polyzenie Kambourpoulou, who, in connection with a psychological experiment, examined the "humour diaries" kept by students, at Vassar College. According to this report, a type of foolish jesting, or laughing at nothing, is the sort of humour which appeals to the feminine collegian. "Mental inferiority is the basis of these jokes, which are aimed at mistakes, ignorance, absent-mindedness, naive remarks, laughing at one's own foolishness, social breaks and blunders."

To say that any one type of humour is typical of college life, is next to impossible. There are universities,—and universities. Each one is composed of separate faculties, and we cannot say that each of these has a uniform conception of a "good joke." The punsters and practical jokers are, of necessity, scattered among the various groups.

Certain it is, however, that most college students have a sense of humour. The Freshman brings it with him. The Sophomore sharpens it at the Freshman's expense. The Junior aims it at other faculties, perhaps,—the Senior at other institutions. The Professor encourages it with quips in the classroom, and the graduate needs it, for, "a man without mirth is like a wagon without springs in which one is caused disagreeably to jolt by every pebble over which it runs."

*INSPIRATION

The inspiring events of the past few days in connection with the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the University, are now of the past, but their significance with respect to the future can scarcely be realized by the undergraduate.

Of course the undergraduate has been touched by the display of loyalty and devotion evidenced during the celebration. Who could not but be thrilled with the deep-rooted feelings of thousands of former students in the University's halls, who came, once more, to the portals of Alma Mater? The opportunity was given many of them for the first time of returning to the places where they spent the best years of their lives. The sentiments expressed by the graduates could not but have a far-reaching effect on the undergraduate body.

Yesterday afternoon saw the climax of a remarkable event in the life of the University of Toronto, when thousands attended divine service in the University Arena. To be present at that service was in itself most inspiring. The whole function was very majestic, and no one could attend without being deeply moved by the proceedings.

The sermon of the Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors of the University, was itself a remarkable presentation delivered after the expenditure of a great deal of effort in research. The importance of the university in the national life of Canada was vividly set forth. One of the speaker's strongest points was that while there was a link between the past and the present and the future, still each generation had its own life to live and created its own portion of the University's history. For that reason the undergraduate of to-day should be just as interested as he would be after he has graduated, in upholding the great ideals and standards of the past.

There was much food for thought in the remarks of Rev. Dr. Cody.

WOMEN'S LIT. SOCIETY TO HOLD FIRST MEETING

Will Present Proposed Program for Year's Study of Modern Literature

The Women's Literary Society of University College will hold its initial meeting of the year on Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 7:45 p.m. in the Common Room of the Women's Union. The programme has been drafted until Christmas and promises to be a very interesting and educational one. The aim of the society is to make its members better acquainted with modern prose and poetry. To make its study include all types of modern works, authors have been chosen that are typical of the countries which they represent.

At the first meeting, Miss Agatha Chapman will give a paper on the works of John Erskine, representing the Scottish movement. An address in this subject, and especially the first year girls, are cordially invited to this meeting and to join the club.

No Sympathy for S.P.S. '23

Editor, "The Varsity."
Dear Sir:
Your correspondent of yesterday shows an attitude of mind which clearly demonstrates his place in our University. Perhaps, as a graduate, he finds his profession overcrowded and would like to see the number of his competitors cut down by drastic action on the part of the Caput. Thus he counsels the wholesale defiance of rules and regulations. This might conceivably help to keep a premium on the graduates of our recently admitted best university in the Western Hemisphere. As an S.P.S. man he is a representative of that unbalanced, unthinking, stereotyped class of student which college humour and the American movie would demonstrate as typical of their country. Fortunately, they form a very small proportion of our University, and even of S.P.S.

It is quite unnecessary to "squash the Frosh" as long as they behave in that meek and cowering manner which characterizes them now. The high school hero finds he has few to lord it over except his fellowfrosh, for education has bestowed becoming dignity on men of upper years, and no one pays attention to him except the Bursar.

To sophomores initiations are a rather boring and disgusting duty, which takes time from more desirable pursuits. To the freshmen the disappearance of initiations is a disappointment. He has been looking forward to it since matric with a delicious kind of fear. Possibly the abattoirs may be disappointed too.

Perhaps S.P.S. '23 will help us to recover our lost collegiate spirit which was so plentiful in 1923 by sending a son with high school attitude carefully preserved into our midst. He shall be a martyr and deliver our Alma Mater from the tyranny of the Caput. Our only hope lies in the future.

Clock Future Safe

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
Well, Mr. Editor, I certainly agree with Mr. Carnegie that this is a great University—when it can produce two men with such a hopelessly perverted outlook on life as "School '23" and Mr. (or is it Miss?) N. D. Clare: one advocating a revival of ye ancient barbarities, the other objecting because the Soldiers' Tower is being put to some practical use at last. As for the first, there was of course nothing in that bombastic effusion that will be taken seriously by any except the greenest of Frosh. Why didn't he suggest the staging of bull-fights instead of the customary Rugby frolics at our Bloor Street playground? But the second epistle calls for more consideration.

There are some of us, sir, who have neither the cash nor inclination to buy a tin-ticker that will—er—synchronize with those of everybody else. This being the case, it would surely seem entirely proper that there should be a standard authority by which all may regulate their timepieces. Granted that the idea of a clock-face ill accords with Gaelic, Mormon, or any other type of architecture; yet it appears to me that the figures, simple and inconspicuous, have a not unpleasant effect. And if Mr. Clare objects to the sound of the bells, well, we all know where they are never heard—except on cows. (See nearest agent for particulars regarding special fares, etc., etc.)

Oh, the deep bitterness that lies within that famous expletive: "O TEM-PORA! O mores!" Cicero had been a student once himself and knew well the vagaries of time. . . . We are all

THE ALL-ROUND MAN RUNS A FAST HUNDRED

Crack went the pistol. Away he went clearing the barrier with a tremendous bound. Putting a half-Nelson on the man behind him, our star scored two chuckers. Stroking vigorously he slid safely into the fifty yard line. Leaving the goal with a beautiful swan dive, he banked around the S turn and, placing all other competitors points behind, he drove down the fairway, and with a fine effort made a sensational tackle at the tape, scoring a touch-down, and a technical knock-out.

Since we reported that "Aunt Boadicea," the Beeton expert, would give "Advice to the Lovelorn," we have received this one communication, which would indicate that internal affairs are running pretty smoothly around these parts.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN: A TRIOLET

The bridegroom was late,
So she seized on another
And took him to mate:
The bridegroom was late,
But I sigh for the fate
Of his poor luckless brother!

To continue, we just received this communication:

Dear Sir or Madam:—
Having heard several slurs upon the name Panabaker, I should be interested to learn the faults and virtues of his character. Could your column give me this information, or would it have to be rendered in private?

I am Sir, Madam, etc., etc.

In answer to this query, we wish to state that our departed friend W.C. was one of the people that we never met, and this we regret deeply, and we mean it. He, despite his "Victorian" place of sojourn, was one of the staunchest anti-Rotarians who ever existed. Armed with a vocabulary that would have shamed Noah Webster, and a sense of the unfitness of things that would have honoured Socrates, he strove to right affairs about this track of land. He was the avowed foe of all display of concerted and concentrated animal spirit, the arch-enemy of rooting and other adolescent enthusiasm, and essentially a man of good taste. In our hypocritical endeavour to please a vast and easy-going public, we played the apostle and kidded him. He was always right, and we were always wrong—the public thought otherwise, consequently we are still wearing the cat's whiskers, and he is—well, wherever he is, he is still unquenched, we fondly hope.

As to the game on Saturday, it was a pretty mean trick on the part of McGill. Whenever the Rev. St. Germaine got loose, it looked more like a track meet than a rugby game. If we had more space, we might say what is up with the team, but that is the Sporting Editor's job—watch him duck it! All we have to say is that if McGill had been having a big Centenary like ours, we would have been a little more decent, and a little less rough and energetic.

C.C.

This night is a sad one for the fact that G. M. Grant Smith, News Editor of "The Varsity" for a long time, has departed for Sudbury, and is not reporting wolf-tendencies for the Star. Mr. Smith was the very paragon of all news editors. He knew what was necessary to a paper, squelched junior reporters with one twinkle of his moustache, and always stopped the publicity-seekers long before they were well started. Here's success to him in Sudbury—we hope he finds a nickel mine full to the brim with bright luminous unbitten knickels.

C.C.

The Centenary is over, and now that the fog has lifted and the grads of 1830 have been borne off, we can once more go our way without having to meow directions in all four paths of the wind—we won't be here for the next Centenary—and we certainly will enjoy the much-needed eternal siesta after this one.

McGILL TAKES HELM FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL RACE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Just when the tension was at its highest on Saturday, with both teams deadlocked 5-5, those in the front centre rows of the covered stand were given an unlooked for laugh. Freddie Dundas had just charged into a mass of players and appeared to be all but knocked out in the process. Staggering to his feet, he searched around in the grass and then ran to the sidelines, where his eye fell upon Masters, towards whom he tossed a small object, saying, "Hang on to this tooth for me will you." Dundas re-assumed his place in the line-up and appeared none the worse for the peremptory extraction of his upper right lateral.

Saturday's game was the second opening contest between Varsity and McGill in two years that has been won practically by a lucky outside kick, and its use on these two occasions cannot but fail to bring up the question of its legitimate standing in the game to-day. A year ago, in Montreal, Bazin grabbed a similar boot for a touchdown, although Varsity supporters claimed that half the McGill players were offside, Bazin at snap into the bargain. Saturday it appeared as if practically the entire Red and White team was across the line before the kick was made. As the game is played to-day, this play is used only when the opposing line is within striking distance, and as a last desperate measure to turn defeat into victory. It's sole idea seems to be "if we can't get on by running the ball, we'll take a chance and trust to luck just who gets the ball." Both teams have an equal chance, of course, but the element of luck enters too strongly into this play, however spectacular, and it is not desirable of turning our game of football into a game of chance.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TENNIS NEW WOMEN'S FEATURE

Queen's and Toronto Are Definite—Western May Join Also

A women's inter-collegiate tennis tournament has been arranged this year by the tennis clubs of the various universities. This is the first time that tennis has made its appearance as an Inter-collegiate sport and it is hoped that the innovation will meet with great success. Queen's and Toronto have definitely decided to send teams and Western may join the fray. McGill has not, as yet, announced her intention of contesting for a tennis trophy.

Coming as it does, at the first of the year, long before students find lecture and labs weighty matters upon their consciences, the number of women entering the tournament, or trying to enter the tournament, should be very large, also being a "one-man" game, it is easier for the individual to practice in odd hours which peculiarly suit an over-crowded time-table. The various faculties have their individual tournaments and then there will be an interfaculty tournament. Those showing the greatest style and speed with the ball and racquet in these points will be selected to form a team representing Varsity, against Queen's and Western. We sincerely hope the women of Varsity will shine on the tennis courts as they do on the basketball floor and the ice. One more inter-collegiate sport offers one more opportunity for Varsity girls to go after a "T".

BALMY BEACH BEAT VARSITY O.R.F.U.

Despite Lack of Practice Varsity Squad Gives Hard Tussle Throughout

MANY BLUES ARE RECRUITS

Playing the husky Balmy Beach squad on even terms for three grueling periods of football, Varsity's entry in the O.R.F.U. race suddenly tired under the onslaught of the husky Beach wings, and the latter were able to run in 12 points to give them a 14-1 victory over the Pearsonites at the Oakwood Stadium on Saturday afternoon.

It was the Blue's first game of the season, and the youngsters stood up wonderfully under what was to many of them their testing fire. Kirkpatrick and McIntyre teamed together splendidly on the rearguard, passing, running and catching well, while Colman, Little and Morgan were the best of the linesmen.

Smith, Cawell, Robertson and Foster were best for the cast-enders, Smith and Ponton each securing a try in the last quarter.

FIRST ROUND

With the breeze behind him, McIntyre opened up with an aerial attack that threatened to sweep the Beacherites off their feet, but the Foster crowd made gains at critical moments and kept the score sheet clean. A 35 yard gain by McIntyre and a 20 yard one by Dunlap were countered by 20 yards by Foster.

SECOND ROUND

A fumbled ball drove the Blue back to centre, and then yards by Cawell and a poor kick by McIntyre gave Foster a chance to boot to the deadline. A few minutes later McIntyre's punt was partially blocked and Foster registered another to the deadline. Gray grabbed a fumbled ball by Smith and reached the winner's 10 yard line before being downed. Moore ran out an attempted onside.

Balmy Beach 2; Varsity 0.

THIRD PERIOD

McIntyre kicked off to Foster, who was downed 25 yards out. Colman and Little through centre for Varsity, and then Kirkpatrick went around one end to repeat, but the gain was lost on an offside a moment later. McIntyre returned Foster's punt from centre for a nice gain. Neither team could gain ground through the line. The Blue finally counted when McIntyre took a pass from Kirkpatrick and returned it over the Easterner's line to Moore, who was downed for a rouge.

Balmy Beach 2; Varsity 1.

FOURTH PERIOD

Cawell made yards on two downs and then Spencer took Foster's punt at Varsity's 10 yard line. Varsity was penalized for no yards, and it was Balmy Beach's ball 25 yards out. Robertson made 10 yards, and Ponton drove through for 15 and a touch.

Balmy Beach 7; Varsity 1.

Varsity failed to make yards on the third down and the ball was awarded to the Beacherites 40 yards out. Reeves and Robertson and then Arner and Ponton slammed through the line for yards. Robertson kicked to the deadline for a point.

Balmy Beach 8; Varsity 1.

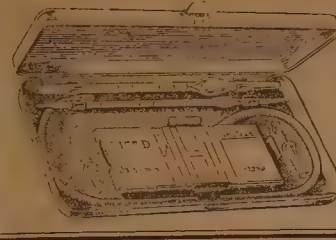

Billings took a Varsity punt at his 45 yard line, and then dashed through a maze of tacklers for 40 yards before passing to Ponton, who in turn passed to Smith, who went the rest of the way for a touch. Cawell converted.

Balmy Beach 14; Varsity 1.

It is unfortunate that the local O.R.F.U. entry should have had to stack up against the much touted Balmy Beach squad so early in the season, since Varsity has been unable to secure practice games. Despite that, though, the untired recruits under Coach Pearson surprised the champions when they met at the Oakwood Stadium on Saturday, and it was only in the final moments of the game that the latter showed any decided superiority. They had their last hard workout before

UNIVERSITY TAG DAY CONDUCTED BY WOMEN

Proceeds To Go Towards Assistance of Women's Intercollegiate Athletics

Money was raised for Women's Intercollegiate Athletics by the sale of 10,000 tags, in the shape of carillon bells, on the campus Saturday morning, and outside the Varsity Stadium from one o'clock until the beginning of the game.

The need for money was especially urgent this year because Varsity entertains the women's hockey and basketball teams, and whereas there were only three universities in other years, Western is now included and the expense is therefore higher.

The tags were made by the women of the various colleges and were sold by Athletic "T" holders.

U.C. WOMEN'S UNION GETS MANY GUESTS

Centenary Celebrations Attract Many Delegates from American Colleges

The Women's Union of U.C. received its full quota of guests for the celebrations. One of the delegates from American Colleges was the guest of Mrs. Kirkwood at the Union and dined at the Union during her visit. Professor Vera Brown represents Smith College where she is on the staff of the history department. As well as such a distinguished visitor as Dr. Brown, there were quite a number of graduate students staying at the Union during Centennial Week.

the game, and gave the Intercollegiate team a hard tussle throughout.

On the back division Kirkpatrick and McIntyre teamed together exceptionally well, they being on the Humberstone championship team two years ago. They gave the opposing wing men a lot to do to take care of them. Beal, at quarter, is another who made a sterling showing.

The O.R.F.U. squad is largely of sophs and frosh, there being only a few old-timers. Calnan, Swartsman, Gray and Bill Woods being practically the only ones of experience in higher company. Of last year's Junior championship team Keith at snap, Christie and Little insides, and Smith, Jeffreys and Cartwright at outside, will all be used this year. They played good ball last year, and hence with that experience should make a good showing in stepping up to the Senior O.R.F.U. team. Only two have been drafted from the Mulock Cup series, namely Dunn and Riddell. These two played for Vic. and Dents last year, and will be almost sure starters in the games this fall.

Among the "frosh" still with the squad are Dunlap, Spencer, Carrick and Reid. These men are good enough to still be kept on the roster, and will show their wares, if not Saturday, at least in later games. McKinny, a half-back, concludes the list, and with such an aggregation as this and "Mike" Pearson coaching, Varsity will undoubtedly give more than a good account of herself this current season.

Mulock Cup Managers

There will be a meeting of the Mulock Cup managers in the Directorate Room, Hart House, on Tuesday, Oct. 11, at 1 p.m.

Ralph St. Germaine

Captain of the McGill football team and individual star of the game against Varsity on Saturday. St. Germaine carried the Red attack, making many spectacular runs, and was handled heavily by the Blue.

Who proved himself an able aid to St. Germaine. His snappy passing and dodging featured the later stages of the game.

back as it looked like Varsity—until the end of the period. And then, starting the second, the Red line picked up a bit. An end run or two was attempted, but, aided by the wind, Sinclair's booting was gradually forcing the invasion back until a fumble gave the visitors the ball at centre field. And then it was that St. Germaine found his first hole in Varsity's right end—a 50 yard run, the Blue line store-walling for two downs, an outside kick and McGill touch gave them the lead 5-1 to close the period.

Plunging, plunging, kicking, the Blue struck back hard. Stollery plunged for yards, and a little later the crowd enthused again as Sinclair calmly boosted the ball between the posts from 35 yards out.

The fourth period brought suspense, with hope of the Blue machine continuing the offensive to tie and win the game. The tie came after a moment on Sinclair's long punt. The crowd sat down suddenly—the Saints' second long run putting Varsity on the defensive on her own 40 yard line. Tremaine's long boot, a fumble in front of the line, and a McGill recovery behind—and there you have the game.

These two teams are perhaps the most closely matched to be seen in action at the local Stadium in some years. The McGill offensive, starting with the dodging and passing of Little and ending with the running of St. Germaine, was evenly balanced by the punting of Sinclair combined with the tackling of Snyder and the plunging of Stollery, Traynor, Carrick and Dundas.

The Blue's was straight football. The Reds gradually developed into a dashing open attack. If there had been no slippery ball nor a hurried catch, straight football would have registered another victory.

In an almost every McGill play, withstanding the brunt of Varsity's tackling, and doing most of the ball-carrying for his team, St. Germaine was the outstanding player on the field. Three, four, five times he stepped through huge holes in right wing to reef off dashes of 40 yards or more; and when he couldn't carry the ball, Little did—and Little was just about the second best, his passing and dodging being spectacular.

The Blue had an edge offensively along the line, and so too in the tackling and kicking department. They appeared the better balanced team on an off day. End runs wouldn't work, Sinclair's kicking was hurried, smart passing was lacking, and an injury to the diminutive Westwood told on the morale of the team.

In any case, the game was one of the best from a standpoint of closeness and doubt as to the final outcome that has been seen at the local Stadium in some time. The enjoyment of all was only marred by the fact that the wrong team won.

"Don't believe everything you hear," was the essence of the address given by Dr. Lowell, president of Harvard, to the incoming students of the university. He argued for common sense in connection with traditions.

PARTISAN CLUBS MAY USE VARSITY NAME AND CREST

Macdonald-Cartier and University Liberal Clubs Receive Extended Privileges

Sir Robert Falconer last week conveyed to D. J. Walker and B. Jas. Thomson, respective presidents of the Macdonald Cartier Conservative Club and the University Liberal Club, the consent of the Caput to the use, by them, of the name University of Toronto and the University crest on stationery and in designating their organizations. This terminates some years of effort by the Liberals, and latterly by the Conservatives, for official recognition. Considerable latitude is granted the Clubs, with the one restriction that neither party may open campaign offices within the University or circulate propaganda.

Activity is noticeable in both organizations. A party of the Macdonald-Cartier Club is attending the Conservative Convention in Winnipeg. The Liberals are holding a dinner in the Granite Club Wednesday evening, to be addressed by Professor C. B. Gassons, who will discuss Regulation 17 and the recent Merchant Report. On Tuesday evening Liberal men and women of the University are the guests of the Toronto Young Women's Liberal Association at a tea in the Diet Kitchen.

Incidentally, the teas were in aid of the Residence Extension and because it was felt by the Victoria College authorities that many graduates had never seen Burwash Hall or Wymilwood, it was thought advisable to

VARSITY PROPHESED FAR BACK AS 1760

Interesting Fact Brought to Light in W. Stewart Wallace's Book

BY POET AT OXFORD

That as far back as 1760 the organization of a university on the shores of Lake Ontario was prophesied by an Oxford poet, in a lament on the death of George II, is a very interesting point brought to light in Chapter I of W. Stewart Wallace's "A History of the University of Toronto," just recently off the press.

The book, which is of great historical value to the University on account of its fearless presentation of actual data, tells the unique tale of the dream of 1760 which did not become a reality until 67 years later.

STUDENTS' HANDBOOK AVAILABLE NEXT WEEK

Elimination of Much Discussed Mottoes is Practically the Only Change

Speaking to the "Varsity" Thursday night, Mr. W. A. Donohue, B.A., editor of the Students' Handbook for 1927-28, announced that some copies of this publication would be available for distribution next week. Unavoidable delays with the printer had retarded their appearance, much to the editor's regret.

Questioned as to the contents, Mr. Donohue stated that no innovation had been made beyond the elimination of the mottoes which occasioned so much comment last year. He also announced that the earliest distribution would be made to first year men, which should be good news since they have always found the "Freshman's Bible" a veritable mine of useful information.

GRADS PRESENT BUST OF DEAN GALBRAITH

Marks Conclusion of Sixth Re-union of Engineering Association

800 GRADS SUBSCRIBE

Saturday at noon an impressive ceremony was conducted in the Mining Building, when a bronze bust of the late Dean Galbraith, the work of the Canadian sculptor Emanuel Hahn, was formally presented to the University of Toronto by the graduates of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. Mr. C. E. Macdonald of the class of 178, vice-president of the Engineering Alumni Association, and chairman of the Memorial Committee, made the presentation, which was formally received on behalf of the University by Rev. Dr. Canon Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors.

The occasion was the conclusion of the sixth re-union and annual meeting of the Engineering Alumni Association, at which the President, Sir Robert Falconer, and the Chancellor, Sir William Mulock, were present, both delivering short addresses. Mr. J. M. R. Fairbairn, president of the Association, and Dr. J. L. Morris, first graduate from the School of Practical Science in 1881, also took part in the proceedings.

Dean Galbraith was first "head" of the School of Applied Science and Engineering, and held the position of Dean from 1887 to 1912, during which period he accomplished a great deal for the Faculty. More than 800 graduates are responsible for the presentation.

The bust is a splendid piece of workmanship, and stands on a dark marble pedestal near the main entrance of the Mining Building. The casting and modelling was done in Toronto. The Galbraith Memorial Committee consists of C. E. Macdonald, chairman, W. L. Amos, T. H. Hogg, H. W. Tate and Prof. H. E. T. Houltaim.

Newman Alumni and Alumnae Are Guests of Undergraduates

Alumni and alumnae of Newman Club were the guests of the undergraduate members and of Rev. Fr. I. McNab, the chaplain, on Sunday afternoon.

Before benediction a special sermon for the occasion was preached by the Reverend Father John E. Burke, former chaplain of the club. He traced the history and development of the University from the founding of King's College, illustrating the motto "Crescit occulto velut arbor aëvo." In conclusion Father Burke referred to the pride of the members of Newman Club in having the University of Toronto as their Alma Mater.

sence, and in meeting faces vaguely familiar, many happy recollections of undergraduate days were brought back.

The speaker had as his subject the importance of internal secretions, and he told of the research work conducted in his department concerning the importance of the fluid found in growing follicles with respect to the menstrual cycle.

The third and last speaker, Sir Charles Sherrington, of Oxford University, England, referred to the prominent place the University of Toronto held in medical and physiological fields. "My equipment is excellent and your laboratories are not to be excelled anywhere," said Sir Charles. The speaker referred to the fact that as a physiologist he was extremely interested in the undergraduates, and as he walked around the campus he saw many excellent muscle-nerve preparation. "The University is what you undergraduates make it," he concluded, "and the progress which the University will make in the next 100 years depends entirely upon what you and your successors put into it."

Dean Primrose expressed appreciation for the very capable manner in which the three lectures had been presented, and he hoped that in the not far distant future the speakers would again honour the University with their presence.

CELEBRATIONS CLOSE WITH INSPIRING SERVICE

The University of Toronto would continue to grow as a tree of life. "The history of our University has been a tale of triumph over difficulties, but peace and courage mark our policy as we launch on another century of academic life."

For the service—the last gathering of the Celebration—the University Arena was crowded by students and the general public, and many were, necessarily, turned away from its doors.

The participants had evidently lost none of their undergraduate vigor.

The committee of arrangement comprised G. W. Rayner, J. C. Armer, G. D. Maxwell and C. A. Scott, chairman.

Charles Bodley and his orchestra dispensed the dinner dance music. Many times throughout the evening the orchestra played through the School song, while everyone sang loudly as they danced. This was broadcast along with the regular dance programme.

Some of the oldest and most prominent School graduates who had come from far and near were present. Among these was E. W. Stern 1884, now practicing in New York. A large proportion of the faculty were also present. Of the grads present it was easily seen that they had retained the happy art of enjoying themselves to the fullest degree.

DEPLORES PASSING OF OLD ROUGH HOUSE FROSH INITIATIONS

Article in "The New Student"
Claims Modern Methods
Lacking in Results

IRREVOCABLY GONE

Reminiscences of Old Methods
Describe "Rushes" in Lower Forms

Freshman initiation is discussed in the following timely and interesting if extreme and one-sided article in "The New Student":

Gone—irrevocably gone—is the old rough house hazing that once introduced the freshman to the unsuspected splendor of higher education. That was of the generation of our fathers when the entering student found himself suddenly involved in gang fights—affectionately remembered as "rushes"—bruised, clubbed, almost disrobed—but happy (if we are to believe reminiscences).

In this manner a fine test for manly vigor the scholar-to-be learned of the ideals of his prospective Alma Mater and of his insignificant place in the collegiate university. He was like a small child spanked and put to bed. Here is something of freshman greeting as practised in the Elysian days:

"The rushes between the two lower classes were fierce and uncompromising. . . . At Yale, the 'push rush' and the 'fence rush' were in favour at this period. They occurred in September the night before the beginning of the college year, and were the freshman's introduction to college life. A crowd of juniors, the traditional aides and abettors of all freshmen, would march under the windows of the newcomer, giving the Yale cheer, followed by the name of his class. This was an invitation to prepare for the rush, and an offer of moral support.

"The rush occurred on the Hopkins Grammar School lot. Each class, as one Yale man of that period has expressed it, 'was in the most perfect sardine formation. The members . . . pit their arms around each others' bodies. They backed each other up so perfectly that the different files not only stepped together but had to breathe together—that is, if there was opportunity to breathe at all. When the two classes, massed in this formation, met, the impact was terrific. Something had to give way. Generally it was the freshmen—unless their greater bulk or superior brawn outweighed their lack of experience.

U.C. Freshettes Entertained at Tea in Wymilwood

A very pleasant social hour was spent at the tea held in the Women's Union for the University College Freshettes. Judging by the hum of conversation during the passing of tea and cake many new acquaintances were formed.

Then followed the speeches of the candidates nominated for office for 3T1.

President—Anne Farwell (with-drawn), Jean Lyon, Grace Martin, Eleanor Smith, Adele Stratton.
Vice-President—Jean Robertson, Isabel J. Wells.
Secretary—Louise Miles, Mary Northway.
Treasurer—Margaret Donald, Florence Mathews.
S.A.C. Rep.—Isabel Brown, Peggy Whitely.

The voting is to take place in the Women's Common Room between 10 and 1.15 Tuesday morning, and all freshmen are urged to cast their votes.

OPENING LECTURE ON POETRY BY PROF. LIVINGSTONE

Metre and Rhyme Are Not Essential to Good Poetry But May Further Main Thought

POETRY SHOWS FEELING

Examples Chosen to Show How Prose May Be Elevated to Poetry by Feeling

Many writers have expressed their opinion on what poetry must be, and all agree that it must be passionate or full of feeling. Thus Professor R. H. Livingstone of Belfast University introduced his subject, "What is Poetry," the first of a series of lectures held in the Physics Building yesterday afternoon.

"Metre nor rhyme do not alone constitute poetry, as a great deal of the finest poetry is sheer prose," continued Professor Livingstone. Neither was it necessary for poetry to be true. Poetry was more or less the conveyance of the poet's feelings to the reader. Dr. Livingstone illustrated this point by taking four different scenes in all of which feeling, the most predominant element in poetry, was quite obvious. In Ruskin's picture of the Campanian around Rome, though written in prose, the writer cast the glamour of poetry over a scene in which the ordinary person would see nothing but a dismal pasture and a few ruined aqueducts. Victor Hugo described a scene composed of broken fragmentary Roman remains in Normandy and invested it with the feeling of the poet, picturing the mighty Caesar crouching in the rushes. Tolstoy's obituary scene, from a battle lends to the majesty of death the poetic touch. The homecoming of a traveller was somehow charged with feeling when depicted by Kipling, who gave a detailed account of the voyage.

Feeling or passion invariably generated heat which took shape in poetic diction. Hence metre and rhyme, though not essential to poetry, were excited by the passions in poetry. The distinction between imaginative and non-imaginative writing was poetry in the sense we know it with beauty added. Verse, if it had feeling already heightened and increased the action by the effect of having lines in certain shapes with rhythm.

"Poetry is feeling combined with beauty and applied nearly always to ordinary life, but in the hands of the poet things cease to be prosaic. Desdemona and Othello are like ordinary women only they have been placed in tragic situations. Hence poetry is experience felt, touched with beauty."

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE YEAR BOOK OFFER PRIZES

There will be an innovation in connection with the publication of St. Michael's College Year Book for 1928. Two substantial prizes, the amount of which have not as yet been set, will be awarded in the departments of poetry and art. Four additional prizes will be given for the best class writings.

Reception for U.C. Freshmen in U.C. Junior Common Room

A reception is being held to-night for all U.C. freshmen. The U.C. Literary and Athletic Society has prepared the programme. First year executive nominations, entertainments and refreshments are features of the evening. This is a great chance for freshmen to meet the other men in the year. The reception is being held in the U.C. Junior Common Room, and the programme starts at 8 p.m. sharp.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF YORE

The towers of University College are shown in the above illustration looking down over the famous Tawdrie Creek, the River of Immersion. The gallant creek failed to go on forever in the manner of a certain more celebrated brook, but it lives on in the old undergraduate epics as "Eddying Xanthos."

FORMAL OPENING OF THE LORETTO ABBEY COLLEGE

Address by Rev. Fr. McCorkell Precedes Presentation of the Students

The social season at Loretto Abbey College opened with a reception given by the school in honour of the Superior and the staff of the College. Miss Josephine Brophy, in a graceful little speech, presented the Superior with a gorgeous bouquet of roses, as a symbol of the good wishes of the school and their gratitude for kindness past and future.

A short programme of songs, recitations and a guitar solo by Miss Mae Rousseau was enjoyed, after which the remainder of the evening was devoted to a delightfully informal tea and social hour between the staff and students, when the freshettes for the first time met "The College."

The formal opening of the College year took place the next morning with a High Mass, sung by Rev. Fr. McCorkell, Superior of St. Michael's College, who extended greetings to the years and a welcome to first year especially, and stressed the ideal of College loyalty as the great factor in loyalty to our larger Alma Mater, the University.

Immediately following Mass, the formal presentation of the students to the staff took place, after which the annual time-table struggles began.

On Saturday afternoon the resident freshies were guests of the resident sophs at a theatre party.

NOTED TOC H WORKER WILL ADDRESS MEN AT NOON TO-DAY

New Movement a Memorial to Those Killed in War
Says Padre Ellison

WORLD-WIDE SOCIETY

ToC H an Attempt to Turn
War Events Into Some Spiritual Gain

Padre Ellison, who has been conducting a three weeks' campaign in Toronto in the interests of ToC H, will speak in the Lecture Room of Hart House to-day at 1.30 p.m.

In an interview Padre Ellison said: "In my opinion masses of men all over the world are crying out for something like ToC H, which is thoroughly unconventional, which is chock-full of all sorts of humour, and which is alive to the finger tips. ToC H is different from other societies in the fact that it has a definite but unconventional spiritual touch. It is based upon that greatest experience of all time, the great brotherhood of the trenches and the tradition of unselfish, unreckoning service which was shown at that time. ToC H is, I believe, the only thing which has come down fresh from the very heart of the great tragedy, and one feels that unless some attempt be made as to which ToC H is making to turn those tremendous events into spiritual gain of some sort, then the War was an unredeemed loss. ToC H is growing up all over the world as a living memorial to those millions of men who laid down their lives. Memorials of brass and stone are fine, but a world-wide society existing to perpetuate for all time that amazing spirit of comradeship and service is perhaps the finest memorial that any man could think of. ToC H in Canada has been in existence for the last four years. There are Houses at Toronto and Winnipeg and branches throughout the country."

Padre Ellison is one of the chief agents of the new movement, of which the Prince of Wales is patron and an active member.

The meeting will close at 1.55.

U.C. Players' Guild Welcomes Frosh of Both Sexes

The Players' Guild of University College is giving at its meeting a reception to men and women of the first year interested in amateur dramatics. On Wednesday at 4.30 in the Auditorium at 79 St. George Street tea will be served and all interested are cordially invited. A full turnout of present members is hoped for. There will be no programme for the afternoon, which will be given to conversation and short informal talks.

Many Rumours in Regard to the Carillon of Bells

Speculation has been rife over the week-end as to what the future arrangements for the playing of the carillon will be. Since the members of the University first tasted of the musical ambrosia, there has been an ever-growing feeling that the carillon playing should be made an institution without delay.

It is a general belief that one of two schemes will be adopted: Either a carillon may be engaged exclusively for the Soldiers' Tower Carillon, or a part-time operator receive the appointment. Just who will be the fortunate one is a dark question; everyone seems to know rather less about possible appointees than a Malay about skis. Just who will shoulder the financial obligation involved is rather difficult to say.

INTERFACULTY MEET SCHEDULED FOR WEDNESDAY NEXT

Sprint Events Promise Thrills with Olympic Candidates
Competing

EXPECT BIG CROWDS

All Faculties Well Represented with Stellar Track Men in All Events

The Interfaculty Track Meet which was to be held at the Stadium on Friday, October 7th, was postponed to Wednesday afternoon, October 12. A heavy rain which began early Friday morning rendered track conditions impossible. The southern end of the track was entirely submerged, and the officials were forced to call the meet off.

However, on Wednesday afternoon the students will have an opportunity of viewing Varsity's star track men in action. Olympic candidates, Canadian and Ontario champions, are numbered among the competitors. The sprint events, with Fitzpatrick, Russell, Mabee, and Pete Smith competing for the laurels will likely be the most thrilling items on the programme, but fast and close finishes are predicted in practically every event. The battle between Mitchell and Christie in the quarter should be worth going miles to see. Both men are exceptionally fast, and both certain Olympic candidates. Jack Walters of Listowel, the Ontario mile champion at 4.25 4-5, and runner-up in this event at the Canadian championships, has registered at Varsity and will likely carry the Blue and White colours in the mile run at the intercollegiate championships at Kingston. Listed among the numerous entries for the meet are: McKenzie, intercollegiate 120 yards high hurdles champion; J. Davenport, national and intercollegiate pole-vault champion; Finlayson, discus champion; Christie, a member of the 1924 Canadian Olympic team and three times quarter mile intercollegiate champion; Mitchell, national champion and intercollegiate record-holder for the half-mile; Russell, three times intercollegiate champion in the 100 yards and 220 yards; Fitzpatrick, U.S. interscholastic champion in the 9.9-10 secs. and the 220 yards in 21 4-5 secs.; Graham, interfaculty harrier and three mile record holder and three times winner of these distance events.

All faculties are well represented with stellar track men this fall, and the struggle for the interfaculty championship should be extremely exciting. No one faculty is considered to be outstanding over the others. For ex-

Every University student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct address and telephone number are entered upon his registration in the office of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. THE HANDBOOK IS PROMISED

The promise has been made that the students' handbook will appear next week. Practically every student makes regular use of the handbook at intervals throughout the year. From the freshmen it will receive an immediate welcome and will be of inestimable worth in helping to solve his or her "hundred and one" problems.

The handbook is of use to the freshman from the day of registration. His first few days at University are those of his greatest greenness and most numerous difficulties. Yet year after year the "Freshman's Bible" appears late. The printer, the advertisers and the binder are in turn blamed. Two weeks have already gone by and another will apparently pass before this year's book appears.

It seems a simple matter to set a dead-line for advertising and other copy sufficiently early to insure early publication. It also seems a simple matter to start two weeks' earlier to obtain advertising contracts in order to conform to the dead-line set. Yet it is never arranged in this way, and probably never will be.

THOUGHTS AND PATHS

When one looks at the grass in Queen's Park being worn away by the trampling of hundreds of feet, one wonders if students ever think when they are going from one building to another. It is difficult to believe that they do, since every spring four thousand square yards of sod are laid to replace that worn away by students during the academic year.

Last summer the Parks Department, hoping to preserve the lawns, made a gravel path from the Hart House gate to the band stands, but so far, in spite of the fact that the time from Hart House to Victoria College is lengthened by only a fraction of a second, and that a gravel path is a much more stable thoroughfare than soft turf, this path has not been used at all. The Department hoped that students would see the value of their plan, but evidently they have not done so.

It is highly desirable that students should think of this matter—should realize the beauty of the Park, which they can help to keep beautiful. But perhaps we are judging them too harshly. Perhaps they do think—but about subjects so idealistic that they do not notice such prosaic details as muddy shoes and trampled lawns.

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

ADVOCATES HONEST CRITICISM

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
On reading the report of Saturday's football game in to-day's issue of "The Varsity," I was very much surprised at the manner in which the Varsity team was criticised.

If a team must be criticised, and surely this is allowable, why cannot an "honest to goodness" criticism be made. On Saturday McGill proved conclusively that they were the better team, and the students and friends of Varsity know it. To read the criticism of the teams found in the "dailies" and then to read the criticism as found in "The Varsity" would make one wonder whether our Sports Editor was at the game. The students of Toronto "A" are behind their team whether it wins or loses, and they certainly are not afraid to acknowledge that weaknesses exist in the team.

When I make this complaint, I know I am voicing the feelings of many readers of "Varsity," and trust that in the future we may see more frank and candid criticisms of not only visiting teams, but our own teams.

Yours truly,

J. J. Hurley.

SUNDAY SERVICE AT CONVOCAATION HALL ENDS

Will Not Be Resumed Unless Undergraduate Interest Warrants

There will be no Sunday services in Convocation Hall this year. This was the startling statement made to "The Varsity" by the Rev. F. J. Moore yesterday afternoon. When asked the reason for this decision, Mr. Moore said that the services had been so poorly attended in recent years that the Committee was in danger of running into debt.

Many well known speakers had been brought to Toronto by the Sermons Committee, and sometimes expenses in connection with their visits were very high. Mr. Moore realized, however, that a large number of students had church affiliations in Toronto, and that therefore they could not be expected to attend services in Convocation Hall.

Because the University of Toronto is situated in a large city many of the students live at home, and of course have their church attachments firmly established. Then many of the churches make special efforts to attract the out of town students and welcome them to membership.

Mr. Moore was emphatic in saying that the services would be resumed if there were any desire for them on the part of the student body.

With the Theatres

UPTOWN—"CAMILLE"
We enjoyed "Camille" at the Uptown—almost.

It was an attempt to make a fine movie out of pure melodrama, melodrama from start to finish, without a pause, without a single touch of humour, and it succeeded—almost. The two principals did good acting, not superb acting, but good; the characters of the play were all possible and even realistic; the make-up of the play, the cutting, was tasteful and left plenty to the imagination, and the whole was well put together; but, somehow, we did not weep when the heroine died: no one could have. It reminded us of "Way Down East."

Norma Talmadge, who played the title role, was beautiful, and beautifully dressed, but I am afraid that she took just a little more of the play than was necessary. Gilbert Roland, who played opposite, did a difficult part rather well, but he overdid it a little. He is very good to look upon, and unfortunately he knows it; leave your sense of humour in the kitchen cupboard if you see "Camille." Maurice Costello as the hero's father was quite good, and so was "Camille's" little maid, but the rest were swallowed up. They didn't have a chance.

The story is of a little girl in a Parisian slum. Her mother and father are the worst types that a great city can breed. She is beautiful, and a nobleman fancies her. He offers her flowers, clothes, jewels; her parents beat her, and the inevitable happens. Instead of a subtitle here, a lily appears and fades out into a red rose.

A year, and she is glorious, the idol of rich men, the most brilliant butterfly in that brilliant society which may really exist or which may be only a creature of the movies. Then at last she falls in love, really in love. He is young, handsome, and almost impossibly volatile: His name is Armand and he has no sense of humour. Then follow passionate love scenes, kisses (much too many of them), and the very obvious happens. They are married, but his father comes to plead with her to give Armand up to save his chances in life. She does, making him think she was playing with him. Armand is insane with grief and later insults her publicly. She dies; her effects are sold to pay her creditors, and he buys her diary. There are thunderstorms at appropriate moments. That is all.

Jack Arthur's orchestra put on a show in the intermission which was, we think, better than the average vaudeville. The music was good, and though the voices (except 'one soprano) were not above the average they were kept subdued. There was the usual acrobatic dancing, little songs, etc., and a good pair of mannequins. Best of all a Miss Caroline Diamond gave a harp solo. She has not the style of a great musician, but she surely does know how to play a harp. For the first time we heard jazz on the harp, and we really liked it. The whole show was in quite good taste.

Will Rodgers conducted a scenic tour of Ireland, and made rather amusing the type of thing that is usually gaudy.

If you go to the Uptown you will enjoy the evening and your good taste will not be offended, but don't bring your sense of humour.

THE BRIDE—EMPIRE

The new Empire company presents this week what is purported to be a mystery farce, but the mystery is of the usual detective magazine obviousness, and the force only too patently forced. Arthur Allard, who was so genuinely fine in "The Outsider," makes a somewhat energetic attempt to fill the role of a meticulous elderly bachelor, Mortimer Travers, who with his younger brother, Wilson, played by Robert Leslie, is innocently precipitated into a situation at once complicated and compromising, when a particularly attractive young lady, fleeing in her bridal outfit from the altar, decides to make of the bachelor's home a refuge. The Bride, Edith Taliaferro, with very efficient charm, establishes herself indefinitely as a member of the household—and then (oh, gross ingratitude) the "joelle" are gone! Missing right out of the

And here is a new contributor entitled Johann who is regarding affairs with a sympathetic eye:

The red and pink gowns at the dedication of the Carillon caused much comment. Some of the girls from Household Science, who know so much about these things, expressed the opinion that the pink part was originally white and that the red part had run into it from washing. Others from the same faculty declared that those gowns were never washed. It's problems of this nature that the girls from Household Science are constantly called upon to solve. Is it any wonder some of them crack under the strain.

Seeing that Hart House has so many nice new bells, wouldn't it be a good idea to present one of them to Trinity College to replace that old train bell they ring every night at 6 o'clock.

Never mind, girls, now that the first couple of dances are over, the smell of moth balls on the boy's dress suits won't be quite so bad.

Dear Kat,

There is rank injustice afoot in this University. A freshette was heard to say the other day, "I don't think it's any fair at all, I can't find any of my sections." If's high time this University organized some kind of a Comforting Committee.

Yours to be a comfortor.

INTERFACULTY TRACK MEET AT VARSITY STADIUM WEDNESDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Outside of the last period rally by Balmy Beach, when they tore the Varsity line to pieces and scored twelve points, the local entry made a wonderful attempt to stop the Beach's rush to another championship. At that they certainly put a slightly different aspect on the situation in the senior O.R.F.U. Harry Hobbs' team are far from being winners yet, though they are certainly heavy favourites. The Orphans meet Hamilton once and Camp Horden twice before they clash with the Beach's again, and if everything goes as it should they should be ready by that time to give the East Enders a merry old battle for the game and possibly for the title.

The Intermediate Intercollegiate Track Meet will be held in the Varsity Stadium on Thursday, Oct. 13. This is a new departure in Intercollegiate circles. McMaster, Western and O.A.C. will be the competing teams. Track teams from these three institutions have held joint track meets before, but this is the first time that the meet has been held under the auspices of the C.I.A.U. The Senior Meet has long been one of the features of Intercollegiate competition, and it is expected that the Intermediate Meet will become an annual fixture. It is quite probable that in future years Varsity will enter a second team in the Intermediate division.

Vic. Tennis Team Probably Composed of Lower Years

The Vic. Women's Tennis Tournament this year has been one of the most hotly contested fights ever known in the history of the ancient and honourable sport. Ideal weather and an energetic curator have combined to drive the contestants out onto the courts every day and every hour. It is ever rumoured that two worthies arose in the dewy morning at seven o'clock or thereabouts and stole out to play their match by the light of the rising sun. Many surprises have come out of the fray. One by one the old stand-ups have fallen before the onslaught of the Freshies and Sophs. Thus do the ancient seniors and studious juniors fall before the youthful dauntlessness of fresh material. As far as we can prophesy the whole Vic. team will be made of new—or nearly new—material this year.

BASKETBALL PROSPECTS BRIGHT IN ALL FACULTIES

Turnout of Women Players Raises Hopes of Fans for Championship Team

Once more the lure of the basketball draws many co-eds out onto the courts. In response to playing notices posted among the various bulletin boards in the various colleges, literally flocks of would-be stars swarmed to practice at Vic., where they have two teams, a junior and senior, and the interest is very keen. About twenty hopeful freshies turned out to their first practice yesterday, and quite delighted the heart of the coach by their energetic and wholehearted scrambling after the ball. Most of the girls who played on the senior team are out again this year and promise great things. After working together last year they are able to concentrate on the fine points of the game, and we look for some real basketball in the Interfaculty games.

That small but energetic group of girls, the M-decettes, are out again practising and working up a team. Nothing daunted by having lost their backbone and star, Marian Hilliard, they are going ahead with zeal and enthusiasm, striving to produce the finest Med team yet in existence.

U.C. as usual has a crowd of high school stars from which to select a team. Last year's champions expected to be out on the floor again this year almost in full force and to drive through their opponents in their usual dashing fashion.

All things considered, there should be no trouble in producing another championship team from Varsity this year.

St. Hilda's College Holds Opening Meeting of Year

The opening College meeting of the year was held last night at St. Hilda's, with the new head of college, Miss Finlay, in the chair. Upon conclusion of the business, Miss Finlay addressed a few remarks to the freshies concerning the rules and regulations of the College. This was followed by a most interesting, if somewhat lengthy, W.A. meeting.

After welcoming the freshies, the President, Miss Fraser, called upon Miss Summerhayes, who explained the part of the students in W.A. work. This was followed by reports from the treasurer, the head of Social Service, the delegate to the Local Women's Council of the S.C.M. held at Oakville the first week-end of the term, and the two delegates to the S.C.M. conference held at Elgin House last September.

VARSITY'S SHOWING A SURPRISE TO FANS

O.R.F.U. Tussle on Saturday Pleases Varsity's Supporters by Upsetting Odds

THREE CASUALTIES

On Saturday the Varsity O.R.F.U. team gave the fans at Oakwood Stadium a big surprise by holding the present title holders until six minutes of time. The odds were that Balmy Beach would win by twenty points, but the local entry upset the dope and upset it badly, all and sundry Varsity supporters being more than pleased.

Coach Pearson and his proteges are quite confident of coming out on the big end of the score when these two teams again meet because by then they will have had several games behind them and hence become a more smooth running machine. New plays will also be added to those in use, and stronger interference developed.

Three casualties are chalked up to Saturday's encounter, one of which may be serious as "Gay" Kirkpatrick is using crutches for the time being on account of a twisted ankle and torn tendons. He sustained this injury about half-way through the second quarter, but pluckily finished the game. As a result of this accident, Gay may not be able to play against Hamilton this Saturday, but the doctors assured him that if he is very careful this week, he may get into the game. Gray was another of the injured, he being out with a bad knee, but it will not keep him from lining up against the Tigers. Little has a charley-horse which is letting him out of practices for a while, but in some circles it is alleged that a sprained thumb is the reason. Little apparently objected strenuously to some of the tactics of the opposing team.

With only a week until the next game, "Mike" is taking no chances of this game to the Hamilton Tigers, and the boys will have to be on their toes all the time. They are more than fortunate to have the Intercollegiate team to practice with, so should be in better condition and better all round.

U.C. RUGBY

Practice in uniform for Junior and Senior teams on back campus to-day at 2.30 o'clock.

TROUBLE OF 1895 TREATED IN HISTORY BY W. S. WALLACE

Interesting Treatment Given of James Tucker's Suspension from University Privileges

PRESIDENT LOUDON REGIME

Tucker Completed His Course at Stanford University, Becoming a Poet

Ever since 1895, when University Council suspended from lectures James Tucker, editor-in-chief of "The Varsity," controversy has existed over the rights and wrongs of the rebellion. The following is the view of events taken by Professor W. Stewart Wallace in his "History of the University of Toronto," published for the Centenary by the University Press:

"No man ever had the interests of the University of Toronto more sincerely at heart than James Loudon; and the services which he rendered the University become the more impressive in proportion as one probes deeper into the history of his regime. His educational policies were almost invariably sound and far-seeing. But he lacked conspicuously the faculty of conciliating the goodwill either of the able, the University staff, or the undergraduates. Frequently he was blamed for things for which he was not responsible; sometimes also he was not happy in his methods of administration. His idea of discipline was perhaps too rigid and uncompromising. In any case, his conduct of affairs resulted in repeated troubles during his regime, and on two occasions in widespread revolts against his authority."

"The first of these occurred in 1895. During the winter of 1894-5 there appeared in the Varsity various articles criticizing in an insubordinate manner some recent appointments to the University staff, and also certain actions of the president and the University Council in regard to the Programme or the Political Science Club. Finally, on January 18, 1895, two days after the appearance of an especially objectionable article, the University Council passed a resolution demanding an apology from the editor of the Varsity. After an interview with the president, the editor of the Varsity, Mr. Joseph Montgomery, agreed to offer the required apology; but when this was submitted to the editorial board of the Varsity, the latter refused to publish it. Montgomery then resigned, and his place was taken by James Alexander Tucker, who had been editor during the previous term. Tucker, when required to publish an apology, declined to do so; and he was thereupon suspended by the University Council from the privileges of the University. On January 31 a mass meeting of the undergraduates was held, and a statement of their grievances was drawn up. This appeared in the Toronto Globe of February 2. Thereupon a number of letters appeared in the public press dealing with various phases of the dispute, and among these was a letter from Professor William Dale, the professor of Latin in University College, which contained charges that improper influences had been exerted in connection with the appointment of the Rev. George M. Wrong, the son-in-law of Edward Blake, as professor of history in 1894. This letter, which appeared on February 9, led to the dismissal of Professor Dale by the government on February 15, and the resignation of Mr. (now Professor) F. B. R. Hellens, the lecturer in Latin, out of sympathy with Professor Dale. The revolt had thus spread from the undergraduate body to the teaching staff. On the evening of February 15 a mass meeting of the undergraduates was held, and with only four dissentient voices voted to abstain from lectures until Professor Dale was reinstated. This famous "strike" lasted for a few days, and then gradually died out. But the whole episode had been so serious that the government deemed it wise to

S.M.C. Student Council Holds Inaugural Meeting

The initial meeting of the Student Council of St. Michael's College was held Monday night. Mr. E. J. Hartmann, president of 2T8, occupied the chair.

The greater part of the meeting was given over to a discussion of a tentative agenda for the year's activities. Plans for a freshman's reception were laid, and arrangements were made for the election of officers in first and second years. According to indications a number of smokers will be held and an extensive programme of inter-year debating will be carried out.

Genuine enthusiasm featured the discussion, and it is evident that the members are out to create a really live atmosphere about St. Michael's this year.

appoint a commission to inquire into the causes of dissatisfaction.

"This commission, the chairman of which was the Hon. (afterwards Sir) Thomas Wardlaw Taylor, chief justice of Manitoba, sat from April 8 to April 23, and heard evidence from all who were willing to appear before it. The students were represented as counsel by Mr. (now the Hon.) W. R. Riddell, the University Council by the Hon. S. H. Blake, and certain professors by Mr. H. J. Scott. In their published report, the commissioners found that 'there had been a want of tact in dealing with the students at certain points during these troubles,' but they found also that the charges and complaints made either were too vague and indefinite or wholly failed from lack of proof. They approved of the suspension of Tucker and the dismissal of Professor Dale; and they did not hesitate to make it clear that there had existed on the part of the students 'a misconception as to the scope and proper construction of the statutes regulating discipline in the University.' On the whole, the verdict of the commissioners was a distinct triumph for the University authorities, and it put an effective end to the trouble."

"The causes of the trouble, it is true, are to this day somewhat obscure. But there is no proof that the defiance of the authorities by the undergraduates was instigated from outside, or even that they were aided and abetted in their course. The affair was, without doubt, largely due to the effervescence of youth. Goldwin Smith, who appeared before the commission, made an interesting point when he observed that the movement originated among members of the political science course, and suggested that it was due to budding politicians who were essaying a first flight in

LECTURES ON PORTRAITURE OF EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

This Period Incomparable With Modern Art in Technique

"British Portrait Painters of the Eighteenth Century" was the subject of a lecture delivered by Mr. Wyley Grier last night at the Art Gallery.

Grace, artificiality, and flattery are the characteristics of the period. The "great trumvirate"—Reynolds, Gainsborough and Romney, dominated the field of art at the time, but later critics have discovered the works of powerful contemporaries, such as Raeburn, Hopper and Lawrence.

Reynolds held his own among the most cultured of the period, and gained the jealousy in this field of Dr. J. Sam Johnston. In portrait painting he established a record for production, finishing about one hundred and fifty a year, with the aid of six assistants. Unfortunately his colours were ephemeral, and nine out of ten of his pictures have had to be retouched. Gainsborough is an extremely great master of technique. Whatever comparison may be made between modern and 18th century artists in regard to artistic ability, none can be made in the field of technique. Romney is especially famous for his portraits of women. He shows great courage in adopting new poses and new backgrounds.

Portrait painters seek likeness—likeness in an exalted sense and not the likeness the camera can recall. The poor painter has to fight a battle equal to the Battle of Marathon, against the ideas of the sitter who brings his latest photo for comparison with the picture, and against the critic, who should be symbolized by a pair of scissors. The successful portrait painter—the painter who is worth his salt—is an instinctively valuable historian and a biographer into the bargain.

popular agitation. It is an interesting fact that at least two of the ring-leaders in the movement have since achieved great distinction in political life—the Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, the present prime minister of Canada, and the Right Hon. Sir Hamar Greenwood, lately secretary of state for Ireland in the British Government. Tucker, who went to Leland Stanford University to complete his university course, became, curiously enough, a poet and litterateur; and his sole memorial is a volume of Poems, published by his friends, with a brief memoir by Mr. Arthur Stringer, shortly after his premature death in 1903.

Ten years later Loudon's admirers who were essaying a first flight in a.m. and no human beings were in sight, only policemen, milkmen, and many cats. The customs of the latter creatures lead us to believe that they are merely humans with fur and without scruples. We sat down under a lamp-post and composed the following sonnet:

Oh, cats have no conventions; they are not Creatures who fear the critic's able tongue.

They know no deep and introspective thought,
And now their praise should properly be sung.

A simple furry cat that still believes
The best of joys lie hidden in the night;

No pale remorse, no gusty sorrow grieves
Them with remembering in morning's light.

Alas, it is a pity thus to pose
And call oneself the noble name of Cat

When one has never picked a crimson rose
And felt its thorn ten seconds after that.

So, let's steal home and pray we may inherit
No feline whiskers, but a tomcat's spirit.

TROUBLE OF 1895
TREATED IN HISTORY

tration was troubled by a second and similar insurrection among the undergraduates, which resulted also in the appointment of a commission on university affairs. A somewhat irregular award of a coveted university scholarship in 1904 resulted in charges of favouritism being made in the press against the authorities by C. R. Jamieson, one of the editors of Varsity. There were on this occasion no resignations from the University staff, though dissensions among the members of the teaching staff were only too apparent; and there was no 'strike' of the undergraduates. But the charges made were deemed sufficiently serious to warrant the appointment of a select committee of the Senate to investigate them. This committee found that, although irregularities had occurred in connection with the award of scholarships, the president was in no way responsible for them; and it recommended that, in order to free him from the burden of work to which he was subjected, he should be relieved of all professorial duties and be permitted to confine himself to the task of administration alone. It was recommended also that he should be given larger and more clearly defined powers, and that provision should be made for a closer supervision of both financial and educational details in the administration of the University.

"Both the commission of 1895 and the select committee of the Senate in 1905 found substantially in Loudon's favour; and there can be no doubt that in both cases the findings were right. Loudon, with his grave and reticent manner, was repeatedly held responsible for things of which he was not guilty, and of which he sometimes had no knowledge. Yet the fact remained that his regime had been marked, on two occasions, by serious disturbances within the University; and it cannot be denied that, from first to last, he was not popular among the undergraduates. Undergraduate opinion is often singularly ill-informed and capricious. It is influenced often by all sorts of immaterial details. In Loudon's case it was based on a complete ignorance of his very real services to the University; and an equally complete misunderstanding of the fine points of his character. But the undergraduates of to-day are the graduates of to-morrow, and Loudon's failure to win the affection and loyalty of the students of the University during his regime was, to say the least, regrettable."

IN WOMEN'S DEBATING

Society Organized Two Years Ago, Now Holds Unique Place in College

FIRST MEETING THURSDAY

Among the various organizations of interest to women at University College is the Woman's Debating Society. Organized two years ago by a group of undergraduates who were keenly interested in debating, the society is gradually attaining a unique place in college activities. At its meetings (which are carried out informally along parliamentary lines), when the principal speakers have finished, each member has the privilege of giving her views on whatever subject has been under discussion. In the way the society serves as a preparatory organization for the Women's Intercollegiate and Intercollegiate debates, which are the big thing in women's debating circles.

The first meeting of the Debating Society will be held next Thursday at the Women's Union at 4 p.m. There will probably be no debate at the meeting, but instead it will be devoted to business and the planning of the year's programme in which each member may have a share. It is expected that there will be an Intercollegiate Debate towards the end of November.

At these debates material for the Intercollegiate Debates will be brought forward and given a chance to develop. It is expected that the women's debating team from Queen's will contend with Varsity on November 23. For this reason it is hoped there will be a large turnout at Thursday's meeting.

CLUB ACTIVITIES ARE RESUMED AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Oratorical Aspirants Are Urged to Submit Their Names So That Elections May Follow

Politics and world current events will comprise the main topics for discussion at the meetings of the Quindecim Club of St. Michael's during the coming session, according to Mr. Edward J. Hartmann, the president-elect of that organization. The Quindecim since its formation six years ago has proved itself of inestimable value in fostering interest among its members in affairs of world-wide import. It is the intention of the incoming executive to invite a speaker each fortnight to address the members, after which an informal discussion will be held.

Oratory will come into its own with the opening meeting of the Oratorical Club this week. In an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday Mr. Thomas E. Mooney, the president, stated there are seven vacancies to be filled this year. Aspiring members are advised to get in touch with him as soon as possible with a view to their election. The purpose of the club is not to furnish finished speakers with another opportunity for displaying their skill but rather to encourage and develop hitherto hidden talent.

DEPLORES THE PASSING OF FORMER ROUGH HOUSE

"The fence rush" sometimes followed the "push rush." In this the freshmen, also coached by the juniors, formed on the sidewalk in front of the Grammar School, two or three abreast, and tried to march to Elm Street, one block distant. During the migration the sophomores descended upon them and threw as many of them as possible into the street. The freshmen clung to the fence—and the fence usually followed the freshmen out into the middle of the thoroughfare."

This sort of reminiscence merely hints at the tramping, bruising, scratching and tearing. But it is enough. The day it represents is definitely gone, in defiance of all attempts at resuscitation. Perhaps the police, who have learned to use night sticks and tear bombs, with effect, and who fail to distinguish between college and any other sort of riots, are responsible for the present horseplay that passes as hazing.

But there is a newer and more genteel hazing in vogue now, not the work of sophomores, but of the universities themselves, who dignify their activity with the designation "Freshman Week." The freshman, once belabored with fence rails, barrel staves and fists, is now bludgeoned into conformity with lectures on the freshman's duty toward his university, instruction in note-taking, song services, socials, mental tests, and rallies. From the university president he hears a lot of words on the grown-up status and self-reliance of the new student, statements belied by the very nature of the programme; from the deans he hears the same, with perhaps something additional on the theme of a sound mind in a sound body; from the campus pastor he hears of "spiritual values"; from the president of the student body he hears of the fine undergraduate traditions that should be respected, with a postscript on the great value of extra-curricular activities as preparation for life; from the captain of the football team he learns of fine undergraduate traditions that must be respected; from the editor of the campus paper he hears of more glories of alma mater, and another blurb on extra-curricular activities, and so on, ad nauseum.

This process of freshman bewilderment is gaining converts at a rate that is alarming, especially because most of the institutions employing this polite hazing appear at sea regarding their reasons for following the new custom in sheep-like formation. The alleged purpose of Freshman Week is to assist the entering student to early adaptation to his new environment. The freshman must be on the campus several days earlier than the other students, and is then processed. But why?

REORGANIZATION MEETING OF VICTORIA ORCHESTRA

Plan to Hold Fall Concert in Burwash Dining Hall on December 10th

A reorganization meeting of the Victoria College Orchestra, which was held in Annesley Hall Monday from 4-6 p.m., was well attended. The large number of new members were welcomed by the acting president, Bob Wilson, '28, and Miss Addison presided at the tea table.

Most of last year's players were present and enough newcomers to more than offset the vacancies caused by graduation. A good representation of instruments promised a well balanced orchestra. It is planned to concentrate upon work this fall and hold a concert about December 10 in Burwash dining hall.

little relation between expressed purpose and professed results. "It is heralded by many as the best means which has been found to bridge the chasm between school and community life and college life." Which sounds well. Consider now the vagueness of the advantages named by the institutions which answered the questionnaire:

"Gets students adjusted earlier, freshmen 'get going' better; beneficial to freshmen and old students; less homesickness and better spirit among freshmen; students get acquainted with college before upper classmen come; it is possible to put in material that would otherwise be crowded out."

What of the rough-house methods? The student "became adjusted earlier" and "got going better" mainly through sophomore propulsion. But he was left on his own, and if he was not altogether the master of his fate, he at least to some extent was the captain of his soul. He learned by experience and not by unrelated and forgotten lectures on the care of notebooks, the glories of traditions and the desirability of writing home at frequent intervals. Perhaps he was literally beaten into his place, but he would probably much prefer that to hearing the counterpart of the earlier football captain tell him politely what he must do. Left alone, to find his way about and to adjust himself, he is more likely to bridge the gap than he is under the present method of lecture-hazing, and be better off for having adjusted himself as an individual rather than as one part of a standardized whole.

What is it all worth? One school authority answered, "There are no advantages; it merely makes the teachers come back earlier." And he might have added that it brings the inevitable ennui one year closer.

TOC H IS MEMORIAL TO THOSE WHO FELL IN THE GREAT WAR

Origins, Aims and Aspirations
Subject of Padre Ellison's
Address

BROTHERHOOD OF MEN

Name Derived From Initials
Denoting Talbot House
By Signallers

The origin, aims and aspirations of Toc H were explained to students in a short address by Padre L. H. Ellison, in the Lecture Room of Hart House, yesterday afternoon.

A great international family of men, though born during the world war, is not composed entirely of ex-serve men but includes every class of man, of all ages, banded together under the great traditions of brotherhood and service.

Toc H takes its name from Talbot House, the initials of which in army signallers' terms have been adopted as the title of this world-wide organization, which originated at Talbot House in Poperinghe, eight miles behind the impenetrable "Wipers Salient"—a house known and loved by many thousands of Canadians from 1915 to the end of the war, its initials converted, in their own way, by army signallers into "Toc H." Talbot House was for many a man (as Punch described it) "a little corner of Heaven in the hell of officers' and men's lives." In 1919 many of those who had known the Old House began to get together, as they felt that the spirit of those days was too fine a thing to lose. The present world movement is the growth of eight years, from that tiny beginning. To quote the patron again, "We are standing at the beginning of a great movement which will remain young when the youngest of us here grow old."

Toc H is not "just another organization," but was founded and is maintained to supplement and reinforce all such existing organizations as are in existence for the good of the community.

It is a living memorial to those who fell in the great war, or who have

SEASON OPENS TO-DAY

The first concert of the Toronto Conservatory Orchestra, given Tuesday afternoon, reminds us that this branch of the University of Toronto is also getting into full swing for the year's work. The symphony orchestra needs no advertising among the University students, but there are perhaps other advantages which are not fully appreciated. During the season, between two and three hundred concerts and recitals are given by students and professional musicians, where the most important works of the great masters can be heard. Tickets may be obtained by applying for them at the Conservatory before the concerts.

The first event of the season is a piano recital by Ivy Brunsell, A.R.M.C., L.R.A.M., assisted by Myrtle Hare, L.T.C.M., contralto, in the Conservatory Hall, Wednesday, October 12.

This concert should provide an event.

Intercollegiate Team Chosen from Winners

EXPECT RECORDS

All Faculties Evenly Matched

Many graduates expressed keen regret, before they left, that they were unable to see the Varsity track stars in action. The high calibre of the contestants has never been surpassed in an Interfaculty Meet. To-day Canadian national champions, Ontario champions and runners up will battle for places on Varsity's Intercollegiate team, which goes to Kingston a week from Friday.

The only track event in which Varsity felt insecure for the Intercollegiate Meet was the mile. "Mo" Mitchell, who used to run this distance, has switched to the "quarter" and "half," but when Jack Walters of Liverpool appeared on the track Monday night and declared he had just registered there was much cheering. Jack Walters won the mile championship of Ontario this summer in time six seconds faster than the Intercollegiate record. Unfortunately he has just had an operation. Whether or not it has done much harm to his running will be determined to-day.

The people who have been trying to dump out a winner for the hundred and twenty will get their answer this afternoon. Any time men like Russell, Fitzpatrick and Mabee came together there's bound to be some smoke raised. Men who do the century in 10 seconds that are few and far between—Varsity has three of them.

To-day will be the last time that many men on the Intercollegiate team will compete here in a University meet. McKenzie, Christie, and Russell all graduate this year. The coaches are consequently on the sharp lookout for new material to take these stars' places.

Each faculty will be striving hard to win the team championship. The track material is evenly spread over all the faculties this year, and a great team battle is looked for. Every man reported to be in the best shape, and many new records are sure to be added to the books.

U.C. Women's Common Room Gets New Chairs and Drapes

The hope that the Common Room of U.C. would be renovated is finally being realized. Last year a plan for a "new" Common Room was seen, but days passed and nothing came of it until at length students decided that their hopes were in vain. But for the past few days there has been great activity in the Common Room, and great was the surprise when nineteen new Windsor chairs, two new arm chairs and sand and blue draperies appeared. And more, there are to be new electric fixtures.

Monkey Wrench Still In Clock Works

Tempus Fugit! The hands of the clock on the Memorial Tower have moved! True, they only moved two minutes and then, apparently losing hope in their race with time, stopped dead, but nevertheless, they have moved.

Trying to account for this difference in opinion between our two dollar fingers and this prominent timepiece, "The Varsity" ascended to the top of the Tower to get at the root of the trouble. It seems that a fractious pendulum is causing all the trouble.

TWO AWARDED IN ONTARIO

Thirteen Varsity Men Have Won
This Scholarship From 1904 to 1927

According to an announcement made by the Registrar, the date up to which applications for the Rhodes scholarship will be received has been extended to November 15th, 1927.

Two scholarships are awarded every year in Ontario under the provisions of the Rhodes Trust. "Furtherance of understanding and co-operation among English-speaking peoples" was Mr. Rhodes' object in providing for representatives from every state in the empire as well as from every province in the Dominion. Following are the particular conditions:

1. Candidates must be British subjects, with at least five years' domicile in Canada, and unmarried. They must have passed their nineteenth, but not have passed their twenty-fifth birthday, on October 1st of the year for which they are elected.

2. Candidates must be at least in their Sophomore Year at some recognized degree-granting University or College of Canada, and (if elected) complete the work of that year before coming into residence at Oxford.

3. Candidates may compete either in the Province in which they have acquired any considerable part of their educational qualification, or in the Province in which they have their ordinary private domicile, home or residence.

In each Province there is a Committee of Selection, appointed by the Trustees, in whose hands the nominations will rest. The Secretary of the Committee of Selection for Ontario is D. R. Michener, Esq., Barrister, Continental Life Building, Toronto.

The Committee of Selection are instructed to bear in mind the suggestions of Mr. Rhodes, who wished that, in the choice of his Scholars, regard should be had to:

(a) Force of character, devotion to duty, courage, sympathy, capacity for leadership.

(b) Ability and scholastic attainments.

(c) Physical vigor, as shown by participation in games or in other ways.

Every candidate for a Scholarship is required to furnish to the Committee of Selection for his Province the following:

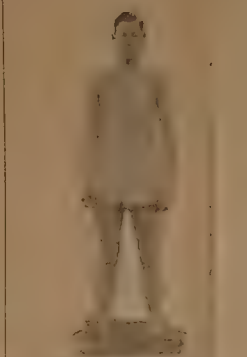

(a) A certificate of age.

(b) A photograph preferably unmounted and not larger than 4 x 2 inches.

(c) A written statement from the President or Acting President of his College or University to the effect

Ties

SHEARS ARE WIELDED

Since by order of the Caput last year the strenuous initiations or old have passed into memory, a new spectacle greets the eye of the observant on the Campus. Short green ties, short yellow ties, in short all ties are short! As an instrument of Freshman rule enforcement the shears have supplanted the barrel stove. Why freshmen abhor cut-off cravats and why their elders view them with delight seems to be for the same reason, viz., general principles. A representative of "The Varsity" questioned a score of frosh on the campus yesterday. One budding medico was resentful over the fact that his tie had been shorn because he had no cigarettes, and that since he had secured a package no one had wanted any. A canny "chemical" from the "Little Red School House" had forestalled all misadventures by the simple expedient of using the scissors on his own emerald emblem. Many underwent the guillotine for wearing their ties tucked in, while a somewhat smaller number suffered the penalty for obeying the rules and having them out. U.C. frosh have suffered the most by reason of the peculiar attractiveness of the red and

HART HOUSE QUARTET GIVES THREE CONCERTS

Convocation Hall

Of special interest to students is the announcement that the Hart House String Quartet have arranged to give a series of three concerts along with two other concerts, one by the Flonzaley Quartet of New York and the other by the Hersage Quartet of San Francisco, all of which are to be given at Convocation Hall.

This series is to be provided for the students at the extremely small cost of one dollar, offering a very unusual opportunity to hear some of the best chamber music on the continent.

Tickets for these concerts may be purchased at either the Hart House or the Toronto Conservatory of Music on College Street.

New Head of Student Government Had Many Activities While An Undergraduate

PROMINENT AS DEBATER

Has Been Chairman of the Advisory Board of Student Publications
During the Past Year

The President for the year 1927-28 of the Students' Administrative Council of the University was elected yesterday evening at a meeting in Hart House to the person of William A. Donahue, B.A. '27. The new President succeeds Joseph E. McCully, B.A. now Headmaster of Piping College at Newmarket. The candidates for office must be graduates of the University proceeding to a higher degree. The S.A.C. is the student governing body of this University.

Mr. Donahue is eminently qualified for the post on being a graduate of St. Michael's, and now proceeding to a Master's of Arts in the College. He is also in his first year at Ossington Hall. The new President is a native of Sarina and a graduate of the Sarina Collegiate Institute.

During his undergraduate career, Mr. Donahue occupied many and various positions in College and University activities. He has been a member of "The Varsity" staff, and was also manager of the St. Michael's Year Book. At present he is engaged in editing the Students' Handbook. During the past year he has been Chairman Advisory Board of Student Publications.

As a debater "Bill" Donahue has long been prominent. Last year he took part, with Premier King, in the famous debate on the Imperial Conference. He also attacked Mr. Ferguson's policies in the well known "liquor debate" early in the fall. Mr. Donahue has spoken as well in Intercollegiate debates. In St. Michael's he was president of the Quindrum Club, and was also president of the St. Michael's S.A.C. He is a prominent member of the Newman Club and resides there. His politics are known to be Liberal.

MYSTERY RELIGIONS LIKE CHRISTIANITY

Says Professor Angus of Sydney, Australia, in Lecture at Trinity

ASSURE IMMORTALITY

"One could not see how any other but the mystery religions would have won the adherence of the Western world, had it not been for the organizing genius of the bishops of Rome and the firm stand taken by Paul in the missionary question," stated Professor Samuel Angus of St. Andrew's College, Sydney, Australia, in delivering the first of two lectures on "The Mystery Religions," in Trinity College Library yesterday afternoon. In spite of the incalculable advantages possessed by Christianity, mystery religions had almost been adopted as a dominating force by the West, and their great strength was shown in their ability to connect their greatest rival—Christianity—into a mystery religion like themselves.

Christianity, rich in its own symbolism, had not borrowed symbols from the mystery religion, but it had taken

UNDERGRADUATE EFFICIENCY

The fact that the students' handbook will appear late this year, as in other years, was lamented in these columns yesterday. To-day we publish, amongst our correspondence, a letter purporting to tell "the other side" of the story.

The editor of this year's handbook, no doubt, has handled his job as well as any other student would have done, and probably much better than ninety-nine per cent. of the undergraduate body could have done. The fact remains, however, that the handbook is not yet distributed.

That there is practically a complete turnover in the student body every five years necessitates an inexperienced body of undergraduate officialdom. No sooner does an undergraduate official begin to learn his "job" than he is promoted to a higher position or his term of office comes to an end. To the professional graduate and the unsympathetic undergrad his work must appear poor unless the official be one of the occasional few who make a better job of their task than their predecessors.

We emphasize the fact that the handbook is usually late in the hope that someone will set a precedent for early publication, and that this precedent will be established by the present editor's immediate successors.

LECTURES "OUT OF DOORS"

It has been pointed out at a recent lecture that the original meaning of the term "forest" is simply "out of doors." With this in mind it would appear to the casual observer that there are many students at the University of Toronto desirous of attending lectures "in the forest" or "out of doors." Certainly anyone passing through the halls of many of the University buildings, especially between the hours of nine and ten in the morning, cannot fail to notice, here and there, small groups of students seated on chairs, or, even better (if convenient), on a staircase, notebooks in hand, gazing with rapt attention at doors through which come the muffled tones of lecturers.

The habit of being just a little late for everything, including one's nine o'clock lecture, is, it would seem, very prevalent here. If the lecturer is mild-tempered one walks on as usual, but if he is not and has a strong voice one sits outside, gazes at the door, and jots down one's notes in perhaps greater comfort than those punctual ones inside. It is said that this method of attending lectures is becoming increasingly popular, and would doubtless become even more so if the instructor would be considerate enough to call the roll outside, as well as inside the door.

It is not, then, to be wondered at if, noticing these things, someone is moved to ask if this is one of the modern tendencies of which one reads so much, if it portends a change in University life, or if Gregory Clark's "Idea of a University," i.e., a broadcasting station, is to be realized.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Yesterday saw two soph-frosh "scraps" at Victoria, and several "tappings" are rumoured to have taken place at S.P.S. This should please "School '23." It pleases us also, for it shows that the "Spirit of '23" is not dead, although many of the objectionable features of the old haphazard hazing systems have been abolished. Our quarrel with the old system of hazing lies in its unlimited possibilities which in the past have expended themselves at times in utterly foolhardy

Many Celebrities Visit Hart House

Not the least interesting feature of Hart House is its library. A favourite resort of the industrious and unworldly alike, it provides a welcome retreat from the hustle and bustle of the campus.

At the entrance to this room stands a large illuminated case in which, for the Hart House Guest Book, this volume contains a collection of famous autographs that is unique. Every page, indeed every signature, is worthy of a history.

Among the many names in it, the following are especially worthy of note:

The Prince of Wales and Prince George; Sir Herbert Ames; Hon. Wm. Phillips, Minister of the U.S.A. to Canada; Livingston Farrand, President and Ava, Speaker of the Senate of Northern Ireland; Hon. F. W. Byers, Minister of Mines in Herzog Government; Lord Hewart, Lord Chief Justice of England; Bruce Bairnsfather; Rev. Eugene Tisserant, of the Vatican Library; and Hon. S. M. Bruce, Premier of Australia.

Supports Handbook Editor

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I wish to take strong exception to the editorial appearing in your issue of Tuesday, October 11, entitled "The Handbook is Promised."

It would appear to me, sir, that the writer of that editorial, incidentally the leading one in that issue, is entirely ignorant of the difficulties surrounding the production of such a book, which, I should like to point out, is an extremely difficult proposition to carry through successfully.

Admitting that it is extremely desirable that the "Freshman's Bible" should appear on time, it seems to me that "The Varsity" has taken a very unfair advantage of the editor of the handbook in that only one side of the case is presented. I might state that there is another side.

Mr. W. A. Donohue, editor of the 1927-28 edition, is a very capable young man, and there is no doubt but that he put forth his best effort to make the handbook a success, and incidentally have it appear "on the dot." Selling advertising in the handbook, I assure you, is not the easiest thing in the world, and, of course, advertising is the factor which makes the publication possible. I think all credit should be given the Editor in producing a very useful book entirely free of cost to the student body.

It would be useless for me to wander on any further in discussion of the subject.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your valuable space,

"Please be Fair."

"School '23" Speaks Again

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

The correspondence column of your issue of Monday, October 10, carries a letter signed "IV B. and M." in reply to mine of recent date, which, to my mind, is a perfect example of the product "of that unbalanced, unthinking, stereotyped class of student, which College Humour and the American movie would demonstrate as typical of their country."

Evidently, sir, your correspondent combines in himself that peculiar distillation of American Collegiate humour which can only lead to international complication. From the tolerant and intellectual tone of his colourless communication one can only conclude that he would be happiest when balancing a delicate tea-cup in one hand and a lady-finger in the other, all the while exchanging brilliant and superficial remarks on the recent work of Sacheverell Sitwell with a young lady who has achieved the broad Oxonian "a." Assuredly "IV B. and M." is this type of chocolate éclair.

He claims that to sophomores imitations are only a disgusting and boring duty, but—could he have seen the light of enthusiastic joy in the eyes of many of my classmates as we wielded a resonant paddle on the anatomy of some high school hero-frosh, he would see that ours is a duty and a delight as well. For such a man as "IV B. and M." there is but one remedy—the sink, and the sooner he joins the other tea-leaves therein, the better pleased will all red-blooded men be.

"School '23."

Down With Champus Cat

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I have been attending lectures at the University of Toronto for more than three years now and have been reading "The Varsity" steadily during all that period,—everything but that relic of barbarism called for some reason or other, I know not why, "Champus Cat."

Johann, who contributed an article to our column yesterday, writes again to say that profanity is on the increase among the co-eds, and cites the fact that he heard a co-ed ejaculate: "Holy Smoke," after one of Varsity's lapses at the game on Saturday. We don't blame her, for our ejaculations were not exactly pious but were sincere—yet we feel that such amateurish attempts at "Holy Smoke!" should be remedied—give us a good larynx-filling oath like "Suffering snarling cream-puffs!" or "By the Beard of Beelzebub!" Come to think of it, we haven't sworn so much as we did on Saturday since Queen's came here two years ago and smacked the Blue Boys 17—0. However, Queen's are coming again and they have no St. Germaine. We look for a real victory—let's hope our glances are accurate.

C—C

Speaking of hours, we have not been so amused in years as we were by Mr. Ryan's feature article of yesterday on "Five O'clock." It was only half as good as Whistler's "Ten O'clock," but a neat Latin quotation made yards in the first sentence. We've seen that line prefacing one of Ernest Dawson's poems—but "you can't use a good line too often," as William Morris forgot to say. We hope that we may counter Mr. Ryan's quotation of Rupert Brooke with another from the same poem:

"And when they get to feeling old
They up and shoot themselves, I'm told!"

In closing, our latest neophyte will not let us publish her name.

C—C

Let us urge some contributions for "Student Verse" of Thursday's issue, and prove that it is possible to create poetry, even in the forests of Academic. It is not so very difficult, begin thus—

There once was a horned brontosaurus
Who led a pre-Cambrian chorus,
He said: "We sing flat,
But what matter is that?
The dear pterodactyls adore us!"

1830 PLAY ENACTED FOR O.C.E. STUDENTS

Description of Early School
By Pupils of U.T.S.

VIVIDLY REALISTIC

Time: 1830. Scene: A typical school-room of the period.

Two sides of the room are lined with rough wooden desks, in front of which stand long benches; similar long benches fill the centre of the room; the teacher's desk, a veritable pulpit, occupies a commanding view in front of the benches; behind the pulpit a large fireside seat faces an old-fashioned fireplace. The teacher and one of the older boys are seen sweeping out the school and gathering in the day's supply of wood.

The teacher goes to the door and calls: All in! All in!

A crowd of noisy boys and girls in quaint costume, literally tumble into the room. The girls wear long dresses with pantalets and the boys are clad in coloured coats, waistcoats and long tight trousers.

In a miraculously short time the room is a scene of "humming" industry. Class after class is called up for recitation, from the beginners, learning their alphabet and figures, to the advanced spelling and arithmetic classes. The system of learning by rote is used exclusively, and the pupils keep time with their sing-song recitations by nodding their heads on the "accented syllables." The boy who can define multiplication at a speed which breaks any previous record, receives the commendation of the teacher, while his companion who can't say it but who tries to understand what he is learning, has his question "What is a unit?" cut right off and is told to learn what multiplication is.

Quill pens have to be repaired every few minutes; one boy wants a drink but the pail is empty, so another has the privilege of filling it; a little fellow is allowed to sit in front of the fire as he is cold, but an older boy is denied the same pleasure. The teacher leaves the room "to get his 'licker,'" so the wise boys tell the rest of the class. Immediately the pugilistic tendencies of both boys and girls are evidenced in the scene which follows. Quiet is restored on the return of the teacher, and the visit from a trustee results in the early closing of school, a welcome event.

Brief though it is, the above account gives some idea of what was done at the U.T.S. Assembly Hall on Saturday morning in connection with the O.C.E. re-union and again yesterday afternoon for the U.T.S. students. Professor MacPherson, who is an authority on the history of education in this province, wrote the dialogue and planned the scene; Mr. Phillips of the U.T.S. staff trained the U.T.S. pupils, who took the parts of both boys and girls, and played the role of teacher. The details of the school-room were historically accurate and the whole playlet gave a vivid representation of early education in Ontario.

INTERFACULTY TRACK MEET TO-DAY'S ATTRACTION AT STADIUM

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Though unable to obtain an official half holiday, the Interfaculty Track Meet at the Stadium this afternoon should, granted fair weather, draw a large crowd from that part of the student body which is free from lectures. The card promises to be a stellar one, and with the Intercollegiate Meet at Kingston this year, provides the only occasion at which undergraduates might expect to witness the various Blue performers who are genuine Olympic prospects. At a meeting of the Deans of all faculties held yesterday it was decided that, in view of the holidays granted last week, it would be impossible to declare any further afternoons free from lectures at the present time.

It is the proposal of the University of Toronto Track Club to hold an open half-mile relay race at half-time of the Varsity O.R.F.U.—Hamilton Tigers game at the Stadium on Saturday. Permission has been granted by the Canadian Amateur Track Association, and, provided weather conditions are favourable, an attempt will be made to break the present record time of one minute thirty seconds. Invitations are to be sent out to several representative clubs to participate, while it is expected that probably two teams will be entered from Varsity.

During the present week-end interest will centre at Montreal, where Queen's and McGill will play their initial game of the season. If the Red and White should win, their position will be excellent indeed, with a win against Varsity in Toronto and another against the remaining team, Queen's, in Montreal to their credit. But the Tricolour are quietly contemplating a victory. They point out that the Montrealers always put up their best game away from home, and they feel that Chick Mundell and Harry Batstone will more than hold their own against St. Germaine, Little and Company. While Queen's regret the loss of "Irish" Monahan to the football squad, they are none the less unanimous in expressing regard for this athlete and term him "a first class athlete, a hard working student and a regular fellow."

Faced with a revival of track athletics at Queen's, the Tricolour were immediately beset with misfortunes. Trenouth, winner of the Intercollegiate three mile championship over Wally Graham of Varsity for the past two seasons, wrenched his side and will be out for the season, while Weaver, a most promising 440 man and the Tricolour's mainspring in the relay, pulled the tendons in his foot and will be unable to run. In view of the fact that track athletics have been hard pressed at the Kingston University these mishaps are the very worst of misfortunes, and we wish to take this opportunity of expressing our regret over the loss of one and perhaps two almost certain point winners.

The report from Kingston is to the effect that field events are rather weak, although the track events seem to be well taken care of. More than thirty-five men are reporting at the field daily for practice.

WOMEN'S BASEBALL STARTS AT U.C.

Last Year's Winners Still Strong

The U.C. women baseball players had their first practice on Monday afternoon. The turnout was fair, but the curator is very anxious that all those who are interested in baseball, and especially those who have had any previous experience, will come to the next practice held to-day at Grace Church from 4.30 to 6 o'clock sharp. All those interested are asked to watch the signs on the bulletin board in the women's cloak room.

After a hard fought battle with the St. Hilda's players the U.C. squad won the trophy last year.

Although U.C. have lost many of their star players, and in particular miss the support of Phyllis Griffiths, they still have players of marked ability.

Edith Blackwell, Marion Henderson and Francis Dale made the team last year when they were freshies, and enthusiasm from among the freshies is expected this year. Edith Blackwell is a star player and can be depended upon to play a steady game throughout. Marion Henderson displays some very spectacular plays.

Amy Essery, in her final year, is a faithful member of last year's winning team, and is ready to give her support for the last time.

Phyll Howard, of third year, can be counted on for stability of play. It is hoped with such players as these along with the new material which shows such splendid prospects that U.C. will have a strong team in the Interfaculty series this year.

There is some promising material among the first year, Norma Bateman, Willa Mahoney and Annie Chorosky showing particularly good form. There will be a practice on Wednesday at 4 o'clock in the old gym.

ROCKY FELLERS MEETING IS FIRST HELD THIS YEAR

Discuss Trip to Kingston at Same Time of Queen's Rugby Game

The first meeting of the Rocky Fellers' Association was held last night to a small but select group of old and new members. The President, Edgar Thomson, was in the chair and cordially invited new members to make the Rocky Fellers, a comparatively new club, something of importance to mining and metallurgical students.

After the constitution was read, the talk turned upon the proposed excursion to Kingston for studying rocks. It had been suggested that the club charter a bus and go to the Sydenham quarries on the morning of the Queen's game, which would enable excursionists to attend the game in the afternoon. The proposal meeting with fair approval, the executive were asked to broadcast the invitation to all eligible to attend.

Councillors were elected for the forthcoming year, Bill Gerry from U. of T. and Bell as the representative from outside universities.

U.C. FROSH GUESTS OF LIT. SOCIETY

Speeches, Songs, and Games Order of the Evening

University College frosh were last night treated to a reception by U.C. Literary and Athletic Association. The meeting opened with a sing-song, followed with speeches from the President and Vice-President of the Association. The Rev. F. J. Moore then spoke on behalf of the S.C.A., outlining its work and sphere of usefulness.

Following this, Gilbert, President of the second year, educated the frosh in the yells of Varsity and University College. Mr. Bickersteth spoke to the assembled gathering on the wonderful advantages of Hart House, mentioning the mere fact that impressions made now would have a tremendous influence on the Hart House of five hundred years hence.

Then, turning to a more frivolous pastime, the frosh were taught how to play "Pat and Mike," many resounding thuds bearing witness to the success of the participants.

A very interesting spectacle was the fencing bout, which was staged by two very skillful exponents of the art.

SETTLEMENT SENDS KIDDIES TO CAMPS

Attendance of 230 Mothers and Children at Four Summer Camps

"WE HAD A SWELL TIME"

"What a dandy time I had at camp," said a wee urchin on the corner of John and Grange Streets. "And what camp were you at?" "Why, the University Settlement House Camp, of course. Gosh, we had a swell time!"

Further inquiry disclosed the fact that during the past summer four camps were for girls, one for boys, and one for mothers and children under ten—were held at Newcastle on Lake Ontario, with a total attendance of 230. The camp programme, varied to suit the different groups, sounds most attractive. The rising bell at 7:30 called slumbers to setting-up exercises, wash drill, flag-salute, and in the morning breakfast. Camp fatigue, shack inspection and swimming filled the morning hours; reading, hiking, etc., the afternoon, ending with stories and sing-song around the camp fire at night, often with the added attraction of winners or marshmallows.

But the summer camps are by no means the only work of the University Settlement House. During the remainder of the year, under the able direction of Mrs. Wilson and six staff helpers, seventeen self-governing clubs are in operation. There are two women's, one men's, seven girls' and seven boys' clubs, the two latter graded according to age. Preparations for Halloween parties are commencing the season.

Three clinics, the Well Baby, the Pre-School, and the Toxicoid, care for the health of the members.

Music plays a large part in the Settlement House programme. Under the direction of Mr. Carl Hunter, teachers are sent from the Toronto Conservatory, and a system of musical examinations has been introduced.

The Library is an especially interesting room. Children of all nationalities may be seen grouped about the tables reading, and many books are loaned. Last year the average exchange was 1,850 books per month.

CORRESPONDENCE

Of all the puerile, nonsensical, egotistical idiosyncrasies appearing anywhere I have never seen the like. And, I might say, Mr. Editor, that I have read several humorous works of merit.

"Champus Cat" is certainly the most humorous, but from an entirely different point of view. It seems so foolish that it is hardly worth mentioning, but it has gone on so long and has been so consistently ludicrous that I think it is time to call a halt to the publication of such a column.

The editor of the column may be a very charming chap personally, but his judgment is certainly far from anything approaching maturity. He composes silly so-called witticisms in which the ego is ever apparent. You would think, sir, that he was running a booster club for his friends, because he never fails to bring them in whenever and wherever possible. Is that not the lowest trick the editor of an alleged humorous column in the University daily newspaper could perpetrate?

I pay my dollar per year subscription to "The Varsity" and have been doing it for the past three years. And what do I get? Nothing but a lot of silly trash glorified by the meaningless couplet "Champus Cat."

Mr. Editor, I beg to know the reason.

BISHOP WHITE SPEAKS ON CHINESE SITUATION

Will Talk Next Thursday at Hart House Under Auspices of S.C.A.

On Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the Lecture Room of Hart House, Bishop White, who has recently returned from China, will speak under the auspices of the Student Christian Association on the present situation in China. Bishop White went out to China in 1897 as a missionary to Fuhkien Province. He was consecrated as Bishop of the Diocese of Honan in 1910. In the time of the great famine in that part of China he was appointed Director of the Famine Relief Association, and for his services was given by the Chinese Government the Third Degree of the Order of the Excellent Crop (or Order of the Golden Grain). The Church in his Diocese is now an autonomous Church, though Bishop White remains as its Bishop.

Bishop White is thoroughly intimate with all phases of the present Chinese situation, and no Westerner is better qualified to explain it to Westerners than he.

The meeting will close at 1:55.

MYSTERY RELIGIONS

from them the sacraments and the explanation of them, the practice of infant baptism, the idea of the Fatherhood of God, and the conception of priests as intermediaries between man and God.

Professor Angus stated that the mystery religions resembled Christianity very markedly. Cicero had said of them, "We have received from them not only good cause why we should live with joy, but why we should die with a fair hope." In the same connection the speaker quoted an inscription he had seen in a pagan chapel, "Glorious indeed are the mysteries given us by the blessed gods, so that for us death is no longer a bane but a blessing," and compared it with the "O death, where is thy sting?" so often quoted in Christian churches.

There was a variety of mystery religions as great as the variety of present day Christian churches, the speaker continued. He mentioned several of them and told of their long histories. Disunited as they were in organization, they were united in a common aim—that of assuring the people not of life after death but of present immortality.

that his application as a suitable candidate is approved.

(d) Certified evidence as to the courses of study pursued by the Scholar at his University, and as to his gradings in those courses. This evidence should be signed by the Registrar, or other responsible official, of his University.

(e) A brief statement by himself of his athletic and general activities and interests at College, and of his proposed line of study at Oxford.

(f) Not more than four testimonials from persons well acquainted with him.

(g) References to four other responsible persons, whose addresses must be given in full, and of whom two at least must be professors under whom he has studied.

(h) A medical certificate.

It is in the power of the Committee of Selection to summon to a personal interview such of the candidates as they find desirable to see, and, save under exceptional circumstances, no Scholar will be elected without such an interview. Where such an interview is dispensed with, a written statement of the reasons will be submitted to the Trustees.

The next appointments will be made for 1928; applications for these Scholarships with all required material must reach the Secretary of the Committee of Selection not later than October 20th, 1927.

Each Scholarship is of the value of £400 a year, and is tenable for three years, subject to the continued approval of the College at Oxford of which the Scholar is a member.

The Scholars-elect will come into residence in October of the year for which they are elected.

Students who have obtained the B.A. degree at the University of Toronto, provided that they have resided three years at this University, may apply for "Senior Standing" at Oxford, exempting them from all preliminary and intermediate examinations, and making it possible for them to take their Final Honour Schools, and B.A. degree, in two years.

Students who have resided two years at a Canadian University, and passed the examinations incident to a two years' course which has included two languages other than English, one of which must have been either Latin or Greek, may apply for Junior Standing at Oxford, which carries with it exemption from Responsions, but not from the intermediate examination. They can proceed to their B.A. degree in two years, provided that they obtain Honours either in Moderations or in the Final Honour Schools. Greek is no longer an obligatory subject at Oxford.

It must be realized that £400 will barely meet the expenses of a full year, including vacations. Scholars will probably find it necessary to supplement their Scholarships slightly.

The Rhodes Scholars elected by this University previous to 1919 are as follows:—

1904—E. R. Paterson, University College. (ob.)

1906—R. C. Reade, University College.

1908—W. K. Fraser, University College.

1910—A. L. Burt, Victoria College.

1913—C. H. Carruthers, University College.

1915—A. K. Griffin, Trinity College.

The following Rhodes Scholars, students of this University, have been nominated by the Committee of Selection for Ontario and duly appointed by the Rhodes Trust:—

1919—M. D. C. Tait, University College.

1920—J. R. Stirrett, University College.

1921—J. J. Lowe, Trinity College.

1923—N. J. Endicott, Victoria College.

1924—L. A. MacKay, University College.

1925—D. W. Dow, Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

1927—E. M. Reid, Trinity College.

Those who wish not only to hear good music but have the pleasure of taking part in its performance will be glad to hear of the opportunity afforded them by the formation of a Choral Society, to be known as the Conservatory Chorus, under the direction of the Principal, Dr. Ernest MacMillan. Rehearsals will be held at the Conservatory during the autumn and winter every Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, the first taking place on October 13th.

Among the works to be studied during the coming season are Mozart's Requiem, Parry's "Pied Piper of Hamelin," a number of Elizabethan madrigals and motets, as well as modern part-songs.

Students of the Conservatory with reasonably good voices are given the privilege of free membership in this chorus. For others, the annual fee, (to cover the purchase of music and other expenses) will be five dollars. Those wishing to join during the coming season are asked to send their names, addresses, and telephone numbers to the Registrar.

given up their lives in other ways in the service and advancement of mankind. It has traditions behind it based on the greatest and most tragic times in human history and is the direct heir of these traditions.

Though the organization does not concern itself with religious teaching or preaching of any sort, it has a definite spiritual basis, for experience throughout the world shows that men are crying out for such a lead. Instead of theoretical teaching Toc H concerns itself with their practical application of these principles, thus rallying men of all and no religious belief under the motto of Brotherhood and Service; for it demands individual and personal service of all its members believing that nothing less than this is worth mentioning in the same breath with the sacrifice made by those who gave everything.

The spirit of a world Brotherhood based on the sacrifice of those who are known in Toc H as "the elder Brethren." These are mainly those who fell in the Great War, but include also any man who has given himself to the utmost for his fellows. Hundreds of these are commemorated in the Toc H "Lamp of Maintenance," one of which belongs as of right to every branch of Toc H. These Lamps are each lit for the first time by the patron at the Annual Birthday Festival of Toc H from his own, "The Prince's" Lamp. This Lamp—the parent Lamp of all—given by him "in memory of his friends who fell" in the War—is kept constantly burning in a great church in the city of London near to the Tower of London.

At the beginning of every Toc H meeting the lights are extinguished and the Lamp is lit and the Chairman says: "With proud thanksgiving let us remember our Elder Brethren." "They shall grow not old as we that are left grow old—" "Age shall not weary them nor the years condemn—"

"At the going down of the sun and in the morning we will remember them."

The response then rings out, before the "Silence of remembrance," "We will remember them."

PROFESSOR NORWOOD SPEAKS ON PATER AT ENGLISH ASSOCIATION

Well-known Artist Could Write Feeble and Bad Sentences

REALLY AN ESSAYIST

Pater Wrote Best on Aesthetic Effects—Readers Wander Away

"He was not a great writer; he was only amazingly careful, amazingly tasteful," said Professor Gilbert Norwood of University College, reading a paper on Walter Pater to the English Association. This, the first meeting of the Association this season, was held in the Reference Library at 8.15 Wednesday evening.

Professor Norwood, after telling his audience the essential facts—that Pater was born in 1839 and died in 1894, that he held a fellowship and lectured at Oxford for some years, and that he took a trip to Italy in 1869, which turned his mind definitely from philosophy to art, discussed the "Pater legend." This, he said, was a belief that the writer cared only for exotic beauty, that he winnowed and sifted his vocabulary with care, using words slightly unusual, but not queer or archaic. It was quite true, the speaker stated, that Pater gave himself up to finding the perfect word and perfect verb to express a thing in the only way it could be expressed, and that he had a fastidious selection of words, cool, yet sensuous, unlackneyed, yet simple. But the answer to the question, "Does he go beyond this exquisite taste for words?" was "Yes" and "No."

Professor Norwood read some passages from Pater to illustrate his particular device, and especially his use of the "languid" and "and." The author wrote a great many essays, and in one of these appeared the beautiful passage, "In Italy all natural things are, as it were, woven through and through with gold thread." The speaker also read a passage from Pater's "Renaissance," the second edition of which appeared in 1877, some three or four years after the first.

Although associated at Oxford with the Aesthetic group, led by Oscar Wilde, Pater later broke away from this, and attached himself to the

"One of the most significant things about the University this year is the presence of our nine foreign students with fellowships from the Rockefeller Foundation," says Miss Russell, head of the Department of Public Health Nursing. The fact that this is the largest group they have ever had is an auspicious coincidence with the removal of the department to the new quarters in the new School of Hygiene Building. There they are very comfortably and attractively housed amid a pleasantly mild atmosphere of antiseptics. This makes the fifth year in which the department has had students from other countries under its direction, although there were none last year and only six enrolled

Forlorn and Phoneless Are the Female Scribes

Stark, naked tragedy has stalked across the campus and settled in the office of the Women's Varsity Staff. Around it the Varsity women gather—abject, crestfallen, gazing at the spot where stands the spectre, and where should stand—one new and sparkling telephone! After many weary hours preparing and selling hot-dogs—the line acquired will not stretch far enough—a six months' contract is necessary—the scribes must look to the world, and their toll-worn fingers, for further help! However, brilliant minds are at work, and by to-morrow we hope to startle the world with a million-dollar money making scheme, which should garner in sufficient shekels to equip each young reporter with a private line.

DOWN WITH EDUCATION

An address to all students of world affairs is to be given at 1.30 in Hart House Lecture Room to-day by Rt. Rev. Bishop White on the present situation in China.

Bishop White has for the past 30 years lived and worked amongst the Chinese people, thirteen years having been spent in South China and seventeen years in North China. As a result of this the Bishop is exceptionally well fitted to speak upon a subject requiring such a wealth of first-hand information.

When questioned as to the influence of the Nationalist movement upon the Chinese students, Bishop White stated that it was impossible to calculate the vast change in the moral status not only of the students but of the whole nation.

At the beginning of the movement, he went on to say the students were the only medium through which the Soviets could reach the labouring class, as only the students thought deeply enough to realize what they were later brought to look upon as their racial inferiority. Fured by the Communist propaganda they proved very zealous in stirring up popular feeling and were instrumental in bringing about the real crisis through a union formed amongst themselves.

As soon, however, as this desired end was brought about, the Communists rejected the students, formed

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSING FOUR-YEAR COURSE FILLED

University Diploma Granted for Course Inaugurated in 1926—27

One course in the University already has applications for next year! This is the new four year course in Public Health Nursing, inaugurated in the year 1926-27. There was a large application list, but the class was restricted and only twelve chosen. The entrance requirements demand Honor Matriculation in only a few subjects, and the first year taken in the University is much like the pass arts course, including the pre-medical sciences, Physics, Chemistry, Biology, English, Physiology and Psychology. The second two years are spent in a nursing course at the Toronto General Hospital, and after a final year at the University they are entitled to a University diploma in Public Health Nursing.

Paul Lamarche Considers the Study of French a Duty

PROFESSOR SISSONS SPOKE

Expect Regulation To Be Dropped, As It Has Not Been a Success

"To learn French—a duty; to learn English—a necessity," quoted Professor C. B. Sissons from a speech of Paul Lamarche. Professor Sissons was speaking on "The History of Bilingualism in Canada," at a banquet held by the Gladstone and University Liberal Clubs at the Granite Club last night. He said that the rank and file of both parties lacked a background of facts; few persons had read the celebrated Regulation 17, and still fewer really understood it, even the Lords of the Privy Council had characterized its terms as "obscure."

The right to an individual conscience was one which no state could safely or wisely attack, continued the speaker. The mother tongue was dear to all people the world over, and no respect could be felt for a people who

U.C. PLAYERS' GUILD RECEIVES FRESHMEN

Professor Dale Talks on Aims and Purposes

The Players' Guild of University College opened its arms to the freshmen yesterday afternoon. The first meeting was held in the Auditorium of the Women's Union with the prospective members as guests.

While the members were munching, Professor Dale gave a short talk on the aims of the Guild. He pointed out that the Guild is an absolutely private club, and that plays are put on entirely by the members and for the members, that it was, in fact, a glorified reading club.

Mr. Raymond Card also gave a short review of the club's past activities, mentioning that plays of all ages had been done, from ancient Greek and mystery plays down to a play written the night before it was acted. The members were urged to force themselves into the notice of the executive.

Mr. Stephen Dale announced that, as the Publicity Agent was unable to act, the runner-up in last year's election, Miss Isabel Godfrey, was appointed to the post. The play for next Wednesday will be "The Conflict," depicting the normal child's re-action to dominating parents.

Victoria Freshettes Formulate New Style of Goatees For Ladies

Jingle bells, jingle bells, jingle all the day! Vic's staid ancestral halls have for a week now resounded to the tinkle of a hundred silver bells. Although they fall sadly short of rivaling the carillon bells in size, the freshettes will staunchly affirm that their mellow tone far exceeds that of any carillon bell in existence.

There will be an awesome silence in some lecture, in a dining hall, in chapel, when suddenly a freshette nose will tickle—up goes her hand and ding dong ding—the silence is irreparably broken—and by a mere freshette!

But to-night ends the torture. Such terrible plans the sophs have prepared,

POETS REMEMBERED WHILE POLITICIANS PASS TO OBLIVION

Professor Livingstone Gives Second of Poetry Lectures

LITERATURE SURVIVES

Poetry Enriches and Enlarges Our Experience—See More

"What is the good of poetry—it is to reflect on science," said Professor Livingstone in his second lecture on Poetry, given in the Physics Building yesterday.

"Some statements I shall make may appear to reflect on science," said Professor Livingstone. He went on to tell how many people argue that we should study the actual life in which we live, and they claim this is accomplished by science rather than poetry.

"Literature survives," Professor Livingstone next stated. "It is really the frailest thing in the world—a mere breath handed down from lip to lip—it has been preserved on the frailest material, yet it lives on while the Coliseum and the walls of Babylon have long since fallen." If we want to be remembered, we should write a great poem, because Sappho is remembered while great contemporary politicians are forgotten. This can be explained if one realizes that a poet has some gift that corresponds to some need of the human heart.

"Literature is natural to us," was Professor Livingstone's second point

ST. MIKE'S ORCHESTRA HAS A NEW DIRECTOR

Patrick J. Flynn of St. Louis University is Retained for This Post

At last night's reorganization meeting of the Students' Orchestra of St. Michael's College, it was announced that Patrick J. Flynn, A.B., late of St. Louis University, had been retained as Director. Mr. Flynn, who had taken up his studies in this University, has recently returned from a tour of the West, which included engagements in Regina, Vancouver, Victoria, San Francisco and Chicago. During the past summer, Mr. Flynn played exclusively at Puslinch Lake.

It was also decided to provide the members of the orchestra with a distinctive type of dress, and it is expected that the players will appear in their new outfits on Monday evening, when the Freshman Reception will take place in the College Auditorium.

K. I. BENNETT IS CONVENTION CHOICE FOR CONSERVATIVE PARTY LEADER

Postponed Track Meet Is Planned For Friday

The officials were again forced to postpone the Interfaculty Track Meet, as Wednesday's heavy rain-storm rendered it impossible to hold the meet. Weather conditions permitting, the track and field men from the various faculties of the University will compete at the Stadium on Friday afternoon. The Intercollegiate Meet will be held at Kingston one week from to-morrow.

FEW ENTRIES RECEIVED FOR JUBILEE CONTEST

Subjects All Relate to Canada—Three Prizes Offered

That very few entries have been received in the Jubilee essay contest announced last spring was the statement made to "The Varsity" by Professor G. M. Smith, head of the Department of History. This competition was arranged by the National Committee for the Celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation. It was open to all undergraduates in the University of Toronto, and to graduates of 1927. The subjects were all related to the development of Canada and dealt particularly with the problems of Confederation. Three prizes were offered in this contest, one gold, one silver and one bronze medal of Confederation. However, as Professor Smith pointed out, if the few essays turned in do not reach a reasonably high standard of excellence, the prizes may not be awarded. The lack

Prominent Western M.P. Elected By Majority of 6 on Second Ballot

GUTHRIE COMES SECOND

After Graduating From Dalhousie Bennett Was Called To Bar in 1894

The Conservative Convention at Winnipeg yesterday elected the Hon. Richard Bedford Bennett, M.P., as leader of the party. The election followed a period of stormy competition and doubt, out of which the Hon. R. B. Bennett emerged the victor on the second ballot.

Bennett led on both ballots, securing a majority of six on the second. Of the other five candidates the Hon. Hugh Guthrie came second with 3.0 votes, and C. H. Cahan followed with 2.6.

The Hon. R. B. Bennett is the member for Calgary East, and former Minister of Justice. He is a lawyer by profession, and at present is a member of the firm of Bennett, Sandford and Hannah of Calgary, Alta. The new leader is a prominent figure in the business world, being a director of the Canadian General Electric Co., Imperial Oil Company, and head of the E. B. Eddy Co.

Dick Bennett was born in Hopewell, New Brunswick, of Loyalist stock in 1870, but answered the call of the West in '97 and since then has been intimately associated with the development of the country.

A graduate of Dalhousie University, he entered the legal profession in 1894, and the year 1898 found him a member of the firm of Loughheed and Bennett. Mr. Bennett still retains his interest in his Alma Mater, last summer donating fifty thousand dollars to Dalhousie.

As a young man Bennett soon became known far and wide over the North-west for his eloquence when he entered the territorial legislature. He first ran for Parliament in 1900, but lost to the Hon. Frank Oliver. He then returned to the legislature. He was first elected to the House of Commons in 1911, and since then has risen steadily in the Conservative party.

Mr. Bennett, with his opponent, Mr. Mackenzie King, is one of the large number of prominent Canadian bachelors. He is also a teetotaler.

First and Second Year Election Results Are To Be Given Out

FINE PROGRAM PLANNED

The Students' Administrative Council of St. Michael's College has completed arrangements for the Freshmen's Reception, to be held in the College Club Room, Monday evening, Oct. 17, at 8.30. The programme as planned by the committee in charge is somewhat of a departure in events of its kind and promises to be highly entertaining.

The principal feature will be a competition between three Freshman groups, each presenting a humorous skit of twenty minutes' duration. Owing to the large number of Americans in the Freshman year, they have been assigned to a separate group under the direction of E. Quigley. The resident Canadians, led by Mr. Jack War-

THANK YOU AND PLEASE

Last week we heard a great deal in praise of our University. One thing which was stressed was the broad outlook and open-mindedness of University life. During the Centenary Celebration we had an example of these steadily increasing tendencies—women were permitted to purchase tickets to the Undergraduate Ball in Hart House, inviting their own escorts. While we realize that women are excluded from the precincts of this "Men's Paradise," by the original donation, it seems only right that exception should be made on such an occasion.

Hart House is famous all over the world, and forms a perfect setting for a formal dance. It is regrettable, then, that many women, each year, graduate from the University of Toronto without ever having been inside Hart House, or having attended one of the University's annual gala nights.

On behalf of the women of the University, who benefitted by this opportunity, we wish to thank the committee in charge, and hope that the response made will warrant future consideration.

IS GAMBLING A VICE?

The University of Illinois has suspended three students for the term and has dismissed four others for the remainder of the school year on the charge of gambling. Speaking on the case in its editorial columns, the "Chicago Journal of Commerce and La Salle Street Journal" says:—

"While due allowances are made for the result and benefit, it must be said that there is something absurd in the dismissal of college students on charges of gambling.

"There are numerous laws against gambling, but the general social conscience sanctions it. There is betting on the football games at Illinois, and this betting is gambling, without disguise. These suspended boys, and their mothers, and their fathers, play bridge for money, and that is gambling. And despite the immense conquests made by bridge, the fathers of some of these boys may still occasionally take a hand in a quaint old game known as poker.

"By sheer force, by the threat of dismissal, boys at college can be restrained from gambling. But this compulsion cannot have strong moral sanction as long as various members of the faculty gamble (as they undoubtedly do), and as long as the average adult American male of the type that is financially successful and socially respectable sees nothing wrong in a certain amount of gambling. There is something absurd and hypocritical in the dismissal of these boys by college deans who know that if they were to fail to take such action they would be roundly denounced by parents who themselves often indulge in gambling."

Undoubtedly the average American in every class of society "sees nothing wrong in a certain amount of gambling." The danger lies in risking more than one can comfortably afford to lose. This is gambling in the true sense of the name. If gambling in this sense has established itself at Illinois then some drastic action is undoubtedly necessary and the action of authorities there is not to be commended.

However, it is hard to believe that such a state of affairs exists. It certainly does not exist at the University of Toronto. While there are rules against gambling at this University, we hardly believe that such drastic action would be either wise or practical in a place where the "gambling evil" as such is practically unknown.

Student Verse

I am the ghost of unimagined beauty,
My dwelling is the paradise of dreams,
In twilight clouds that fringe the unmost fancy,
And in the roseate mists of falling streams.
My voice is in the rippling fairy laughter
That dies at dawn, and my delights are these,
To stir the flakes of silver frosted moonlight

That fall from feathered boughs of sleeping trees,
To walk among the stars, like crystal'd fire
The galaxies of gems that sparkle
there,
The labyrinthine woods where shadows
creep,
The banded forms of lovely trees that weep
Over some shrouded pool where Sorrow grieves:
My realm is that of silence, crimson
leaves,
The golden splendour of the autumn sheaves.

Art, Music and Drama

CHAMBER MUSIC

A golden opportunity has presented itself to the undergraduates of this University of learning some of the world's finest music at a price that might well be considered wholly nominal. During the course of the winter three outstanding string quartets—the Hart House String Quartet, the Flonzaley Quartet and the Persinger Quartet—will present a series of five programmes in Convocation Hall. There will thus be afforded to those who are already lovers of chamber music a source of great enjoyment, and to those who are as yet little acquainted with it, an opportunity to study and appreciate its beauties. The Hart House Quartet is sufficiently known to members of the University of Toronto to require no introduction; the Flonzaley Quartet has achieved international fame; and the Persinger Quartet comes from San Francisco with a sterling reputation. The recitals will take place at five o'clock in the afternoon previous to the day on which the same musicians will give recitals in Hart House Theatre, and the programmes will be essentially the same. The opportunity of hearing this course of five concerts at an expenditure so trifling as to be unique should not be neglected; we are even inclined to say that it is a duty to oneself to take advantage of the privilege.

The first recital will be given by the Hart House String Quartet on October the nineteenth.

That was certainly a woollen tomato that "Trinity '28" handed us yesterday. We have never felt any particular reason to dislike Trinity (save their dexterity with the tea-cup) until now, but it appears that we are NOT liked. We could become really nasty in reply to this admirer, but we will only say that the bell at Trinity is not alone in its cracked state. This very night we are mailing "Trinity '28" one dollar, and advise that he go out and buy another work of humor, or, better still, a sense of humor.

C-C

We take our hat off to "School '23"—in the last round he has landed four body blows without one return. It is extremely doubtful whether "IV B. and M." will come up for the bell. He should take a count of 15 on this one.

Another letter after our character follows:

Dear Kat:
My! what a horrible creature you are—encouraging profanity among the finer sex. Don't you realize that the Dean of women will land with a heavy pounce on your neck.

From your verse and general behaviour as set forth from day to day in "The Varsity" I always imagined you as quite a delightful, gentle fellow—one who would go over with a bang at all manner of ladies' social functions, but now alas! you have exposed yourself as nothing but one of these ruthless, hard-boiled babies we hear so much about.

Mayhap you are another Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde—a prince among men one minute and a foul, vile fellow the next. If this be true, I should advise that you buy 10 Easy Lessons in Self-Control for only $1.50—requires only 3 minutes a day.

Hoping our neck stands the onslaught successfully.

Yours,

Johann.

C-C

But to be quite honest we like this sort of letter much better—especially in the lady's own handwriting: Dear Champus Cat: I fear for you, Your whiskers are so straight and true, Why don't you curl them with the tongs. Then put each one where he belongs. (Continued on page 4)

DESECRATION OF TOWER DURING CENTENARY

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

It is a sorrow to me that the Superintendent of Buildings, who has done so much for us in his official capacity as well as on his own account, should have overlooked a detail which represents one of the most wicked pieces of vandalism about the University. On the Soldiers' Memorial Tower, at the south arch on the west pillar, have been scribbled some names (I do not care to find out whose they are), but the office of the above-mentioned official of the University allowed those names to remain on the Tower throughout the whole of the Centenary celebrations; and there was supposed to be a Guard of Honour posted all that time.

To my mind this is an insult to the dead; and the names of some friends of mine are on the panels of the Tower.

Yours very respectfully,

Archer Baldwin,

Trinity College 2T8.

P.S.—If you feel you cannot publish this I understand your position. I shall then send it to the Superintendent himself and keep a copy myself to await developments.

CHAMPIONS CHAMPUS

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I have been attending lectures at the University of Toronto for more than three years now and have been reading "The Varsity" steadily during all that period—everything, including that fund of jesting so aptly entitled Champus Cat.

Of all similar efforts appearing anywhere, it, with its pleasant, naturalness, its invigorating intimacy, surpasses all. And, I might say, Mr. Editor, that I have read several humorous works of merit.

TRACK MEET WILL BE HELD ON FRIDAY - IF THE DAY IS FINE

SPEAKING OF SPORT

There seems to be a jinx on the Interfaculty Track Meet. Originally scheduled for last Friday as part of the Centenary celebration, it was postponed till yesterday, when the misbehaviour of the elements made it necessary to postpone it again. If the weather man has no objections, the meet will be held on Friday, the 14th, and as has been said several times before, the keenest competition is assured.

Both Queen's and McGill will be considerably weakened for their clash on Saturday due to injuries to their star players. St. Germaine, the brilliant McGill half, is in the hospital with an infected foot, while Little, his partner on the backfield, is laid up with a sprained ankle. Both the Red and White middle wings, Sharpe and McTeer, are on the injured list, and it is not likely that they will be out to practice this week, though they may get into the game on Saturday.

The Tricolour is in no better position than their rivals in respect to injuries. Cliff Howard, star middle and captain of the team, strained his ankle in practice and had to retire from the field. Britton is also laid up with a bad ankle, and Waugh is suffering from an injury to his face.

But the most serious blow that Queen's have suffered this season is the loss of "Chubby" Dunne, one of the best middles in the game, who will be out of the game for the rest of the season. He suffered a torn ligament in his leg in the exhibition game with Argos last week and will not be able to play again this season.

ren, form group number two, and finally the day scholars, captained by Mr. W. G. Mogan, make up the third group.

Their efforts will be judged by Rev. Fr. Lellis, Rev. Fr. O'Reilly, Ph.D., and Mr. Gord. Watson, B.A. The "Sweets of Success" will be more than a phrase in this case as the prize is to be a ten pound box of Laura Secord's for the joint consumption of the winning group!

It is expected that the nearly-received class of JTI will be welcomed by various members of the Faculty. Another item of importance will be the announcement of the election results in first and second years. Monday is polling day.

Finally to round out the programme (and incidentally the participants) the inevitable refreshments will make their appearance. As a sance to the whole affair, Mr. Patrick Flynn of 2T8 will have his newly-organized "Melody Men" in action.

This looks like a real sure-fire success as a programme, and every soph, junior and senior, is urged to turn out and welcome his incoming brethren.

FIFTY-FIFTY

A notice sent in to "The Varsity" stated that Victoria was holding its "fifty-fifty" annual bob. We are wondering if as an innovation the men and women are all going Dutch this year.

POETS REMEMBERED WHILE POLITICIANS

The Greeks first noticed this, especially Aristotle.

Why should we study literature? was next asked. People claim that Science explains almost everything—but it really explains very little. The Great War was given as an example. In Science we study visible material nature, while in literature we study human beings. This study of human life in literature is one of the greatest justifications for the large part literature takes in education.

Literature is a study of man in that it introduces us to Louis VI, to the court of Elizabeth and James I, Charles II or Mary, Queen of Scots in prison, to the wife of George II, or the Young Pretender, to the Covenanters and Royalists of the 17th century, to knights' tilting. In English literature all these human characters are to be found in Scott. If one takes down Hardy's "Dynasts" from the shelf, one meets Napoleon at Waterloo, Nelson at Trafalgar, Pitt, Fox and all the politicians of the 19th century between its pages. We discover human beings themselves in literature. In Macbeth, one sees a man sacrifice loyalty, human peace of mind, pity and conscience—all in order to secure a position in the world. All manner of characters may be found in Shakespeare.

Does literature teach anything? Professor Livingstone took Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar" and Browning's "Pippa" as an example of two methods of bringing home the same lesson. Both poems deal with a very ordinary subject of everyday life the coming of death, a common experience. In reading these poems, one lives through a slice of human life, which is interesting as an experience and quite profitable.

Professor Livingstone then proceeded to sum up what one gets out of literature. Poetry enriches and enlarges our experience. We meet and see people we could not ordinarily see. The globe contracts into the space of a single room. Knowledge from books is book knowledge, but Professor Livingstone quoted from Chesterfield's letters to his son—where he advises him thus, "You want to get knowledge from being out in the world, and you want to get knowledge from books. Neither is complete without the other."

Poetry also makes us see the things we know differently. This increases the enjoyment of human life, sharpens one's senses and enables one to get more out of life. "Poetry does for life what the sun does for the landscape." People ordinarily only see the side of things that interest them and are interested in the material end. A poet sees things not for their material gain but for themselves.

Professor Livingstone described a cartoon of George Morley's in Punch, of a man and a woman gazing at a sunset. "Doesn't it elevate you and raise you above all ordinary things," remarked the woman. "By the way, it reminds me that I must tell the landlady that I like my bacon streaked," was the man's comment.

In conclusion, Professor Livingstone remarked, "Poetry deals with the inner life of man—with his real self—and because of this it is dangerous for individuals or nations to ignore it."

At the first chapel service in Victoria College this fall, the professors' pews were overcrowded, and some of the freshmen, who doubtless had paid for chapel seats, had to kneel throughout the service.

U.C. FRENCH CLUB HAS RECORD NUMBER

French-Canadian Sing-song Led by Magistrate Jones

M. DE CHAMPS SPEAKS

A record attendance of ninety marked the opening meeting of the U.C. French Club at the Women's Union last night.

"Vive la Canadienne" and other popular French-Canadian songs, led by Magistrate Jones, created a genuine French atmosphere. M. de Champs presented a picture of the widely differing districts in France, taking as his subject "Survivance de la province française." Monsieur Champs said that groups of people are separated by natural barriers such as the mountains and plains, and have so little intercourse that they develop opposite characteristics. For example, a Gascon has little in common with a man from Normandy. Whereas people who live in different "departments" often have the same characteristics.

Formerly Bordeaux, Marseilles, and Grenoble were equally important cities, now Paris is the only surviving city of importance.

A cleverly worked out charade, written by Miss Isabel Baltazard, was presented by several of the club members. The charade was in three syllables and proved to be "Poincaré." The three scenes were amusingly portrayed by Miss Baltazard, Miss Lake, Miss McLaughlin, Miss Noble, Mr. Wright and Mr. Ausman.

Miss Roberts Reed was elected for year representative. After a pleasant social half-hour and refreshments, the first meeting was brought to a most successful close.

unions amongst the working classes, and raised the slogan of "Down with education."

By this time also the students had come to see that the propaganda that they had been distributing would never be of any practical use to their country. Consequently the students of China to-day are doing all in their power to overcome the evil by going all over the country as anti-Red propagandists. Such is the condition amongst the students in China as a result of the upheaval.

In his address to-day Bishop White proposes to deal with the direct causes of the movement and the new military situation arising from the military alignment which has now reached far greater proportions than ever before.

They are very keen students, because in addition to being fellowship people they have the added advantage of the particularly good background afforded by European high schools and training schools. They are all graduate nurses, three coming from the State School for Nurses in Zagreb, Jugoslavia; these are Miss Wagner, Miss Holgevoe and Miss Zilenjak. Miss Brown, the sole representative of the United States, is from Alabama. From Prague in Czechoslovakia come Miss Podzilkova and Miss Dolenska. Madame Costres is from Rumania, and Miss Adles is from the Kinderklinik in Vienna. A Fellowship student is sent for one academic year or eight months of study and four months practical observation, chiefly of the work done by the Toronto Health Department. At present there is a graduate nurse from Brazil, Miss Pamphiro, here for one month of observation, having already spent some time studying at an American centre.

PROFESSOR NORWOOD TALKS ON PATER

Christian ideas. In 1868 he formulated his theory that since we are all under sentence of death we should get as much as possible out of the interim. That he still clung to this theory when he was older is shown by the fact that in his "Marius Epicurean: his Sensations and Ideas," which appeared in 1885, Marius resolved to exclude regret and desire from his life.

"It is not so well known that this exquisite artist could write sentences not only feeble, but bad," said Professor Norwood. Pater committed many faults that he condemned in others; he seemed to revel in the proposition "if," one of the difficulties of the English language, and he ended many sentences with prepositions. But in all his works there was only one split infinitive. One of his greatest faults was a tendency to obscurity in his sentences caused by qualifications added, apparently, as afterthoughts. In this way he sometimes gave directly the opposite of the impression he desired to convey as in the following sentence by substituting "did not hate" for "liked": "The child of whom I am writing did not hate the fog for the crimson lights." His meanings, although really correct, were at times so difficult, said the speaker, that they had been wrongly translated into French.

Pater wrote best on aesthetic effects; the farther he drifted from material things the poorer was his thought. Thus in his "Plato" and "Platonism," brilliant sentences about Plato's style were followed by exceedingly dull ones about his metaphysics. In Professor Norwood's opinion the non-aesthetic sentences are bad because the material is not properly digested.

Although he was really an essayist and a critic, Walter Pater also attempted narrative, and "Pater" is probably the worst novelist in the world's history," said the speaker. "He is forever trying to write narrative and forever failing." A novelist should, at the beginning, get his story on wheels, and then keep it moving—although he may regulate the pace. "Woe betide the writer . . . that lets the vehicle come to a stop. The reader gets down and wanders away," continued Professor Norwood, and this was Pater's fault. He gave a series of pictures, "muffled up in motionless music . . . devoid of crisp dramatic spirit," and strung them loosely together, calling the result a story. "In my view he belongs to that small . . . class of writers who charm beyond their ostensible merits," said Professor Norwood in conclusion. "An amazingly limited man, yes, but limited, if I may put it that way, horizontally, not vertically."

C—C

The last communication is a reflection on our literary judgment; Sir:

In a recent issue of your paper you published a certain so-called Triplet. Doubtless you can recall it to mind. Might I be so bold (poet as I am) to assert that the rhymed of the said Triplet has so tortured that delightful form of poetry that, save for the title, it would be unrecognizable. Further—and what hurts a sensitive soul far more—the rhyme scheme is a trifle indelicate. Surely, sir, you are cognizant that such a contributor should be deplored rather than tolerated in your column?

Indignantly yours,

O.I.C.B.

We would merely answer: Why be cruel? If D.L. thought it was a triplet, why disillusion him? Let him be happy—and if one should ever ask "When is a triplet not a triplet?" the reply is: When it is in Champus Cat.

The editor of the column must be a very fine fellow personally, and his judgment is certainly far ahead of anything approaching maturity hereabouts. He composes witty sallies in which the ego is never apparent. You may indeed wonder how he does it.

REGULATION 17 WAS SUBJECT DISCUSSED

would lightly cast aside their traditions.

Proceeding to a more detailed study of Regulation 17 and its history, Professor Sissons said that the earliest settlers in Ontario were French, having of course French teachers and priests. After the U.E. Loyalists came, both English and French schools existed; in 1851 it was expressly provided that either English or French might be used as the language of instruction. At the time of Confederation no language trouble was even mentioned in debates; no one dreamed that the French might be deprived of their language. The first regulation in 1885 required that all should learn English; to this there was no great objection. After bitter struggles Regulation 17 was passed in 1912, the most noticeable result being that Quebec has been almost solidly Liberal ever since.

Recent investigations by Doctor Merchant and others have shown that the regulation has not been a great success, and it is expected that it will be dropped in the near future.

The vote of thanks was moved by B. J. Thompson and seconded by L. H. Clayton. Chairman Paul Martin, Mr. Nelson Parliament and Mr. C. H. Collins, the host of the evening, also spoke briefly.

CHINA IS ON VERGE OF GREAT STRUGGLE TO DECIDE FUTURE

Bishop White of Honan Predicts Big Events in Near Future

SITUATION IS INVOLVED

Foreign Aggression Commercially is Remote and Immediate Cause for Chinese Unrest

That China was on the eve of a great struggle between the South and the North, on a much larger scale than ever before, and that in the end the ideals of the Nationalists would prevail, was the prediction of Bishop White, of Honan, China, in an address given before members of Hart House yesterday afternoon.

The situation being as involved, as it is, with rapid changes in the affairs and government of both North and South China being effected every day, it was impossible to give a really up-to-the-minute account of affairs as they really are.

Foreign aggression of a commercial nature is the remote, as well as the immediate cause of the unrest in China. Uni-lateral treaties which were made eighty years ago were still in force. By these treaties foreign powers regulated the amount of duty charged on goods coming into China. These treaties, according to the speaker, should have been done away with at the close of the Great War at the latest, as they serve no good purpose, and have made European nations very unpopular on account of this infringement on the sovereign rights of China.

The sudden impact of western ideas and education has wrought enormous changes in the outlook of the Chinese people, and especially that of their leaders, many of whom have had the advantage of western education, either at home or abroad. In the twenty-two years which have elapsed since the thorough reorganization of the Chinese educational system as instituted by the late Empress Dowager, the number of inhabitants affected by these reforms and given the benefit of a foreign education along European and American lines has increased enormously. Since their establishment, the attendance at the modern schools in China has strikingly grown. In 1907 there were 883,000 pupils in attendance; in 1917, 4,000,000; and in 1922 there were 7,000,000.

This influence of modern education has become manifest in the New Thought tide which is the moving spirit of the Nationalists. Nationalism, the speaker maintained, was the logical solution of China's problems and the idea was a good one. For the excesses of Nationalism he blamed the interference and intrigue and the propaganda of the Soviet Government, whose agents were everywhere in

FOREST PROTECTION IS A PRESENT NEED

Dean Howe Opens Course of Lectures in Business Administration

FOREST POLICIES TRACED

"Forestry means keeping the forests continuously productive while in use." Such was the keynote of the address given by Dr. C. D. Howe, Dean of the faculty of Forestry, yesterday afternoon in Baldwin House in opening the course of lectures in business administration.

There is great need at the present time for the protection of our forests, which in the past have been so neglected. Dr. Howe brought to the attention of his audience many significant and striking facts. On a ten year average, for example, we have been burning 100 acres of forests for every acre we plant.

Tracing the forest policies of this country through its early colonizing period, Dr. Howe pointed out how the early settlers from the old land, realizing the scarcity of timber which existed in their own country, early learned to conserve it. The creation of forest reserves as a government policy lapsed, however, for over 100 years, due to several economic causes, chief among which being the supplanting of wooden sailing vessels by iron and steel ships.

In 1898 the first actual forest reserve was established in Canada. At this time, however, there were no technically trained foresters in this country, and it was not until our own faculty of Forestry was formed in 1907 that forestry was really studied as a science.

Many Students Are Welcomed at First of Faculty Teas

There were many students at the first of the weekly faculty teas held yesterday afternoon in the Graduate's Common Room at the library. Lady Falconer and Mrs. Brett received, and Mrs. Satterley poured tea.

The students like to "drop in" at this cheery tea-hour to meet the professors away from the studious atmosphere of the lecture hall.

STUDENT GAMBLING IS NOT PREVALENT AT THE UNIVERSITY

Faculty Heads and Deans Agree That Situation Here is Satisfactory

FORBIDDEN IN RESIDENCES

Menace Would Be Promptly Stamped Out Should It Arise

When questioned as to whether the remarks of the Chicago Journal of Commerce on student gambling, quoted in yesterday's issue of "The Varsity," obtained in this University, faculty heads and deans were agreed that there was no situation here requiring even inquiry much less the dismissal of residents. From the meagre information available, they said, it was impossible to criticize the action of the University of Illinois. They thought that if the vice were at all prevalent, the authorities there were justified in stopping it by every means in their power.

The existence of the infrequent game of poker or dice was admitted by those interviewed, but in their opinion gambling among young men at college was far less prevalent than among those at the same age outside.

A. T. DeLury, dean of the faculty of Arts, stated that while he would not care to go to the limit of expulsion, he would do everything in his power to stamp out any gambling menace that should arise. Professor DeLury was optimistic regarding the present situation, pointing out that gambling was barred by the rules of the University, of the residences and of many fraternities.

The dean in residence at Trinity, Dr. Kingston, stated that Trinity House was not involved in any serious problem of this kind. Gambling, as well as the use of intoxicating liquors, was definitely forbidden in the rooms.

There were no symptoms of gambling at Knox as far as he could see, said the Principal, the Reverend Dr. Eakin. He did not think Knox required a definite ruling on the subject.

N. W. DeWitt, dean of Victoria College, frankly agreed that there was always unavoidably present a certain amount of petty gambling. If the necessity arose he was sure that the authorities would take quick action. "There is generally a ring-leader in a thing of this kind, when it becomes serious," said Dean DeWitt.

Professors at St. Michael's College declared that their institution did not tolerate gambling. The question of payment of debt becomes a serious matter for a student who gets deeply into the game, it was pointed out.

NEW CANADIAN PICTURES AT U.C. WOMEN'S UNION

Originals of Covers for Canadian Forum Now Hang Along Stairway

Twenty-seven new pictures have been added to the collection of works by Canadian artists at the University College Women's Union. They are the original cuts of the covers of "The Canadian Forum" magazine. Most of them were done by Theraue MacDonald, a young Canadian artist, and Mr. A. Y. Jackson. The pictures have been hung along the stairway leading to the auditorium and are very attractive. They are typically Canadian, portraying scenes of the forest and lake and country life. Mr. MacDonald's pictures are characterized by the action and stern beauty of our northlands.

MYSTERY RELIGIONS HAD INITIATES VOW PERPETUAL SECRECY

Did for the Masses What Plato Had Done for the Thinkers

INITIATION RITES LOST

Mystic Union of Worshipper With Deity, and Grace Through Sacraments

That the mystery religions had done for the masses what Plato had done for the thinkers, was maintained by Professor Samuel Angus in his second lecture on The Mystery Religions, delivered in Trinity College Library yesterday afternoon.

"True religion is not one into which one is born, but one which is voluntarily joined." That this was true of the mystery religions was shown by the fact that membership in them was not considered hereditary, but each candidate had to go through a long period of preparation and initiation.

The speaker described the preparation which varied in length and vigour according to the society. First, the initiate had to take vows of perpetual secrecy. Then followed long periods of fasting, quiet contemplation, and sometimes severe self-mortification. Sacrifice played a large part in the proceedings, and the confessional, baptism and sacramental meals were commonly used.

Very little was known of the actual rites of initiation, for "unfortunately, for historical research" the initiates had always rigidly adhered to their vows of secrecy.

All this preparation led to a tremendous emotional exaltation. An ancient writer was quoted as saying, "Those who are initiated grow out of themselves and take up their abode in God." All the ancient religions believed in the divine passion, divine suffering and divine redemption, and the initiates felt that, after having shared the sufferings of the deity during their preparation, they were now entering upon a deified life.

Professor Angus spoke of the contributions made by these religions to the ancient world. They had stressed the necessity of purification and preparation for the deity, had emphasized the mystic union of the worshipper with the deity, and had introduced the idea of grace through sacramental rites. They had been the first to introduce secrecy into religion, and had furthered the use of symbolism, which still held so large a place in present day religions.

U.C. WOMEN DEBATORS ELECT OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Society Will Meet Every Other Thursday in the Women's Union

The election of officers was the most important feature of the first meeting of the U.C. Women's Debating Society held in the Common Room of the Women's Union, yesterday afternoon.

The executive for this year consists of:—

President: Nora Doran.

Vice-President: Clara Gray.

Secretary-Treasurer: Thelma Littner.

It was decided that the Society should meet every other week on Thursdays at 4 p.m. in the Women's Union. The executive was instructed to draw up a list of subjects which should be used by the debaters.

VERDANT HABERDASHERY IS FINALLY LAID ASIDE

School Frosh Are Initiated by Their Elders at Examination Hall

Once more green ties have been set aside for another year: the School "Frosh" were initiated last night in the examination hall.

A relatively small crowd of Sophs and Senior School men greeted with enthusiasm the throng of freshmen as they entered the hall one by one, taking their names and ties and speeding them down an alley of slap-sticks.

After a certain degree of order had been attained, each department put on a skit, some of which were quite good, especially for freshmen.

A frosh, who must have been considered as a harmonica king in his home town, gave a few selections on his mouth organ, to which the whole crowd joined in the chorus.

A few 2T9 men in good spirit gave some of the old School songs.

Two attacks were made by the initiates, both of which were repulsed.

After the ceremony, the whole crowd proceeded to Hart House, where food was served.

FRESHMEN'S BANQUET AT LORETTO COLLEGE

Rev. Father Callaghan, Founder of Catholic Students' Mission Crusade, Speaks

FRESHETTES FED BY SOPHS

The Freshettes of 3T1 were formally received into Loretto College last evening at the traditional Freshmen's Banquet. As an initiation stunt, the First Year gave a clever little version of Cinderella—with the familiar fairy godmother and Prince Charming, and with modern touches of song and dance.

The presentation of the play was followed by the reception banquet in honour of 3T1, given by the Sophomores. A novel feature of the banquet was that the first course for the Freshies was bread and butter and milk, which was fed them by zealous Sophs, who first carefully "bibbed" the "freshies." Amid class songs, the hearty "Hoikety Chalk" and "Toronto" and much merriment, 3T1 was ushered into the ranks of the "Girls of Loretto."

Following the banquet, the newly received year, together with the upper years and the staff, heard a short talk by the Rev. Father Callaghan, the founder of the Catholic Students' Mission Crusade in Canada. Father Callaghan sketched the history of the Mission Crusade from its small beginning ten years ago to 1921, when it was so large that it was necessary to form a band in Canada, especially for Canadian students. The speaker pointed out that mission work was the greatest possible benefit to each worker, and especially to students, "the leaders of to-morrow," and concluded by suggesting many practical ways in which a College Mission Crusade could become a highly entertaining, as well as "highly worth while" activity.

A vote of thanks on behalf of the College was tendered Father Callaghan by Miss Frances Fitzpatrick.

It is estimated that the total distance traveled by all home-run balls hit by both Ruth and Gehrig could be spanned 137 times by placing end to end, in approved statistical fashion, all the 1926 slugs used to print the "personal" narratives at baseball players during the world's series.

WILL GIVE CONCERTS IN SPECIAL SERIES FOR THE STUDENTS

Three Renowned String Quartets May Be Heard at Little Expense

IN CONVOCATION HALL

Tickets for Concert, Lasting About an Hour, Distributed at Hart House

Enabling the undergraduates to hear some of the best music at very little expense, an arrangement has been made under which the Hart House, Flonzaley and Persinger String Quartets will present a series of five concerts for students in Convocation Hall this winter. The first concert will be given on Wednesday, October 19th, at 5 p.m., and a charge of one dollar for the series will be made. These programmes will be a special student series of the same concerts which these quartets will present, at a much higher price of admission, in Hart House Theatre.

The Flonzaley Quartet comes from San Francisco with a world-wide reputation, and the three organizations represent the best chamber music of this kind to be obtained on this continent. The student concerts planned will last approximately an hour, and the distribution of tickets has been arranged for through Hart House Theatre.

SUNDAY SONGSTERS TO BE HELD AGAIN

Campbell MacInnes, Now With Opera Company, Will Come to Conduct Songsters

COMMITTEE IS IN CHARGE

The popular Sunday Evening Songsters, which were such a success last year, will again be held in the Music Room at Hart House this year. The dates for this term are November 13 and 27, and December 4 and 18. The dates for the spring term have not yet been fixed. The conduct of these delightful events has been placed in the hands of the Music Committee of Hart House.

Mr. Campbell MacInnes, the popular conductor of the Songsters last year, is now a permanent member of the staff of the American Opera Co., an organization endowed and financed by Mr. Eastman, of Kodak fame. Mr. MacInnes is teaching diction and other things to the members of the company. In spite of the fact that the company shortly expects to go on tour, and Mr. MacInnes will have a studio in New York and possibly one in Boston, his inspiring leadership will not be entirely lost to Toronto. He has arranged to come to Toronto to conduct the songsters on the dates on which they will be held.

The Songsters will be run on the same plan as previously, and some really good things for the men to sing will be introduced. The Committee in charge of the Songsters is anxious to interest men willing to help with some of the mechanical details connected with them. It would be appreciated very much if those willing to help would leave their names and addresses with Mr. Hornal in the Warden's office, so that they can be called upon when needed.

THE NEW YEAR CARD IN PRACTICE

Many flippant remarks have been heard anent the variegated year cards with which the proper authorities saw fit to experiment this year.

We hesitate to mention once again that oft-repeated word "Celebration," lest by repetition its especial significance be dulled, but nevertheless our curiosity persists until we are forced to ask if it was a mark of favouritism, or merely another example of economy, that the Third Year "Admits" and the tickets for the Opening Ceremony and the Divine Service were all of the same colour. As a result of this, one case has been reported of a ticket for the opening nestling snugly in a slim pocketbook where a Registration card was wont to lie, the said card having been torn into shreds by mistake.

However, celebrations occupy but four out of a possible total of 240 days, and what little inconvenience was suffered during that short time by the isolated junior can be condoned in the light of the general good accomplished. During those first hectic days registration was greatly facilitated by the new card system, and both professors and students were saved a great deal of trouble and embarrassment.

Perhaps one of the most powerful factors influencing the authorities was the undisputed fact that various individuals, particularly freshmen, found it expedient and singularly easy to add to or manipulate the hand-written numeral until it emerged as a "TV," thus bestowing upon themselves privileges and prestige not otherwise obtainable.

This, of course, is now impossible, and those responsible for the change should be congratulated for the undoubted success of their experiment.

THE STUDENT SERIES OF STRING QUARTET PROGRAMMES

No greater musical opportunity has ever presented itself to students of this, or probably any other university, than is offered by a series of concerts to be given in Convocation Hall this winter by the Hart House, Flonzaley and the Persinger String Quartets. The Hart House Quartet has done a great work in stimulating an interest in chamber music among students, as well as among the general public, and its appearance at Sunday evening concerts is invariably greeted with a full house.

This winter, Toronto music-lovers will be given an opportunity of hearing the Hart House Quartet, together with the famous Flonzaley Quartet and the Persinger Quartet of San Francisco, in a series of concerts in Hart House Theatre. The decision of Dr. Ernest MacMillan, and of others concerned, to repeat the concerts in a special series for students at a distinctly nominal charge of admission reveals a keen interest in undergraduate musical circles on the part of these quartets. The first of the student programmes will be presented on Wednesday, and a large number of students should take advantage of the extraordinary opportunity offered.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT WILL BEGIN TO-DAY

Rain Causes Postponement of Women's Interfaculty Tennis Until This Morning

AT TORONTO TENNIS CLUB

Owing to the rain, the Women's Interfaculty Tennis Tournament being played off at the Toronto Tennis Club has had to be postponed till nine o'clock this morning. Last year the victorious U.C. team proudly bore the coveted cup away to the Women's Union, where it graces a mantel in the Common Room, but the other faculties are determined that it will soon be displayed in another building. As a result, good tennis is expected, so it is to be hoped the weather man predicts a fine day. If it is raining, it is suggested that all the University join the farmers from the west on Sunday in their universal prayer for fine weather next week, so the tennis tournament and the track meet may be run off some time this fall. Players must be on time or default their game. The draw is as follows:

9 A.M.
M. Boyes (St. Mike's) vs. D. Fraser (St. Hilda's).
H. Richardson (Vic.) vs. T. Standeven (U.C.).
D. James (Meds) bye.
E. McColl (St. Hilda's) vs. I. Reynolds (Vic.).
M. McAndrew (U.C.) vs. M. Laird (Meds).
K. Dever (St. Mike's) vs. D. Cox (St. Hilda's).
N. Bateman (Vic.) vs. M. Wilkins (U.C.).
M. Keiller (Meds) vs. H. Dore (St. Mike's).
10.30 A.M.
D. Langley (St. Hilda's) vs. E. Taylor (Vic.).
E. Crooks (U.C.) vs. M. Hall (Meds).

M. Quin (St. Mike's) vs. J. Finlay (St. Hilda's).

Art, Music and Drama

Sketch Room

The exhibit of pictures now on view in the Sketch Room of Hart House are worth seeing by any who are interested in the development of the art of painting in Ontario. It seems particularly appropriate that during the celebration of our Centenary a group of paintings representing the work of many of our ablest artists of Ontario should be displayed in the provincial University. Several snow scenes are remarkably well done. "Winter on the Don" ably shows that we need not stir from our own threshold to see wintry scenes of surpassing beauty, even though A. Y. Jackson feels that he must travel many leagues into our hinterland to do so. However, all honour to him for giving us so realistic an impression of the Arctic regions. Those who have not seen any of his summer's work may be assured that the same high quality as pervades his "Quebec Village" in the Sketch Room still persists.

"After the Mass," by Miss K. M. Morris, is another Quebec scene, and, we think, one of the best things in the exhibit. Space precludes mentioning many details concerning individual pictures. Suffice to say that work from the brush of such artists as Wylie Grier, Homer Watson, Paul Alfred, G. A. Reid, Arthur Lismer, and a score of other names, including about four more of the "Group of Seven," when announced as being collected in one room should be enough to attract all the real Canadians in the vicinity of Hart House. The work is by no means the best that has been done by its craftsman, but is thoroughly pleasing. Because it is rather typical of the work being done by its respective artists it lends itself well as a basis of comparison.

THE FRESHIES' EXULT!

We're fresh, we're green,
We wear freak ties,
We're the darndest kids—
We're the Freshman guys

We know we're dumb,
We're a hopeless lot,
But we don't care
For what we're not!

For, look, you Seniors,
We've something on you—
For we have four
Long years at the "U"!

While you, poor things,
Will have to do
With a measly three,
Or one, or two!

Now, smite your brows,
Now, melt in tears,
As you ponder on Those four long years!

Though we're fresh and green,
Though we wear freak ties,
We're the luckiest kids,
We're the Freshman guys!

M.D.'S LAMENT

If I could fill up little moments
That I idly bum away,
How very much I should accomplish
In the passing of a day!

If I could carry in my pocket
Some dried bone of long ago,
And haul it out in vacant moments,
How many tubercles I'd know!

If I could carry Gray or Pierson
Somewhere always near to me,
I don't think it would be such trouble
To capture one poor small M.D. Emor.

Our Annual Epic

As many of our very close friends who admired our poem the "S.S. Walrus" last year, have urged us to write a similar poetic serial at this time, we feel justified in serving up to-day the first canto of a poem that may perhaps equal the "Walrus" in popularity. This new epic is entitled:

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

It is sad to observe a lack of consistency in the utterances of such a brilliant controversialist as "School '23." We marvel to say the least—at his reasoning faculties. He claims to be a red-blooded man or at least to have the sympathy of such. Then in the identical paragraph he confesses the "enthusiastic joy" he experienced when "padding" the anatomy of the helpless unprotesting frosh. We can imagine red-blooded men of 2T3's ilk engaging with enthusiastic joy in the noble sport of pricking babies' balloons, or turpentineing cats.

It is noticeable that 2T3 does not recommend a revival of the Soph-Frosh flag rush or free fight. This idea has some attractions. But possibly the odds are too near to fifty-fifty to make this keen sport for red-blooded men!

Our friend 2T3 implies that his enthusiastic joy is derived from "padding" High School hero freshmen. Poor deluded man! Doesn't he know that the real High School hero, the stellar rugby player, never used to see the initiation inferno—and quite rightly. The miserable bespectacled bookworm got the paddy-whacking and helped to swell the superiority complex of 2T3 and his classmates.

We must congratulate 2T3 on the humour with which he extrapolates on our pastimes! The marksmanship, however, is not so good. We can visualize 2T3 in his favourite haunt. He is surrounded by his red-blooded cronies. They are washing down huge mouthfuls of carpet tacks with mighty draughts of Aqua Regia while they hysterically incite each other to rush

FACULTY TRACK TO-DAY; ORPHANS vs. TIGERS HERE TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Severely disappointed on two previous occasions, it is to be hoped that the track men are granted the very best sort of weather for their scheduled Interfaculty Meet to-day. It is practically essential that the meet be held, rain or shine, for with the Intercollegiate only one week hence in Kingston, it will be necessary for Varsity to declare her entrants immediately, and this can scarcely be done, in justice to all, without the regular University meet. To say that the continual postponements may have had some effect on the participants to-day is not stretching the matter, but it seems probable that, granted fine weather, records should fall in the sprint events at least.

The "Queen's Journal" claims that Harry Batstone's showing against Argonauts furnishes basis for the prediction that the dean of half-backs is to have one of his best years. Chubby Dunne at middle wing also received much mention, while much was made of the fact that the back-field did not drop a single ball throughout the contest.

After the fine performance given by the U. of T. Senior O.R.F.U. team against the much touted Balmy Beach squad it should appear as if the Orphans will have a goodly number of spectators on hand for the game against Hamilton Tigers to-morrow. The McIntyre-Kirkpatrick combination turned in some mighty fine combination efforts in their first game of the season, and, while the latter half may be missing through injuries this

Leaders Come to Town With Two Victories Already Tucked Away

SQUAD HAS WORKED HARD

When the Varsity Senior O.R.F.U. team meets Hamilton Tigers at the Stadium to-morrow afternoon at 2.15 a good battle is assured, as Hamilton will be at top form to retain the leading position, while, on the other hand, the locals are out to come through with a win.

Two close decisions over Camp Borden leaves Hamilton on the top of the heap with Balmy Beach second and the Flyers and Varsity at the bottom. Coach Pearson and his squad are more than confident that they will be at the long end of the score to-morrow, despite a fairly large casualty list. Unless Hamilton have discarded their plunge-kick line of attack, the locals should be able to hold them. McIntyre (Continued on page 4) afternoon, it is safe to presume that the former will perform as brilliantly as ever against the Tigers. It will be remembered that McIntyre combined with another Blue stalwart to run 110 yards for a touch against the Tigers in Hamilton last year, and he will be closely watched by the players from the Mountain City to-morrow.

SUMMER WAS EVENTFUL IN THE ROWING CLUB

Annual Interfaculty Regatta Will Take Place at Boat House This Month

After a very successful summer the members of the Rowing Club are entering upon their autumn's activities with great enthusiasm. At the Royal Canadian Henley in July, the senior crew was beaten by the champion Wyandotte eight in the first heat, and the Tackweight crew was defeated by the crack Lachine 150 lb. aggregation. The Juniors won their heat after a gruelling race, but lost out in the final the following day. The same Junior crew also lost to McGill in the Intercollegiate race at the Exhibition grounds on Civic Holiday, after a hard fight in which they almost came from behind to win.

The Club opened its social season with a dollar dance at U.T.S. last Saturday night, and they will repeat this form of entertainment at Wymilwood on Saturday evening, October 22nd, after the Interfaculty Regatta. This annual aquatic event is to be held at 2 p.m. at the Rowing Club's newly decorated boat house at the foot of John Street. There will be at least one entry from every faculty, and two from several, so that there will be plenty of keen competition. Silver cups are presented to the members of the winning crew, and this presentation will take place at Wymilwood in the evening.

INTERFACULTY MEET IS SET FOR TO-DAY

Drowned Out Twice, Important Track Event Will Stage Come-back

PROMISING NEW MATERIAL

Some sort of fierce jinx has been hounding the track enthusiasts this year no matter what they do. As soon as the authorities call a day for the Interfaculty Meet it seems to be the signal for the rain to come down in buckets. The track on Friday and Wednesday last was almost totally submerged in water. Another attempt to stage the event will be made to-day.

The rain, however, has not dampened the ardour of the track men in the slightest. With the approach of the Intercollegiate Meet at Kingston, each man is more determined than ever to make a place on the team. There are several freshmen such as Fitzpatrick, Walters, Belachey and King, whom it will be well nigh impossible to keep off the team. All these men are equalizing, and in some cases surpassing, intercollegiate times and distances.

The field events, always a weak point in Varsity's team, are gradually coming into their own. Coach Martin has been grooming new field men since the beginning of the year, and the result of his work will show to-day. Finlayson, McTaggart, Belachey and McVean are all promising weight men, and it is hoped that Varsity will take some of these events at the Intercollegiate Meet.

Most of Varsity's runners are without their equal in the Intercollegiate Union; all they need is a fine day to-day to set up a new row of records.

This year being Olympic year, more interest than ever is being taken in track work. Every man is working hard to grab off one of the coveted places on Canada's team. Members of the Olympic Committee will be on hand to check performances, and each man will be watched closely.

PHYSICAL TRAINING TIME-TABLE

Compulsory for Men Students in the First and Second Years

Classes in Physical Training for men students in the First and Second Years commence next Monday, October 17th, and students are required to attend at the hours indicated below as provided in the time tables of the respective Faculties and Colleges.

Students are reminded that they must attend 80% of these classes in order to get standing, and also that each student is personally responsible for the recording of his attendance.

Members of University teams and of all Interfaculty teams will be given credit for Physical Training, provided that the managers of the respective teams file a record of their attendance in the Athletic Office, Hart House, each week. This holds good only during the playing season of that particular sport, and no attendance can be recorded other than on the certificates of the team managers.

The number of men that can "make a team" will be found on Pages 28 and 29 in the Athletic Hand Book, now on distribution at the Athletic Office.

In all probability Varsity will be minus the services of "Gay" Kirkpatrick in to-morrow's encounter, as he is still using crutches; torn tendons take time to heal. Christie is in the General Hospital with a ruptured kidney, received while at practice on Tuesday. He will be out of the game for some time, if not the season; but there is a half dozen fighting it out to fill his place. Gray and Little, who were laid up at the beginning of the week, are again in uniform and going strong, although Stringer is still absent.

Geordie Dunn at outside wing will be a sure starter, and is expected to hold down that position with Bill Woods. Both these men get up well under kicks and tackle hard. Dunlap at flying wing is another man the "Orphans" can depend on. Keith at snap is a husky boy who has great

This squad of Pearson's is no lazy outfit. On Monday they were out, likewise Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, while a light signal practice to-night will finish a week's hard work. Through heat, cold, rain and mud, these real mud hens struggled around the Stadium all week; so no matter what sort of reception the weather man offers Varsity, they should be able to give a good account of themselves.

Second year pass students in the course leading to a B.H.Sc. are voting for the second year representative for the existence of the Household Science Club. The nominees are Jean MacElroy, Kathleen Abbot and Josephine Bull.

Of course the matter was attended to as soon as the Superintendent heard about it.

Thinks Viewpoint of "School '23" Rare Mediaevalism and of Psychological Interest Only.

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

It was with feelings of the keenest pleasure, and, might I add, with all my historical interests aroused, that I read "School '23's" letter in your columns of Oct. 12. Mediaevalism is so rare in this civilized age. And it is such a pleasure to discover the viewpoint of earlier ages. For instance, to-day there is a widespread prejudice to this effect, that to wantonly inflict pain on another is—well, not quite gentlemanly. And so I am exceedingly grateful to "School '23" for his graphic, naive defence of the Torture-chamber. What a superior "red-blooded" individual he must be! So superior that I, a mere student of literature, who have not even a mild desire to pummel anyone, scarcely dare hope to be considered a member of the same species by this Knight of the Paddle. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this opportunity to express my appreciation of a clubman's point of view,—so interesting psychologically. I remain, yours, etc.,

S.S. PINEAPPLE

Where the magic Southern Cross Shines above warm seas that toss Wave on wave o'er coral isles, Where the Fiji maiden smiles, Where the sharks bite valiant divers And devour the wreck-survivors, And the cannibals with clubs Dine on joints of luckless dubs Or on missionaries plump Turned to sirloin, roast or rump, There we lay our latest tale In a mighty monsoon-gale. Down the Southern Seas there came A dark pirate sloop of fame Noised abroad from Tues-to-Sundays, Spoken softly of on Mondays, Mentioned off Juan Fernandez, Where the natives wash their laundries.

This grim craft, the frigate "Gore," Sailed the waters years before, Sinking liners and canots Smuggling in illicit booze To the chiefsaints of the isles For their cocoanuts and smiles. All the navies-of the nations Chased her on their meagre rations, Burning tons of coal like matches, Burning rigging, masts, and hatches, But her captain Hardtack Jones Loved to hear the victim's groans, And with guns a-brim with scrapple Waited for the skiff "Pineapple." Promised all his crew a bounty And a Fiji Island county If they took the tons of gold In the old "Pineapple's" hold. Came a cry from out the crow's nest, "There's a barkentine that goes west!" Hardtack Jones then drew his sword, With an oath on every word, Cried: My lads, veer off toward 'em, Watch me neatly board 'em, sword 'em, And release their souls from boredom! in Peking, as proved by many documents written in English as well as Russian, and which the speaker had China, both North and South. There was ample evidence of this disclosed by the results of the raid of last April on the Soviet Legation Headquarters had the opportunity of perusing.

The remitting of the British portion of the Boxer indemnity amounting to $8,000,000 and the devotion of this money to educational and to other purposes such as rural credit organizations had done much to renew Chinese faith in the sincerity and goodwill of Western powers. The appointment of this money was put in the hands of a commission of three Chinese and three Englishmen, under the chairmanship of Lord Willingdon, which commission is at present examining the situation. The chairmanship has now been offered to W. W. Yen, once Minister to Washington, also later Prime Minister of China, and now Minister Designate to the Court of St. James.

B.W. and F. Coaches Back at McGill Again

The three coaches that guided the destinies of McGill's boxing, wrestling, and fencing team last year will all be back for the 1927-28 season when the club gets its winter programme under way in a short time. Bert Light will again coach the boxers, George Smith has been reappointed wrestling instructor, and M. Raimondi will once more have charge of the fencers.

Prospects for McGill in the intercollegiate assault-at-arms which will be held this year in Kingston are as yet uncertain, for as in the past, definite strength of the B.W. and F. team will not be known until a few weeks before the title meet. A fair portion of last year's performers in all three branches of sport have registered again at the university.—McGill Daily.

This money is also being applied to scholarships, not only in England, but in other parts of the British Empire as well.

PERSUE ELUSIVE LINGO THROUGH SUMMER MONTHS

Prof. Jeanneret Praises Quebec
School for Teachers

BECOMES LIVING LANGUAGE

Promotes Inter-provincial Good Feeling by Cooperation

"It will make French a much more living language in the schools," said Professor F. C. A. Jeanneret in the course of a recent interview with "The Varsity," on the summer school that was held in Quebec this year for Ontario school teachers. Some eighty teachers anxious to improve their French, took advantage of the opportunity afforded by the Ontario government, to pursue their studies in that language in the province of Quebec during the summer season.

The course, which was made possible by the co-operation of the French Department of Education, was held at a convent near Quebec City. It consisted of a series of lectures, given by prominent men, on the literature and institutions of French Canada, of classes in Phonetics, French Composition and French Literature, and of conversation groups.

The Quebec Government welcomed the teachers in a reception at Spencerwood, the residence of the Lieutenant-Governor. A sight-seeing trip around the city, in the course of which many places of historical interest were visited was also afforded. During the session excursions were made to several near by points, such as Sainte Anne de Beaupre, Montmorency Falls and the Island of Orleans.

There was ample evidence that the significance of the course in promoting better relations between the two provinces was appreciated. Well-known educationists and business men gave up their time to ensure the success of the undertaking. Judge Riard of the King's Bench, whose "Chez Nous" is a notable book on life in Quebec, gave lectures on the French language as spoken in that province. Monsieur L'Abbe Lauberte, Professor of French literature in Laval University, spoke on French-Canadian literature. Monsieur C. J. Magnan, Inspector-General of Roman Catholic Schools, explained the school system of Quebec. Monsieur Damais, Professor of diction in the Conservatory of Quebec, gave talks on reading and declamation, illustrated with recitations from the French classics. Monsieur La Fontaine, a barrister of Quebec City, held conversation groups. Professor Jeanneret, who organized one course and secured the lecturers, took classes in Phonetics, French Composition and Literature, assisted by Monsieur La Fontaine and Mademoiselle Laberge. Monsieur Cyrille Delage, Superintendent of both Roman Catholic and Protestant schools, made all arrangements.

Professor Jeanneret stressed the need of constant practice in the mastery of any languages, and considered, on that account, that the course should become an annual event. It was a splendid opportunity to see the people of Quebec, and the institutions of that

Spontaneous Freshie Imaginations Delight Stern Senior Ritualists

Dame Rumour has for the past week or so bruited about the campus the news that the freshies of University College were to be initiated at the Women's Union on the evening of the thirteenth, at seven-thirty p.m. Skits, said this informative lady, were to be the order of the evening. Although many of the freshies found themselves, at the eleventh hour, still straying from the fold of their assigned groups, they showed extreme versatility in presenting for the approval of the seniors delightfully impromptu evidences of the spontaneity of the freshie imagination. In spite of the fact that stage properties were conspicuous by their absence, the ingenious co-eds rose to the

FAULTLESS KICKS

Varsity Line Proves Adamant

Displaying a good brand of football at the Varsity Stadium on Saturday afternoon, the University of Toronto Senior O.R.F.U. team decisively defeated the league leading Hamilton Tigers by a 31-2 score. Not once during the contest was the result in doubt. Coach Pearsons' squad, working like a well oiled machine, opened holes in the opposing line, gave ample protection to McIntyre to get away kicks, blocked wing men and lost but little ground when Hamilton continued her line plunging tactics.

Five unconverted touches, five rouges and a kick to the dead-line accounted for Varsity's points, while Hamilton's counter came in the second period when an attempted outside kick was fumbled and later secured by McIntyre for a safety touch. Both sides were guilty of fumbles, but the Tigers' proved more costly. Throughout, the play was wide open, the kind fans like, and they certainly got their money worth on Saturday. Davies made several beautiful broken field runs, as did McIntyre, Reid and Woods. McIntyre's kicking was almost faultless, and his long punt on the kick-off forced Adams to rouge. On two other occasions, this ex-Humberside man punted the ball for three-quarters the length of the field, one resulting in a rouge.

The Varsity line was deserving of much credit, for it gave the kicker great protection, opened gaping holes in the opposing ranks for the plungers and provided excellent interference for the back field. Keith in the new role of wing-man played an excellent game, being in on every play and tackling hard. He teamed well with Dunn, who not only provided one of the touches, but made some spectacular tackles.

The feature play of the game, however, was made by Little in the third period. He made a 25 yard plunge through centre, and when about to be tackled punted the ball to the goal line and followed up hard to flop on it for a touch. It was a risky play, but it worked and it gave the spectators a real thrill.

Varsity took the attack from the first and Warwick could not keep up to McIntyre's booting. Two rouges were secured in short order. Warwick fumbled a punt, and Keith

SAYS DUAL PERUSAL OF WORK, CRITICISM BEST POETRY TEST

Prof. Livingstone Avers Literary Taste Acquired by Reading

MUSICAL POETS APPEAL

Visualization Qualities of Import in Reader's Mind

"When you read a poet, read a good book of criticism about him at the same time," was the advice given by Professor Livingstone, Friday afternoon, in his lecture on "How to Judge Poetry and what constitutes Great Literature." "But of course," he continued, "feel yourself not in the least bound to agree with the critic."

There were certain ways one could get to see what was good in literature. Yet there was one thing which came in and upset calculations. This was beauty. No rules could be given for saying what beauty is. Again, one had to weigh intense feeling as against beauty. There was no reason why one should judge, yet one is forced sometimes to ask, "Is it good or is it bad?"

One acquired a taste for good literature by reading good literature and poetry. Be accustomed to good things and you will immediately see what he had, he said. This was Matthew Arnold's recipe to take great lines and use them as touchstones. Yet this did not take one very far.

The first thing to do if one wanted to appreciate good literature was to be sure and read it. One was often taken by the mere sound and did not read. Young people as a whole liked poets who were musical. At an early age Tennyson appealed to people who were inclined to discard him later. This was also true of Swinburne. Music was an important part of poetry, yet it should not drown the mind. Many people found pleasure in the music of the Odes of Horace, which if read carefully and thought over would have much less appeal.

In showing what he meant by reading, Professor Livingstone said that one should be sure that he knew what the poem was about. When reading it, one should see what feeling was in the poet's heart when he sat down to write. Often in a poem, the writer just gave a picture for the reader to visualize. It was quite possible not to see the picture. If this was so, one missed what the poet was doing. The Second Book of the Aeneid was a succession of perfect pictures which were seldom seen by pupils. One had to know what the poet's subject was, and

Say Goodbyes, Give Greeting

The Royal Ontario Museum has seen many changes this year. On October 4 Miss Dorothy Haynes, museum guide and lecturer in Archaeology, was married to Dr. Gordon Irving Hoover in Knox College Chapel. Dr. Hoover was on the staff of the University of Toronto last year, but is now connected with McGill University.

Professor J. H. Iliffe has arrived to take up his position as successor to the late Dr. C. G. Harcum as keeper of the classical collection of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology.

Miss E. M. Greenaway, Professor Curley's secretary, has returned from a two months' tour of England.

Dr. Madeline Fritz, who lectured at the University last year, has been appointed to the staff of the Museum of Paleontology as assistant.

MINUTE MARGIN PREVENTS RELAY RECORD DEMOLITION

Mabee, Fitzpatrick, Christie,

in 1 31 2-5

Varsity's first relay team just failed by 1 2-5 seconds to lower the Canadian record for the half-mile relay of 1 minute 30 seconds at an open meet staged at half-time of the Tigers-Orphans game at the U. of T. Stadium on Saturday afternoon. Considering weather conditions, with a brisk wind blowing from the south, the pace set by Mabee, Fitzpatrick, Christie and Smith was remarkably fast, and, granted perfect weather conditions, there seems little doubt but that a new record would have been set. Breaking for the first team, Fitzpatrick secured a ten yard advantage in the first 220, while Smith and Mabee gained slight advantages, and Christie finished by tearing home an easy winner.

The second Blue team, coming second, was composed of Charlie Morrison, D. J. MacKenzie, Andy Somerville and "Mo" Mitchell, while a team from the Spartan Athletic Club came in third.

POOR FROSH RUFFLED

The open season for Frosh in Victoria College came to a violent end Friday evening in Burwash Hall at the Fifty-Fifth Annual Bob. In the presence of a large collection of parents, friends and well-wishers, the class of 3T1 was firmly and definitely put in its place by the Sophomores in the ceremony which agreeably combines the purposes of a yelling contest, singing, initiation and stunt-night. The purposes of the Bob, originally introduced in honour of Robert Beare, who as custodian of the college buildings welcomed the Frosh, were explained by Dr. Robbins.

As the Freshmen came into the dining hall of Burwash, it was necessary to run the gauntlet of 3T0, who were out to collect as much wearing apparel in the shape of ties and ruffs (Continued on page 4)

Beauty of Wordsworth Explained By Unusual Organic Sensibility

Wordsworth's own definition of a poet as being "A man possessed of more than usual organic sensibility" was given by Mr. Smith, Inspector of Schools for Scotland, in his lecture on that poet at the Women's Union on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Smith proceeded to answer his own question as to what was Wordsworth's own endowment in respect to this basis of poetic temperament.

The dominant sense in Wordsworth was sight. This was so true that at times he felt it might endanger his spiritual life and he might become a mere epicure of visual sensation. This penetrating observation was his earliest gift and the last to desert him.

Wordsworth's ear was no less acute than his eye, and within certain limits was highly sensitive, especially to natural sounds. He owed most to sight and sound, and frequently the latter, as instanced in the beating of rain on the roof, readily induced the poetic mood.

As distinguished from Milton, whose praise of music comes from the heart, Wordsworth had no sense of time. He praises music as one who has observed rather than felt its power. It was

Ceremony Impressive When Traditional Rites Are Held

Great interest in zoology was aroused at initiation of Victoria Freshettes Friday night at Wymilwood, when many specimens of the goat family were represented by the Freshies.

The Sophs and Freshies each put on a very clever skit, after which the goats were fed shredded wheat from nose bags, which entirely did away with the dish-washing problem. The lambs, or rather the kids, were then shorn by the Sophs, after which Miss Addison, Dean of Women at Victoria, addressed the Freshettes.

The traditional lamp of learning service was opened by a word of welcome to the Freshies by Jean Pinchin, vice-president of 3T0, and the girls of 3T1 took the pledge. The Sophs and Freshies then marched carrying lighted candles and singing the impressive Lamp of Learning Hymn to the Victoria Chapel, where Miss Rowell, who was instrumental in inaugurating this tradition, told the story of the Lamp of Learning. Anne Shave, president of 3T0, owing to illness was unable to present the new Lamp of Learning given by the women of 2T7 to Victoria, so Mary Howard, president of the Victoria W.U.A. 2T7, very ably took her place. Jean Pinchin accepted the Lamp on behalf of the College and in turn passed it on to the girls of 3T1. Dorothy Barling accepted it on behalf of the Freshies.

NOTE-TAKING—AN ANACHRONISM

In 1843, when the first lectures were given in old King's College, the students, no doubt, carried their notebooks to the classrooms, and copied down, verbatim, the words of the professor. In 1927, students continue to follow their example, despite the advent of typewriters, multigraphers, and carbon copies. The question arises—"Has note-taking, as it describes an attempt to take down lectures word for word, not become an anachronism in the advanced days of the twentieth century?"

Instead, the professor might supply his classes, at small cost, with a typed outline of the course he intends to pursue, and the books available for consultation. The students then would be free to enjoy the lecture with no anxiety lest they were missing something. A few words would be enough to remind them of poignant facts or ideas, and would, we believe, be just as efficacious as the reams of scribble and half-finished sentences which always put in appearance about the time of the Spring equinox.

The Professor must surely find it disconcerting to lecture to a roomful of bowed heads. And if he talks at his natural rate, he is apt to be disturbed by whispered remarks, such as, "What was the last word in his second to last sentence?" And if he slows up, as for dictation, he is unable to put expression and feeling into his remarks.

In science courses, where no books are available, accurate notes are necessary. But in history, English, economics, and many arts subjects, it is the spirit behind the facts which the lecturer hopes to convey, and it is so very easy to lose the blazed trail of an idea in an undergrowth of words.

SING-SONGS FOR WOMEN STUDENTS?

The sterner sex have no idea what a wonderful institution they have in Hart House. There is no common gathering place for women of all colleges in the university.

Some of the women have proposed sing-songs which would include women from all the colleges on the campus. But the thing is where to hold such a gathering. The men can gather in Hart House every three weeks, or, better, during the noon hours. The only way the women could solve the problem would be for each college to be responsible for one night a month, or as often as seems advisable. On this occasion the women from all the colleges could gather to enjoy a happy evening.

The idea of a sing-song would be to become familiar with college songs, and so create a university spirit. Especially after the unique celebrations the University has just held, such gathering would tend to increase the bond of union between the various colleges. Freshmen would become acquainted, and the girls not in residence would have a splendid opportunity to get together.

Perhaps in the near future some such plans can be made with the heads of the colleges to promote sing-songs among women students. By the time the next centennial comes around we will hope the women will have a place where girls from every college can assemble.

FISH STORY IS PAPER PRESENTED AT TRINITY

H. Branion Addresses Science Club on Fishing Industry in Great Lakes

The first regular meeting of the Trinity College Science Club was held in Trinity House Tuesday evening, the President, Mr. Turnbull, presiding. The programme for the evening consisted of a paper given by Mr. H. D. Branion on the fishing industry of the Great Lakes.

Mr. Branion sketched briefly the history of Great Lake fishing from early seines and sailing craft to the more modern gill and pound nets operated by coal and oil burning tugs. As the demand increased, the older methods disappeared and more effective means have been diminishing the supply. It is a mistake to believe the Great Lakes inexhaustible because of their magnitude. The essayist pointed out that great areas of the lakes are unsuitable for fish life. Also large feeding grounds are being ruined by the waste being dumped into them by the cities and towns. The ashes dumped from the great number of lake boats is also a menace. Wasteful and unrestricted fishing has done much to endanger the industry.

By way of remedy the work of the fish hatcheries was discussed. The value of propagation as now carried on has been questioned by recent research. It was pointed out that careful legislation and its strict enforcement is necessary for the preservation of the industry. In the lively discussion which followed, closed seasons were suggested or that parts of the lakes be closed to fishing. Refreshments were served and the meeting adjourned after a vote of thanks to the essayist and hosts.

Women students at Ohio Wesleyan will be expelled from the university if guilty of smoking. President John W. Hoffman has informed parents of entering registrants. A ban on student automobiles and student marriages has also been emphasized.

Art, Music and Drama

Portrait Exhibit

An exhibition of portraits is rarely met with enthusiasm. With the superficial dilettante it is to be howled down on the grounds of monotony: to the hypercritical aesthete it is probably a series of grotesqueries done up in a style necessarily limited; to the creative artist it is suggested material, to the actor a study in expressions; but to the student it offers one of the widest opportunities for study of various translations of a particularized subject into tone, colour and two-dimensional form. From this point of view anyone may find interest in the Loan Exhibition of portraits at the Grange until November 6th.

There is very little that one may say of the old masters, it has all been said. There are two Goya canvasses, interesting for their study of expression—one in particular, "Judge Altamirano." We spent some time admiring the splendid collection of twelve Raeburn portraits and the copy of "The Infant Samuel" in the Reynolds collection. "Mrs. Haywood" by Benj. West may be a fine example of craftsmanship but we think a nature-tint photograph would have involved much less effort and created precisely the same effect. An excellent piece of 17th century Dutch work is "Portrait of a Lady" by Maes. "Portrait of Mr. Cross of Clifton, Bristol," a Romney canvas reminded us somewhat, as far as depth and feeling are concerned, of a carefully executed drop-curtain.

Among the modern portraits four outstanding pictures are: "Portrait of a Young Breton," "Portrait of Lucien Pissaro," "Dr. Stresemann," and "Mountain Philosopher." "Portrait of a Young Breton" by Glyn Philpot is a picture of relentless Courage and Strength. It is executed in broad, flat tones and the effect is one of dependability. William Strang's "Portrait of Lucien Pissaro" is almost disagreeably intense and candid. The composition is not pleasing—rather startling, but it makes a very impressive picture. Almost the same, as regards intensity and candour, might be said of the peremptory portrait "Dr. Stresemann," by a contemporary English artist, Augustus John. One may observe in it an approach to the two-dimensional, but what it takes from reality it replaces with force and command. The portrait, however, which was to us the most deeply interesting was one by a Spanish artist, Zuloaga, called "Mountain Philosopher," an objective picture of splendid design and pervaded with the serene richness of contemplation. It is a glorious and symbolic portrait of Philosophy. Modern combination of chiaroscuro and flat tone is evidenced by the interesting portrait of Mme. Dérain—by André Dérain. Paul Cezanne is represented only by his "Thomme en bleu"—which is not one of his best. "Portrait of Frederick W. Connor, Esq." by Richard Jack is very fine, good construction except for a slight superimposed position. One extremely interesting canvas is "Lady in Gray" by Gwen John. Small and light tone patches here convey an unusual impression of fullness and depth. The three pictures by Sir William Orpen are undoubtedly excellent. There is a certain living, vibrant spontaneity about them that gives them tremendous charm. There are, unfortunately, several portraits which should have been hung in a city hall, not an art gallery. "Portrait of Dr. William J. Holland," "W. M. German, Esq.," "Sir Win Muloch" are a few examples of this. "Portrait of Mr. J. Albright" is a foreshortened seated figure, flat and stupid, painted by an American artist, Tarbell.

In the Canadian section the outstanding canvas is Lawren Harris's "Rev. Salem Bland." A certain conventional rhythm and placidity of colour admirably suit the subject. A very effective picture is "Miss Audrey Buller" by Hewton—a sort of modern approach to the Old Italian. Mr. A. Eastman's "Portrait of my Mother" is an engaging little painting of lavender softness.

We would, as evidenced by the above review, recommend this exhibition as quite satisfactory, but since the opinions of critics, especially amateur critics, are never entirely reliable, a personal inspection of the Exhibition is the solitary answer to the question of its value.

ARE BOOKS "DANGEROUS" TO THE STUDENT MIND?

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

On visiting Hart House Library the other day I found that the novel I wanted to read was already in use. As I had previously read enough of the book to become intensely interested in it, and as I had been disappointed on other occasions also in trying to get hold of it there, I embraced what seemed rather a forlorn hope and sought it in the index of the University Library. Somewhat to my surprise it was there. But when I handed in the slip for it, what was my chagrin to be told that the book was not for undergraduate use.

Being quite unacquainted with the inner workings of the library, I am not in a very good position to judge the reasons for that circumstance. The only reason I can imagine is that the book is regarded as unfit for immature undergraduates.

To be plain, the book in question is "An American Tragedy" by Theodore Dreiser. The fact that it is so much read in Hart House proves there is an active interest in it. Why, then, should it be withheld from the many who wish to read it, for whom the Hart House copy is inadequate—for

Now that there is so much blood on the moon, and "School '23" (with great glee and savage shouts) is running about wildly in all directions tomahawking less robust individuals, this spirit of ferocity or blood-lust is in the air and taking effect like a deadly germ. We have received three messages of menace already, and print them to show how the primitive is coming into its own again:

"Cat,

Your humour has gone too far. Take warning in time.

—The Six."

and the second in red ink:

"N.A.B.

To-morrow is your last hour in the universe. Your blood will water the earth.

—The Six."

and all over the assignment-book was scribbled the following delightful order:

"Champus, say your prayers.

—The Six."

The Six are a delegation of four big guys and two small ones who came around the office the other day looking for us with more than due solicitude. Unfortunately we weren't in the office, for we are genuinely sorry that we missed the committee. If they come again, we will be there, well-armed. It will be a case of "Six of one and two dozen of the other."

SCHOOL MEN CONQUER AS TARDY INTERFACULTY TRACK MEET HELD

SPEAKING OF SPORT

McGill's close call at the hands of Queen's in Montreal again raises interest in the Intercollegiate race to a fever pitch, and mighty should be the contingent that makes the trip to Kingston next Saturday. Almost credited with a win right in Montreal, the Tricolour will prove a mighty hard team to beat on their own stamping ground, but now that the Red and White lead the College race with two straight wins, it is practically a life and death struggle in so far as the Blue are concerned—or Queen's either for that matter. For some reason or other, it generally falls to the Kingston University to hold what looks like the choicest tid-bit of the season in the Limestone City. Saturday's name shapes up as if it will be just that, and the University of Toronto Athletic Association is preparing for a record crowd to the event. As usual a special train will be run, arriving just in time for the game, and a minimum fare for University students, including game tickets, has been set at $7.50.

With St. Germaine not at his best through injury, Tremaine's booting is reported to have been the brilliant feature in McGill's win. Batstone, cool and clever as usual, was never better, while his partner on the back-field, Warren of Weston, bids fair to step into the ranks of Intercollegiate half-back stars.

From the standpoint of interest and enjoyment it is a long, long time since we have witnessed as good a game as that dished up at the local Stadium by the Orplands and the Hamilton Tigers O.R.F.U. entry on Saturday afternoon. Fumbles may have predominated, yes, but there was no cut and dried foot ball about this game, the boys passing the old pigskin around like a basketball, and showing a willingness to take chances and profiting thereby. As against the Tigers last year, McIntyre turned in one of his best games, and his kicking and running dominated the play throughout, even though he did make more than one bad fumble and was lucky to recover on several occasions. In the absence of Kirkpatrick, a new back-field star was uncovered in the person of Davies, who combined well with McIntyre and made many long dashes through a field of tacklers for good gains. The tackling of the entire team was good, but Keith, at left outside, was especially accurate. Mike Pearson showed a sparkling assortment of good plays that, at times, left the Tigers bewildered, and that gave his players every opportunity to display their best.

The feature play of the game was Little's 55 yard dash for a touchdown. It was a play that most players dream about but forget all about making in the hectic moments of the game itself. Breaking through the line, Little faced two tacklers, either or both of whom were almost certain to stop him. The husky middle crossed both by kicking a short punt just as he reached them and tore after the ball to fall on it just as it crossed the line a good five feet in front of the terrible Tigers. That play was an eye-opener for the majority of the Intercollegiate players who thronged the sidelines.

The passes, from the snap-back out, were sharp and accurate. Pearson had every player on his team looking for the elusive spheroid at every opportunity, and it was on but rare occasions that the ball was dead before it had changed hands more than once. They were not all short passes, either, the ball being hurled through the air for ten to fifteen yards on many occasions.

With a man unnoticed by the opposition, Pearson attempted his annual outside kick to the sidelines at the beginning of the second quarter. A year ago the play worked to perfection, but on Saturday the punt was long and high and was gobbled up by a Tiger back.

The main feature of the game was the willingness of the youngsters to take chances, and the success thereby attained; the variety and excellence of their plays and the all-round work of every man on the squad. Their game might not, perhaps, show so brilliantly against more experienced opponents, but it was just the game to beat the Tigers and was, as well, mighty pleasing to the fans.

On Thursday an event of International Intercollegiate importance will take place at the Stadium when the Blue soccer team will act as host to State College. Although hosts to U. of T. lacrosse and wrestling teams in past seasons, and to the local soccer team last year, this is but the second time that State had made the journey to Toronto, and there should be a good turnout to foster the pilgrimage. More and more do we seek to accept athletic connections with our sister universities of the United States, but it will only be through wholehearted support of our undergraduate body that connections can be established on a firm and solid foundation.

which won the championship in 1926, prospects are extremely bright.

Arrangements are also being made to have the University of Cincinnati Chess Team, champions of Ohio for the past three years, visit Toronto while on their tour of the Eastern States. Owing to pecuniary difficulties, the University team has had little opportunity to play American universities. Victories, however, have been scored against the University of Buffalo and a drawn match against West Point.

School Chalks Another Victory In Taking Meet By Wide Margin

Fitzpatrick Lowers Century Record

McKENZIE ACTIVE

Graham Breaks Three Mile Mark

School won the team championship in the Interfaculty Track Meet on Friday by scoring 39 points, as against 24 by U.C., 22 by Med and 18 by Vic.

As predicted, new track records were hung up. The most outstanding of these was the marvelous race of Johnny Fitzpatrick, the protégé of Captain Canelius, who defeated Harley Russell and Cam Mabey in the century to break the record in the time of 9 4-5 sec. The record of 10 seconds flat, held jointly by Frank Halbus, Lou Sebert and Harley Russell, had stood for seventeen years. Lawson Robertson, American Olympic coach, has said that Johnny is the greatest sprinting prospect he ever saw in his life. 9 4-5 seconds is within 1-5 sec. of the world's record—and this from a youth just out of high school. Fitzpatrick had no trouble taking the 220 yards also. Incidentally Johnny receives Lou Sebert's gold medal which goes to the man breaking the record.

Wally Graham broke the three mile record by 4 1-5 seconds. He was out in front by himself for three-quarters of the distance. He finished over a half lap ahead of the second man.

Jim McKenzie, the individual winner, put the team championship on ice for School by scoring 23 points himself. The lanky track captain added four firsts, and a second, just one second less than the record held by Lou Sebert of 50 2-5 sec.

"Mo" Mitchell, the half mile champion of Canada, wasn't even threatened in his favourite distance. He won easily in the time of 2 min. 2 1-5 sec. However, in the quarter mile he had a ding dong battle with Alan Christie, who pulled away, coming down the stretch to win by several yards. The half mile and mile previously run by Mitchell left him in no condition to challenge Christie on the stretch.

The pole vault was won by Davenport with a height of 11 ft. 4 in. Crawford of Meds was second, and Dennis of U.C. third.

The mile race was a thrilling dead heat, "Mo" Mitchell and Duffy Wilson coming down the stretch discussing thoroughly the matter of who should be winner. They decided about 20 yards from the finish to make it a dead heat.

In the field events many new men showed to advantage. Crosby of Victoria won the discus throw and placed in the shot put. Marshall won the high jump with a height of 5 ft. 5 in.

A fair crowd was on hand considering that no official holiday was granted.

Junior School Blank U.C. in First Series Game 13-0

Jr. School won their first game of the series from U.C. by 13 to 0. School at all stages had the game well in hand, showing superior condition over their opponents. Hancock ran well, Davidson's tackling was superb. The whole team was very good on the whole. Murchison starred for U.C.

PHYSICAL TRAINING TIME-TABLE

Compulsory for Men Students in the First and Second Years

Classes in Physical Training for men students in the First and Second Years commence next Monday, October 17th, and students are required to attend at the hours indicated below as provided in the time tables of the respective Faculties and Colleges.

Students are reminded that they must attend 80% of these classes in order to get standing, and also that each student is personally responsible for the recording of his attendance.

Members of University teams and of all Interfaculty teams will be given credit for Physical Training, provided that the managers of the respective teams file a record of their attendance in the Athletic Office, Hart House, each week. This holds good only during the playing season of that particular sport, and no attendance can be recorded other than on the certificates of the team managers.

The number of men that can "make a team" will be found on Pages 28 and 29 in the "Athletic Hand Book, now on distribution at the Athletic Office.

U.C., ST. HILDA'S GET FIRST WINS

Interfaculty Tennis Tourney
Under Way Sees These Emerge

EACH GAIN FIVE POINTS

In the first round of the Interfaculty Tennis Tournament, played on the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club Friday morning, U.C. and St. Hilda's emerged victorious, each with five points to their credit.

A win in the first round counted one point for college of the winner, in the second round two points, etc.

One of the most finished sets was played by E. McColl (St. Hilda's) and L. Reynolds (Vic.). The latter showed good placing, but the pep and cross-court drive of her opponent proved too much, and St. Hilda's won 6-2, 6-4. D. Langley (St. Hilda's), the winners, and E. Taylor (Vic.) put up another good set with the girls very evenly matched, as the score, 6-4, 6-4, proved. One of the most interesting sets to watch was played by J. Bateman (Vic.) and R. Higgins (U.C.). Owing to injuries to an arm sustained a few years ago, J. Bateman was allowed to use two hands, but after winning the first set, she tired and went down to defeat 6-4, 6-2.

In the C. Williams (U.C.) and H. Craw (Meds) match, the former's cannon-ball service and exceptional reach downed her opponent 6-2, 6-3. At first M. Quin (St. Mike's) and J. Finlay (St. Hilda's) match played fast and carelessly, but soon they settled down into a more steady game, with St. Hilda's winning 6-1, 6-4. Another close set showing nice form was played by M. Grout (St. Hilda's) and L. Bates (Vic.), the former winning 5-6, 6-2, 6-3.

The other results were as follows: D. Fraser (St. Hilda's) def. M. Boyes (St. Mike's) 6-2, 6-2. T. Standeven (U.C.) def. H. Richardson (Vic.) 6-3, 6-5. D. James (Meds) bye. M. McAndrew (U.C.) def. M. Laird (Meds) 6-2, 7-5. D. Cox (St. Hilda's) def. K. Dever (St. Mike's) 6-0, 6-1. M. Bateman (Vic.) def. C. Smith (U.C.) 6-1, 6-3. H. Dore (St. Mike's) def. M. Kreiller (Meds) 6-0, 6-0. E. Crook (U.C.) def. M. Hall (Meds) 6-1, 6-1. M. Brick (Meds) def. M. McGary (St. Mike's) 6-4, 6-0. G. Dunn (St. Mike's) bye.

On Saturday morning the second round was played off as follows:

D. Fraser (St. Hilda's) vs. T. Standeven (U.C.).

D. James (Meds) vs. E. McColl (St. Hilda's).

M. McAndrew (U.C.) vs. D. Cox (St. Hilda's).

M. Bateman (Vic.) vs. H. Dore (St. Mike's).

E. Taylor (Vic.) vs. E. Crook (U.C.).

G. Dunn (St. Mike's) vs. R. Higgins (U.C.).

M. Brick (Meds) vs. M. Grout (St. Hilda's).

C. Williams (U.C.) vs. J. Finlay (St. Hilda's).

To-day and Tuesday at nine a.m. the third and fourth rounds must be played off at the Toronto Tennis Club. Players must be on time or default.

BILLIARD PLAYERS

That it is of great advantage to players to use the same cue all the time is a well established billiard maxim. In order that members of Hart House may enjoy this advantage it has been arranged that anyone desiring to reserve a cue for their own personal use may do so by paying a small fee to the attendant.

STUDENTS' ADDRESSES

Every University student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press.

Pill Swatters Vanquish Title Holding McGill

Led by Gordon Taylor in the absence of Don Carrick, President of the Club, the U. of T. Intercollegiate Golf team secured a one point lead over McGill at the end of six thirty-six hole single matches at the Rosedale Golf Club on Friday. McGill won the title last year, and the first year of competition, while Varsity captured the cup the two intervening seasons.

In the singles Varsity won three matches and lost two, while Breckenridge of Varsity gave his team the margin by finishing all square with Thom at the end of thirty-six holes. In the other matches Gordon Taylor won from R. Hatfield 2 and 1; J. Sihler won from J. Marler 4 and 3; G. Edwards lost to L. Ryan 6 and 5; R. Mooney lost to G. Faulkner 6 and 5; and R. Wilkinson beat E. Fitzrandolph 4 and 2.

Varsity Squad Wins In Soccer Opener

Varsity opened the Intercollegiate soccer season with a 2-1 victory over R.M.C. at Kingston on Saturday morning, and, as well, earned the disputable distinction of scoring all three goals. The Blue led 1-0 at half-time. Withers, the centre forward, placing the ball squarely between the posts. Early in the second half Ferguson notched Toronto's second corner, while Cox, the Varsity goalie, counted for R.M.C. when he carried the ball back behind his own goal-line in throwing out following a scrimmage in front of the Toronto nets.

Students who make a B average in college are more versatile than those who make an A average, according to George Wadswick, University of Oklahoma registrar. They have a better opportunity to succeed in the business world, as they generally participate in more outside activities, which prepare them more efficiently for their future careers.

On the other hand, Dr. Buchanan, vice-president of the same university, upholds the A students, saying an A is an A, and that it is gained only by the intelligentsia, the creams, the best, the bound-to-succeed students.

He believes that George Washington and Abraham Lincoln would have been A students at the University of Oklahoma, but that Judas Iscariot would never have been an A man.

Creative Purpose Analogy Drawn in Bishop's Speech

"Even as every article of furniture in this room was made by man to answer a specific purpose, so was every man created by God to perform certain duties for the benefit of his God and fellow creatures." Drawing this analogy, Bishop Taylor Smith on Tuesday night outlined to the students of Wycliffe College and their guests the tremendous importance in the eyes of God of each individual soul. The Bishop dwelt at some length upon the seriousness of frittering away one's time without accomplishing anything. Man's future, both here and hereafter, he said, depend almost entirely upon the foundation and flooring of the structure of his life, built between the ages of fifteen and twenty-five. Too great emphasis could not be laid upon this constructive period and the influence of the habits formed and friendships begun.

Bishop Taylor Smith, late Chaplain General of the Imperial Forces, has been in Toronto in connection with the Jubilee celebrations of Wycliffe College, and has delivered many addresses during his stay. The address on Tuesday night followed a dinner, at which the students of Wycliffe were hosts to a large number of the young men of the city.

BEAUTY OF WORDSWORTH EXPLAINED BY SENSIBILITY

sure was not only vital but that it had an absolute or mystical value. Pleasurable feelings of his impression carried them farther into the poet's heart.

Besides these gifts Wordsworth also had creative power, which is the real nerve of the poet. Much of his poetry was based upon phenomena which included dreams, hallucinations and visions. He makes many references to his dreams which were more beautiful and vivid than common reality—"the glory and freshness of a dream." His visions were partly creative, but also revealed reality, and in them his soul saw directly into the life of things. The experiences recorded in "The Cuckoo" have a visionary quality which is characteristically Wordsworth. As shown in the words, "I wandered lonely as a cloud," solitude was essential to him for the evocation of the visionary mood.

In concluding his lecture, Mr. Smith read excerpts from Wordsworth poems which indicated his moral code as chiefly embodying firmness of soul.

as possible. The "poor Frosh" looked slightly second-hand as they took up their position, but balked the upper classmen by having with them a supplementary supply of paper ruffs. Then the singing began. As is customary, the Freshmen, united by persecution, had the upper hand, but the fair leader of the Sophs drew a surprising amount of melody from a group numerically small.

The Skits, interspersed with class singing, occupied the rest of the evening. The first skit was the restoration of the Frosh cheer-leader, who had been abducted and sequestered since the middle of the afternoon, to his class-mates. The succeeding skits were occupied with the presentation of various manifestations of Freshman life, including a pie-eating contest done in silhouette accompanied by a radio broadcast, the transformation of the stage into a mortuary parlour, and a sterling imitation of the Burwash disciplinary authority dispensing justice. Ties for the performance were supplied by the Frosh under distinct protest. The Bob Song, as an interlude, portrayed the weakness of the susceptible generation, and the whole affair was managed by the Committee, headed by H. R. White, President of 370. The evening ended with the customary Victorian recital of high jinks on the Old Ontario Strand, followed by Chelsea Buns, Eskimo pies, and milk.

province. While he was sure that graduates in Moderns could easily make themselves understood in Quebec, M. Jeanneret declared that such a course would be most beneficial to them.

He emphasised the kindness and cordiality shown by officials of the sister province. Both M. Davide, Provincial Secretary, who corresponds to our Minister of Education, and the Honourable L. A. Taschereau, Premier of the Province, had been enthusiastic and helpful. He also commented favourably on the keenness displayed by the teachers.

"There is not as much difference in pronunciation between an educated French-Canadian and an educated Parisian, as there is between an educated Torontonian and a Londoner of the same class," remarked M. Jeanneret, when questioned as to the difference between French as spoken in France and in Quebec. Taken class by class, the resemblance was very close. He pointed out that the teachers who took the course this summer heard the best French, and that it was in no way inferior to that spoken across the Atlantic.

Perhaps it is feared that it might be read by some who have no appreciation for its artistic value, and who might thus be harmed by the occasional unsavoury matters with which it deals. If so the many are being injured for the protection of the few, who are quite unworthy of such protection; and furthermore, a remarkable divergence appears between the principles on which Hart House Library and the University Library are operated.

But possibly the reason herein assumed is very wide of the mark. If so I hope to be enlightened.

I read with interest in Wednesday's issue a letter from that austere and proper set of learning, Trinity, which dealt with our old friend, the Champus Cat.

I am well aware of the fact that there are some people in this world so steeped in sophisticated egotism or studious oblivion that a little nonsense now and then would have no appeal. I can, however, say for myself, and also for a large number of my friends, that we derive real pleasure and re-picked it up on the Tiger 20 yard line. McIntyre on a faked Kick, plunged through centre for yards and two downs later. Reid went over for a try. Score: Varsity 7, Hamilton 0. McIntyre and Reid each contributed a 20 yard run. Woods added another of 30, and later McIntyre shook off three tacklers for twenty more. These gains were annulled by a fumble, but Reid made a beautiful broken field run for 40 yards towards the end of the period.

The second period opened with Keith flopping on an attempted on side kick to give Varsity her eighth point. Another 20 yard run by McIntyre which Hawkins cancelled by making 25 through the line. Toronto was penalized for a forward pass and holding. For the first time in the game, Hamilton made yards, but on the next play Cartwright broke through to throw his man for a 10 yard loss. A blocked kick was dribbled and secured by Hamilton at centre. An exchange of kicks and Warwick plunged 25 yards through centre. Varsity line held, and a Toronto player fumbled an attempted on side kick which McIntyre later fell on for a safety touch. Score: Varsity 8, Hamilton 2. From the Varsity 25 yard line, McIntyre booted a long one, and Dunn getting up fast under the punt, grassed Hawkins for a count. Score at half-time: Varsity 9, Hamilton 2.

Woods started the third period with a 30 yard jaunt. Swartman penalized for roughing it. A Davies to Reid combination netted the locals 25 yards. Hamilton had a golden chance to score when they dribbled the ball to the Varsity 10 yard line. However, the Pearsonites held, and Hunter kicked into his own line, Dunn falling on the ball. Davies had been doing some pretty running. Little pulled his little run-punt-tumble act to bring the score up to 14-2. On the kick off, McIntyre dodged yellow and black sweaters for 25 yards and later Davies did the same thing for forty more. McIntyre went around the left end for forty, and Riddell pivoted the remaining twenty-five for a try. Score 19-2. The Hamilton plays couldn't get away and their plunging made but few yards.

In the last period, Varsity used subs freely, and interest lagged, Hamilton fighting doggedly but hopelessly. Chapel fumbled a catch, and Varsity secured on the 20 yard line, Spencer immediately booting for the 20th point. The Hill men forced the play for a while, and the Toronto regulars returned to the gridiron. McIntyre when surrounded by tacklers got away a nice boot which rolled for the 21st point. Later Keith picked up a loose ball, passed to Dunn, who crossed the line. A beautiful lateral pass by Davies enabled McIntyre to make 35 yards, which for the finish, Keith intercepted a pass 20 yards out and ambled over to make the final score: Varsity 31, Hamilton 2.

laxation by reading the words of our well known kiddy.

I will admit that sometimes the column lacks point, but I would like to point out to dear scandalized Trinity that running a college humorous column is not the easiest thing in the world, and if he would like to raise the standard a little he might contribute occasionally.

Our correspondent's statement that he "pays his dollar and gets nothing but a lot of silly trash glorified by the meaningless couplet Champus Cat," is of course not accurate, since the Cat is but a small part of "The Varsity." He need not read this if his abhor-

As to that, I'm no Disciplinary Committee. But, they spend the dough they collect thus for a portrait of some benefactor of the University, or what have you. And it occurs to me, that the said Y.W.S.'s, would, on peering at such a picture, think, "Goodness, me, what a lot of Kisses that cost!"

All unaware of the pirate-sloop Of Hardtack Jones and his nasty group, The "Pineapple" sailed without motion, She would be in the soup, and not the ocean.

Owned by a scientist of fame, A gentle man with a flossy name, Who never guessed a shot might sink him, Gentle Professor Percy Pinkham (No relation of that insidial, Benefactress Comrade Lydia).

Professor Pinkham was canning heat To cook the food the cannibals eat, And the way he worked was quite simple, Canning the heat from a live volcano With a machine like a large egg-beater, Collecting the heat in a thousand cans, Pouring it out in a thousand cans, Built like scuttles or warming-pans, And down in the hold, a lot of these Were piled like the summer leaves on trees.

There was heat enough to keep hell going If the Hereafter started snowing, So Hardtack Jones on the pirate "Gore" if the subject was a picture, one had to see it. In the last Act of Macbeth, when the news of the queen's death had just been brought, one received the portrait of the frame of mind of a successful criminal as it appeared to Shakespeare.

Judging literature was a thing which one could not satisfactorily do. In reading a poet one should see how far he was imaginative and what quality this imagination was. Imagination could be defined in terms of fantasy or fantasia, the Greek word meaning the power of following images. The poet's power of imagination gave his pictures shape, and they acquired a local habitation and a name. One should attempt to discriminate and ask, "What is the quality of the imagination?" "Did the poet really see and feel this?"

One could compare two poets dealing with the same subject. In the Sixth Odyssey of Homer there was a picture of heaven, wonderful when considered alone, but when compared with the 21st chapter of the Book of Revelations, showed a less penetrating quality of imagination, even though the palms for poetry might be given to Homer.

ANNUAL SOPH-FROSH BANQUET ATTRACTS RECORD NUMBERS

First and Second Years of University College Foregather

UNIVERSITY LAUDED

Dean Urges Members of U.C. to Raise Money for College Residence

With the greatest and most enthusiastic attendance in years, the latest crop of freshmen were formally initiated into University College at the annual Soph-Frosh Banquet, at which 300 were present, in the Great Hall, Hart House, last evening.

Under the chairmanship of the toast master, A. T. Christie, President of the University College Literary and Athletic Society, the programme, which was preceded by a most attractive menu, was carried out with smoothness and despatch.

The assembled innocents, whose loud ties flecked the hall, were welcomed by W. A. Gilbert, President of the Sophomore year. In a short but pointed speech he drew the attention of the freshmen to the fact that it was up to them not only to appreciate the sophs, but also the advantages afforded by the whole University, especially University College. Loyalty to the University, the College and to the year was stressed, for without it they could not be loyal to themselves. They must realize how much this University had done for Canada, how it had supplied two Prime Ministers, and as well was proud to own many other graduates who had done highest service to this country. Love, of course, is unsatisfactory unless the person concerned is aware of it, so let the freshmen show their love for the institution they attended by everywhere upholding it.

In response to the toast to the University, proposed by the President of the Sophomore year, Principal Maurice Hutton of University College made a speech during the course of which he expressed his pleasure at being fortunate enough to occupy a position in which he came in such intimate and frequent contact with youth, especially that of the first and second years, which students, he felt, due to their youth and inexperience, were even less critical than the average student, and were, like all students, characterized by their kindness and good will, and unlike their elders, were free from narrow and prejudiced points of view. Principal Hutton congratulated himself especially on his ability after living here for fifty years, to merge himself with Canadian life, and especially for the fact that on his trips to England he can astonish the natives of those isles with his complete mastery of our language. He also added that he felt much more at home lecturing on Horace than he would in lecturing on (Continued on page 4)

University College First Year Elections Announced

Results of the 1st year University College election of officers were announced at the Soph-Frosh Banquet as follows: President, George Reid; Secretary, W. Copeland; Treasurer, Dunc. Copus; S.A.C. Representative, B. Barber; Assistant Secretary of Lit., M. J. Sheppard.

GENERAL PUBLIC NOT GETTING QUARTET TICKETS

Registration Cards or Books Must Be Shown to Obtain Them

The great demand for students' tickets for the series of Hart House String Quartet concerts has raised the question as to whether the general public as well may not be profiting by this opportunity of obtaining tickets at the reduced price.

The authorities state that registration cards are asked for, but that some other form of identification, such as, for instance, the presence of an armful of books, is accepted. It would seem that an indefinable something stamps the University student, and the authorities depend on their powers of perspicacity for detecting any imposters. They have also emphasized in all advertisements that the reduced price is for students only. Hence it is useless for anyone without the stamp of toil and the aroma of learning to apply.

PARADE AWARDS TO BE MADE SOON

Cup and Shield for Trinity and Meds to be Given Out After Meeting

WINNERS' NAMES ON PRIZES

To set at rest all rumours to the contrary, Mr. W. A. Higgins, General Secretary-Treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, stated yesterday that the cup and shield awarded to the prize-winning floats in the Centenary parade would be formally presented to the winners, Trinity College and the Faculty of Medicine, immediately after the Centenary Committee had its next meeting. It appears that a irresponsible person had started a rumour to the effect that the coveted trophies had been mislaid and that the presentation had been indefinitely postponed. Mr. Higgins also declared that as soon as the prizes had been engraved with the names of the winners and the Committee had held its meeting, he felt certain that the Committee would be anxious to co-operate with the governing bodies of Trinity College and with the Medical Society as to the time and place of the formal presentation.

University Settlement Asks Students to Visit House

The University Settlement is requesting that student visitors who have not visited the University Settlement should do so at their earliest convenience. A unique work is being carried on by a staff who rely on the voluntary help of students from this University. The best time to visit the Settlement is between four and five in the afternoon, or after seven-thirty in the evening. The work carried on does not only include boys and girls, but also the men and women in the district.

The Settlement organizes clubs, and it is with the work of these clubs that volunteer helpers are needed. An Athletic series is run off against the other three Settlements in Toronto. Last Saturday in the wind-up of the baseball season the Midgets won the Cup, and the Settlement also won the 100 lb. series. The Clubs are self-supporting. They have their own officers and carry on their own business.

Wymilwood Events Off

Owing to the outbreak of smallpox in the first year of Victoria College all social activities at Wymilwood have been cancelled for a week.

VIRGIL SHOULD BE STUDIED IN DETAIL TO APPRECIATE

Virgil Spent Years in Perfecting and Finishing His Poems

ELEVEN YEARS ON AENEID

Virgil Tried to Freshen Roman Language, Says Professor Livingstone

"Virgil is essentially a student poet—a workman poet," said Professor Livingstone in his fifth lecture of a series on poetry. In studying Virgil it is essential to study him as an artist—to study his technique as in Rembrandt. If one reflects on the facts of Virgil's life, this is obvious, for it took him five years to write his first thousand lines, and eleven years to write his Aeneid. When Virgil was on his deathbed, he implored his executors to burn the Aeneid because, he said, it was not finished. There are not many people who realize that it was an unfinished poem, and this shows the extraordinarily high standard of workmanship that Virgil imposed on himself, declared Professor Livingstone.

Virgil spent the first thirty-three years of his life in learning a great deal of poetry by heart—that of Lucræti and Theocritus, both of whom he imitates. From the impression made on us of his life and works, few of us realize his slow and laborious work.

"One problem that Virgil was faced with was that of the decay of language." The Roman language had lost its freshness and was dead. The question before Virgil was how to make it live again. Language tends to die, for example, in its metaphors. Professor Livingstone took as an example the phrase "Dawn of freedom"—a magnificent piece of poetry for the first man to conceive it, now mere small change of any cheap newspaper writer.

Virgil set himself deliberately to solve this question of language, but it is Horace who tells us about the problem and outlines his recommendations to a poet. He recommends using new words taken from the Greeks—inventing new words and reviving old words. Virgil has a trick of inventing a phrase, and thus giving an air of knowledge to the formerly sterile (Continued on page 4)

PLAYERS' GUILD TO HOLD FIRST REGULAR MEETING

Miss Eoll Will Present One Act Play By Clarice McCauley

The first regular meeting of the U.C. Players' Guild will take place today at 4:00 o'clock in the Auditorium of the Women's Union. Miss Marjorie Eoll will present the opening bill, which will be "The Conflict," by Clarice McCauley.

This clever one-act play presents a situation in modern life. A mother is endeavouring to keep her children about her on the parental farm while they wish to try their own wings in the big cities. She is afraid of ill befalling them, especially the eldest daughter Emily, a pretty and, as her mother thinks, headstrong girl. The older woman attempts to direct her child's course, and the conflict between their wills, with the results of the mother's lack of understanding and foolish efforts at coercion, form the plot of this play.

All people taking part in this play, with the exception of Miss Eoll, are newcomers to the Guild. It is hoped that this will be an incentive to others and of interest to the veterans.

Occupational Therapy Holds Convention Here

The Convention of the Occupational Therapy Association which was held on Monday spent the morning in session. Dr. G. Howland addressed them on "The Psychology of Occupational Therapy," Mr. U. Dean on "The Workman's Compensation Board," and Dr. Doby "The Decrease in Tuberculosis." A round-table conference was held at lunch, followed by a trip to the Whitby hospital, after which the delegates entertained at tea.

A dinner at the Grey Gables Tea Room was the closing function of the Convention. Dr. Primrose presided, and the guest of honour was Miss Slagle, president of the New York Occupational Therapy Association.

NOON SING-SONGS WILL BE REVIVED

Two Sing-songs to be Held at Noon for Convenience of School and Dents

ROSS WORKMAN TO LEAD

At a meeting of the sing-song and songster committee last Friday it was decided that with the coming of the cold weather the time had arrived for the revival of the noon sing-songs.

On account of School men and Dents having their noon hour from 12 to 1 instead of from 1 to 2, there will be two sing-songs held in the place of the one of last year. The first will be at 12:30, primarily for the convenience of School and Dents; the second at 1:30 as usual. For the benefit of frosh, it may be said that these noon sing-songs are held in the East Common Room, Hart House. Begun under the auspices of the medical director, they were originally intended merely as deep-breathing exercises set to music, but were last year widely popular with addicts to Great Hall apples and the fragrant weed. The indefatigable Ross Workman will again wield the conductor's baton if he can find a loose chair-rung, and Doug Laidlaw at the lantern promises to produce the "Bible-Libel Stories" if the morality department doesn't confiscate the slides.

DR. COLEMAN ADDRESSES ITALIAN-SPANISH CLUB

Speeches, Solos and Skit at First Meeting of the Year

The Italian-Spanish Club held a well attended meeting at Wymilwood last evening. The meeting was opened by an address of welcome from the president, Miss Jean McLaughlin, reports from the Secretary and Treasurer of the Club.

A much-needed constitution had been drawn up and was placed perfect at the meeting at this time, and was enthusiastically adopted.

Miss Dorothy Livesay was next elected as first year representative. Mr. Groggio then addressed the meeting, pointing out the aims and advantages of the club. He was followed on the programme by Mr. Cano, who introduced Dr. Coleman, the principal speaker of the evening.

Dr. Coleman gave a most interesting travelogue of Spain and Morocco, which was illustrated by lantern slides. A vote of thanks and appreciation was moved by Miss Elizabeth Gibbons.

Two delightful songs were rendered by Miss Eylau, and a comical skit was given by Charles and Michael Forber. The meeting closed with refreshments and a social half-hour.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASE AT VICTORIA ATTACKS FIVE RESIDENT FRESHMEN

PROFESSOR WALLACE WILL SAY NOTHING OF LETTER

Wishes To See Author of Letter Before Making Any Statement

Professor William S. Wallace, M.A., when asked for a statement regarding R. T. Hallock's letter of Monday, replied that he would deem it unwise to say anything until the gentleman who wrote the letter would have the kindness to see him. Until then Professor Wallace intimated that he will have nothing to say on the matter.

Mr. Hallock in his letter said that on visiting Hart House library he found a certain book in use, namely, "An American Tragedy," in which he had become intensely interested. On going over to the main library he was informed that though the book in question was on the files, it could not be had for undergraduate use.

In closing, Mr. Hallock ventured the opinion that certain unsavoury parts, which in no way detracted from the appreciation of its artistic value, might be the reason for withholding the book. He desired to be enlightened as to the reason for so wide a divergence in the principles of operation between Hart House library and the main library.

Smallpox Cases Removed From Annex and 81 Charles St. to Isolation Hospital

VACCINATION ADVISED

Drastic Steps Taken To Prevent General Outbreak. Social Activities Cancelled

Seized by a sudden attack of smallpox, five of the first year men in residence at Victoria College were yesterday removed to the Isolation Hospital and authorities at the College are taking decisive steps to prevent the outbreak of a serious epidemic. Immediate provision is being made for the vaccination of the students, and all social events scheduled at Wymilwood for the week have been cancelled.

The five men were taken to the Isolation Hospital yesterday afternoon from the Annex on Bay Street and from 81 Charles Street. Both the residences were immediately placed under quarantine. Meals are being brought to them from Burwash dining hall.

From one to two o'clock this afternoon a representative from the Health Office will be at Burwash Hall, and the authorities at Victoria College have urged all students to see this doctor at that hour. No ruling has been made as yet that all residence men that have not been vaccinated must be vaccinated, but it is expected that the officials will make a decision after his visit to-day.

Dr. George D. Porter, director of the University health service for men students, issued the following statement last night to "The Varsity":

"As a mild outbreak of smallpox has occurred in Victoria College it is advisable for all students not already vaccinated to be vaccinated now.

"The five cases are in Isolation Hospital, and the Victoria residences where these cases occurred are under quarantine.

"The medical director will be in his office at Hart House all day for this purpose, and Dr. Gordon will look after the ladies in the Household Science Building."

Two years ago when the outbreak occurred in St. Joseph's, over three hundred students availed themselves of the opportunity of being vaccinated by Dr. Porter. There were no further outbreaks in the University after the isolation of the residences concerned.

St. Hilda's Literary Society Hold First Meeting of Year

The first meeting of the Literary Society of St. Hilda's College was held in the Common Room on Monday evening at 7:30. Miss Joyce Finlay, Head of College, as president of the Literary Society, welcomed the graduates and freshmen present and introduced the skit to be presented by 3T1. Miss Frances Turner spoke of the German Club, and Miss Gwen Carter spoke of the Policy Club, both explaining that the freshmen interested in these clubs would be very welcome. Miss Mary White, the secretary of the Literary Society, read the minutes of the last meeting, held in April. The skit was an impromptu interpretation of a desert island inhabited by two characters from A. A. Milne's story. The outstanding freshmen in the presentation were Naomi Slater, Louise MacMillan and Eva Bettes.

Two songs by Miss Jane Mason accompanied by Miss Joyce Muirhead were presented. Refreshments were enjoyed, and Miss Marion Johnston led a sing-song.

THE UNDERGRADUATE, THE UNIVERSITY AND THE LIBRARY

A recent correspondent has commented on the withholding of books from undergraduate circulation by the University library. We print in our news columns to-day an interview with Professor W. S. Wallace, librarian of the University of Toronto, in which he intimates his unwillingness to say anything on the matter until the writer of the letter states his point to him personally.

The whole question of censorship is debateable. The modern attitude is to stress the worth of a work and to let its justification rest with the extent of its constructive qualities rather than with a consideration of its defects.

A point of censorship exists in the admission of books to the library shelves by the library authorities. However, if it is judged right to have a book in the University of Toronto library, it is right that the students of the University of Toronto should be allowed to read it.

The function of the Provincial University is to render the two-fold service of a centre of education and of research and learning for the province. In working this out the library has its place. Its books should be available to the students and staff for the purpose of aiding in the development of the personalities of the students and in the rendering of greater service in research departments. The books of the library should be for the benefit of the members of the University and not for some particular individual who may have access to them.

Our correspondent has shown his sincerity and interest in the matter by his willingness to state his views over his name in print and thus to allow them to stand or fall on their merits. By refusing to do likewise and by suggesting instead that the undergraduate should now seek him out to privately discuss the question, Professor Wallace is taking an unfair advantage of the relative positions of student and professor. Unfortunately, probably, for a true understanding of Professor Wallace's views, his action leaves us open to the inference that either he believes the library to be at fault or he lacks the confidence to stand by his own organization of the library's service to the University.

THE MEDICAL FACULTY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

According to popular conception the "Meds" are a huge and war-like clan, whose tents lie to the south of the campus. Periodically vast hordes of them emerge from their habitations and swarm out seeking whom they might devour—mostly S.P.S. The rest of the time they spend in mysterious and gloomy buildings performing horrible ceremonies on innocent bunnies and luckless guinea pigs.

The embryo doctors and their establishment have been grossly misrepresented, the crimes of a few being visited on the many, for in truth the Medical Faculty of the University of Toronto is composed largely, of a peaceable and peace loving multitude who toil daily from nine till five in the cause of science.

In a recent investigation among the medical schools of America carried on by the Rockefeller Foundation, the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Toronto was placed at the head of all the colleges on the continent. This not only applied to the calibre of the students but to the quality of the equipment and the excellence of the staff. Next in order came Harvard Medical College, John Hopkins, and McGill.

The present Medical department is the result of an amalgamation of several colleges that existed at one time in and about Toronto. It was around 1886 that the Toronto School of Medicine affiliated with the University. Later Trinity Medical School united with this, and finally Victoria medical academy which was the continuation of the Rolf School of Medicine. By this time—1906—there was a thriving Faculty of Medicine, and the Women's Medical College desired and considered it expedient to join hands.

After the advent of the fair sex the Medical department went ahead by leaps and bounds. To-day we have at Toronto one of the finest scientific buildings on the continent—the comparatively new Anatomy Building—and some of the most excellent apparatus and material to be found anywhere. There is, at present, a faculty of ninety-four, a staff of demonstrators and lecturers of two hundred and sixteen, and a registration of over seven hundred and fifty students.

Art, Music and Drama

The Nature of the String Quartet

The music of a string quartet cannot by its very nature include the physical persuasiveness of a great mass of tone, something which the untutored music-lover demands. The overwhelming climaxes of an orchestra, the mighty tone of a great organ, and the thunderous left hand octaves of a virtuoso pianist have no counterpart in string quartet music. Hence to some extent it is that the appeal of the string quartet to the average listener is less immediate than that of some other musical forms. It would, however, be a great mistake to suggest that string quartet music cannot make a popular appeal. In many parts of the world, the leading quartets attract enormous audiences, and we in Toronto have had an opportunity of seeing a great growth of interest in this form of music under the leadership of a body of musicians closely identified with the University of Toronto—the Hart House Quartet.

A string quartet is essentially a solo instrument, and yet quartet playing involves a difficulty which the single performer does not have to overcome. The four artists of the string quartet must be as one; they must, by long practice and by a deep understanding of each other's temperament, work in perfect unison and sympathy. A soloist may be as subjective as he pleases, his accompanist must follow him. An orchestra is the pliant instrument of a single man, the conductor. A string quartet, however, is four soloists who must learn to be as one.

Obviously the tax of self-sacrifice falls very heavily upon the chamber musician. Not only must he be an artist of concert ability, but at the same time he must be willing to mold his individuality to a combined effect. Thus, the combination of four men fitted by temperament to work together is not easy to find.

In the case of such bodies as the Hart House Quartet, the Flonzaley and the Persinger Quartets, the members work together in such perfect sympathy that sometimes the listener has an uncanny feeling that the four personalities are actually blended, that the music is being played by a single being.

To the music lover, chamber music has much of the fascination that good team work has for the lover of football. Individual prowess may at times be more exciting and spectacular, but those who have played the game know best that the team that wins is the one in which great players work together as parts of a single organization. To those who have grasped the nature of this type of music, the string quartet is a never-ending source of delight, and those who have as yet had little experience of it should neglect no opportunity of thus widening their musical horizon.

Do Professors Earn Their Living?

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

If we do not take notes of lectures as you suggest in your recent editorial, how shall we keep awake? After three years of wearisome lectures, I am convinced that the average lecturer cannot inject into his subject the interest it deserves. In the Middle Ages, when universities were young, the students hired their professor, and if he got too dry, promptly fired him. How many professors would be walking the streets to-day if that custom were still in vogue? To me it seems a pity that many learned men with a distinct contribution to make to their pupils, detract greatly from the value of their message by the way in which they present it.

There are professors who give one the impression of having prepared their lesson five minutes before giving it. Others mumble their words, talk too fast or too slowly, too loudly or too quietly, or have to run all over creation looking for a big word to fit into the sentence they wish to say. It is a tragedy to see the learning of thirty years rendered almost useless for want of thirty minutes' preparation. It seems to me a man who has given his life to the study of, say, English or History, should be able to make it live in the minds of his students. It is unfair to demand that a professor be a Demosthenes as well, but at least he should speak clearly and consecutively.

It is said that Adam Smith made his lectures so interesting that his classroom was always overcrowded with eager, admiring students. God give us more Adam Smiths!

Yours truly,

INTERMEDIATES MEET OSGOODE; JUNIORS PLAY McMASTER

SPEAKING OF SPORT

All roads will lead to Kingston on Saturday, when Varsity meets the Queen's entry in the Senior Intercollegiate rugby race in the crucial game of the season. Both teams have dropped a game to McGill, but they are each confident of "taking" the Red and White in the next game. As a result they will both be in there playing the game of their lives on Saturday, for a loss will practically mean elimination.

There should be a large crowd of Varsity supporters make the trip to the Limestone City for this game. Arrangements have been made for a special train, and tickets are on sale at the Athletic Office in Hart House. There has been quite a keen demand for tickets, but there are still some available. It is advisable though to make arrangements as early as possible, for in past seasons many have been disappointed after leaving it till the last minute to get their tickets. The train will be an exceedingly handy way of making the trip. It leaves the Union Station at 8.30 and arrives in Kingston four hours later. The return train leaves at 10.00 p.m., giving ample time for celebrations and such like.

"Mike" Pearson's team was out to practice last night after a day's rest following their victory over Fickley's Tiger Cubs. While the Intercollegiate are playing in Kingston, the Orprians take on the Camp Borden entry at the Varsity Stadium. While the Fliers have not won a game to date, they are a colourful squad, and usually attract quite a following. It is not expected, however, that the local outfit will experience much difficulty in adding another victory.

There was a fast one pulled on local followers of the manly art of self-defence yesterday when Larry Gains, the celebrated heavyweight boxer, indulged in a fast workout in the boxing room. He had a fast half-hour of shadow boxing and bag punching. There were only a few of the faithful around, but a crowd soon gathered, and Mr. Gains left. Apparently he is following Shaughnessy's idea of secret practices.

PENN. STATE TEAM HERE TO-MORROW

One of Best Soccer Elevens in American Colleges Meets Blue and White

INTERCOLLEGIATE FIXTURE

On Thursday afternoon, October 20 in Varsity Stadium, the famous Penn. State College Soccer Team will be here for an intercollegiate fixture with Varsity. Penn. State team enjoys the distinction of having one of the finest soccer teams in American colleges, and will prove themselves real rivals for Varsity. It is the desire of the directorate and the soccer executive that the staff and students will turn out in large numbers to support the team.

As for Varsity, those who had the privilege of seeing the game in Kingston on Saturday, saw the team at its best. The game was fast from beginning to end, but the R.M.C. boys at no point proved a match for Varsity. The whole team shows a decided improvement over last year's and former teams.

As regards the place soccer holds among the University sports, its devotees bemoan the fact that it is considered as a minor sport. As a Canadian university, rugby ranks high, but we, as a British university, should adhere to the sport which ranks high in the great centre of learning, namely, the old country.

Those who had the privilege of seeing the famous international soccer team from Scotland here this summer could not fail to see how the game should and can be played, if more enthusiasm is displayed.

Soccer is expected to be placed on a higher level and that more of the staff and students will show more enthusiasm in the game. It is hoped there will be just as large an attendance at the Stadium on Thursday to see a real soccer game, as those to see a rugby match.

Tickets on sale by interfaculty managers of various teams and at gate on Thursday afternoon.

SEMI-FINALS OF WOMEN'S TENNIS PLAYED YESTERDAY

Keen Contest Between Three Colleges Played at Toronto Tennis Club

The semi-finals of the Women's Interfaculty Tennis Tournament was played yesterday morning at the Toronto Tennis Club.

Dorothy Fraser of St. Hilda's unfortunately hurt her knee during the match and was unable to finish, and will not be able to go on again this year.

Margaret Grout of St. Hilda's and Ruth Higgins of U.C. were playing off, but stopped when the accident occurred. Their game was deferred until to day, when they meet again at the Toronto Club. As the tournament stands now, three colleges, Vic, U.C. and St. Hilda's, have each one player who will to-day do her best to win the trophy for her college.

VARSITY TENNIS TEAM LEAVES FOR MONTREAL

Intercollegiate Championship Tournament Begins on Thursday

HOPE TO WIN TITLE

Gilbert Nunns Strongly Supported by Smart Varsity Team

Led by Gilbert Nunns, Canadian Davis Cup star and Varsity title holder, Varsity's tennis team leaves for Montreal to-night for the annual Intercollegiate tennis championship which begins to-morrow. The team representing Toronto this year is probably the strongest which has ever carried Varsity colours, and many think that the Intercollegiate title will rest in Toronto after the tourney is concluded.

Varsity is counting strongly on Gilbert Nunns to bring the title to Varsity. His chances of annexing the singles title appear excellent, and critics give him an even chance against Jack Wright, the McGill ace, if they meet. Paired with Walter Martin in the doubles, they are strong favourites for this event, and if this team wins the doubles only a miracle can prevent the title from coming to Toronto. Martin himself is counted on to put up a strong fight to help bring honours to Varsity. Don Gunn, the third member of the team, is another who is playing smart tennis. His game has improved very much this year, and he will doubtless be the cause of several upsets in the coming tournament. Donald Beath completes the team, and his play has been somewhat of a surprise. His defeat of Ken Salmon in the challenge round of the Varsity tourney was the upset of the week, and he can be depended upon to give a good account of himself in Montreal.

Although the boys are not making any predictions, they are quietly confident as to the outcome, and it is certain that they will be in there fighting to the last. This is Gilbert Nunns' last year at Varsity, and it certainly would be a brilliant ending of his Varsity tennis career to place the Intercollegiate.

Scullers Take to Water; Brave Chill Breezes of Bay

With great enthusiasm, braving the chill breezes and cool waters of Toronto Bay, the crews of University College, Victoria, Dentistry and Medicine took to the water last night for the final week of training in an endeavour to wrest the Interfaculty championship from S.P.S.

The Engineers also had crews on the water with an equal determination to win the silver cups for the fourth consecutive time. Dentistry have been in the work-boats for two days and are rounding into comparatively good form, while the other crews showed up very well in their first workouts with the long sweep.

Heats will be raced on Friday afternoon, starting at 4 o'clock, the draw for which will be announced Friday morning.

The semi-finals and finals will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m., and the crews will be presented to the winning crews at the club's Dollar Dance at Wymilwood that evening.

Toronto Women Invite Other Universities to Tournament

Invitations have been sent out by the University of Toronto Women's Tennis Association to Queen's, McGill and Western, asking them to take part in an Intercollegiate Tournament to be held here on October 25th and 26th. No replies have been received as yet, but the Universities are expected to answer in the next few days. This is the first time plans for such a contest have progressed so far, and tennis enthusiasts are awaiting a successful outcome which would establish a precedent that might not be so difficult to follow in future years. Four players are left in the Interfaculty Tournament, and it is expected that these or those who successfully challenge them will represent Toronto.

U.C. WOMEN'S BASEBALL

There will be a practice of the U.C. women's baseball team at Grace Church-on-the-Hill to-day from 4.30 to 6.

Delayed Schedule of Women's Baseball Soon Published

"This season baseball is a bit delayed on account of the Centenary celebration, but the schedule will soon be published," Edith Quinlan of St. Mike's, the president of the Girls' Baseball Club, announced yesterday.

Last year U.C., Vic, St. Hilda's, O.C.E. and St. Mike's each entered a team and after a hard fought battle U.C. came out victorious. They have won the championship for three successive years, and are not slackening their efforts for success this term. The Vic. team are swinging the bat to some effect three times a week in the old gym. St. Mike's and O.C.E. are also starting to practice. Joyce Muirhead, baseball manager at St. Hilda's, reports that the game will soon be under way there too. On the whole, although the season is late, the prospects look bright for a successful baseball series.

For the first time since 1917, a course in German is being offered to students at Tulane University, at New Orleans.

WYCLIFFE FROSH JUDGED
AND FOUND WANTINGJury of Sophomores Punish First Year and Present
Toy Balloons

Amidst scenes of deepest gloom which only the college library could supply, Wycliffe frosh on Monday night were tried before a court of demoniacal sophomores, found guilty of the most excruciating ignorance and forthwith punished. Confronted by a judge of awful mien and withered by the sarcasm of a corpulent attorney, the frosh never had a chance. Hence the soph jury were enabled to return a verdict of guilty in every case with remarkable ease, and the official executors forthwith proceeded to discharge their grim duty. What a higher power had eliminated in the way of physical torture was amply made up for in more ingenious, although less violent, expedients. At the conclusion of the procedure the frosh were all declared members of the "green brotherhood" and presented with toy balloons. The gathering then adjourned to Hart House, where the annual Wycliffe soph-frosh banquet took place.

Virgil Should Be Studied in Detail to Appreciate

phrase. R. L. Stevenson does the same thing in his essays of to-day. "Did Virgil meet with success in this task? Some of his contemporaries approved of his methods, among them Horace—but others said that the older writers were more spontaneous, and Agrippa called Virgil's style 'a novel affectation.' Professor Livingstone says it is quite a matter of taste in judging of Virgil's success, but personally he thinks Virgil is not successful. "If a language is outlived, and that is the means of reviving it, 'twere better to leave it alone."

The fruit of long years of labour was more than a new style. As Goethe said that there was not an incident in his play but he knew how it got there, so there was not one word in Virgil but he knew how it got there. One must read Virgil minutely and then one realizes that every word has a reason for its place in a line.

Two poets have written about Virgil's style. Tennyson speaks of his "lonely words." Professor Livingstone gave instances of such words from the Georgics and the Aeneid. Another mark of a poet not applied commonly to Virgil is made by a brother of Tennyson. He remarks the richness of Virgil's style and his precision as in a miniature. Where Aeneas meets Dido in the lower world, Virgil wishes to convey the atmosphere of dimness, and in five phrases proves his richness of precision. In the death of Dido, much also depends on his precision of description and psychology. The result is perfectly true to nature and is good physiology and psychological truth which make the greatness of the passage.

Virgil's work as an artist is of the most importance, and his rich precision is better than all elaborations of style. "If you find a language stale," concluded Professor Livingstone, "there is only one thing to do. Do not try the mechanical tricks that Virgil tried, but try to see things clearly and feel things deeply, and then your language is not stale."

Vic. Music Club Plans to Produce "Merrie England"

Unabashed by the voice testing ordeal but recently undergone, a group of students gathered in the Alumni Hall of Victoria College at 1:00 p.m. Tuesday, October 18th, for the opening meeting of the Victoria College Music Club. Mr. Thomas Crawford, organist of St. Paul's Anglican Church of this city, who has consented to direct the club this year, devoted most of the hour to an outline of the story on the work which the club plans to undertake. The work chosen is Edward German's light opera, "Merrie England."

New Members of Newman Club
Welcomed at Annual Smoker

The annual smoker and reception to the freshmen and new members was held at Newman Club last night. Following a smoker and sing-song, the new members were formally welcomed to the club by Rev. F. McNab, the chaplain, W. S. Martin, B.A., the president, and Mr. Edwin Rush.

Annual Soph-Frosh Banquet

an entirely different subject, say, Mechanics; for in classics he felt that he could always keep a few verses ahead of his class, but would feel at a complete loss when lecturing to a hundred students, both male and female, in Mechanics, knowing that every one of them could drive a car, while he could not drive a Ford or tell a Buick from a Mormon. (Loud applause.)

Professor A. T. DeLury, in responding to the toast of the Faculty, which was proposed by Ted Fell, representative of the freshmen, sprung a surprise on the assembled intelligentsia and freshmen by intimating that some day when Principal Hutton went on a trip or was away for some other reason he would take the class in Horace. Professor DeLury went on to explain that while he was at University College he was interested not only in Mathematics, but also in the Classics, and on that account quite an attachment had grown up between him and Principal Hutton. Professor DeLury then remarked that not only himself but other great men whose names had been mentioned as distinguished graduates of this University had taken an interest in subjects outside his particular field. He knew the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen when he was an undergraduate studying Mathematics and Physics, and he also knew that the late Conservative leader had been a great student of other branches of learning, especially English Letters, and not only was he a great student but took a lively interest in normal University and College activities; as also had the present Premier, who was most prominent in all College activities as well as in his studies.

In closing, Professor DeLury emphasized to the freshmen that in entering the University they had entered Man's Estate, and should therefore profit more by the directions and guidance of the faculty than by the formal exactions of the classroom.

An interesting and important feature of the Dean's remarks was his plea to all members of University College to endeavour by every means in their power, and by soliciting their parents, to obtain money sufficient to build a residence worthy of University College. We already have the beginnings, but not what we hope to obtain.

Alan Christie then called upon Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, to address the assembly. Mr. Bickersteth extended his greetings to the newcomers on behalf of himself and of the Board of Stewards. He explained to the freshmen the unique position which Hart House occupied in our University life, and how it was unparalleled elsewhere on earth. He urged all to take utmost cognizance of the many and peculiar advantages which membership in such an institution afforded, especially those for the cultivation of the more spiritual arts such as Literature, Music and Art.

Announcement of the results of the first year election of officers was then made.

Great credit is due to the executive of the second year for the successful way in which the proceedings were instituted and carried through. The officers responsible are as follows: Hap. Gilbert, President; Wally Bean, Secretary; Herb. Bell, Treasurer, and Wallace Arnold, S.A.C. representative.

Pharmacy Gridders Go Down to Defeat Before St. Mike's

St. Michael's defeated Pharmacy in a well played game yesterday afternoon on the College campus. St. Mike's kicked for a point in the first quarter. Pharmacy scored a touchdown on a fumble behind the line, but failed to convert it. In the third quarter the College boys bucked their way down the field, led by Regan and McGarry, the latter going over for a try. Pharmacy kicked for another point, while the winners kicked to the dead-line three times for their remaining points. St. Mike's line held like a stone wall against the heavy Pharmacy bucks, while the backfield caught faultlessly. The tackling of Bill Clark for the winners was a feature of the game. Devitt was outstanding for the losers.

(Canto III)

Suddenly—for great deeds fall Before we may suspect at all, Hardtack Jones gave forth the word To loose the grape-shot, and one heard Cries on the old S.S. Pineapple As red-hot bolts and nuts and scrapie Came bursting down the main keel-hatch.

Where Percy Pinkham tried to snatch An hour's sleep, from canning heat, He ran upstairs with flying feet, And scarcely had he reached the deck When a rivet hit him in the neck.

The Pirates under Hardtack Jones Laughed at the learned professor's groans.

Climbed over from the frigate "Gore" And fought a crew that yearned to snore.

Right from the first the odds were tough, And furthermore, a pirate's rough, So Captain Ebenezer Snoot

Thought when he felt a pirate's boot Planted upon his tender thorax; He saw a buccaner's great war-ax

Come in a sweep to cleave his dome— And then he wished he'd stayed at home.

But Captain Snoot was a man of peace And begged the buccaners to cease— Said he: "For pirate, man, or nation It's best to try negotiation."

But Hardtack Jones was full of hate And wouldn't just negotiate, He leaped into the good ship's hold And cried: "I have it! Here's the gold!"

Instead of gold, he saw each tin— And here's where pirates' oaths begin, So lest I shock you with such lore, I'll let it drop till Chapter Four.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE CLUB
WELCOMES FRESHETTESWith Mathematics and Mystery
First Year Girls Are Initiated
Into Club

The Common Room of the Lillian Massey Building was a babel of feminine voices yesterday afternoon when the Household Science Club entertained the freshettes.

The mathematical ingenuity of the amateur cooks was put to the test in a delightfully arranged contest in which bookworms ate their way through weighty volumes and triangles hid in intricate figures. The Pythagoras who trapped the worm was presented with a miniature double boiler.

The object of the hand-shaking competition was to be the twenty-second person to greet the mysterious Misses Protein and Carbohydrate. To counteract the influence of these austere ladies, one representative of each year stood on a table to drink gringale from a baby's bottle. 2T9 sputtered and choked her way to victory.

Following the singing of nursery rhymes, the ravenous girls fell into line for a cafeteria supper.

440 Yard Dash—1, Graham; 2, Somerville; 3, Quick. Time 57 1-2.

Three Mile Run—1, Graham; 2, Frier; 3, Johnston. Time 12:50 2-3.

Inter-year Relay—1, 2T9 (Marshall, Quick, Whitman, Wetmore); 2, 2T8 (Graham, Sparling, Frier, Bishop).

Following this event a 220 low hurdle race was run for the championship of 2T9, the entrants wearing overcoats. Barker gave an exhibition of real speed by winning this event.

The last event was a tug-of-war between 1st and 2nd year. The 2nd year with a greater margin of weight and strength won the event.

VARSITY HAS GOOD CHANCE TO RETAIN ITS TRACK TITLE

Interfaculty Meet Times and Distances Better Those of McGill Team

FIELD EVENTS DOUBTFUL

Varsity Stars Should Take Sprints and Distance Runs Easily

Varsity's chances in the Intercollegiate Track Meet at Kingston are so bright that a victory seems almost assured. A comparison of Varsity's Interfaculty times and distances, in nearly all cases, betters those made at the McGill Interfaculty Meet.

McGill's best time for the 100 yards was 10 2-5 seconds. Johnny Fitzpatrick accomplished a 9 4-5 seconds here last Friday. This means, that he should lead the fastest McGill man by about 15 feet. Russell and Mabey should also easily defeat the best either Queen's or McGill can produce. There are 8 points just for a starter. Exactly the same thing should happen in the 220 yards—another 8 points.

Alan Christie should have no trouble in capturing the quarter mile. His performance of 51 2-5 seconds last Friday is a full second faster than McGill's best man. There is a slim possibility that Weaver of Queen's might cause an upset, however. He was right behind Christie, last year at the finish and coming in strong. If he is in shape it ought to be a great race. Christie is finishing faster than he ever has, and it will take a mighty fine man to defeat him.

"Mo" Mitchell will probably get his best opposition in the half mile from Bobby Thompson of Queen's. If he should go in the mile there is no telling what will happen. No opposition is expected from either Queen's or McGill, but Jack Walters, the Varsity freshman and Ontario mile champion, is every bit as fast, if not faster, than Mitchell at this distance. Great interest would be aroused if these two were to meet.

Wally Graham is practically a surety in the three miles. Trenouth, who has won for the last two years, is no longer at Queen's, and Wally's time is over half a minute faster than Balmer's of McGill.

Big Jim McKenzie should literally walk away from the opposition in the high hurdles. No man has been heard of from Queen's, and he is a second faster than Baker of McGill. The 220 low hurdles will be a different story though. Jack Blemmer of McGill broke the record in this event last year, and he is back this year. McKenzie and Pete Smith will uphold Varsity in this event. Jim is Varsity's strong man; he will probably enter the two hurdle races, the javelin throw, the broad jump, the shot put and the discus throw. The track team surely picked an able track captain this year.

Graduate of Cambridge Appointed to Faculty

Prof. I. H. Iliffe has been appointed keeper of the classical collection at the Royal Ontario Museum, and lecturer in archaeology in the University. A graduate of Cambridge University, and for the past two years classical lecturer at the University College of North Wales in Bangor, Prof. Iliffe has done extensive archaeological excavation work both in Greece and in England. During the past summer he was in charge of excavations made in Oxfordshire, where the outlines of a Roman town, comprising 26 acres, were traced out.

ENGINEERING SOCIETY HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Dean Mitchell Gave Lecture on the "Development of Canadian Resources"

The Engineering Society held its first meeting yesterday afternoon in the Mining Building and was attended by over 250.

The Toike Oike Orchestra provided a few popular numbers to which the whole assembly joined in chorus.

Dean Mitchell gave a lecture on "The Development of Canadian Resources." Printed copies of the lecture were given out to those present, to enable them to follow more closely the lecture and have the subject at hand for further reference.

Brig-Gen. Mitchell dealt successively with the mineral, agricultural, forest, water and transportation resources and then outlined the problems of development of these resources, and concluded in saying, "Let us unite our human resources to develop our natural resources."

BIG BLUE TEAM FACES CRUCIAL QUEEN'S GAME

Will Take Field Determined to Defeat Championship Aspirations of Queen's

SNYDER IS NEW QUARTER

Kirkpatrick and Morgan Move to Outside Positions Filling Gap

Ronnie McPherson is leaving no stone unturned in his efforts to round out a team that will take Queen's on Saturday. It will be the strongest team that has taken the field this season. Several changes have been made in the line-up, chief of which is the moving of Murray Snyder from outside to the quarter back position. Murray is new at this position, but is shaping up well and should be a star. He handles the team well and gets the plays away with a snap.

Kirkpatrick, of hockey fame, has been turning out with the team and looks good at the outside position. Morgan has also been moved to outside, so the hole left by Snyder's move should be well filled.

Luckily there have been few casualties to date on the Intercollegiate outfit, although Kelly suffered a strained ankle earlier in the week and will likely be out for the rest of the season. Outside of that the boys are in fine shape. Buzz Daly was suffering from an infected hand, but he has been out to practice regularly and will be in the game on Saturday.

Freshettes Pledge Allegiance to Queen's Hall at Gay Party

Wednesday evening the freshettes of Queen's Hall were called together to pledge their eternal allegiance to that time-honoured institution. By way of mitigating the solemnity of the evening the supposedly over-taxed ingenuity of the freshies was once more called upon to conjure brilliant and entertaining skits—which it did. Once more freed from the pendant sword of Damocles, the freshies breathed an unanimous sigh of relief and made merry with the rest until the hour of departure.

INTERMEDIATES DEFEAT LAWYERS BY 12-3 SCORE

Line Afforded the Halves Good Interference for Long Gains

BALL LOOSELY HANDLED

Varsity Squad Aggressive Throughout Game and Score Only Touch

In an Intermediate Intercollegiate rugby game staged at the Stadium yesterday afternoon, the Varsity entry triumphed over Osgoode Hall by a score of 12-3. The locals were the aggressive team throughout, and in the first period, with the wind in their backs, scored four solo points, adding one more in the second period, two in the third and a touch in the final. The lawyers' points came in the second and last quarters.

The ball was loosely handled throughout, but Varsity seemed to have a greater facility for pouncing on loose balls than did the visitors. In the second frame there were ten minutes of heavy rain, which not only made the field soft, but produced a greasy ball, and this probably accounted for the loose ball handling. The better drilled Varsity line showed its worth by giving the back ample interference, while on kicks Johnstone was able to get his punts away with but occasional hurrying. Honey and McCulloch gave some rare exhibition of tackling and seldom were the Osgoode men able to move from their tracks when receiving punts.

The only touch in the game came in the last period, when Emerson recovered the ball on a blocked kick and sprinted twenty yards for the line. In the third period Varsity had a golden chance to earn a try when ten yards out the locals plunged for nine yards on the first down and in the succeeding two were unable to go over.

With the wind and fumbles with them in the first period, the locals, aided by Johnstone's booting, ran in three points, and later the same man took one of his own punts and ran it for a total of fifty yards, which put him in position to boot to dead line. In the second stanza, after Varsity got one point, the embryo lawyers, aided by the wind and penalties, were able to boot twice for points before half time.

Osgoode line could not hold, and time after time their plays were broken up before well under way. A fumble and dribble netted a touch in goal for Varsity. Osgoode got another single point in the dying minutes of the game.

Varsity 12, Osgoode 3.

IMMEDIATE VACCINATION ADVISED BY DR. GORDON

Hopes to Vaccinate Every Unvaccinated Woman on Campus

"I hope to vaccinate every unvaccinated woman undergraduate on the campus," was the statement made by Dr. Edith Gordon, Medical Adviser for women students, when interviewed by "The Varsity." We waited and waited in the small office and watched streams of freshettes from Vic, all directed towards Dr. Gordon's office by startling signs hanging about the principal buildings of the University. Even the older and wiser were convinced of the necessity of taking precautions against the smallpox. Although unable to reach the sacred precinct of the inner office, because we believed ourselves immune to the dread disease, we learned from Dr. Gordon herself that she had vaccinated at least one hundred and seventy girls and expected to vaccinate as many more. "I think the matter should not be lightly treated," said Dr. Gordon, "and I hope that every woman undergraduate who has not been vaccinated within the past five years will report at my office as soon as possible."

APPOINT TUTOR FOR NORTH HOUSE

Freshmen Are Required to Report Regularly for Assistance

J. M. ANDERSON TUTOR

This has been called an age of experiments. It certainly seems that a great many are being tried this year. The latest one to come to our notice is that one being tried on the freshmen who are fortunate enough to have taken up residence at North House for the forthcoming year. This explained to all who care to read it by a notice prominently displayed on the North House notice board to the effect that all freshmen in existence, of whatever faculty, are required to report regularly to a resident tutor for the purpose of receiving assistance in Mathematics and Physics. Members of other years may go to the tutor for help if they so desire. The notice further states that if the experiment proves successful tutors will be appointed for the other residences.

In such a way the authorities herald a distinct departure from the regular methods of imparting university learning in vogue in this country.

The new tutor is an old and respected friend of the House, Mr. J. M. Anderson, who graduated in Mathematics and Physics last spring. When interviewed about the change, Mr. Anderson said that although he was the first official tutor with definite responsibilities, freshmen in time past have been in the habit of consulting senior men, and it is merely placing the old system on a new footing.

It is through the efforts and influence of Dr. Gilchrist, ever champion of the residence men, that a tutor has been appointed. Having felt the need of one for some years, (Continued on page 4)

UNIVERSITY SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC IS CHECKED BY PRECAUTIONS

Students to Keep to Paths Board of Control Orders

Students of the University must not take short cuts across Queen's Park on their way to and from lectures hereafter. By the recommendations of the board of control yesterday signs will be put up in the park warning pedestrians to keep to the paths. It was hinted that if this measure does not keep students from wearing more paths across the lawns of the park more stringent means may be employed.

VARSITY DEFEATS McMASTER TEAM

Juniors Win Second Game with 25-1 Victory for Varsity

VARSITY NOW LEADS

Varsity showed marked superiority to win from McMaster in their junior Intercollegiate fixture on the back campus yesterday. The score was 25-1, and just about represents the difference between the teams. Varsity showed great strength in its line, and it was in this department that McMaster were completely overshadowed. Solandt and Barrett, the two husky middle forwards, proved themselves to be great ground gainers. The Baptists, on the other hand, added a light but very clever back division. In Patterson, Hale and Whidden they have three men who can catch, run and boot with the best of them, and they were a continual threat. For Varsity, Don Wood starred at quarter; his plays were well mixed, and his judgment excellent. Art Squires pulled off several sensational runs, and the out-sides, Gooderham and Baker, made some smart tackles. For McMaster, Darton showed them all up with his many shoe-string tackles. The win gives Varsity the leading position in the group, having won from O.A.C. last Saturday by the one-sided score of 49-0. The whole team showed up remarkably well and should go far.

Varsity opened the scoring early in the first period when Wood kicked and McMaster was forced to rouge. Wood ran 40 yards on a fake kick, and Solandt plunged over for a try. The convert was unsuccessful. In the second quarter Squires made a sensational run of 50 yards, and passed to Murray, who galloped over the line for Varsity's second major score. Kirk made the convert, and the teams retired for the rest with Varsity leading 12-0.

McMaster came to life in the third, drove Varsity back and forced Burk (Continued on page 4)

Honorary President Elected at Meeting of U.C. Lit.

At a special meeting of the University College Literary and Athletic Society, held in the Junior Common Room at 1 p.m. Wednesday, Mr. H. J. McLaughlin was elected to the position of Honorary-President of the Society by acclamation. The post has been vacant since the death of the late Maurice Cody. The new incumbent is a member of the law firm of McLaughlin, Johnson, Muirhead and McCaullay. He graduated from U.C. in 1913, in which year he held the office of vice-president of the Literary and Scientific Society. He is the immediate past secretary treasurer of the U.C. Alumnae Federation. It is understood that Mr. McLaughlin is willing to assume the office at once, and it is felt he will fill it admirably.

Vaccination and Quarantine Measures Taken Against Victoria Residence Outbreak

SIX FROSH STRICKEN

Cases Declared To Be Of Mild Character—None Vaccinated Before

Although the appearance of six cases of smallpox among the men students of Victoria College has caused much uneasiness, medical authorities and college officials stress the fact that there is no need for alarm. The necessary precautions have been taken, the cases in question have been removed to the Swiss Cottage Hospital, the affected residences have been quarantined, and there should be no further spread of the epidemic.

All of the 212 first year students at Victoria have been vaccinated. The regulations also require that ALL men and women students of Victoria be vaccinated. Those who have never before been vaccinated must do so at once and will be kept from lectures for a period of two weeks. Those who have been vaccinated already and can show a good scar must be vaccinated again, but will not be barred from lectures. The only certificates of vaccination which will be accepted are those of Dr. Porter of the University or Dr. Jackson of the C.C. Health Department.

Dr. Jackson of the Civic Health Department spent yesterday morning at Victoria College vaccinating those, in the first year and others most likely to have been exposed to the contagion. He explained to "The Varsity" that he did not expect the disease to spread beyond the six first year men and the three or four cases under observation, but that the social contacts of the students involved so much interlocking that as a precautionary measure all would be vaccinated. Consequently the rules set forth above were decided upon by Dr. Jackson and Dr. G. D. Porter yesterday afternoon.

Dr. George D. Porter of the University Health Service yesterday vaccinated approximately three hundred men students who availed themselves of the free vaccination privileges. Dr. Porter in an interview said: "There are six cases, but all of them are mild. None of these had been vaccinated. Vaccination is the great preventive, regardless of what some people may claim." He also deprecated the dread which many people have of vaccination. "I have vaccinated about 32,000 people," he said, "and only about fifty were at all sick. Ninety-eight per cent. of those vaccinated have no trouble at all." To prove that the ordeal is only a minor surgical operation, Dr. Porter said that when he was in the army he put (Continued on page 4)

Annual Medette Initiation Party at Women's Union

The annual medette initiation party was held last night at the Women's Union, when the eleven freshies were suitably introduced to the members of the M.W.U.A. The sophomores, hostesses of the evening, arranged a programme of skits, a comical physical training stunt by the freshies, and Stephen Leacock's "The Raft" by the sophomores. The guests of the evening were Mrs. Kirkwood, Dr. Gordon, Dr. Oakley, Dr. and Mrs. Cameron, Dr. O'Connor and Dr. Grainger.

An enjoyable evening was brought to a close by refreshments and toasts, toast-mistress being Rachel Haight, president. All joined in a hearty "Toronto" and as hearty an "Epistaxis."

THE LIBRARIAN'S POINT OF VIEW

We print elsewhere in this issue a letter from the University Librarian concerning our editorial of yesterday and the previous correspondence on the question of the undergraduate use of the books of the library. Professor Wallace has here described the policy of the library in such cases. No censorship of books for the library exists, but a censorship of books for general circulation is enforced. The reasons for this are obvious from Professor Wallace's letter.

Professor Wallace does not agree that because a book happens to be in the University Library, it must therefore be issued indiscriminately to anyone who asks for it. This is quite true. We do believe, however, that the library is for the benefit of the members of the University and that books which are not withdrawn from general circulation for one reason or another should be available to undergraduates who show a genuine interest in a particular book.

Professor Wallace declares it to be part of the policy of the Library to allow any undergraduate to obtain permission to use books by satisfying the Librarian that there are good and sufficient reasons why he should be permitted to do so. If this be so, Mr. Hallock should have been referred to the Librarian rather than dismissed with the remark that the book in question was not for undergraduate circulation.

We believe, too, that in the case of individual books, consideration should be made of the reasons why a student should not be allowed to read a book rather than investigation of the good and sufficient reasons why a member of the University of Toronto should be allowed to study the books in the University of Toronto Library.

What Professor Wallace considers "good and sufficient" reasons is open to debate. The objectionable nature of a book as far as the outside attitude towards its circulation is concerned is met with by the withdrawing of books from general circulation. Surely the Library would not attempt to judge a student's powers of appreciation and refuse the circulation of a book on the ground of improper use. The Library would be far better justified in dictating the literary needs of the students than it would in dictating their spiritual needs.

STUDENTS AND SHEEP

There is an ancient tale of a flock of sheep. The sheep leader jumped over a bar gate. The second one followed, but, in doing so, knocked over the impeding bar. Every following member of the flock jumped high, over the spot where the bar had stood, because the leader had led the way.

Students, then, are not like sheep! Several members of the undergraduate body have, noticeably, been determined to lead the way over a new path in Queen's Park. The rest of the undergraduate body has, noticeably, gone on in the old and habitual rut.

We would congratulate the few whose perseverance keeps them to the hard and narrow way. They are the pioneer spirits of the campus. And at least they have the satisfaction of knowing that when days grow dour and the green grass transforms itself into mud, they will be joined, en masse, by their contemporaries.

A suggestion was passed by the Board of Control of the City of Toronto, yesterday, to erect a series of signboards in the Park to keep pedestrians from cutting across the grass. If this suggestion is carried out, we trust that those students who are not susceptible to fashion and the old "sheep call," will listen to reason, and a courteous request.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Daily Star last evening referred to the first year women of the University of Toronto as "freshets." We would take exception to this nomenclature which commonly passes for a fountain. While they have come to the fount of knowledge they cannot be classified as "all wet."

Voluntary Student Workers at University Settlement

Several girls, voluntary workers in the University Settlement, paid their weekly visit Tuesday afternoon. The baby clinic was in session, and the girls enjoyed very much taking care of babies of various ages and nationalities while tea was served to their mothers. Many little boys and girls were also comforted and fed biscuits after having an injection against diphtheria.

A growing interest in the work is manifested in the increase in numbers of those girls who volunteer to help at the Settlement.

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Quartet

The Hart House Quartet made the first of the five recitals at Convocation Hall a decided success. The Quartet was introduced to the audience by Dr. Ernest McMillan of the Conservatory of Music.

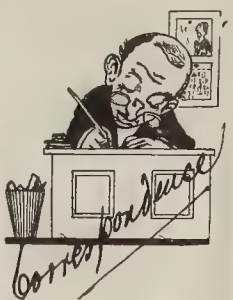

During the short time at their disposal the String Quartet played two complete numbers, and two movements from a third quartet. The first was Beethoven's Opus 95. The four movements were a recital in themselves. The solid classical quick introductory movement was followed by a Scherzo, a stately slow movement giving place to the rapid finale.

Hugo Wolf's Italian Serenade proved

ed a very popular number. Wolf is well known as a song writer, and the light treatment of the theme reminded one of a joyous song. The final number, a quartet in A minor, with its Andante Variation and quick finale, brought the concert recital to a successful close, but not before the musicians had kindly given a repetition to the final movement.

Dr. McMillan stated his pleasure at the presence of so many students. He announced the coming of the Harvard Glee Club during the Christmas vacation period, and hoped that many students would avail themselves of this further opportunity to hear good music.

The Flonzaley Quartet will present the next recital on November 17th.

Librarian Replies

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I have read your editorial of this morning on "The Undergraduate and the University Library." In the first place, you must allow me to say that you have misquoted me. I did not suggest, that your correspondent "should seek me out privately to discuss the question." I merely expressed the opinion that your correspondent should have brought his complaint to me before airing it publicly. I have always taken pride in being easily accessible to undergraduates who use the Library, and I was sorry that your correspondent should have taken the matter up publicly instead of making his complaint to me first.

Since you have, however, raised in your editorial the question of the restriction of the circulation of books, I may as well explain fully and frankly the settled policy of the University Library in this respect. Let me explain, first of all, that there is no censorship of books in this Library. I do not pretend to set myself up as a judge of what people should or should not read. But there have always been, and will always be, books in the University Library which are withdrawn from general circulation. This may be because of rarity, or because a book is published only for the professional use of medical men, or because a book has been banned by the police, and the Librarian would render himself liable to prosecution in the courts if he gave it general circulation. Occasionally also when a complaint has been made about a book, it is withdrawn from general circulation, without any opinion being expressed by the Librarian as to the character of the book. This is because an attack on the University Library, from parents of undergraduates or others, who might maintain that the Library was circulating improper literature among the undergraduates, would do incalculable harm. To say, however, that a book is withdrawn from general circulation does not mean that it is necessarily withdrawn from undergraduate use. Any undergraduate may obtain permission to use books in the locked cupboards in the Library by satisfying the Librarian that there are good and sufficient reasons why he should be permitted to do so.

I should like to add that I myself cannot agree that, because a book happens to be in the University Library,

We are busily engaged in polishing up our claws and curling our whiskers for the trip to Kingston on Saturday. We don't hope for so fine a trip as last year, because that was one of those gala occasions. Four of us drove down and we consequently missed all the alleged shenanigans on the Varsity special. The very peer of all cheer leaders, who by now is somewhere west of Shangui or east of Hull, was bolstering up the Youths Who Refused to Retreat and he told a few of the faithful of the fun that the boys had. Unfortunately the Tely and Star misunderstood the fact that he merely said the travellers were playing jacks and checkers, and there appeared some smart allegations on the part of these "great" dailies. The "allegations" were well squelched in this column by a contribution from L.B.L., who has since plunged into the great world of affairs—we reprint his verses, because they are well worth it:

Sing a song of hip-flasks,
Pockets full of rye,
Four-and-twenty students
Feeling mighty spry.
When the flasks were opened
They all began to sing:
"Don't tell the Telegram,
It won't believe a thing!"
Sing a song of angels
Floating gently by Four-and-twenty students
Whose home is up on high.
"Never booze will pass our lips,"
They all began to sing,
"But don't tell the Daily Star,
It won't believe a thing!"

And, oh, how we yearn for some contribs of this calibre now! Where are they all, the old familiar wits?

it must therefore be issued indiscriminately to anyone who asks for it. I do not think you will find any large library in the world where such a principle is put into practice.

VARSITY vs. STATE COLLEGE, PENN., SOCCER AT STADIUM TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Toronto to Kingston by train on Saturday.

Train leaves Toronto at 8.30 a.m. Arrives Kingston at 12.30 a.m. Leaves Kingston at 6 p.m.

Arriving back in Toronto at 10 a.m. Train and game ticket, $7.50 only.

With this moderate price in vogue, and with the team using this train part way to Kingston and all the way back, the undergraduates making the trip to Kingston should register at the Athletic Offices immediately.

While not an "Intercollegiate fixture," as it has been erroneously termed, the soccer match, Varsity vs. State College, Penn., to be played at the Stadium this afternoon, is of International Intercollegiate importance. State, prominent in American football, is also highly rated for its soccer, lacrosse and basketball teams across the border. In fact, Varsity teams have played against all three of the latter in the States, but this is only the second time that State has had an opportunity to accept the invitation to come to Toronto.

Soccer is a game with many devotees throughout the University, and to-day's international aspect should lend high colour to the game. Varsity hockey, basketball, lacrosse and B.W. and F. teams invade the United States each season, and their reception there is gradually forming a tremendous bond between the University men of both nations. Large crowds have invariably greeted them, and it is hoped the local students will similarly turn out en masse and greet our visitors to-day.

As the Intercollegiate Track Meet is scheduled for Friday, not Saturday, in Kingston, members of the Blue team will leave for the Limestone City at 1 p.m. to-day. The locals have one of their strongest entries in years, particularly in the track events, and a third successive College title is looked forward to with confidence.

Those of us who have made the trip to Kingston by one means or another for the past few years know that the greatest fun, combined with the least worry, trouble and loss of time, is experienced by those going by train. Consequently it seems strange that there should still be some tickets available, but the last minute rush is inevitable, we suppose. In all, but 200 tickets were allotted to those going by train. Now that that's leaked out, they shouldn't last much longer. Again, the train doesn't leave Kingston at 10 o'clock; it gets into Toronto at that hour, or thereabouts, that is, it leaves Toronto at 8.30 to arrive at Kingston at 12.30, and, on the return, leaves Kingston around 6 p.m. to arrive here at 10.

With Murray Snyder at quarter and Kirkpatrick on the backfield, the Blue appear to be about 50 per cent. stronger than the team that faced McGill here two weeks ago. On Queen's showing against McGill, the Tricolour are favourites for Saturday's match, but things are just as well that way. The locals are quietly confident. Blue teams always do best when fighting an up-hill battle—that goes with the Varsity spirit. The hockey teams for the past three years amply demonstrate that. Rated as having one of the poorest teams in many years three years ago, the Blue not only won the College title but advanced to the Dominion finals. The following season it was not expected that they would reach the finals; they did—but then, favourites against Port Arthur, they lost, but only after they did a come-back to finish a great series. Credited with being strong enough to sweep through to the title without a single defeat last season, the Grads found it tough to beat Peterboro, whom they had taken into camp twice earlier in the season in easy fashion, and then had to drop the opening game in Fort William in the West before they got into their real fighting togs. And so with this old football team. That McGill defeat rangles, and it has brought a lot of fighting blood to the surface that is bound to be in evidence against the Tricolour in Kingston.

MARGARET GROUT WINS WOMEN'S TENNIS TITLE

The final round of the Varsity tournament was played off at the Toronto Tennis Club yesterday afternoon when Margaret Grout, 2T9 St. Hilda's, defeated Norma Bateman 3T0 Vic, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Those who have been successful in "making" the Varsity women's tennis team are:—M. Grout (St. Hilda's), Norma Bateman (Vic.), Ruth Higgins (U.C.), and Joyce Finlay (St. Hilda's). Everything now points to a successful Intercollegiate tournament to be played here October 24th and 25th.

VARSITY O.R.F.U. TEAM IN GOOD CONDITION

Week of Hard Practice Puts Squad in Shape to Meet Camp Borden

TACKLING DUMMY USED

After neatly disposing of the Tiger Cubs on Saturday last, the Varsity O.R.F.U. senior squad is making careful preparations for Camp Borden this coming Saturday. In two closely contested games, Hamilton managed to come out ahead of the Fliers twice, but went down under a smashing defeat before "Mike" Pearson's squad. However, the Pearsonites are taking no holiday this week, and intend to tuck away a little extra condition for when they stack up against Balmy Beach again. To under-rate the proteges of Dave Harding would be worse than a sin, as this ex-Queen's star is more than likely to pull something new in Saturday's game.

The tackling dummy is coming in for a lot of punishment these days, as after McPherson and his squad get through, the Orphans give it a rough ride. Every department is being looked after in these practices, and the practice games with the Intercollegiate give both teams a real work-

VARSITY SOCCER TEAM MEETS PENN. STATE

Nittany Team Has Never Been Beaten by Varsity Squad —Tied Last Year

This afternoon at 2.15 the Varsity soccer team meets the Penn. State eleven at the Stadium for the third time. The Nittany team has never been beaten in U.S. Collegiate circles, nor by any Varsity team. Last year, at State College, twenty minutes' overtime play resulted in a draw. The visiting team has an unbroken record.

The following are selected to represent Varsity, and are asked to be in Hart House locker room at 1.30 p.m.:

Cox, Ferguson, Hadley, King, Wilford, Jackson, Cameron, West, Shields, Downing, Davidson, Withers, Clemens, Evans, Ririe.

out. Gay Kirkpatrick is out again in uniform, and although he has a decided limp he is gradually getting the stiffness worked out, despite the fact that he had the misfortune to give his ankle another wrench on Tuesday. A couple of players are likely to be drafted to the Intercollegiate squad, and it looks as though Keith and Little are the men. Yet the Orphans cannot complain, for they have received many of their valuable men from that self-same Intercollegiate outfit.

Knox College Soccer Team Defeats University College

The Knox College soccer team took the second game of the Interfaculty series yesterday when they defeated the University College team to the tune of 2-0. Kerr and Skeleton scored for Knox. The Presbyterians played a good game, playing as a team rather than individuals. Mills in the goal for U.C. made some spectacular saves.

The teams were as follows:—Knox College: Goal, Irwin; full backs, McCullough, H. Davidson; half

LIBRARY COMMITTEE
NOT MORAL CENSOR

Curator of Hart House Library Points Out Resolution of Committee

FREE ACCESS TO BOOKS

Several days ago the question was raised as to the difference in the standards employed by the Hart House Library Committee and the Librarian of the University in accepting books for their shelves. Mr. J. P. E. Brown, curator of Hart House Library, when interviewed regarding the policy employed in the selection of books, pointed out that at a meeting of the Library Committee two or three weeks ago the following resolution was passed: "The Library Committee does not feel justified in setting itself up as a moral censor of the reading material on the library shelves."

It is a new book is considered to be of general interest to the undergraduate body, and possesses some literary value, it is admitted to the Library. In an attempt to picture reality in a vivid and outspoken way, a book may contain what might be called "objectionable passages." This, however, is no reason why it should be excluded from the perusal of the student body. Last year pages were found torn out from a medical journal in the Reading Room, and certain passages from Samuel Butler's "Way of All Flesh" were also found eliminated from the copy in the Library. The Library Committee, when questioned, knew nothing of this, and it appears to have been the work of some prudish individual.

Apparently students use the Hart House Library in order to obtain relaxation from the tedious cares of their studies. One of the most popular books in use is De Maupassant's "A Woman's Life," and others of a similar nature.

should register at C.O.T.C. Headquarters immediately. They must be in possession of Certificate "A," Infantry.

no dressing on the scratch at all. As a concession, however, to the delicacy of students, a wad of cotton and two strips of adhesive tape are provided. Dr. Edith Gordon has also been vaccinating the women in the Household Science building.

It is thought by the doctors that the infection originated with Harold Trick, Clinton, who came to college with a slight rash which was not suspected to be smallpox. He has now recovered. The next victim was Harold Day, who became quite ill, and the case was also diagnosed as smallpox. Strict precautions were at once taken, but not until it had spread to five others. Symptoms were also suspected in several occupants of the residence at 1111 Bay Street, and this house was also quarantined. Health officers called at the two residences and have fumigated the buildings. It is also anticipated that the college will be treated as well.

The first year men so far affected are: Raymond McKnight, Kenneth Irwin, Murray Monsignor, Harold Day, Harry Pearce, and Wilbert Kingston. Altogether of the separate residences 56 men are affected by the quarantine regulations. While the appearance of the disease has caused a great furor, the attitude of the Victoria students so far is more one of curiosity than of fear. The majority of first year men and women were vaccinated yesterday morning in Alumni Hall, and most of the upper classmen visited Dr. Porter during the day. In spite of Dr. Porter's assurance of painlessness, men of other faculties are not advised to go around slapping Victorians on the left arm.

Yesterday Victoria first year students in University lectures were dismissed by order of the medical authorities, and will be subject to the quarantine regulations already noted. All functions at Wymilwood for at least this week have been cancelled, and the first year women are required to eat apart from the rest. Every effort is being made as well to keep the freshmen from mixing with the other years to avoid infection from cases which are not yet developed. Dr. Gordon M. Bale is the resident physician.

Instruction in Danish gymnastics is being offered for the first time this year at the University of Cincinnati. The system used is that of Niels Bukh, the famous Danish physical education master.

touch. The latter came right back, however, and scored a single point on a fumble.

The Intercollegiate have made several raids on the O.R.F.U. team, one of the latest acquisitions being Calnan, who performs at inside; he was one of the stars of the Orphans last season, and is a line plunger of promise.

Trimble and Sinclair are devoting considerable time to their catching and kicking, and fumbles should be as few and far between on Saturday as the proverbial hen's teeth.

Queen's line is reported to be almost as strong as in former years, and is said by some to be the best in the Intercollegiate. But at that they will have to step to hold Varsity. The Blue and White have been devoting most of their time of late to perfecting their line plays, and they work with a smoothness that should bring results. Carrick is as usual a tower of strength, and Stollery, Dundas, Rykert and the rest are not easy picking for any man's team.

part very doubtful as far as Varsity is concerned.

Down McGill way they expect to see Willie Consiglio smash the Intercollegiate pole vault record of 12 feet 3 1/4 inches. Jack Davenport managed to defeat him at the Canadian championships, but he has evidently improved a great deal since then, according to reports. Hugh Crawford is also going for the pole vault.

The high jump looks like McGill's. Consiglio is capable of 5 ft. 10 in. in spite of the fact that the McGill Intercollegiate height was only 5 ft. 6 in. Marshall of Varsity does 5 ft. 6 in. consistently and might possibly defeat Consiglio.

Varsity should win the discus throw with Bill Finlayson, but the javelin throw looks like McGill's. They have two men, Poupore and Rahmanon, who throw it about 10 feet farther than McTaggart, Varsity's best man. The broad jump might go to anybody. McKenzie and Finlayson of Varsity and Brown and McGill all do about 20 feet with fractions of inches separating them.

The Varsity team should make practically a clean sweep in the track events, and with the points they pick up in the field events they should pile up enough to win the meet handsily. If the expectations of the Varsity men is any criterion, the whole record book will have to be revised after Friday.

Following the kick-off Stone found a hole and ran 35 yards before he was downed. An inside kick went only for a rouge. Varsity blocked a McMaster kick behind their line, but they managed to recover it for a safety touch. Barrett plunged over for another touchdown. OTTAWA GOVERNMENT UP FOR DISCUSSION IN OPENING DEBATE

Want of Confidence Will Be Moved at First Hart House Debate

SPEAKERS ARE ANNOUNCED

New Interest in Situation Has Arisen Since Recent Conservative Convention

The first Hart House debate of this year will be held in the Lecture Room on Wednesday, October 26, at 8 p.m. The motion, "That this House has no confidence in His Majesty's government at Ottawa," should provide an exciting debate, especially after the new interest in the situation of the Canadian parties created by the Conservative Convention.

The motion will be moved by M. W. Andrew of University College, and opposed by D. G. McCullagh of Trinity College, who is Secretary of the Debating Committee of Hart House. W. L. Smith of Trinity College will speak third. Mr. Smith, who graduated with first class honours last year, is perhaps the most distinguished debater who has been at the University for some years. The fourth speaker will be M. F. St. L. Daly of Victoria College, and the Intercollegiate rugby team.

It must be again emphasized that any members of the House may speak after these four, if they catch the Speaker's eye—the only limit being that the House must divide at 10.30. Speakers from the floor may speak for ten minutes, but the more who limit themselves to five minutes, the more get a chance to speak. Further, it must be realized that a vote of the House is taken on the motion, and that the object of speaking is to persuade the House. The vote is taken by the House passing out through the "aye" and "no" doors and being counted by the tellers, who are: for the ayes, J. H. Gringorten of University College and J. G. Currie of University College; for the noes, W. D. Matthews of University College and C. F. Burk of the Faculty of Applied Science. Those who leave the debate before the division but after the fourth speech may vote by ballot as they leave.

On the walls of the Lecture Room there hang photographs of the Hart House debates when the Imperial debaters were visitors, and when the Prime Minister spoke. There are also photographs of the Oxford and Cambridge Unions in session, and of the graduates of the University who have become Prime Ministers, Federal or Provincial. It is hoped that this collection will grow. There is also over the Speaker's chair an autographed photo of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales.

PROFESSOR J. C. McLENNAN SPEAKS TO M. & P. SOCIETY

Describes Visit Abroad Last Summer, Showing Illustrations of Places Visited

The opening meeting of the Mathematical and Physical Society took place Thursday afternoon in the Physics Building at 4.15 p.m.

The speaker of the afternoon was Professor J. C. McLennan. He delighted the large audience with an account of his visit abroad last summer. While in Europe Dr. McLennan attended the Volta Centenary Celebrations at Como. The congress was attended by the leading scientists of the world, and Dr. McLennan was Canada's only representative.

Notice!

Every University student is asked to make sure, at once, that his correct address and telephone number are entered upon his registration card in the office of his College Registrar or Faculty Secretary. The University Directory is now being prepared for the press, and it is of the greatest importance that all addresses and telephone numbers be correct.

PHILOSOPHICAL LECTURES AT ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE

Noted Authority from Europe to Deliver Conference on Thomas of York

Something decidedly original has been provided for the already varied programme of Philosophy Lectures at St. Michael's for the current term. On November 7th the Rev. Fr. Ephrem Longpre will deliver a conference on Thomas of York. He is a noted European philosophical authority from the Franciscan School of Philosophy at Quarachi, near Florence, Italy. A Canadian by birth, Father Longpre is universally conceded to be the greatest living authority on the Franciscan school of philosophic thought, a school which has numbered such brilliant intellects as Alexander of Hales, St. Bonaventure and John Scotus. It will be recollected by those interested in philosophical investigations that the world owes to the Franciscan School at Quarachi the critical edition of the works of Alexander of Hales, recently published.

THREE VARSITY MEN STILL IN SINGLES

Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament at Montreal Progresses, Toronto Chances Bright

SIX COMPETING TEAMS

(Special by Don Gunn)

Montreal, Oct. 20.—Owing to the inclement weather of the past few days, the opening rounds of the Intercollegiate Lawn Tennis Championships were played on the en tout courts of the Mount Royal Lawn Tennis Club to-day, and not at the Outremont Tennis Club as was first intended.

Six universities and colleges are participating—McGill, R.M.C., University of Montreal, Queen's, Osgoode Hall, University of Toronto.

The University of Toronto team, composed of Gilbert Nunn, youthful Davis Cup star; Walter Martin, champion of Saskatchewan; Don Gunn, and Donald Beath, is leading with seven wins, counting seven points.

Nunn (Varsity) beat McCavit (R.M.C.); Martin (Varsity) beat Beck (Osgoode Hall) and McInerney (McGill); Gunn (Varsity) beat Gelinas (U. of Montreal), Cushing (R.M.C.) and Valois (U. of Montreal) to reach the semi-finals. Beath (Varsity) beat Hall (Queen's), was beaten by Doherty (Osgoode Hall). As will be seen, three from Varsity are still in the singles. No doubles have been played.

Provided there are no upsets, it is practically certain that Varsity will win the Canadian Intercollegiate tennis title, which Varsity has not held since the war. To-morrow, Jack Wright (McGill), member of the Canadian Davis Cup team for some years, will no doubt dispose of Martin and Gunn; however, Nunn should give a good account of himself in the singles final, and paired with Martin will make a strong bid for the doubles title.

SOPHOCLES' OEDIPUS IS TOPIC DISCUSSED BY DR. LIVINGSTONE

Last Lecture of Series Deals With Famous Greek Tragedy

LIKE JOB AND KING LEAR

Matthew Arnold has said, "The chief person who props in these sad days, my mind, is Sophocles." The Oedipus Rex of Sophocles was the subject of Dr. Livingstone's lecture in the Physics Building, Thursday afternoon.

Sophocles is the master artist as regards the construction of plays; and in the Oedipus Rex, which is really a sort of detective story, the intricacy and subtlety of the plot is one of the outstanding features.

Oedipus is supposed to be the son of the King and Queen of Corinth, but when he grows up someone casts a doubt on this and he goes to consult the oracle. No satisfactory answer is given to the question, but he is told that he will kill his father and marry his mother. To escape his fate Oedipus determines never to return to Corinth, and goes to Thebes. For a service done the Thebans he is made their King and marries Jocasta, the widow of the former King who has recently died. All goes well for fifteen years. Then a plague breaks out. A deputation sent to the oracle brings the answer that the plague will abate when the murderers of the late king are driven out. A local prophet is called in and reluctantly names Oedipus the murderer. This at first seems impossible, but a further investigation reveals that a man whom Oedipus had killed, under just provocation, shortly before coming to Thebes had been the former king. Jocasta hangs herself, and Oedipus blinds himself with her brooches.

But the play does not end here. Dr. Livingstone used the last third to bring out the greatness of Sophocles in his creation of such a character as Oedipus, who is sometimes compared with Lear.

Some great characters in fiction or plays are people whom we would expect to meet in everyday life, but there are others who seem to have something of the sublime or the demonic, and who serve more to show the potentialities of human nature. To these latter Oedipus belongs. After the catastrophe he cannot bear the thought of returning to the world, nor does he kill himself. He retires to (Continued on page 4)

FOREST RESOURCES SECOND IN CANADA

Ontario's Policy of Forest Conservation is Outlined by Mr. E. J. Zavitz

RESERVES AND PARKS

Mr. E. J. Zavitz, Deputy Minister of Forests of the Province of Ontario, was the speaker at the second lecture in business administration at Baldwin House yesterday afternoon, on the subject "The Woods of Eastern Canada."

The fact that 60 per cent. of Eastern Canada is unsuited for agriculture, and, on the other hand, eminently suited for forest growth, is largely responsible for Ontario's policy of forest conservation. This policy is carried out in the Department of Forests under four headings: (1) forest surveys and investigations, (2) forest protection, (3) reforestation, (4) air force.

The forest areas in Ontario fall into two classes: forest reserves and parks. The former, comprising some 18,366 square miles, are primarily set aside to prevent the establishments of pseudo-settlements. The 4,499 square miles of parks, largely covered with forests, were established with the idea of the protection of the watersheds and game, etc.

The forest resources are second in value to agriculture in all Canada, and net the eastern provinces a direct revenue of $10,000,000.

Victoria

Every student of Victoria College who has not been vaccinated this week or passed by Dr. Jackson of the Health Department as not needing revaccination, must report to Dr. Jackson in Alumni Hall, Victoria College, before 12 o'clock Friday.

Quarantine Holds No Terrors for These Segregated Students Pass Time Easily

The inmates of the two Victoria residences affected by the smallpox seem to be bearing up nobly under the strain of the rigorous quarantine. They are being fed by special communication with the Burwash kitchens, all lectures and labs are called off, and a pleasant time is being had by all. A bridge league has been organized, and the champion is exempt from dishwashing for the time being, while the lad who trumps his partner's ace at the critical moment washes dishes in double shift. Yesterday's card shark was Mr. Morris Harvey. A world-shaking ping-pong tournament has also been organized, and Donald Patterson, Esq., has the rest cowed at the kindergarten tennis. Mr. Trick, the tricky checker-pusher, is willing, after the quarantine, to challenge the world to a contest.

An orchestra has been organized at the Charles Street house consisting of ten pieces, and many weary hours are whiled away by the tantalizing harmonies. Mr. Trick, the eminent checker-player, does the fiddling for the aggregation, and if the quarantine stays on much longer, they may make hints regarding professional engagements.

As athletic diversions, softball and football are going full bang in the back lot. Any mention of study is received with loud and raucous hoots. Four meals a day are the rule, with one at midnight. There is no official visible to enforce the quarantine except the don, but, as the inmates say, who the heck would want to go out? Also, the Frosh have formed a House of David Association, and no shaving will take place until freedom is granted. Van Dykes are running chin-teasers a close second.

There is, of course, the usual insect in the applause, for the epidemic has proved so tractable that there is a prospect of the quarantine being lifted within several days.

Vaccination Continues Apace; All Students at Victoria have been Vaccinated

SOME ARE SUSPENDED

One Per Minute for Two Hours Is Rate of Injection at Burwash

No new cases of smallpox have as yet come to the notice of the authorities, but vaccination has continued with unabated fervour. At present every student in Victoria College residences has been vaccinated at least for the first time, and yesterday morning Dr. Jackson of the civic health department made every member of the student body of Victoria College show his vaccination mark to him personally. Students who have been vaccinated for the first time only are suspended for fourteen days from October 17 and must not leave the city without the permission from Dr. Jackson. Although two of the residences on Bay and Charles Street are still under quarantine, it is expected that the quarantine will be lifted in a couple of days.

With the help of two doctors and some assistants, all residents of Burwash Hall were put through the vaccination at the rate of one a minute for two hours.

When approached on the subject of vaccination, Dr. Porter stated that he thought compulsory vaccination would have a very beneficial effect on the University, and if that had been in order as a requirement for admission this outbreak would not have occurred.

Smallpox is an acute communicable disease of unknown etiology, a method of control for which has been employed for more than a century.

It was known as early as the tenth century, and in the eighteenth there were over sixty million deaths. The first outbreak in the Western hemisphere was in 1500, when Spanish soldiers communicated smallpox to the Indians around the Caribbean Sea. From there it spread to Mexico and Central America. In 1919 and 1920 there was a typical outbreak in Ontario. In 1924 there occurred the Windsor epidemic of a very virulent form. In all 32 deaths resulted.

The period of incubation is from 5-12 to 16 days. The symptoms are headaches, a temperature of around 104° F., with nausea, chills and backache. Eruption begins about the fourth day on the forehead, wrists and abdomen and then spreads. The process consists of four stages—(1) nodules or small swellings under the skin, (2) papules as the centre becomes raised, (3) vesicles containing fluid on about the 7th or 8th day, and finally (4) the pustule composed of puss. When they dry up, a scab is formed. These localized changes may be accompanied by distortion of mouth and face.

The control consists chiefly of careful nursing and vaccination of all contacts. Vaccination is also the chief protection.

Faculty Tea is Held

Mrs. W. L. Miller entertained at the Faculty Tea in the Graduate Reading Room of University Library on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Taylor assisted in receiving the guests, while tea was poured by Mrs. Tracy and Mrs. Piersol. Those assisting in serving were: Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. Baillie and Mrs. Blatz. During the afternoon many students availed themselves of the opportunity of becoming better acquainted in a social way with the members of the Faculty and their wives.

SAYS ICE PRESENT IN MOLECULAR FORM IN BOILING WATER

Professor Barnes of McGill Delivers Paper Before Engineering Society

ICE JAMS BROKEN UP

Has Had Success in Relieving Ice Blockage in Alleghany River

War is being waged on the tri-hydrol molecule by Professor Barnes of McGill University, who delivered a very interesting paper on "Ice Prevention and Control," before a meeting of the Toronto Branch of the Engineering Society, held in the Mining Building last night. During the last few years Dr. Barnes has achieved considerable fame, due to his research and activity in regard to ice material. His address was received by a large audience which taxed the capacity of the room.

The lecturer explained that ice engineering is a new science to deal with the control and prevention of ice, and he stressed the necessity of precautionary measures. Considerable surprise was caused by the announcement that 17 per cent. of boiling water is made up of ice. This is in molecular form and is invisible even to the searching inspection of the ultra-microscope. At the freezing point of these tri-hydrol or ice molecules form crystals. The molecules may be coaxed into union, and that is why ice is often observed to form on a piece of rope before it appears in the rest of the water. Prevention of ice will probably come through the destruction (Continued on page 4)

EDITORS ELECTED AT S.A.C. MEETING

J. W. Robson and W. E. Shute to Guide Student Publications

IN FORCE ON MONDAY

At the first meeting of the year, the Joint Executive of the Students' Administrative Council elected James W. Robson as Editor of "The Varsity" for 1927-28, and W. E. Shute as Editor of Torontonsis for the coming year. The meeting held yesterday evening in Room 82, University College, was the first under the chairmanship of W. A. Donahue, new President of the Administrative Council.

J. W. Robson, elected Editor of "The Varsity" to succeed Robert C. H. Mitchell, is widely known in connection with his activities as Sporting Editor for the past three years. Mr. Robson has gained considerable reputation in the University and outside as an authority on sport, and with his long connection with "The Varsity" should prove a capable and popular Editor. "Jim" Robson is a Fifth Year student in the Dental Faculty.

William E. Shute, a Fourth Year man in B. & M., the new Editor of Torontonsis, succeeding Leonard J. Ryan, has been a member of the Sketch Committee of Hart House for three years, is a member of the Camera Club and was on the staff of Torontonsis in 1926. Mr. Shute, who has experience and technical knowledge, will doubtless ensure that the University year book for 1928 will be a success and a credit to this institution.

These appointments will go into effect on Monday.

HANDLING OF THE SMALLPOX "EPIDEMIC"

The precautions taken to stem the smallpox epidemic have aroused a great deal of criticism, much of which is favourable, but some of which unfortunately is extremely adverse. On the whole, however, the attitude adopted by the students toward the vaccination regulations has been very commendable.

In such a large body as the University of Toronto it is to be expected that there will be a wide divergence of opinion, and in the present instance we are not disappointed. Added to the "conscientious objectors" are those who consider the restrictions too drastic. With these latter we have no sympathy; their attitude is a shameful confession of a selfish disregard for the good of others. It would be well for such individuals to ponder what their attitude would be had not these "drastic" regulations been put into force, and then to govern themselves accordingly. We are optimistic enough regarding the humanitarian leanings of the undergraduates of the University of Toronto generally, and of Victoria College in particular, to feel sure that no more adverse criticism will be heard.

The medical authorities should be congratulated upon the promptness with which they coped with the unheralded outbreak. Should any unfavourable comment reach their ears, it will be unrepresentative and contrary to the feeling of the University as a whole.

STRING QUARTET TICKET DISTRIBUTION

A few days ago it was stated in this column that little care was being taken to make sure that those purchasing tickets at Hart House Theatre for the student series of string quartet concerts were bona-fide students. We have since received a letter from Mr. E. O. Mitchell of the Theatre pointing out that "a great majority produce their registration cards. Those who may not have done so have given equally satisfactory assurance that their application is bona-fide." Mr. Mitchell designates our "somewhat sweeping statement" as "a terminological inexactitude."

Since our editorial appeared, we understand prospective purchasers have been asked to produce their registration cards at the box office. Previous to this, however, members of the staff of "The Varsity" purchased tickets without showing their cards, and it appeared to them that it would be an easy matter for the non-university public to do likewise.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS WOMEN'S POLITY CLUB

Miss Walker, Former Member,
Gave Short Sketch of Its History and Aims

Election of officers was the most important issue at the first meeting of the Women's Polity Club held in the Women's Union Wednesday evening. President: Gwen Carter. Vice-President: Ellen Crook. Secretary-Treasurer: Mary Coleman.

Graduate Representative: Mary Rowell.

It was resolved that the membership be closed after the third meeting, except when the would-be member be personally proposed by a member. All members of the first year are to be excluded except when proposed by a member of the society. The meetings are to be held on alternate Wednesday evenings and each college in turn is to be the meeting place.

Miss Walker, a former member of the club, presented the aims of the club and gave a short sketch of its history. Its main object was the discussion of current, political and economic questions, and the success of the club was measured by the animation of the open discussion. The programme for the next few weeks was drafted, and at the next meeting papers are to be read on the subject, "China for the

EXPANSION IS PLANNED FOR BOTANY DEPARTMENT

Greenhouse Ready for Construction as First Unit of New Building

Steps to make the quarters of the Department of Botany adequate are now being taken.

Work is to be begun immediately on a new greenhouse. All the steel-work is being made in separate parts, so that the building can be taken down and erected again with comparatively little trouble and expense. The new greenhouse, which will form the first unit of the new building that is planned for the Department of Botany, will be 55 by 25 feet in size, and divided into three compartments, each one a laboratory greenhouse. These compartments will each be furnished with benches running around the sides, space in the centre for small tables and a large sink. The floor is to be of cement. The new greenhouse will be added to the present glass houses to the south of the Botany Building, and will provide much needed additional space for teaching and experimentation purposes in the department.

CHAMPUS CAT

This is all the seriousness that an honest-to-gosh epidemic can produce in a ribald fellow named Smiddy:

Dear Kat:
I noticed in Thursday's "Varsity" that Doc Gordon "hopes to vaccinate every unvaccinated woman on the campus." I didn't know the campus was that part of a woman's anatomy upon which she was vaccinated. Probably Mme. Doc didn't mean that, so she must have meant something else.

Georgie suggests that Doc is going to have a vaccinating party on the campus. Let us know just when, please!

Smiddy.

C-C

This morning we received a contribution from Dr. John Tiffany, who holds the Chair of History at Volapuk University. We believe that we have made a ten-strike in getting Dr. Tiffany's new series of historical letters to be shortly published under the title "Enlivened History of England." It will probably cause more consternation than any volume since Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roaming Empire."

It follows:
Episode I.

Dear Kat:—
Do you know that truth is stranger than fiction—that is, it is more uncommon. This statement is proved by the fact that we have too many novels, and too few histories. We have historical novels, but no novel histories. I intend to supply the long-felt want. My statements are founded on fact. Although they may have warped here and there, the fault is not due to any structural deficiency. It is merely because the foundation has given way in places.

Do you know that history is a collection of facts? Did you ever collect facts? It is a most interesting hobby. The facts I am about to lay before you are not, however, absolutely new. They are second-hand facts, some of them being slightly the worse for wear.

In short, I am going to tell you what I have been told. This, not being evidence in a court of law, effectually guards against the risk of my being arrested for perjury.

In my history, I have decided to entirely ignore dates. I shall, however, for my own guidance, name my characters, but you are perfectly welcome to think of those characters by names other than the ones I have bestowed upon them.

For instance, if I choose to think of a man as "Richard" and you prefer to think of him as "John," I don't see that it matters at all. We don't change his identity. He's the same man still.

Very well, then, let's go.

Yours truly,

John Tiffany.

Episode II.

Dear Kat:

I am first going to speak about the Ancient Britons. This tribe were—as their name denotes—ancient Britons. They flourished about the year B.C.—or, to be strictly accurate, I don't know. They painted their bodies, and, unless it rained and the colours ran, looked very gaudy. They did not, however, paint their faces, as is the custom of the Ancient British ladies to-day.

The Queen of the Ancient Britons was Boadicea. I don't know why they called her that. I suppose they

Box Office Viewpoint of Ticket Distribution

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
I have read, in to-day's "Varsity," your remarks re students' tickets for the Convocation Hall concerts. It is not correct to say that no provision is made to see that University students only obtain them. All persons applying for these tickets are questioned as to their University standing, and the great majority produce their registration cards. Those who may not have done so, have given equally satisfactory assurance that their application is bona-fide. I would like to know the names and addresses of any people who have obtained tickets at this office for these concerts who were not entitled to obtain them. Your somewhat sweeping statement is rather unfair to this office, and might be, not inappropriately, called a terminological inexactitude. A number of people have been refused tickets.

Yours truly,

E. O. Mitchell.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY FORMED AT ST. MIKE'S

Various Groups All Set For Exciting Political Season

The formation of a New Party has given added zest to the political pot now boiling at St. Michael's College. This group, composed mostly of American students, has chosen a strongly radical platform and has selected P. O. Sheehan as leader.

The non-resident men have organized the Liberal party under the leadership of C. McNamara while the Conservative caucus has named Vernon Bourke, Edward Garney and E. J. Hartman as its board of strategy. George Power has rallied the Progressive forces for the election next Thursday.

Next Monday evening the college will be addressed by the Honourable Nelson Parliament, speaker of the Legislature during the administration of the Hon. E. C. Drury. The party leaders will then make their appeals for popular support.

had to call her something. Boadicea was very fond of farming. One day she was mowing a field of corn, when she heard that Julius Caesar and a few friends from Rome had dropped in to see her. So she drove down in her mowing machine to make them welcome. Unfortunately, the horses ran away, and the Romans had to jump in a very lively manner to keep clear of the scythes.

When the Romans had quite finished jumping they settled down in the country and began to make roads. The Ancient Britons began to make tracks. Then the Ancient "Scotch" poured down from the mountains, and overcame the Romans, who weren't used to it—I mean them.

So the Romans signed the pledge—and there arose a new dynasty.

Yours with love,

John Tiffany.

TRAIN FOR KINGSTON LEAVES UNION AT 8.30 A.M. TO-MORROW

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Either McGill fears the Queen's threat or else the Red and White are solidly behind the Blue to defeat Queen's, make a great old tussle of the game in Montreal with, perhaps, the possibility of a tie between Varsity and McGill at the end of the regular schedule. In any case, Robert W. Jones, Sporting Editor of the McGill Daily, wired yesterday "Beat Queen's," and, judging by the friendly spirit that has existed between this and the Montreal University, it is safe to assume that the McGill team is anxious to battle it out with Varsity for the title.

Despite the fact that it is a death struggle for both Queen's and Varsity at Kingston to-morrow, there is a strange lack of interest in the game throughout the student body. That vaunted University support, win or lose, is conspicuous by its absence, unless it be that the students expect to stage a last minute rush as an indication that they are strictly behind their team. Varsity must win, and good support can help greatly to this end. A small crowd of supporters in the stands is not going to greatly aid the morale of the Blue and White team, and, with the Athletic Association providing an easy means of attending the game, the students should get busy and make every effort to join the train headed for Kingston.

Despite the fact that the Rowing Club met with very little success at the Canadian Henley this year, the

BIG TEAM READY FOR GREAT STRUGGLE WITH THE TRICOLOUR

Encouraging Workout Rounds Off Blue Squad for Tussle with Queen's

LEAVING TOWN TO-DAY

Will Spend the Night Near Kingston, to Join Student Train Later

With Sinclair and Trimble booting the old pigskin the proverbial mile, and with the entire team showing more spirited interference and better passing on the part of the half backs, Ronnie McPherson's blue-clad warriors went through their last strenuous workout in preparation for the Queen's game to-morrow. The team will leave town early to-day and will spend the night at a town a short distance from Kingston, joining the big student special around noon to-morrow.

Judging from last night's workout, it is apparent that McPherson made no mistake in shifting Murray Snyder to the quarter position. The team went through plays and formations faultlessly last night, and, with the half backs combining well and prepared to make a pass at every opportunity, the machine that faces the Tricolour should be decidedly superior to that which stacked up against McGill two weeks ago.

Carrick, Stollery, Rykert, Dundas and the rest of the linemen are all far better plungers than they showed on that occasion, and last night they showed something of what they really could do when they tore into the O.R.F.U. squad. The Blue have a habit of working best in adversity, and, with their backs to the wall, they will present a mighty formidable aspect in Kingston. Strange to say, the Blue are not in the least disheartened by McGill's lead nor Queen's unexpected showing in Montreal. Rather, they are of the opinion that the Red and White were above form here, while the Blue required a really hard game to get into shape.

In any case, it was a ferocious crowd of players that tore into the scrimmage yesterday. Plunges that were plunges and end runs that looked like something were not only attempted but made. The Blue will present a diversified attack, as they feel confident that no more will their own line be ploughed wide open to allow some half to go galloping through. The tackling dummy, inaugurated early in the week, has certainly improved the squad in this respect. McPherson insisted that every man on his squad hit the dummy hard, and the orders are out not to spare the man. Snyder's shift to quarter should not prevent this good outside from getting up under Sinclair's boots

VARSITY VICTORIOUS AGAINST PENN. STATE

International Intercollegiate Soccer Match Takes Place in the Stadium

FIRST WIN OUT OF FIVE

Varsity entertained the visiting Penn. State soccer team at the Stadium yesterday afternoon and defeated the visitors by a score of 3 to 1. The score is a fair indication of the strength of the teams, but a margin of one goal would have been more nearly correct.

The game was played under the American college rules, which differ slightly from those used here, in that substitutes are allowed at any stage of the game, and the play instead of the regular two 45-minute periods is divided into four 22-minute frames. This was the fifth meeting between the two teams and the first victory for the Blue and White. Penn. had the better of the play in the centre of the field, but they lacked the finish necessary for scoring. Varsity did not attack as often as the visitors, but they were more dangerous when they did.

Part of Penn's ineffectiveness when in close may be put down to the sterling work of the Varsity backs. King was also a tower of strength at centre

ORPHANS TO TAKE ON CAMP BORDEN FLIERS

Airmen Come to Town for O.R.F.U. Fixture at the Stadium

POSITIONS WELL FILLED

To-morrow afternoon at the Stadium the Varsity Senior O.R.F.U. team at practically full strength will meet Camp Borden for the first time this season. Calnan, Keith and Little have been drafted to the Intercollegiate squad, but in partial compensation, Kirkland and Wesley have been received in return. Both the line men will be badly missed, as will be Keith, who functioned at snap and then outside wing. However, Coach Pearson will have lots of applications for these positions, as Jeffries is a consistent tackler who will likely fill the outside wing position, and several huskies are battling to fill the vacancies in the line. The back division is particularly well manned with McIntyre, Davies, Woods, Spencer and Bailey. It is doubtful whether or not Gay Kirkpatrick will be used on Saturday; that ankle is still giving him trouble, and he will be needed for the return match with Balmy Beach later in the season. At quarter are Reid and Beal, who know how to get the signals out with the least delay and best advantage. Cartwright and Riddell will prove a real boon to Dunn and Jeffries at outside, and there should be no slowing of the game by plays getting around the end or not getting up under punts. Morgan at flying wing and Dunlap relieving should also show up well.

In practice last night, the Orphans provided as much opposition as the Intercollegiate squad could handle, showing particular strength on the line and in their plunges. The boys were on their toes for the whole practice, and although the dope calls for a win over the Fliers, "Mike" has allowed no let up, as rugby games are like horse races, you never are sure.

A light signal practice for to-night will probably round off the work for the week and leave the team in A1 condition.

boys are far from losing interest in the game. The Interfaculty Regatta, started a few years ago as an experiment, will be continued this year and will be held this week. The first heats will be run off to-day and the finals on Saturday.

This is a praiseworthy effort on the part of the Rowing Club, as it gives many men an opportunity to row who are unable to make the University teams. In short, it serves the same ends as interfaculty sports of all kinds, that is, besides bringing out many men who afterwards make their mark in senior sport after having learned the rudiments of the game in the lower series, it gives those who fall short of senior calibre a chance to indulge in their favourite sport.

The train for Kingston leaves Toronto at 8.30 Saturday morning, arriving in Kingston around 12.30. The return train from Kingston leaves that city shortly after 6 p.m., to reach Toronto approximately four hours later, that is around 10—10.30 p.m.
 Errors regarding the time of the train have been made repeatedly, but it should be understood that the special leaves Toronto in the morning and returns to and reaches the Union the same evening.

NEW TUTOR IS APPOINTED AT RESIDENCE OF U.C.

Previous Tutor, Now at Western, is Succeeded by Graduate in Modern History

One of the numerous changes which this year has brought about around the U. of T. has been the appointment as tutor-in-residence of G. A. McGillivray at the U.C. residence on St. George Street. The previous tutor was Mr. Milne, who has removed to London, where he has become English instructor in the Western University.
 Mr. McGillivray graduated last year from University College in Modern History. This year besides his duties as tutor he is attending Osgoode Hall in the study of law.

A native of Whitby, he received his primary and secondary schooling there. Joining the Flying Corps, he spent three and a half years in France, where he suffered serious injuries which left him physically unfit for some years.

half. Glasér, the centre forward of the visitors, was one of their best men, but the rest of the forward line was not up to his standard.

The visitors started off strong in the first period, and Marshall tallied when he netted the ball on a fast high shot which beat the Varsity's goalie cleanly. Penn had an edge on the play in this period, but there was no further score.

Varsity staged a rally in the second frame and Ririe tied the score in the first few minutes when he headed in a pretty goal. Davidson put the locals one up a few minutes later, scoring after a pretty attack down the right wing. The same player came right back and netted the ball again on a corner to end the scoring for the period.

Penn pressed strongly at the opening of the third period, but seemed to lack the necessary finish around the net and were unable to score. Cox in the Varsity goal had a couple of narrow escapes, but managed to save on each occasion. There was no score in this period.

Varsity almost scored on their first attack, but Penn saved. The visitors attacked strongly and appeared to have a goal, but it was not allowed. Cox made a smart save off a hot shot from Griffin.

Final score: Varsity 3, Penn State 1.

Line-ups:—

Varsity: Goal, Cox; backs, Ferguson and Hadley; halves, Wilford, King and Jackson; forwards, Evans, Davidson, Withers, Ririe and Downing; subs, Clemens, Shields, West, and Bailey.

Penn State: Goal, Semisch; backs, Cherry and Allen; halves, Rapine, Edgerton and Strimlau; forwards, Jacobson, Griffin, Glasér, Marshall and Lutz.

Referee: Ferry.

tion of these mischievous molecules by chemical means.

Professor Barnes became interested in this work when he happened to be in a situation which enabled him to make a prolonged study of an iceberg. This study convinced him that the greatest enemy of ice was the sun, and he began to wonder if he could not discover some other source of radiation which would have a similar effect. In this direction he has constructed his "Sunrise Lamp."

In regard to prevention of ice-jams on the St. Lawrence River, Professor Barnes is advocating a project which would cause the warm water of Lake Ontario to flow into the St. Lawrence without being subjected to cooling during the passage through the Thousand Islands. He confidently asserts that this would keep a large part of the channel free during December and January, which are the months of greatest congestion.

With the aid of lantern slides and slow motion pictures, the lecturer gave an idea of some of his activities in breaking ice-jams. By means of lowering thermit into the ice and then igniting, great heat is caused, which actually makes the ice explode. Cases were cited in which, by the use of a few hundred pounds of this agent, over a million tons of ice were removed from a jam. Pictures were shown which illustrated its remarkable effect on icebergs.

One of Professor Barnes' greatest achievements was his handling of the terrific jam on the Allegheny River. After military engineers had given up, Professor Barnes came in and relieved the situation in spite of jealous opposition in official quarters. In one case a valuable bridge had been raised 18 inches off its piers by the ice, and engineers asserted that it was doomed. Nevertheless by the judicious use of thermit, Professor Barnes succeeded in lowering the bridge from the ice on to its piers not an eighth of an inch away from its original position.

Slow motion pictures were shown of the action of thermit in a block of ice. The thermit is fired; as the heat increases, a phosphorescent glow suffuses the block of ice; this is followed by an explosion. The lecturer wished to emphasize that thermit is not explosive.

When the lecture was over, the meeting was thrown open for discussion. Some amusement was caused when a lady in the audience asked where the professor "was born and raised." In reply, he stated that he was born in Massachusetts, but came to Canada at the age of six and received his education here. He expressed pride in being a Canadian. A formal vote of thanks was tendered to him, and in reply he implied that there would be further developments this winter in this line of research.

as fast as ever, while, on the showing of Kirkpatrick and Wilton last night, the Blue should have two more men that are quite capable of stopping Warren or Batstone at their best.

And with Wilton well again and with Snyder on the secondary defence, there should not be many runs made through right wing as there were here two weeks ago, nor, with Kirkpatrick in the line-up, are the opposing backs likely to get far if they do. The hockey captain looks like the real find of the season, and just why he did not turn out earlier is one of the mysteries around the University.

In fact, from snap back, the squad appears almost a totally different one than that which McGill upset, and with the Blue almost invariably showing their best brand of football away from home, much is expected by local fandom to-morrow.

a lonely mountain, and there leads a homeless and solitary life until it shall please the gods to remove him.

Sophocles attempts no philosophy of life. In the Oedipus there is a very small field of ideas. It simply shows how a man in the height of his power and innocence of soul may be dashed to the dust. No solution is offered. Oedipus like Job is entirely innocent, and the tragic ending is a reminder of the most universal of all morals, that no one is exempt from suffering.

After the lecture Principal Hutton proposed a vote of thanks to Dr. Livingstone. This concludes the series of six lectures by Dr. Livingstone, who leaves shortly to return to Ireland.

Break In Near Scoreless Game Gives Tricolour 3-0 Victory

Perverse Fate Rules Against Blue

CAUTIOUS GAME

Batstone's Kicking Does Trick

(By N. T. Berry)

Queen's and Varsity battled for fifty minutes without a score in their Senior Intercollegiate fixture at Kingston on Saturday. The break came when the Tricolour scored three points and were awarded the verdict. It was a hard-fought battle and a tough one for the Blue to lose, but the team was in no way to blame. The players gave all they had and played faultless football.

Varsity had a decided edge in the first half of the game, and with any luck at all would have scored enough to win. They were within scoring distance of the Queen's line, but a perverse fate sent Sinclair's punts into touch on the wrong side of the goal-line.

The game was not a brilliant one at all. Both squads played safe, careful football and refused to take chances. They both seemed content to wait for the break, and Queen's got it. During the first quarter, Varsity kicked on the first down on all but three occasions and let Queen's carry the ball. At this style of game they had an edge on the Tricolour notwithstanding the work of Batstone on the Tricolour backfield. When in the second quarter Varsity started an offensive, they forced Queen's back and had them bottled up in their own end of the field, but seemed unable to break through for a score.

One of the features of the game was the faultless work of Trimble and Sinclair on the Varsity backfield. Their catching was errorless and they each made good gains on the attack. Trimble provided the feature play of the game in the second period, when he gathered in one of Batstone's punts and side-stepped his way through a maze of Queen's tacklers for a gain of 35 yards.

Sinclair also provided some fireworks when he tore in to catch one of his own kicks in the first period (Continued on page 4)

HONOUR SCIENCE CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Hear Dr. Craigie Discourse on Spain; Decide Series of Meetings

The first meeting of the Honour Science Club was held in the Chemistry building on Friday last. There was a large number of suspected future inventors and discoverers gathered for a brief hour's respite from their labours.

Fred Giffen, the President, called the meeting to order after an informal repast and proceeded with business matters.

The main feature of the programme was an address by Dr. Craigie on his recent visit to Spain. Dr. Craigie had a number of attractive slides made from photographs taken by himself. He described the world famous Spanish sport, bull fighting, in realistic style.

Speaking of the University of Spain, Dr. Craigie told of lectures that started at 11 p.m., as well as some commencing at 9 a.m.

Up till the present meeting the Honour Science Club has confined its activities to dances. This year it is going to endeavour to have a series of meetings similar to the one held Friday.

Floodlight Planned On Hamilton Speech For Varsity Grits

The University of Toronto Liberal Club will hold its opening meeting on Tuesday evening, October 25th, at 8 o'clock in the Lecture Room, Hart House.

Professor Norman Mackenzie, of the Department of Political Science and Law, will address the members on the policies adhered to by the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen in his Hamilton and Winnipeg speeches. Professor Mackenzie was formerly assistant legal adviser to the League of Nations in Geneva, and is an authority on international law and Imperial relations.

The club is organized primarily for the study and discussion of Canadian political problems. Frequent addresses by outstanding authorities are arranged. The University club participates annually in the inter-Liberal Club debates for the Hon. Nelson Parliament trophy. Membership is open to all interested men of the University on payment of the nominal fee of fifty cents at the first or subsequent meetings.

URGES STUDENTS VISIT MUSEUM

Dr. Parkes Home From Hunting Dinosaurs Near Red Deer, Alberta

ADD MUCH TO COLLECTION

Dr. Parkes, director of the Paleolithic Department of the Royal Ontario Museum, conducted a hunting trip this summer in the Red Deer district of Alberta. Unlike most hunting expeditions, the quarry in this case had been long since defunct. The object of the trip was, of course, to obtain some new specimens for the Paleolithic collection, and the results were satisfactory. The preparation of these new specimens for exhibition will probably take a long time, but in due course they will take their places with the rest of the collection.

During the past year at least three very rare additions to the exhibit have been made. Each one of these is very unique and of great importance. Dr. Parkes stated that details concerning these would involve technicalities which would probably not interest the average reader. However, any person who is interested and who has not visited the museum lately would be well advised to make a point of doing so. The dinosaur collection now ranks as one of the best on the continent, and other departments are of corresponding excellence.

In this regard Dr. Parkes stated that it had always been a matter of surprise to him that the students do not visit the museum more frequently. Improvements and additions are being made all the time, and it is becoming a really fine show place, not only as regards to Dr. Parkes' department, but as a whole. Some do not seem to realize that the museum is an integral and essential part of the University, and as such deserving of their interest. At other universities, such as Harvard, the students take a real pride in showing visitors through their museum. We also should take pride in our museum, he said, and expressed a hope that in the future students would not confine themselves to showing visiting friends around the campus and through part of Hart House, but would also make a point of taking them through the museum.

Due to the fact that the projected widening of Bay Street will necessitate the sacrifice of some of its land, St. Michael's College has purchased from the trustees of the Elmsley estate, 10 Elmsley Place, former home of Sir John Willison; 5 Elmsley Place, occupied by Mrs. Hartley Dewart; 1 Elmsley Place, occupied by Mrs. Mira Elmsley, and 6 Elmsley Place, rented to Mr. Frank Gray. Price paid for the land and 1 and 6 Elmsley Place is $130,375, while the other two houses cost $41,000. The land secured is to be used for a new arts building to be put up by the college.

In this connection it is interesting to note that Mrs. Nina Elmsley has a clause in the agreement for sale of her home, 1 Elmsley Place, that she is to occupy it for the remainder of her life as a tenant. Mrs. Elmsley is 85 years of age.

Incarcerated Residents Throw Quarantine Terrors For Loss; "Unjabbed" Stalk Abroad; Seniors Rejoice

The smallpox epidemic would seem to be definitely over. No new cases were reported at a late hour last night, and no more are expected. The quarantine is still in force, and the residents of the affected residences are enjoying themselves as usual. Telephone enquiries elicited the fact that all were well, and that Cleveland was hard to get on the radio. This may be taken as indicative of quarantine activities. There are, as well, a number of Freshmen of Victoria, hitherto unvaccinated, wandering at large upon the campus, barred from classes, but not extra-mural social activities, and even some Victoria seniors have been released from work for a time by the incarceration in Burwash of a popular Latin instructor.

The present smallpox scare, so the Health Department assures "The Varsity," has been quite free from the ap-

INBORN NATURE LOVE WANTED OF FORESTER

Foresters Are Born, Not Made,
Says Dean to Members at Club Meeting

INAUGURATION NECESSARY

The feature of the first meeting of the Foresters' Club for this term was an address by Dr. Howe, the Honorary President.

Beginning by saying that a forester, like a poet, "is born, not made," and that only those of a certain temperament should enter the calling, the speaker proceeded to name some of the qualities of mind which make for happiness in the life of a forester. These are: "An inborn appreciation of nature in all her forms and moods," "The ability to lead a life of comparative solitude," "Mental resources of one's own applied to some hobby," "The ability to get along with men," "The power of self-adjustment and patience," and "The faculty of imagination."

Dr. Howe concluded his address by calling the attention of the members to the reward which would be theirs if they would cultivate those qualities which he had mentioned.

"What finer and more tangible monument could commemorate a man's life work than a living, productive forest?"

C. H. Bastock, Vice-President, was in the chair, while "Jerry" Andrews wielded the pen. The main items of business dealt with were the appointing of a committee for the annual stunt night early in November and the election of a graduate representative to the club. Mr. J. V. Stewart of this class of '24 was elected to this post.

College Life

The Oratorical Club of St. Michael's College held its initial meeting of the session at the College on Friday, Oct. 21. The membership of the club has been increased from fifteen to twenty, and practically every member was on hand for the opening.

T. E. Mooney, president of the club for 1927-28, in a brief speech welcomed the newcomers and gave an interesting sketch of the history of the club since its inception in 1923.

Maurice King, Vice-President, urged upon the members the value of such an institution, and outlined its position in college life.

Joseph Ord, club Secretary, gave his hearers some "Glimpses of Australia." He compared and contrasted our sister Commonwealth with Canada as to physiography, racial origins and national problems.

George Powers discussed "Initiations." He suggested that the Students' Parliament be made the medium for the close acquaintance between freshmen and seniors which has been lost since initiations have disappeared.

Fr. McCorkell, as faculty representative and critic, congratulated the organization on its inaugural programme and on the service it was rendering its members.

TORY CONVENTION NEXT

The Trinity Literary Institute has proved to itself that its members are determined to experience to the full whatever pleasures the night before may provide, no matter how bitter the disillusionment of the morning after may be. Last Friday night when the speaker announced the result of the vote on the motion brought forward by the government, "That the house would rather experience the effects of the morning after than forego the pleasures of the night before," the affirmative was found to have been supported by a vote of 36-30.

Mr. W. L. Smith led for the government in upholding the motion, and Mr. G. McCullagh led for the opposition in an effort to defeat the government, while over a score of members spoke from the floor on one side or the other. The institute was pleased to welcome to its deliberations Dr. Mercer, Dr. Kinstone, Rev. F. J. Moore and Professor Bladen.

Mr. Smith opened the discussion by showing to the house the superiority of the physical and mental condition of the night before over that of the morning after. He eloquently stated that all great deeds were done in the thrillingly optimistic state of the mid-night hour. Mr. Smith also did something which he later publicly regretted, in quoting Omar Khayam in support of his position.

Mr. McCullagh denied Mr. Smith's arguments in toto and declared that he was going to speak without prejudice, as Mr. Smith had requested but had failed to do himself. He quoted poetry from the time of Omar Khayam to the Champus Cat in showing the strength of his case.

JAVELIN RECORD SMASHED

Fitzpatrick, Mitchell and Graham gather in Wins; Christie
Takes 440

Cold, cloudy weather, with a strong wind blowing down the back stretch, greeted the Varsity track stars last Friday at Kingston. Nevertheless they completely swamped McGill and Queen's. They won most of the points they had banked on and a lot more that came as a complete surprise. Chief among these was McTaggart's record breaking throw in the javelin and Crosby's victory in the discus throw. The final point score was: Varsity 74, McGill 47, Queen's 5.

The first race, the 120 yard hurdles, was a surprise. Big Jim McKenzie was leading Baker of McGill by a very small margin when he struck a hurdle half way down the stretch. Precious time was lost, in which Baker forged ahead. McKenzie almost caught him at the finish. The time of 16 3-5 seconds was 1-5 second slower than McKenzie had done in the Interfaculty meet a week ago.

The next event, the discus throw, was won by Bob Crosby of Victoria College. He won it by two inches only. Incidentally those two inches gave him his first T colour.

The bad track and the cold day prevented Johnny Fitzpatrick from breaking the 100 yards record. Nevertheless, considering conditions, his time of 10 seconds flat was phenomenal. He was away ahead of the field at the finish both in this race and in the 220. Cam Mabey followed him in the 100 yards and Alan Christie in the 220.

"Mo" Mitchell had no trouble whatever in the half mile. He was never headed. In the last lap he pulled away with a 15 yard margin and held it. A surprise came, however, when Jermy, the other Varsity man, drew in on Bobby Thompson of Queen's and passed him 10 yards from the finish.

The pole vaulters had to contend with the strong wind which blew directly in their faces. Consiglio, Crawford and Davenport all missed on three trials at 11 feet 6 inches. On the fourth jump, Davenport cleared with much bouncing around of the bar, Consiglio and Crawford missing. In the jump-off Consiglio managed to defeat Crawford.

The high jump was won at 5 feet 5 inches by Horn of McGill. Jack Marshall of Varsity and Consiglio were then left to battle it out for second place. In doing so they went 5 feet 6 inches—1 inch higher than the (Continued on page 4)

IS VARSITY SPIRIT DEAD OR HIBERNATING?

But forty-five University of Toronto students, two-thirds of whom were women, had the championship aspirations of the Senior Intercollegiate football team sufficiently at heart to take the special train to Kingston to support and vocally aid the Trimbleites in the crisis of the present College rugby season. All told, less than three hundred supporters of the Blue and White were on hand at Queen's to urge the players on in the crucial moments of the game, and to demonstrate to the Blue-clad warriors that it was not for themselves alone but for a united student body that they were playing to bring further athletic laurels to this University.

All of which would serve to indicate that our vaunted Varsity spirit which supports our teams, "win or lose," may be a brilliant subject on which to lightly orate, but which, when it offers a tax to ourselves, is not pleasant nor yet easy to demonstrate.

Whether it be that we have grown too large, too scattered, or suffer from an over-abundance of sports the fact remains that our athletic interests, our hearty co-operation with and interest in our team, is becoming a thing of the distant past. No longer is the cheer leader, at one time as much of a hero on the campus as the gridiron star, greeted with a spontaneous outburst of applause and accorded hearty vocal support. Rather, we rest upon our dignity and smile with calculated coolness which, we fondly hope, denotes experience in the ways of worldly men if some enthusiastic red-blood should actually leap up and bellow forth in stentorian tones, "Come on, Varsity."

Is it that Varsity is losing what was once known as the finest school spirit in the East? We would hope not, and, hoping so, are rather content to believe that the student has forgotten, overlooked the tonic effect of real he-man cheering on tiring players; cheering that sometimes means the difference between victory and defeat.

The Administrative Council and the Athletic Directorate have more than done their share to assist the student body to feel that the team is the students' team. The team is endeavouring to do its best for Varsity, and now, men of the University, there is work for you. Is it necessary to point it further?

THREE CHEERS FOR "THE VARSITY"

For some time past, "The Varsity" has been a source of fuel and information for the downtown press. Facts concerning undergraduate doings have been gleaned therefrom, and passed on to a wider circulation. Even feature articles, figments of the imagination of a member of the staff, have been known to be swallowed wholesale and re-cast for the eye of the general public. We are flattered to believe that the work turned in by "Varsity" reporters, who are usually inexperienced, is considered worthy of a second publication, and would congratulate the student body on receiving news one day earlier than it is given to the rest of the world.

However, it was with some surprise that we discovered, last week, that even our editorial column had become the happy hunting ground of an inveterate seeker for news, with the grace of recognition to us. The third paragraph of an editorial printed on this page last Wednesday morning, appeared, with slight alteration, on the first page of the city section of a morning paper on Thursday.

THE VARSITY

In a recent investigation among the medical schools of America carried on by the Rockefeller Foundation, the Faculty of Medicine of the University of Toronto was placed at the head of all the colleges on the continent. This not only applied to the calibre of the students but to the quality of the equipment and the excellence of the staff. Next in order came Harvard College, Johns Hopkins, and McGill.

We are glad to have University news made public. But, having attained the position of being so widely quoted, we feel that "The Varsity" might be extended the courtesy, if not the legal right, of acknowledgment.

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Theatre

Hart House Theatre will open its ninth season to-night with a colourful production of Molnar's brilliant comedy, "The Swan," a play made popular in America by Eva Le Gallienne and her New York company. Unlike many of the Molnar comedies, "The Swan" combines and reconciles extreme sophistication with a genuine human kindness. The production is the first of Carroll Aikins' series as guest-director, and the settings are by T. Tremaine-Garstang. Among a notably fine cast of proven Hart House favourites are Lorna McLean (Princess Beatrice), Marjorie Vincent (Symphorosa), Archibald Swan (Hyacinth), Josephine Barrington (Alexandra), John Beausire (Dr. Hans Agi), Brendan Mulholland (Prince Albert), Agnes Muldrew (Princess Maria Domenica), Arthur Cox (Count Leutzen), F. J. Mallet (Colonel Wunderlich), H. E. Hitchman (Caesar), H. Dunington-Grubb (Alfred), Margaret Tytler, Margaret Wilson, Agatha Leonard and others. A number of students from Mr. and Mrs. Aikins' pantomime classes are taking minor parts in the production, which gives promise of an amusing and exhilarating evening.

Episode III.

This is the third chapter of the Enlivened History of England.—

Dear Kat:

The Early Saxons were so called to distinguish them from the late Saxons, who had preceded them, and were then dead? History is silent as to the exact date they existed—at least, my History is. Silence is golden.

The Saxon king was named Canute. He was given this name in order to distinguish him from those whose names were otherwise. He was a very conceited man. One day he bet Alfred (who was next in succession) a box of Havannah Cigars that he could stop the tide coming in.

Alfred took him up, and went with him to see fair play. Alfred had the sense to come out when the water reached his beard, but Canute was just drunk enough to be obstinate. And so he stayed where he was and Alfred reigned in his stead, and—there was a new dynasty.

Yours in perpetuum,

John Tiffany.

He had come to a strange city
And had no friends there.

Such household Genii as were permitted

He had set up in a Furnished Room.
In time he knew the way to work,
And all the street car lines,
And the theatres (alone),
And the Bus routes,

And the sizes of the pavement blocks,
Together with the daily papers
That had the best comics,
All this he found out in a month,
But he still had no friends there.

In time, the said Gods that were permitted,

Being Little Gods, and also lonely
For the other Gods which had been left Behind where his house was,

Could no longer keep him.
So he went to the best
Dance dump in the town.

Alone.

For two hours he stood and observed
And so far as he was concerned,
The best dance dump in the town,
Was vacant.

But at last he saw one,
She was also that way,
To all appearances,
Alone.

So he walked up,
With much inward quailing
(Yeh, she knew about the quailing, Women are like that)
And inquired if she ever
Talked to strange men.

The Dental Nurses of 2T8 gave a very successful tea dance on Saturday after the game, at The Five Sisters Tea Room. The lucky number dance was won by Miss Jean Hall, a member of the class of 2T8. Miss Whitehead, Supervisor of Training School for Dental Nurses, acted as patroness. The committee responsible for the dance were Miss Luxton, Miss Dee and Miss Ferguson.

Education is an endless process which has neither a beginning nor an end, according to Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University. He believes the increased strength of resistance is the only difference between the educational status of the child and that of the adult. He also made the statement that "Intelligent occupation itself is as much a part of true educational process as is study in classrooms, in library, and in laboratory."

The mother added: "Such horrifying stories must be kept from young minds."—The book was instantly withdrawn from circulation. More are to follow this into limbo.

As this invitation has, as yet, been practically ignored, we once more wish to call the undergraduates' attention to the fact that constructive criticism will be welcomed at all times either by ourselves or else by Mr. M. The University of Toronto Intercollegiate Tennis team is to be congratulated upon winning the team championship from a field composed of the representatives of four other universities in Montreal last week. The present season marks the first time since 1919 that Varsity has been represented by a team strong enough to gain the title, the Wright-Crocker combination taking the honours to McGill with momentous regularity since 1920.

QUEEN'S BEAT VARSITY 3-0 IN SENIOR RUGBY GAME

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity went down to defeat before the Queen's entry on Saturday, but they were neither outclassed nor disgraced. The Blue team played first-class rugby, and made practically no errors. Also they had Queen's on the defensive for the greater part of the game, but they just seemed to be unable to come through with the necessary punch at the critical moment. On the play as a whole, Queen's had no edge at all, and a lucky break for Varsity would have given them the game just as a break gave it to Queen's. There is no denying that the Tricolour have a strong team, both offensively and defensively, but Varsity looks every bit as good. The two squads meet again Saturday at the Varsity Stadium, and according to all signs the locals should pull out a win.

It is quite possible that last year's situation of a three-cornered tie in the Intercollegiate rugby series will be repeated. For this to happen, Varsity must win both her remaining games and McGill must lose her next two games. It is probable that Varsity will beat Queen's when the two teams meet this week, and on their showing in the last meeting between the teams Queen's should beat McGill. The locals hardest task will be to beat the Red and White in Montreal, but it has been done before, and this year's team is confident that they can turn the trick.

Once again Varsity's superiority in track athletics has been demonstrated. They experienced little difficulty in retaining their laurels in the meet at Kingston, and things look bright for next year. True, several of the old reliables are graduating, but there are some wonderful prospects among the freshmen. Fitzpatrick is only in his first year and will be a consistent winner as long as he is here. At present there is no one in the Intercollegiate who can touch him in the sprints.

Varsity's victory in the Intercollegiate ate tennis tournament broke a string of seven wins for McGill. The championship has been in the Montreal institution since 1920, and Varsity's victory this year is gratifying indeed. It is of interest to note that since tennis was started as an Intercollegiate sport Varsity has held the championship only twice, till this year. McGill has been the champions ten times, while R.M.C. has held the title twice.

The attendance of Varsity supporters at the game in Kingston on Saturday was disappointing, to say the least. Particularly disappointing was the reception given the special train which was run to the game. A few years ago seats on the Kingston special were almost at a premium, but for some reason or other interest seems to be dying. Perhaps a kinder view of the situation is that the student body is becoming richer, and now the undergraduate drives his own car to the games.

France Trimble, the Varsity captain, certainly "came back" on Saturday. He played one of the finest games of his career and compared quite favourably with the perennial Batstone. The Varsity star caught faultlessly and provided the feature play of the afternoon with his 35-yard dash through the Queen's team. He was ably seconded by Jack Sinclair, and the latter held his own with the Queen's star in the kicking. Both the Varsity men showed up well on the defensive, and they were among the best ball carriers on the field.

The Camp Borden team showed unexpected strength in holding Mike Pearson's team to a score of 11-6. After their poor showing against Balmy Beach the Fliers were not rated as being very strong, but they must be reckoned with. At that the Varsity entry must have had an off day. They are more than five points better than Camp Borden, and are given a royal chance to tie Balmy Beach for the league title.

fought race. After a brief rest the School men paddled back to meet Dentistry in the final encounter.

This turned out to be the most gruelling and fastest race of the afternoon. The Dentists broke from the starting line at a fast clip and shot a quarter of a length ahead in the first minute. Rowing at a rate of forty strokes to the minute, they maintained a slight lead up to the half-way mark. Then the School men gradually drew up on their rapidly tiring opponents, and went into the lead with about one minute to go. Dentistry fought hard to hold them and pass them, but the pace set by his stroke was a little too fast for his much less experienced and less rugged mates, and they slowly dropped back to finish a short boat length behind the Engineers. The time for the race was 4 minutes 35 seconds, much the

TENNIS TITLE BACK AFTER SEVEN YEARS VARSITY CHAMPIONS

Nunns and Martin Are Victors Over Wright and McInnery on Montreal Courts

WRIGHT WINS IN SINGLES

McGill Star Retains Singles Championship Over Nunns in Hard Battle

Montreal.—After trying unsuccessfully for seven years, Varsity's tennis team finally succeeded in lifting the Intercollegiate tennis championship, which through the prowess of Jack Wright, Willard Crocker and Charlie Leslie has rested at McGill. Although Jack Wright again captured the singles title, Gilbert Nunns and Walter Martin, youthful Varsity stars, captured the doubles, while Varsity also won the team championship, scoring fourteen points to McGill's seven.

In the singles final Jack Wright defeated Gilbert Nunns 6-2, 6-0, 6-1, but few expected the McGill star to win as easily as he did. He was very steady, and his ground strokes were very accurate. Every department of his game was working to perfection, and his chops, cuts and slices bothered Nunns from the first. The soggy condition of the court also helped Wright's game, as the balls bounced very low and gave Nunns little opportunity to bring his wonderful forehand drive into play. Wright assumed the offensive from the first, and he continually had Nunns on the run. Nunns seemed to have difficulty in handling the McGill star's service, and he repeatedly made errors on return of service. Although Wright certainly played sparkling tennis, in justice to Nunns it must be said that he has played much better tennis than he did on Saturday. His ground strokes, which are usually very steady, became very erratic, and the condition of the courts also hampered his play.

The doubles final, in which Nunns and Martin defeated Wright and McInnery 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, also produced first-class tennis. Although Jack Wright dominated the play with his crisp rallies and spectacular recoveries, the two Toronto lads were not far behind him. Nunns played much better than he did in the singles, while he was well supported by Martin, whose smashing and volleying were never seen to better advantage. McInnery, although he was very nervous at the start, helped Jack Wright considerably, but the McGill flash took care of most of the play. In the third set, which McGill won, Wright was spectacular in the extreme. His net play could not have been better, and single handed he defeated the Varsity pair.

The results of the finals left Varsity far in the lead with 14 points, that is counting one point for each win and two for the finals. McGill were next with 7 points, and Osgoode Hall had 6.

O.R.F.U. TEAM WINS OVER CAMP BORDEN

Varsity Senior O.R.F.U. Team Has Tough Struggle with Airmen

LAST PERIOD THRILLS

Dave Harding's Camp Borden entry all but upset the dope at the Varsity Stadium on Saturday afternoon when the University of Toronto's Senior O.R.F.U. team was extended to win by an 11-6 score. Varsity suffered very much from over-confidence and loose ball handling, while the Airmen were over-anxious and literally fought all the way. The back division of the local team seemed to lack the pep displayed in last week's encounter, although Woods was consistent in his plunging and ball handling. Ault, of the visitors, was the star of the game and thrilled the stands with his catching, running and brainy returns of punts. The Varsity wings were also outstanding, Dunn and Jeffries making beautiful tackles, both on the line and when getting up under McIntyre's long punts.

McIntyre himself, though not getting away as nice punts as a week ago, turned in some nice kicks, including a perfect drop.

Early in the first period Davies, receiving a punt, passed to McIntyre, who went 25 yards. A long punt was annulled by a weak exchange of Davies, but Varsity worked the ball up to the 25 yard line and Woods recovered an onside to dash over the line for the first score. No convert was attempted. Toward the end of the period Kirkpatrick replaced Davies, but his ankle visibly bothered him. Score at quarter: Varsity 5, Camp Borden 0.

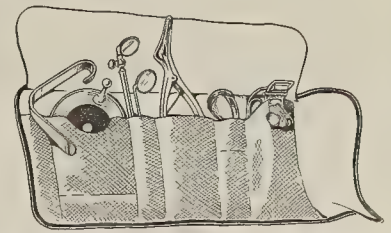

Harding started the second stanza by a 35 yard plunge through centre, and Johnson added 15 more, bringing the play to Varsity's 25 yard line. The fighting Airmen staged a real battle. Harding, Mescampbell, Collins and Reddy bucked the line to Varsity's 45 yard mark. McIntyre fumbled a catch and Johnson dribbled to fall on the ball for a touch, which Harding converted. Score: Camp Borden 6, Varsity 5. Kirkland secured a partially blocked kick 15 yards out, and an attempted onside forced Camp Borden to rouse. Score at half-time: Camp Borden 6, Varsity 6.

The locals entered the next session pepped up. Apparently from a tongue lashing, the Fliers also seemed pepped up. McIntyre recovered a fumble of Davies and kicked, Woods following up to tackle hard. The O.R.F.U. then pulled a neat play twice in a row, snapping the ball on the count four instead of three. It meant 20 yards. Coombes did some nice plunging for the Airmen in this period, as did Scott and Swartman for Varsity. McIntyre made a thrilling 40 yard run through a broken field on receiving a punt from Harding. On a kick, Ault was forced to rouse. Varsity 7, Camp Borden 6.

The last period was the most exciting of the whole game, and hundreds of thrills were crowded into those few minutes, kicks, returns, plunges, runs, fumbles and scraps featuring. An exchange of kicks gave Varsity possession on the Fliers' 50 yard line, and an offside and plunging advanced the ball to the 25 yard line, and McIntyre dropped a perfect field goal. Score: Varsity 10, Camp Borden 6.

Fumbles enhanced the excitement, plunged for yards and also received a penalty. McIntyre made another pretty 35 yard run on receiving a punt, and then kicked to the opponents' 5 yard line. McIntyre fumbled a catch, but no yards given, and ball given to Varsity 20 yards out. More fumbles. Harding and Dunn benched for mixing it. McIntyre made a long return to the dead line for the final score of the game. Varsity 11, Camp Borden 6. The last three minutes saw kick after kick, and as the whistle blew, Gibbs grabbed the ball and made for the showers.

Line-up:—

Camp Borden: Flying wing, Wilson; halves, Harding, Gibbs, Ault; quarter, Johnson; snap, Jamieson; insides, Wheeler, Stroud; middles, Coombes, Collins; outsides, Reddy, Sawyer; subs, Doyle, Mescampbell, McGuire, Allison, Burns, Raynor, Carson.

Varsity: Flying wing, Morgan; halves, McIntyre, Davies, B. Woods; quarter, Beal; snap, Daly; insides, Scott, Gray; middles, Carrick, Swartman; outsides, Dunn, Jeffries; subs, Baillie, Kirkpatrick, Reid, Spencer, Russell, Kirkland, Dunlap, Cartwright, Wesley, Woods.

Officials: Bailey, Moore.

IT ALL DEPENDS WHERE JABING WAS PERPETRATED

Vaccination again! But it was as yet hitting basketball and baseball at Vic. to any great extent. Practically all the players have been vaccinated. Two or three from each team will be in quarantine for two weeks, which is causing a slight inconvenience in regard to practicing. Otherwise practice and game schedule will in no wise be affected, unless too many vaccinations "take." That remains to be seen.

The Sketch Committee has arranged to hold a series of Art classes, as last year, under the direction of Mr. F. S. Haines, the well-known artist.

The classes will take place on Wednesday evening at 7.30 in the Sketch Room. The first will be held on Wednesday, November 2nd.

winning height. On the final height Consiglio struck the bar, but it stayed on; Marshall just touched it and it slid off.

Finlayson, who was expected to win the discus throw, did not even place in the event. He came out later to win the broad jump with a jump of 21 feet 2.34 inches. Before the event he was not conceded a chance of winning it. Once again Willie Consiglio came second. Jim McKenzie was third.

The mile was a shining example of team work between "Mo" Mitchell and Jack Walters. At a given signal, when an opponent would start to lag a little, they would open out a notch. By the final lap they had tailed off all the opposition. The race then resolved itself into a duel between Mitchell and Walters. Mitchell was not for being defeated, however, and at the 220 mark he went after Walters with everything he had. Fifty yards from the finish he passed Walters, and was rapidly pulling away when he hit the tape.

McGill had a big surprise package served to them in the javelin throw. They expected both their men, Poupore and Cummings, to walk away with this event. McTaggart, however, fooled them—and himself—by throwing the javelin 20 feet farther than he ever had before, to smash the old record by many feet. His distance was 165 feet 5 inches.

The half mile was just one big long train with Wally Graham far out in the front. Balmer of McGill challenged him for the first four laps, but Graham, running like a perfectly timed machine, pulled steadily away from then on and finished with a lead of over half a lap. Balmer of McGill was second, with Baldwin of Varsity third. Bobby Thompson of Queen's made a gallant sprint at the finish to try to take third place from Baldwin, but could not make it when Baldwin also started a sprint.

The last race, the 440 yards, was run in semi-darkness, but proved to be the most exciting race of the day. It was learned before the race that Hands of McGill had been training for the event in England and that he was good for 51 seconds. This meant that Christie was going to have a race

ST. MIKE'S SQUAD DOWNS VARSITY INTERMEDIATES

Ragged Exhibition of Rugby Wound Up By Irishmen with 35-12 Score

St. Mike's defeated the Varsity entry in the local Intermediate Intercollegiate group on Saturday by a score of 35 to 12. It was a hard fought battle, and the score is not an indication of the play. The Irish scored most of their lead in the last period, when they annexed 18 points. Up till that time the game had been fairly even.

Burns of St. Mike's provided the feature play of the game when he ran from behind his own line to the other end of the field to score a touch. Sheehan, King and Sammons were outstanding for the Irish, while Johnson was the pick of the Varsity team.

St. Michael's: Flying wing, Walters; halves, Young, Kehoe, Martin; quarter, Culligan; snap, Morin; insides, Sheehan, Sammons; middles, King, Hyde; outsides, Sheehy, Flahiff, subs, Mogan, Riley, Flick, McAlpine, Warren, Denomy.

Varsity II: Flying wing, Monkhouse; halves, Arnold, Johnston, Jackson; quarter, Burgess; snap, F. Kerigin; insides, Ferber, Lamond; middles, Massig, Emerson; outsides, McCulloch, Honey; subs, Layton, W. Kerigin, Johnston, Conn, Purchase, Wolstoff.

Officials: Moore and Prendergast.

on his hands—and what a race it was. At the bang of the gun six men dashed for the first turn to take the lead. Christie, who had drawn an outside position, was forced to the outside at the turn, but coming into the back stretch he closed with the leaders. Hands was not going to let Christie stride, and the two of them sprinted their hardest up the back stretch. Neck and neck they raced, neither able to outdo the other. One hundred yards from the finish Christie gained an inch, then two then a foot—plainly Hands was cracking under the terrific pace. The issue from then on was never in doubt. Christie gained several yards before he reached the finish. That race down the back stretch was the prettiest piece of running seen during the day.

The relay race at half time during the rugby game demonstrated clearly the difference between the teams. In the first leg of the race the McGill man held Fitzpatrick for half of the journey. From then on "Fitz" ran away from his man, to hand a lead of 20 yards to Sandy Somerville. Somerville added almost a similar amount. Mitchell increased this even more in his lap. By the time Christie arrived at the finish the McGill man was just coming into the stretch.

and take the play from Varsity's goal-line in the centre of the field.

Murray Snyder, playing his first game at the quarter-back position, turned in a fine game. He handled the team well, got his plays away in fine style, and showed excellent generalship throughout. The Varsity outsidest got down the field well, and Batstone made few gains of any account.

Batstone and Warren on the Queen's backfield were among the brightest lights of the Tricolour squad. Batstone showed all his old time trickiness and was elusive as ever in the broken field. He kicked well throughout the game, but had very little edge on Sinclair in this respect. Warren was highly touted as a fit running mate for Batstone, but he failed to show anything out of the ordinary. The Queen's pair handled the ball well but were unable to get away with anything sensational.

Howard and Kilgour were the pick of the Queen's linemen. They were good ground gainers and strong defensively. Sutton, the quarter, was a dangerous man at all times, and carried the ball for some nice gains. Of course Walker and Britton were in the limelight through their tackling. They were down on all the kicks, and it was with difficulty that Trimble and Sinclair were able to evade them.

Traynor at flying wing was one of the fastest men on the field. He carried the ball on several extension plays and was a tower of strength defensively. Al Young made some good gains through the line and seems to be regaining his form of last year, when he was one of the stars of the team. Little and Stollery plunged well, and indeed the whole line was far stronger than they were rated by some of the higher critics of the game.

Queen's started off with a rush in the first period and made yards twice. They had Varsity on the defensive till Sinclair dashed up to catch his own kick and put the play in the Queen's end of the field. Varsity were in a scoring position near the end of the quarter, but Sinclair's punts went into touch. Varsity got another chance when Morgan intercepted a pass from Batstone to Warren, but again Varsity was out-lucked and the ball went into touch again.

Batstone pulled a pretty fake kick early in the second frame and made nine yards on it. Varsity was being driven back and had the ball on their own twenty yard line. They started an offensive, and aided by some nice plunges by Little and Sinclair forced Queen's back. Trimble pulled a pretty one at this stage of the game, taking a punt on the dead run and making about twelve yards before being downed. A few minutes later he brought the stands to their feet again with a 35-yard dash through the whole Queen's team.

The third quarter opened with Queen's on the offensive and making yards twice in succession. Howard and Mundell were making some good gains. But Varsity fought back strongly and had any advantage there was till near the end of the period. A snap out at this stage of the game went over Sinclair's head, but he recovered the ball and got his kick away when it looked almost impossible.

Play was even for the first few minutes of the final quarter, and then came the break. Varsity had the ball on their own 15 yard line. Trimble hit the line for 8 yards, and Traynor made 5 more, but the play was called back and Varsity lost 15 more on a penalty. This put them practically on their own goal-line. Batstone tried a kick, and a Varsity man touched the ball in an attempt to block the kick. It was a long, low one and bounded over the Varsity line, where Sinclair was downed for a safety touch. This put new life into the Queen's players, and though Varsity tried gamely they could not get the play out of their own end of the field. The Tricolour secured the ball on a line fumble, and after making yards Batstone kicked for another single point. Trimble made a good try to run it out, but there were too many Queen's men around him.

Line-ups:

Varsity: Flying wing, Traynor; halves, Trimble, Sinclair and Harrison; quarter, Snyder; snap, Keith; insides, Carrick and Bean; middles,

RUGGER SQUAD LOSES TO M'GILL, SATURDAY

Varsity Casualties Numerous in Well Contested Game in Montreal

EAGER FOR RETURN MATCH

In Montreal on Saturday afternoon McGill defeated Varsity at English rugby by 20-0. The high score was really no indication of the game, as Varsity had more of the play than the final result would indicate. An unusual casualty list was an unfortunate feature of the match and was an important factor in the success of the McGill team. The Varsity three-quarter line was under the disadvantage of not having played together before, and in this respect their opponents' line had the edge over them. McGill were playing an extra man in their back division and a seven man scrum, while Varsity during the first half played the ordinary formation of an eight man scrum. During the first fifteen minutes the play was fairly evenly contested, until Varsity had the misfortune to lose their stellar scrum half, Wilson, who had to be carried off the field with a badly injured leg. An energetic forward rush within the Varsity "25" secured the first touchdown for McGill, which was converted. The score at half-time was 10-0 for McGill.

In the second half the McGill three-quarter line were very prominent, pulling off some extended runs. In the line-outs McGill were superior to the Varsity forwards. However, the Varsity forwards played a hard fighting game, and several times only hard luck kept them from scoring.

Though the final score was 20-0 in favour of McGill, Varsity are determined to reverse the tables next Saturday, when the return game is played here. The addition of Johnson to the forward line, and of Baltye, Lee and Somerville to the three-quarter line, will considerably strengthen the team.

Line-up:

VACCINE LURES ALTHOUGH DANGER CONCEDED PAST

Dr. Jackson explained that there are four reasons for the vaccination not "taking." The serum may have been over-sterilized. The doctor making the vaccination may not have stabbed the patient deeply enough. He may have stuck the patient too deeply. And most rarely the patient is "immune" to smallpox.

The number of women students reporting for vaccination without actually being forced to do so is very satisfactory, in the opinion of Dr. Gordon, Medical Advisor for women. Though Vic. students still form the bulk of the visitors to the Medical Officer, the representatives from the other colleges are increasing. St. Mike's, remembering its "scare" of two years ago, has promptly responded to the call of the vaccine. U.C. had very few among the two hundred or so who were vaccinated Wednesday; but on Thursday her representatives increased.

"Try, try again" is the advice of the medical authorities. That it didn't "take" last time is no safeguard. Try again, and if it still does not take, you will have the satisfaction of being positive you are immune; while if it does, you will thank your stars you put your so-called immunity to the test. If you have been in contact with the disease, be vaccinated immediately, even if you were done three months ago.

the balance of the evening were passionate, descriptive and argumentative in turn, but all were interesting. The poetry of Omar Khayyam seemed very familiar to the house, many speakers using him as an argument for or against the motion. While those who had first-hand experience with the most inspiring of the pleasures of the night before seemed to think the night before not worth the trouble of the morning after, such speakers were declared by the government to know nothing of the real pleasures of the night before.

On the next meeting of the house the resolution to be debated is, "That the house considers the recent Liberal Conservative Convention to have been in the best interests of the Liberal party."

CONTROVERSY ON EVOLUTION RAGES FROM BIRMINGHAM TO TEXAS

Dr. Brown Explains It As The Attempt To Reconcile Science and Religion

SCHOLARS ACCEPT THEORY

Almost Certain Proof of Darwin's Theory Is An Established Fact

The old controversy regarding evolution is again laying claim to the public interest. From the standpoint of publicity, Darwin's famous theory reminds one somewhat of a chronic ailment which breaks out violently every now and then, only to subside and lie dormant for a while. Two or three years ago the press was laden with detailed accounts of the prosecution of a young American school teacher who had been accused of teaching evolution in the schools. The matter again came to the fore a few weeks ago when Sir Arthur Keith, famous British authority on this subject, announced that but for a few "missing links," the theory of evolution was an established fact. Now, during the last few days, it crops up as a factor in the statements of Bishop Barnes of Birmingham, which at present are arousing so much comment.

In an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon, Dr. W. T. Brown, Ph.D., of Victoria College, made the following statements in regard to this subject: "The Theory of Evolution is accepted to-day by the scholastic world. Mr. J. A. Thompson says that by evolution is meant that in a natural and noble way we pass from one form of life to another. The biologist has sufficient evidence to show this unity of life, and there is no reason why religion should fail to accept these facts. It is in the interpretation of this evolution that the church is concerned. The materialism that religion combats is that which asserts that the higher can be explained in terms of the lower. To the contrary the religious consciousness has maintained the impossibility of this, and religious thinkers have usually adopted either one of two attitudes. One of these attitudes is that the biological evolution was but a fragment of reality and that the process it dealt with was not a fundamental spiritual process. However, in certain places they have maintained that the higher factors of life involve new creative energies in the form of emergent evolution. Some religious writers see the spiritually important elements preserved. In brief the attitude of the church is an acceptance of the historic process of evolution (Continued on page 4)

Women's Press Club Meets Creative Urge Fondly Fostered

The University Women's Press Club held its first meeting for this year at the Women's Union. Unique in its position of being one of the few undergraduate societies whose membership is open to women of all colleges, the Press Club fosters "the Creative Urge" in would-be writers.

The members are offered an excellent opportunity each year of coming into personal touch with several eminent Canadian writers. Every field of journalistic work is vividly portrayed that the members may choose to which they are best suited.

Half the meetings are given over to original work by the members. Youthful writers are given the opportunity to create, to be criticized, and are advised in a most friendly manner.

The guest of the Club on November 3rd will be a critic on the art of writing one-act plays. All women interested are invited to attend.

Notice

According to an announcement made by the Registrar's office the various calendars of the University are in error in announcing that this year's Thanksgiving holidays are from November 12 to 14 inclusive.

The date, as the Registrar now points out, is from November 5 to 7 inclusive.

ST. MICHAEL'S PARLIAMENT HOLD ANNUAL ELECTIONS

Leaders Advocate Many New Planks in Platforms for Economy

Preliminary to the holding of general elections for the Students' Parliament at St. Michael's College, an open campaign rally was conducted in the College Club Room last night.

Paul Martin, B.A., newly-appointed Governor General, introduced to the gathering his old friend, Mr. Ernest Livermore, a prominent inter-college debater, who explained the fundamentals of parliamentary procedure and contrasted the Canadian system of parliamentary government with Congressional government in the United States.

Vernon Bourke, leader of the Conservative party, made a bid for support on a platform including such planks as the amalgamation of railways for economical operation, abolition of the Old Age Pensions system, and a cafeteria for day students at St. Michael's.

Sheehan, leader of the Nationalists, a party commanding a large body of American students' support, announced his advocacy of Canadian independence, senate abolition, and the providing of well-furnished lounging rooms for day scholars.

George Powers struck the keynote of the "Crusaders" campaign with a breath from Shakespeare: "The time is out of joint, O Cursed spite that ever I was born to get it right!" Individual ownership of homes and industries, rural credits, selective immigration, and a trans-Canada highway are all part of his programme.

Finally Frank MacNamara, Liberal chieftain, sought the support of his fellows on a programme comprising a tariff for prosperity, rural credits, exclusion of objectionable literature and generous treatment for freshmen.

Mr. Maurice Daly, a former stalwart in Students' Parliamentary affairs at St. Michael's, reminisced concerning the older days and predicted a profitable year.

The elections will be held on Thursday, October 27, and the results will be announced at the smoker in Hart House Thursday night.

Hugh Ferguson Addresses Frat. on His Early Journalism

Early experiences in newspaper work were told by Hugh Ferguson, City Editor of "The Globe," as a luncheon meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, Professional Journalistic Fraternity, in Hart House on Friday. Mr. Ferguson spoke words of advice and wisdom to the would-be journalists and suggested that they ever get their copy in early. He also related his first attempt at writing the titles for pictures. There were two cuts of a captive balloon at the fall fair, going up and coming down. The paper appeared with the "Accent and Decent" of the gas-bag.

OUTBREAK OF SMALLPOX IS NOW UNDER CONTROL

Over Five Hundred Students Have Been Vaccinated by the Authorities

The smallpox is over. For a time it seemed to be in a fair way to disorganize the routine of the University. However, the prompt measures taken by the Victoria authorities and the Toronto Health Department have definitely quashed the epidemic. Over one hundred Victoria freshmen have been affected by the quarantine regulations. The six cases of smallpox are in the Isolation Hospital. The one hitherto undiagnosed case is not smallpox. About sixty-five students have been excluded for two weeks from lectures. All possible places that the affected students have possibly come in contact with were thoroughly fumigated last Wednesday and Thursday.

VISITORS FROM SPAIN TO STUDY U. OF T. METHODS

Preliminary to Establishing Modernized University at Madrid

The world-wide fame of the University of Toronto was again demonstrated yesterday when a committee representative of King Alfonso of Spain arrived in the city to investigate the methods of instruction used here. As a matter of course, when the members of the Committee approached the Rockefeller Foundation as to the Universities of the North American Continent with the highest standards, they were referred to the University of Toronto.

The information being collected here is to be used in the conduct of a new university to be founded in Madrid in the not far distant future. This institution is to be incorporated with all of the latest and most advanced ideas in University organization.

"Verbotten" Says Latest By-Law As Abuse of Queen's Park Continues

There are two types of students at Victoria College—those who keep to the paths in Queen's Park, and those who don't. The new regulation passed by the Board of Control, which makes the use of the paths in the park compulsory, has created a new situation. Will the erring student reform his ways and obey the new ruling, or will he harden his heart and pursue his unbending way across the green sward?

"The Varsity" decided to see for itself in what way the Victorians were taking the regulation. In a casual walk from Hart House to the north-east corner of the park, it was observed that about half the students were still using the old short cuts. Many reasons were advanced in extenuation of this apparently lawless conduct. Year after year men and women of Victoria have followed the unbeaten (but now sadly downtrodden) paths, and the habit has become too strong to be casually broken. Those in favour of tradition are up in arms against the ruling, and conservative men are horrified at the idea of such a radical innovation.

Many students have to travel not merely from Victoria College to U.C. but far beyond that venerable pile to the home of history—Baldwin House. For these every yard counts, and any detour is futile to the chances of arriving on time. It has been suggested that the University should provide taxis to carry students between these far distant points; they would not only serve to make punctuality possible, but offer a chance for the belated essay to be completed at the last moment.

The fact that a city by-law forbids the making of unauthorized paths across any park has not daunted the lawless element at Vic. What steps, drastic or otherwise, will be taken to enforce the regulation can only be conjectured. Some of our well-known prophets, however, have advanced ideas that may be put into force. Possibly a barbed wire or electrically charged fence might be erected so as to cut off all the grassy portions of the park. A squad of policemen might be posted at strategic points, equipped with machine guns and instructions to mow down those who ventured across the forbidden territory. Whatever other claims to fame the Centenary Year of the University of Toronto may make, it will certainly go down in history as the occasion when, for the first time, students of Victoria College were not permitted to take short cuts across Queen's Park.

POPULAR DEBATES WILL BE RESUMED

Form of Debating Resembles Style Used in House of Commons

PIONEERED BY TRINITY

"That this House has no confidence in His Majesty's Government at Ottawa," is the motion to be moved by Mr. Andrew of University College and Mr. Lindon Smith of Trinity College, and opposed by Mr. McCullagh of Trinity College and Mr. Daly of Victoria College, at the Hart House debate at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 26, in the Lecture Room.

This should rouse as great enthusiasm as that first Hart House debate in January, 1924, which produced the following press comment: "Humour, satire and ridicule mingled with applause, boing and coughing. In striking contrast to the cold formality of the customary debate, everyone in the audience was intensely, occasionally, vociferously interested. In brief it might have been taken for a scene in the House of Commons." This debate was the result of a growing discontent with the American style of debating contest between picked teams, often with a professional coach and a training table, arguing a laboriously prepared case with the help of a huge card index before three judges who were to give marks for each speech, 40 per cent. for style and 60 per cent. for matter.

This discontent was crystallized by the visit of a debating team from the Oxford Union Society in October, 1923. In contrast to the learned discourses of the Toronto debaters anxious to pile up arguments before the judges was the sparkling wit of the Oxford men determined to charm and convince the audience—and incidentally the judges. Parliamentary debating, where one may sway an emotional House to vote for a motion which it will regret the morning after, was practised on a small scale in some of the colleges, notably Trinity. In January, 1924, it started on a University scale in Hart House. The result has been encouraging, many universities in the U.S.A. being interested in the development.

The old, one might call it athletic, contest has almost disappeared. The University of Toronto has withdrawn from the Debating Union, and instead it is hoped to arrange for visits from McGill and Queen's to a Hart House debate. When they come they will not debate as a team; there will be no question of championship; but they will speak one on each side of the motion, as when one Toronto and one Minnesota debater last year moved, "that the influence of the United States has increased, is increasing, and ought to be diminished," and was opposed by two other gentlemen, one from Toronto and the other from Minnesota. The third visitor from the University of Minnesota spoke later in the evening from the floor of the House.

Two points are emphasized: first, any member of Hart House may attend and has an equal chance of speaking from the floor of the House. Those wishing to speak should sit near the front of the House, where the Speaker is likely to notice them (Continued on page 4)

Wrote Many Papers Recording Experimental Observations on Wide Range of Subjects

ARRANGEMENTS COMPLETE

Had An Intimate Knowledge of Languages and Literature of East

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the great French chemist, Marcelin Berthelot, is to be celebrated at the University of Toronto to-day.

Berthelot's fame rests chiefly upon the numerous original contributions which he made to several important departments of the science of chemistry. The papers recording his experimental observations number more than one thousand, the first one appearing in 1850, the last one being published in March of 1907, the month of his death. These researches cover a wide range of chemical problems, in many branches of the science.

At the time that Berthelot commenced his scientific career, chemistry was just emerging from that period when the belief was generally entertained that the carbon compounds occurring in the plant and animal worlds had been produced in living organisms by the intervention of a "life force," and that it would be found impossible to synthesize them in the laboratory by the ordinary methods of the chemist. The laws governing the formation of these compounds and their transformations within the living organism were believed to be quite different from those controlling chemical change in the non-living or inorganic world. Berthelot's early work, in which he succeeded in building up many typical animal and plant compounds by purely laboratory methods, played a very important part in dispelling erroneous speculations regarding the compounds of living organisms, and along with the researches of chemists in other countries on the continent, as well as in England, opened up the great field of synthesis of plant and animal compounds, which subsequently received, in the laboratories (Continued on page 4)

PROFESSOR YOUNG INVITED TO ADDRESS CONVENTION

Will Speak to Agents of Steel Manufacturers from the Entire Continent

Pinehurst, N.C., Oct. 23.—C. R. Young, Professor of Structural Engineering at the University of Toronto, will be one of the speakers at the fifth annual convention of the American Institute of Steel Construction which opens here to-day. Professor Young will report on his recent exhaustive study of the tensile working stress of rivets, the results of which are expected to amplify to a considerable extent present knowledge of this factor in steel construction.

Although he cannot attend the convention in person, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will speak at the opening luncheon through the medium of the talking machine. Sitting in his office in Washington a few days ago, Mr. Hoover delivered his address into a recording microphone, and it has now been reproduced by the Victor Talking Machine Company on a series of records.

The convention will be attended by structural steel fabricators and rolling mill representatives from all parts of Canada and the United States, as the Institute membership represents more than 90 per cent. of the total structural steel output in North America exclusive of the mill production.

WHEN THE BURSAR COLLECTS FOR THE UNIVERSITY PRESS

The advantages which accrue to a university in the possession of a printing establishment which is entirely under its own control are obvious enough to require no comment from us; and their value is increased when the establishment is as extensive and as well-equipped as is the University of Toronto Press. Not only does the officialdom of the University, through its various departments, avail itself of the Press to the full, but undergraduate societies, as is natural, have made wide use of the facilities it affords. This latter aspect of the work of the Press is surely one which it is desirable to foster. Nevertheless it is undoubtedly a fact that the continuance of student patronage of the University's printing shop is being very seriously threatened by an abuse which has grown up within the University's official organization: namely, that the Bursar's office, whose duty it is to collect for bills incurred at the Press, is in the habit of confusing this duty with its academic function: that is, of using its academic power as a club to compel the immediate payment of accounts which have not the slightest connection with academic work.

Let us illustrate by a concrete example. One week before the publication of the examination results of the Fourth Year in Arts last June, a member of that year, who had served during the session as chief executive of one of the principal undergraduate organizations in the University, received a message from the Bursar's office to the effect that a bill incurred by his organization for the printing of dance programmes, and amounting to about six dollars, had not been paid. He was further informed that, if it was not paid within a very few days, his own examination results would not be published. The student in question knew nothing about the offending account: he had not been a member of the committee which managed the dance, and had handled none of the bills connected with it. But, for the Bursar, he was the titular head of the organization, and so he was "the goat." The student felt naturally aggrieved; but while he doubted the Bursar's power to put his threat into effect, he could not afford to run the risk. He wrote the chairman of the dilatory committee, at the same time informing the Bursar where the responsibility lay. As a result, the bill was paid within the next few days, and in due course the threatened student learned that he, among others, had obtained first class honours.

The threat, though not in this case put into effect, is interesting. Where is the connection between an organization's printing bill and the academic standing of the organization's president? What right has an official of the University to confuse the two? We seek the answers in vain. And this is not a unique case. We could quote a number of similar ones. This may be an effective method of collection, but the principle of equity seems notably lacking in it. We hold no brief for those who do not pay their bills promptly; but tardiness does not excuse the use of entirely illegitimate coercion in collection. The fact that the student on whom the coercion is exercised has in many cases no responsibility for the existing state of affairs serves to aggravate the injustice.

Why the executives of student organizations should be persecuted merely because they have chosen to patronize the University Press instead of an outside establishment, it is difficult to see. No downtown printing shop could use such procedure in collecting accounts. The ordinary commercial establishment does not dare to venture on intimidation in these matters. Why should the University enjoy a larger license? It is time that the Bursar's officials separated their business duties from their academic responsibilities. The mixture of the two is unpardonable. Moreover, as we have indicated, it threatens the student clientele of the Press. Under existing circumstances, undergraduates, knowing they can go to a downtown printing shop without fear of the consequences which seem frequently to follow dealings with our own, will scarcely continue to patronize the University of Toronto Press. Why should they?

Art, Music and Drama

Hart House Theatre

The first presentation of the Hart House season, Terence Molnar's comedy, "The Swan," was given under the direction of Mr. Carroll Aikins, and after careful consideration of the play, one might safely pass the judgment that it was an ambitious undertaking for a director's initial production. Whatever one may think of Molnar's play itself, Mr. Aikins must be congratulated for an entirely successful presentation, not only for the careful and colourful pageantry of the scenes but for the obvious meticulous care apparent even in the minor details of the production.

"The Swan" is a curious play, and one which at times makes the reviewer feel that Molnar himself was not sure of its denouement, nor of the ultimate effect which he wished to create. Certainly in the latter part of the last act he contradicts himself in two important consecutive speeches. Briefly, the play is a revelation of the making of history, the intrigue in an Austrian court circle where an ambitious semi-royal mother of the Queen Marie type attempts to and succeeds in allying her family with the Crown Prince of the reigning dynasty. In order that her daughter may some day be Queen, many unpleasant things must happen, and the bitterness of reality must be left stencilled on the minds of the spectators. The Swan is the daughter, a princess whose ultimate joy is a mere coronation, rather than the realization of love's glorious fulfillment. In the course of the play the ambitious mother, strongly played by Lorna McLean, is forced for reasons of state to break the heart of a most admirable young poet who is the tutor of the royal princelings. One cannot help feeling sorry for the young man, but then, as Molnar deftly explains, such things are a matter of course in the making of history.

The writing of the first act deserves almost all the condemnatory adjectives that one may apply. It is very slow as exposition, quite inconsequential in content, and has a faint sparkle reminiscent of Molnar's dramatic lady-fingers exhibited in the windows of "Vanity Fair." The first act as expository drama is futile and brilliant, but in the second the playwright atones fully for the first, and as a climax to the most uncomfortable dinner party achieves one of the most effective "curtains" imaginable when the Swan kisses her tutor-admirer and perfectly defeats the insulting efforts of the Crown Prince. The last act is very brilliant and bitter, and the ending is quite far from what Shaw terms "the reach-me-down conclusions of sentimentality." The denouement is bitter because it is reality, and presents a very strange contrast with the light artificiality of the opening.

The best acting of the evening was that of Archibald Swan as Father Hyacinth, a nobleman turned ecclesiastic, who offers sincere if at times amusing spiritual comfort to the victim and victors in the royal marriage conspiracy. There was a decided priestly mellowness in Father Hyacinth as Mr. Swan portrayed him. John Beausire as the tutor handled a thankless and stiff role with great dexterity; Miss Agnes Muldrew as Princess Dominica was very modern and clever, and beautifully shocked the audience with the most sprightly double-barrelled oath heard on any stage since Shaw's famous "Not bloody likely!" H. E. Hitchman, as Caesar, the most conscientious and worried of chief stewards, had a part which fitted his unctuous talent like a glove. Space precludes mention of the other players' merit, but they have given us much to hope for in their future efforts under Mr. Aikins' able supervision.

Sunday Evening Concert

The series of eight Sunday Evening Concerts to be given throughout the winter will begin on Thursday next, 30th October, when the well-known Hart House Quartet will give the opening concert. There has never been a year in the history of Hart House when there was a more interesting musical programme in view for these concerts. Among those already arranged is that to be given by the Music Makers under the direction of Mr. J. Campbell McInnes. This group of songsters derived their name at the first French-Canadian Folk Song Handicraft Festival held at Quebec last May. They also gave a command at Government House, Ottawa, before the Prince of Wales and Mr. Baldwin during their recent visit. The third concert is to be given by Mr. Stupin, the famous 'cellist. Other interesting concerts have been arranged after Christmas.

Tickets will be allotted as in past years to Faculties and Colleges on the basis of their registration. Information for the benefit of representatives calling for tickets is given elsewhere in this issue.

The Music Committee has arranged for the usual series of Friday Afternoon Recitals to begin on Friday next. These recitals are held at 5 p.m. in the Music Room of Hart House, and are for members of Hart House only. This year the Committee is fortunate in having a long list of prominent musicians who are prepared to offer their services. The members are under a great debt of gratitude to the artists who come to Hart House week by week without any remuneration and give these recitals which are now a well-known feature in the musical life of the House.

The first recital will be given by Miss Florence Singer, the prominent pianist. Members are informed that they will find the programmes for these recitals in "The Varsity" on the Thursday preceding the concert.

Here is a shining example of how to cool off the poor frosh, and we hope that they will not hate us if we print so good a joke on them. Up beside 75 Queen's Park where lives D. K., the Secretary of the Reprobates Club (formerly of Knox College), several poor obnoxious frosh were called out from quarantine by D. K. and his minions. The frosh were asked to pose for a few snapshots (and then told that their pictures would appear in Monday's "Varsity"). D. K. took six pictures of them on an empty camera, and while the frosh were posing, with happy smiles, another bright spirit emptied a jugful of cold water out of a window over them. We learn from the drowned and chastened frosh that they think that four fellows like D. K. could stand on one another's shoulders, with the top man waving a flagpole, and then have plenty of room to walk under a worm.

TICKETS FOR THE QUEEN'S GAME GO ON SALE THIS MORNING

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Tickets for the annual Queen's-Varsity rugby game go on sale this morning at the Athletic Office. These tickets will be sold to students of the second and higher years on presentation of their registration cards. No tickets will be sold to members of the first year men, and everyone had an opportunity to secure these Routers' tickets at the first of the season.

Despite the fact that Varsity can only get into a tie for the Intercollegiate rugby title by winning their next two games and by McGill losing their next two, there should be a capacity crowd at the Stadium on Saturday. Queen's have always drawn a big gate at every appearance in Toronto, and this year should be no exception to the rule. They have a good team this year, and the famous Batstone is going great guns. He has an able partner in Warren, and they handle the ball in a style that is comparable to the famous Leadley-Batstone combination of a few years ago. Warren was one of the stars against McGill, but on Saturday he failed to show much out of the ordinary. However, Batstone himself made very few hair-raising plays due to the tackling of the Varsity outsiders.

Varsity Juniors Favourites at Guelph on Wednesday

Varsity juniors will jaunt down to Guelph on Wednesday for an Intercollegiate fixture with the O.A.C. team and the result looks evident before the game, as the last tussle between these twelve was a clear and decisive victory for the Blues. The juniors as usual have a smart team that looks to be well set for the junior title. The team is made up entirely of freshmen with a number of likely looking players that with a little seasoning will make a strong addition to the Varsity teams of the future. Art Squires on the half line is a treat to watch, while Woods at quarter is in a class by himself. The "kids" have two smart tacklers in Winneck and Kirk, with the rest of the team all above the ordinary run of junior men. It looks like another championship for Varsity.

Strenuous Soccer Game Ends Scoreless Tie, Crusoe Stars

Yesterday the front campus saw a strenuous soccer game between St. Michael's and Wycliffe. The Saints are reckoned the weaker brethren of the league, and though they played a man short, their determination and hard work made up for their lack of skill. The game resulted in a scoreless tie. Crusoe, the Saints' goalie, was the individual star.

The attention of students is called to the fact that there are still a number of tickets for sale for the series of Hart House String Quartet concerts.

Although one concert has already taken place, there are still four to be given, and even by paying the original price of $1 the student is able to hear the famous Quartet for the very small fee of 25c a concert.

The first basketball practice of the season was held last night at Hart House. The Seniors have suffered heavily from graduation and the inroads of the eligibility rule. Harry Snyderman and McGillivray are back at Varsity, but they will not be able to play. In fact, the only one left of last year's outfit is Roy Currie, who is captain for this season. However, there is a wealth of new material available, and the squad should be up to the high standard of past years. Last year's juniors are almost all available, and they should round out a strong squad. It is still far too early to make any predictions regarding the personnel of the team, but it is safe to say that it will be a strong one and worthy of the support of the entire student body.

It is none too early to say that a new policy will be inaugurated this year in basketball circles. Plans are already on foot to bring some strong American teams here for exhibition games. The Varsity senior team has made a trip to several American cities in past years, and gained much valuable experience through these games. It is proposed to bring some of these teams to Toronto during this winter, and all that is needed to make the venture a success is the active co-operation of everyone interested in basketball.

The Mulock Cup series is well under way, and there are some close races in the various groups. There are thirteen teams in all in the hunt for the honours this season, and up to the present they all appear to have a chance. The following is the standing to date:

RIFLE MEET FRIDAY AT LONG BRANCH

Intercollegiate and Interfaculty Tournaments Will Take Place

TORONTO DEFENDS TROPHY

The annual Canadian Intercollegiate and Interfaculty rifle matches will be shot on the Long Branch Rifle Ranges, Friday, October 28th, beginning at 9 a.m. and continuing throughout the day.

If you are not a member of the U. of T. Rifle Association you can join at the range on day of the match.

The trophy was won by the Toronto team last year and will remain if you rifle shots will only turn out and do your share. The teams are not chosen previous to the match, but from the highest scores during the day. The U. of T. Intercollegiate team will be those eight men with the highest scores. In case of a tie C.I.R.A. rules are to govern. The Interfaculty team is chosen as above, there being five members on it.

For the highest score in the Intercollegiate match there is a gold medal, the remaining seven members of the team each receiving a beautiful silver medal. Those men on the winning Interfaculty team, besides winning the De Sury Shield, will receive bronze medals.

There will be money prizes for the Extra Series at each of the following ranges: 200, 500 and 600 yards, and the O.R.A. silver medal for the Extra Series aggregate.

Come on out and enjoy a good day of target shooting.

Senior U.C. Amphibians to Surprise Victory in Water Polo

Senior U.C. water polo team sprung a surprise by defeating the strong Senior School team 1-0. The play was very equal, Baker scoring the lone tally in the last quarter. Dave Walker in goal for U.C. showed a fine grain of sportsmanship in correcting one of the referee's decisions from a favourable to an unfavourable one.

The teams were: Senior School: Goss, Bullen, McCarthy, Irwin, Farah, Thwaites, Scarth, Howard.

Senior Arts: Thompson, Jennings, Baker, D. Walker, J. Walker, Graham, Maconachie, Poyntz.

Trinity and Pharmacy soccer teams played their first game on Monday. The score was 3-2 in favour of Trinity. Trinity won the toss and chose to play with the wind. They scored three goals in the first fifteen minutes. The next half Pharmacy, having the wind, had the advantage of the play, and after repeated tries scored once, then again on a penalty. J. Wright of Trinity scored two goals, Hudson one. Hyne and Sackville scored for Pharmacy.

Graduate Students' Tea a Very Decided Success

The first tea of the Graduate Students of the University of Toronto was held in the Graduates' Common Room yesterday afternoon and proved a decided success. Mrs. Brett received the many guests, while Mrs. Deacon and Mrs. McMurrich poured tea. Prominent among the guests were Sir Robert Falconer and Miss MacKenzie, Secretary of the Graduate studies.

DOOM IS SOUNDED FOR COLLEGE HOCKEY

McGill Now Entered in Senior Group of Q.A.H.A.

QUEEN'S WISH TO BREAK

The following article, which speaks for itself, is taken from the McGill Daily of last week. It appeared under the heading, "College Hockey Break-up Seems to be Inevitable."

"Intercollegiate hockey is apparently a thing of the past. Well-founded rumours were prevalent around the University yesterday to the effect that the Intercollegiate hockey league would be broken up officially within the next few days with McGill entering the Q.A.H.A. and possibly an American College loop, while Queen's turned to the O.H.A., and Toronto did likewise. If Intercollegiate hockey does remain, it may be with only the second teams of the three universities."

"The difficulties have arisen over the one-player, one-sport rule passed by the Intercollegiate Athletic Union last spring, a rule which limits a student to one major sport in Intercollegiate athletics. Rugby has attracted the majority of the hockey players of the three universities already, so that unless the new rule is revoked, only second-string teams will be able to play hockey in the Intercollegiate Union. McGill has the following hockey stars in rugby: St. Germain, Tremaine, Bazin, Lovering, Brown, Frack, White and Kristwiser, their entire team as it appears at present.

"For some time it has been known, though never officially admitted, that there is a strong tendency in favour of abandoning the Intercollegiate Hockey Union, but none of the universities desired to take the first step. When the one-player, one-sport rule was adopted, it was recognized by many as the thin edge of the wedge, a diplomatic move, which would enable the colleges to state that they could not produce a first-string hockey machine as their stars were ineligible through having played rugby."

"Playing Intercollegiate rugby would not bar these players from competing for their respective colleges in hockey in other leagues than Intercollegiate. McGill is already entered in the Senior Group of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association. It is well known that Queen's would like to break from the Intercollegiate and play in the O.H.A. Varsity's position is not so well known in the matter, though there have been statements in favour of such a move from Toronto officials."

"At the back of it all is the poor support university hockey has experienced since pre-war years, especially at McGill and Queen's. Besides the heavy financial loss entailed, there has been little demand for hockey on the part of the followers of athletics at the universities, Toronto being the sole exception, though their support has not been of the best always."

"McGill has lost heavily financially in recent years, gate receipts being practically nil after rink and ticket expenses were deducted and with long trips involved, the strain has been severe."

U.C. Water Polo

The U.C. water polo teams will practice at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday of this week. Newcomers welcome.

Claims Teachers Are Born, Not Made

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As a student fresh from the humbling experience of trying to teach for the first time, I have learned a new aspect for the thankless efforts of the poor pedagog, which leads me to most emphatically deplore a recent letter which appeared in your columns under the heading, "Do professors earn their money?"

Your correspondent (W.V.R.) complains in a general way that lecturers are unable to communicate their enthusiasm—which he attributes (over-hastily, I think) to lack of preparation. He concedes that it would be "unfair to demand that a professor be a Demosthenes" but urges that "at least he should speak clearly and consecutively." In addition he has some rather ungracious scorn for the timid-voiced domineer who coverts in vain the lungs of a drill sergeant.

W.V.R. seems to believe that all professors could be interesting and coherent if they wished and only perverse laziness stands between them and the realization of his ideal.

The truth of the matter is—as those of us who have tried it can testify—that teachers are "born and not made."

The best intentions in the world, coupled with the most thorough study of methods, can never supply the lack of that indefinable "teaching instinct." The communication of ideas is an art which requires the highest form of genius. As a student of Literature, W.V.R. must be familiar with the recurrent despair of the poets when their Muses play them false. You have only to set pen to paper to realize how peridious the Muses can be. No amount of zeal will capture inspiration, yet the weary professor is expected to capture and deliver it according to a daily schedule, print an outline of it for the "Varsity" Editor, present it "clearly and consecutively" (often for unwilling ears) and enunciate plainly. (No excuse for obtuseness—"time out" for that one—when five minutes daily practice with Demosthenes Gravel-Gargle is guaranteed to cure the most stubborn hairlip, tisp or stammer. (Adv)

W.V.R. sighs for an imaginary Mediaeval Tutorial system, under which a disgruntled student had

DIVING BOARDS ARE SHIFTED IN HART HOUSE TANK

To ensure that divers of the University of Toronto would not have to use equipment to which they were unaccustomed at swimming meets elsewhere, and to suit the convenience of visiting swimmers, the diving-boards in the Hart House swimming pool have been re-arranged. Mr. W. W. Winterburn yesterday explained that it is impossible to tell when a diver of Olympic calibre may be developed here, and it had been considered wise by the Swimming Club, after the two low boards had been broken, to change all equipment to the standard heights.

The high board, which formerly was thirteen feet above the water, has been lowered to ten. This is the standard height. At the same time the two low boards at the east end of the pool, one of which was broken last year by Gibbons of McGill in a meet, and the other by a University College diver, have been replaced by one low board at the west end. This change leaves a large vacant space at the other end for seats for spectators at polo games and meets. The change was made primarily in the interests of the margin of safety afforded by the extra foot of water at the west end. The board has been placed in the centre of the end, and in no way interferes with the net for the water polo.

merely to discharge his mentor, and hire another of the calibre say of Adam Smith. He forgets that Adam Smith, always with his shrewd eye upon demand and supply, would most certainly "raise the ante." Perhaps the solution of all your correspondent's worries lies in that suggestion. If raising the salary-level fails, I can only advise W.V.R. to address an open letter to God, asking Him to kindly rearrange the heavenly economy so that knowledge will only be entrusted to those who are able to communicate it painlessly, as per sample (Adam Smith). Meanwhile W.V.R. might lend a more charitable ear to those modern martyrs whose only reward for their best efforts is reproach and contumely; for, as my old friend Portia would say: "If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches and poor men's cottages princes' palaces."

Yours for the olive branch,
N. R. Speirs.

Menorah Society Holds Study Group, Followed by Discussion

"The Menorah field is Jewish life and thought—past, present and future," said Miss Freda Schliser at the first Menorah study group held at her home, 223 Geoffrey Street, on Saturday, October 22. She read a paper on "The History of Menorah," which was followed by discussion. It was obvious that a lively interest is taken in the Menorah Society, since a great many members were present at this group. Freshmen were made very welcome and introduced to the more eminent members of the organization. After tea, the executive retired to the upper stories to discuss the coming meeting, which will be held to-day. Bridge and dancing brought the afternoon to a close.

Mr. Donald Heins Will Give Violin Recital Thursday Eve.

An interesting event which is to take place in the Conservatory Concert Hall this week is the violin recital, Thursday evening, at 8:30, by Mr. Donald Heins, assisted at the piano-forte by Miss Ethel Dawson.

Mr. Heins is one of the senior professors of the Conservatory, having come to this city last September from Ottawa after resigning the conductorship of the Ottawa Symphony Orchestra, which he founded and conducted for twenty-five years. Mr. Heins is a distinct acquisition to the musical life of Toronto, and his recital on October 27 will be one of the outstanding musical events of the local musical season. Tickets are by invitation.

PRESENT UNIQUE PLAY AT PLAYERS' GUILD

Struggle Between Modern Girl and Old-fashioned Mother is Depicted

"Can you make head or tail of this?" came the query in the middle. "My word! Isn't it peculiar?" came the exclamation at the end. Such was the general feeling concerning "The Conflict" as presented for the Players' Guild Wednesday by Miss Marjorie Eoll. The presentation was rather slow in action and involved in detail in the first part, merging into an extreme case of melodrama in the last. The roles were taken very ably by Misses Eoll, Brown and Crowe, and Mr. Burton. The heroine especially portrayed a difficult part with great success.

"The Conflict," written by Miss MacCaulay, is the story of a struggle between wills—the will of a mother who believes in the apron-string method of bringing up children, and that of a daughter, whose modern ideas drive her to making her own life as she wants it. Emily, the daughter, beseeches her mother to see that she cannot always be "ordering the lives of her children," but "Mother" has absolute faith in her own ideas regarding those lives. She fails to "individualize" her children. To her, the one solution for all troubles is to stay home on the farm.

"Belief is the very life of love," according to Emily. Through mistrust, her mother drives her to the very future from which Emily's own common sense was directing her.

throughout the world, an amazing development, not only important from a scientific viewpoint, but giving rise to such a striking industrial development, especially in the manufacture of plant dyestuffs and drugs of great therapeutic value, as to constitute one of the most romantic chapters in the whole history of science.

Berthelot's intensely active mind and constructive imagination carried him into the most remote and widely separated corners of the science of chemistry, his resourcefulness as an investigator enabled him to overcome the experimental difficulties connected with these varied problems, while an extraordinary faculty for generalization led him to perceive the significance and general bearing of the results of his quantitative measurements. A man with such a mental endowment always, sooner or later, breaks the natural confines of his special sphere of work, and reaches out to feel, with the mind and imagination, the truth lying back of scientific observation. It is not surprising, therefore, to find Berthelot, the philosopher, writing articles bearing the titles "Science and Philosophy," "Science and Education." Nor is it surprising that a strong friendship existed between Berthelot and the great philosopher Renan. The letters of Renan to Berthelot indicate the profound influence which these powerful minds exerted upon each other, and no adequate estimate of the character and work of either Renan or Berthelot is possible without an intimate knowledge of this lifelong relationship.

Like so many eminent scientists of Europe, Berthelot possessed a broadly cultivated mind, embracing, in his case, an intimate knowledge of the languages and literatures of the East. This enabled him to delve into the original records in Latin, Greek and Arabic of the early alchemists, and led to a comprehensive history of the origins of alchemy, of the Greek alchemists prior to the tenth century, and of the chemistry of the ancient middle ages.

It is meet and proper then, that the memory of so versatile and at the same time so profound a man, who has left so deep a mark upon the science, literature, history, philosophy, and government of his time should be honoured by the universities and learned societies of the world. The University of Toronto invites the public to join this evening at eight o'clock in Convocation Hall in the celebration of the centenary of this great man, Marcelin Berthelot.

C-C

Every so often something happens to make us think that our existence is justifiable, and one of the best of these "somethings" is a letter we received on Sunday evening. It isn't exactly a contribution, and the Editor won't let us put it in "Letters to the Editor," because he is jealous of us. So we'll have to print the letter here, and we are glad to, because it rings with 18-karat honesty:

Dear Cat,

She who condemns you tosses her head up in the attitude of the student of astronomy, and with a disgusted shrug, sniffs (not snuff): "What nonsense!" It is beneath her dignity even to glance at you, dear Cat, and when peals of laughter over you greet her ears, her face takes on the expression of one suffering from indigestion or tight shoes. But bear up, for the wrath of this prim lady is overcome by many of us who regard you with enjoyment and delight. "What nonsense!" Yes, of course, but what delightful nonsense, and how delicious to be able to smile and laugh over you—Good old Champus Cat!

THE GORILLA—VICTORIA

"The Gorilla," presented this week at the Victoria by the Malcolm Fossett Players, adds another mystery-monster to the dramatic zoo of which "The Bat" and "The Cat and the Canary" are already established members. Judged by responses from the audience, it is a hair-raising, scream-producing melodrama, 100 per cent. efficient. The mîlée takes place in a long-deserted house on Long Island which is now being occupied by Cyrus Stevens and his niece, Alice Denby. A warning from The Gorilla, a notorious criminal, is sent to Cyrus Stevens, played by Gilbert Douglas, who thereupon engages the services of two hard-boiled, wise-cracking detectives, Mulligan and Garrity. Following is a series of Houdini disappearance acts with a gorilla thrown in to make it hard. Malcolm Fossett as Arthur Marsden, an unpublished playwright and friend of Miss Denby's, volunteers amateur assistance which turns out to be the professional services of a famous detective. Samuel Godfrey does a delightful bit of pantomime as the newspaper reporter, Simmons. The proper atmosphere is provided by the usual terrified coloured servant, played by Helen Gilmore. The whole thing descends to the ridiculous when the actors step over the bounds of credibility and the footlights and pursue the errant gorilla through the theatre. The play ends with a somewhat apologetic denouement. However, as an evening's entertainment "The Gorilla" is quite adequate.

but not of the interpretation of it.' Dr. Brown went on to point out that the problem is to unite two different points of consciousness. From a philosophic point of view the interest is in a controversy between science and religion. Does science cover the whole field of knowledge and exhaust the realm of the unknown? Religion maintains that it does not. Just as a thorough knowledge of English grammar does not necessarily mean a complete appreciation of English literature and the language as a whole, so there is a reality in evolution with which science does not deal. In conclusion Dr. Brown stated that all study of origin does not explain the existent being.

We feel that we are indebted to Dr. Brown for a very brief but lucid exposition of a rather difficult controversial subject.

QUALITY OF SERUM PROVEN VACCINATIONS SUCCESSFUL

The vaccine is good. Such is the verdict of Dr. Gordon, Medical Advisor of Women. The vaccination appears to have taken in most cases—in all, as far as the patients have reported at the Medical Office, but it has taken in a gentle, civilized sort of way, and there has been no sickness resulting. A few who are being initiated into the "Order of the Vaccine" believe their arms to be immovable, two hours or so afterwards, but their imaginations are exceptionally good.

Women students are still wandering into the office to be vaccinated, but there is no longer a waiting list. Six were done Tuesday morning.

LACK OF CONFIDENCE MOTION TO BE MOVED IN DEBATE TO-NIGHT

Parliamentary Debate to be Held in Hart House Promises Plenty of Discussion

TELLER SYSTEM USED

Many Budding Orators Expected to Make Maiden Speeches

The first of the Hart House Debates will be held to-night in the Lecture Room at 8 o'clock. The motion is, "That this House has no confidence in His Majesty's Government at Ottawa." The speakers on the paper are: For the motion, Mr. M. W. Andrew and Mr. W. L. Smith; and against the motion, Mr. D. G. McCullagh and Mr. F. St. L. Daly. It is hoped, and expected, that many new speakers will be heard from the floor of the House. A description of the procedure at these Debates will be useful to those who have not attended them before. The room is arranged as nearly as possible in the traditional form of the House of Commons. The Speaker's chair is against the south wall exactly facing the centre door, with a gangway about twelve feet wide between the chair and the door, in which is placed the table of the Clerk to the House and the press table. The seats are arranged on either side of the gangway facing toward the centre; the members sit according to conviction, the ayes on the right of the Speaker, the noes on his left. This arrangement has a great effect on the style of the Debate. Many an experienced speaker who is used to facing his whole audience, friends and foes, feels bewildered when he rises from amongst his friends and faces his foes. Later comes a feeling of power.

The Debate is opened by four speakers, announced on the "paper," each of whom may speak for fifteen minutes. When the "speakers on the papers" have finished, the Debate is open to the House; any member desiring to speak rises in his place, and catching the Speaker's eye, proceeds to the table of the Clerk of the House; he speaks from that side of

Quarter Century As Dean

HAS BIRTHDAY

Compliments Paid By Each Year

Miss M. E. T. Addison, Dean of Women of Victoria College, was last evening tendered a dinner by the girls of Annesley Hall, in honour of her birthday, and also celebrating her 25th year as Dean of Annesley Women's Residence.

Four pages in white satin preceded Miss Addison and the other guests into the dining room through a double line of residence girls. The tables were lit by tall yellow candles, and artistically decorated in mauve and yellow, with sunset roses as centre-pieces, and butterfly placecards. Miss Addison herself wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses and violets.

Just before the toast was proposed a large white birthday cake was brought in by the pages and deposited in front of Miss Addison, who cut it so that every girl was able to have a piece, and to share in this delightful birthday present.

Miss Lorene Gibson, president of the Annesley Student Government Association, and toastmistress for the evening, proposed the toast to the King and then introduced the speaker for each year.

Greetings from the first year were extended by Miss Anna Chorsky, who in a few words expressed the freshmen's appreciation for Miss Addison. Miss Helen Price spoke for the sophomores. The third year was represented by Miss Betty Ratz. Miss Lulu Bates of the 4th year said that 1927 had proved to be a very eventful

CHICAGO MAYOR ON THE WARPATH

To Combat a So-called Influx of British Propaganda

TO PURGE LIBRARY

"Big Bill to Purge Library," is the statement announced by a huge headline in a newspaper clipping now on view in the Public Reference Library on College Street. The clipping is taken from the front page of a recent issue of the "Chicago Tribune," and deals with some developments in the campaign of the mayor of that metropolis to combat an alleged flood of "pro-British propaganda" in Chicago's schools and libraries.

The by now well known policy of Mayor Thompson has thus far been actualized, aside from published statements, in two forms. One of these is the attack on Superintendent of Schools McAndrew, who is now under suspension by the Chicago school board for insubordination. A lawsuit with the suspended superintendent is now in progress.

In addition, the mayor has announced a programme of investigation of the books in the Public Library of Chicago for alleged sources of propaganda. A commission, headed by Mr. U. J. Herrman, a well-known friend of the mayor's, has already begun the examination of suspected volumes, and has made several statements of the results so far. Mr. Herrman is popularly known as "Sport."

The attack of the mayor is aimed

VARSIITY STILL REMAINS MEMBER OF UNION

Has Not Yet Withdrawn From
I.C.D.U. as Reported in Yesterday's Issue

In an article in yesterday's "Varsity" it was announced that the University of Toronto had withdrawn from the Intercollegiate Debating Union last year. It has since been pointed out by the Secretary of the Students' Administrative Council that this is not so. The Literary and Debates Committee last year recommended that Varsity withdraw because of the superiority of the Parliamentary style of debating, but this recommendation was voted down by the S.A.C. as it was felt that the University of Toronto had a moral responsibility which made it necessary for continuance in the I.C.D.U., at least for the present.

WOMEN'S WILES WEAR AWAY WELL WORN TRADITION

New Haven, Conn.—Gone is another sacred university tradition. The campus fence at Yale, famous ever since there has been a Yale, is no longer the exclusive institution it once was. Time was when only a male upper classman could sit on the rail of the fence, but since the turning over of the Yale dormitories to summer school women, each warm summer's evening has found skirts on the holy of holies.

The above are the speakers in to-night's Hart House Debate, to take place in the Lecture Room at 8 o'clock. Left to right: D. G. McCullagh, Trinity, and F. St. L. STUDENT POETS MUST HURRY

Closing Date for Entries for Jardine Prize is November 1st

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

Those addicted to poetry in any form, whether sonnets or lyrics, or any other type, are advised to get busy if they wish to have an opportunity to compete for the Jardine Prize of one hundred dollars. All entries must be in hands of the Registrar by Nov. 1st. This prize is open for competition by any undergraduate of the University who has spent the last academic year here, or to any of last year's graduates. The subject and metre is left to the discretion of the competitor, who in submitting his effort should sign it with a pseudonym, submitting at the same time an envelope with his pseudonym written on it, containing his proper name, and if it suits his fancy, his address. The judges are five in number, four of them being the heads of the department of English in the four colleges, the dark horse to act as fifth judge being elected by the four. The only fly in the ointment is that the five judges have the power of withholding the award for that year if no poem which was submitted for that year be found worthy of the award.

BOISTEROUS STUDENTS ROUTE CANNY FARMER

A farmer and his leather-coloured mule, plodding slowly along a deep-trucked and grassy wagon-track, through the most delectable hills and autumn woods, last Wednesday about noon, were immensely startled, on rounding a bend in the track, to find themselves in the midst of a roistering bunch of gypsies, who, surrounded by blankets, cushions and kettles, were preparing pork and beans, doggies, and coffee around a cheery, blazing camp-fire. The farmer and his friend hastily retreated, although they were assured that it was only a crowd of budding architects let loose for the day to sketch around West Hills. The four years of Architecture spent a very enjoyable day, in spite of a few rain-burries, and returned by motor-cars and bus, in late afternoon to the city.

Enthusiastic Audience Listens To Fitting Tributes Paid Great Scholar

Many Notables Present From Both University and Realms of Science

The extent of the appreciation which the University and the city has for a great scientist was demonstrated last night at Convocation Hall, when nearly three hundred men and women gathered to pay tribute to the late Marcelin Berthelot on the one-hundredth anniversary of the great Frenchman's birth.

Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the University, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. The keynote of all the speeches was the gratitude the world owes to scientific pioneers like Berthelot.

Prof. W. Lash Miller spoke first and gave a brief summary of the French scientist's life. At school he had studied history, classics, philosophy, and even Hebrew. He wrote a "History of Alchemy" as his first serious work. From then on he did an almost unbelievable amount of work. He has left us thirty-six books and over twelve hundred manuscripts. For thirty years he was in public life in France as a member of the Committee for the Defence of Paris during 1870; as senator, as Minister of Education. For many years he was secretary of the Academy of Sciences. He was the founder of organic chemistry and founder of electro-chemistry. He invented smokeless gunpowder; won a gold medal for work in agriculture, another for work in the field of bio-chemistry. He discovered toxins and invented anti-toxins.

NOTED TRAVELLER TO LECTURE HERE

Mr. Roy Lee Will Speak on Conditions of Students in Europe

CONDITIONS BAD

Mr. Roy Lee, a visitor to the University, and one who has travelled widely, will deliver several addresses during the course of the week on Current Conditions in Europe. Students of this University are in all probability better acquainted with the mediaeval history of Europe than they are with present conditions there, and will find Mr. Lee's lectures most helpful.

Mr. Lee is a graduate of Oxford University, and during the past three years has travelled extensively throughout Europe, investigating conditions at the various universities. Shortly after the war he played a prominent part in the relief of Russian refugees. This led to his becoming interested in students' welfare, and he associated himself with the European Students' Relief, an organization now known as the International Students' Service.

Speaking from his wide experience and after having seen European university life from all angles, Mr. Lee said that he found conditions to be worst in France, whereas Germany enjoys unusually good educational facilities, and the general morale of the students is of a higher level than is to be found in most universities.

THE SNEAK-THIEF OPERATES

The theft—no more moderate term is as fitting—of at least one coat and several hats from within Hart House during the past few days serves as a warning that a vile situation still exists. The fact that a member of what is to all intents and purposes an exclusive club cannot, with confidence, leave wearing apparel on the receptacles provided throughout the halls by the House itself is not alone shocking but must be injurious to the best fraternal spirit, and, as well, cast a shadow on the House and the users thereof.

That the losses were not occasioned by members we prefer to believe, not alone for the fact that the result of detection would be too severe but also because the average undergraduate is honest and is in a position to realize the hardship that might be caused the actual owner. Rather must the offence be laid at the door of the sneak-thief, the tramp from the street, or, possibly, an over-tempted messenger boy or tradesman.

That Hart House is easy of access one will readily admit. We would have it so, for an over-abundance of officialdom could not fail but bring offence, and would, most certainly, be in distinctly bad taste. But it does seem that more careful, if discreet, supervision of obvious non-members is not only in order but is actually essential, —a supervision to be exercised not by the staff alone but by the members in general, and a scrutiny that would, in many cases, extend for the entire time that the visitor remains in Hart House if business is his plea.

Losses such as these of recent date have, in the past, been known to cause actual distress, and steps must be taken to remove what is a real menace. But until that time comes, members of Hart House would be well advised to check their coats in the security of the downstairs cloakroom.

LIMITATION OR EXPANSION?

In the current issue of Harper's, James Rowland Angell, President of Yale, discusses the question of the over-population of the college. In some respects his statements directly concern our own colleges with the University, where Victoria College especially has been disturbed by whispers of a possibly necessary system of limitation.

The lack of housing facilities this year at the College has proved very distressing to the residence officials. It is a problem which, one feels, will have to be solved one way or another before another year. Further expansion seems to some to be financially impracticable and to others socially inadvisable.

It is this latter premise which is proving the stumbling-block in the present instance. On the one hand we have the supporters of a strictly limited college system claiming "that both the students and the teaching staff are benefited by working in an organization so small that presumably everyone knows everyone else." A highly developed esprit de corps may grow up under such circumstances, especially if it be reinforced as in the Oxford and Cambridge Colleges by social and athletic relationships of an intimate kind. Over against this latter set of supposed advantages must be frankly set the dangers which arise when a small group of this kind lacks in social variety, or in intellectual vitality or distinction. "On the other hand," President Angell goes on to say, "it is unquestionably possible to have student numbers so large that the whole collegiate organization becomes top-heavy and sacrifices some or all of these values."

It is with these two phases of the problem that the Victoria College authorities must wrestle. According to Dr. Angell, when the decision is made the real trouble will begin. The practical difficulties are almost insurmountable.

However, Yale, a pioneer in the field, has been successful in her policy of limitation. Therefore her experiment should prove of profit to Victoria in this crisis.

Art, Music and Drama

HORRIBLE ERRATA

A most regrettable if amusing error on the part of the linotype, proof-reader, and night-editor occurred in referring to Mr. Molnar, who wrote "The Swan" (reviewed in yesterday's issue) as Terence Molnar. We repeat that his name is Ferenc Molnar, which as far as we can decide is the Austrian equivalent of Frank, Francois, Francis and Franz. We cannot imagine a man of Herr Molnar's appearance being named Terence. Ferenc is seen constantly strolling about the Vienna Prater wearing a smart monocle with a black cord, mauve spats, an ebony cane with purple tassels and tipped with platinum. Moreover, Ferenc Molnar is married every six months to the "most beautiful actress on the Viennese stage." Fellows named Terence never do, and are not allowed to do such things.

N.A.B.

We will commence this morning by opening the window and letting in a Blast from a man who handles his metre very well, even if he has some difficulty with his rhymes:

I see you are appealing, Cat, for student verse so free, Hold hard! I am no poet but an undergraduate Deploping your degradation from your pristine heights sublime,
And so to voice my grief and woe I pen this little rhyme.

Oh, why permit historians to sully your fine col.
Howe'er so bright and amusing they still would be too sol.
But O, ye Gods! this jeweller—of Cross-the-Border fame—
Doth render me quite watery—for shame, O Cat—for shame!

Ah, where is that fine flow of art that used us to delight—
Where—where the jokes, the jests—the quips to smile at in the night—
On your hind legs rise up, O Cat, and list to me accuse—
You've turned to writing poetry—verbigel verbagel verboozel!

What tho the press released to use your efforts in a vollyum,
Which we enjoyed, have oft re-read—I still say that your collyum
Should not to verse devoted be—if you must spout, why then Go spout elsewhere—but O, my Gawd!—take up our Cham Puss' Pen!
Pee, Bee.

All we can say in return is that if we remembered what used to amuse people, we would still write it! And furthermore, it is a very dull year—look at the targets we had last year for our unerring shafts: Panabaker, Youth Refusing to Retreat, Courtesy, Students' Handbook, and "Betty and Helen Co. Ltd."

FAULTY ILLUMINATION?

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
Last year I wrote to "The Varsity" about the injurious lighting arrangements of University College. Nothing has been done. No notice taken. And yet this paper is the mirror in which is reflected student opinion. Surely there are some other students who value their eyesight enough to protest that rooms such as 22, 4, 37, 13, 65, 11 and 19 should continue to be lighted from the right hand side, and worse as in the case of 11 and 37, from the front and back. This state of things would never be permitted in the Public Schools. Why are they then present in the University to the detriment of the health of the undergraduates? Our eyes are tried enough surely without this added strain. I should have thought that one would only have had to indicate this great defect to have every effort made to have it remedied. Thanking you for your valuable space a second time.
"Specs."

MEXICAN MELODRAMA AT THE EMPIRE

The Dove by Willard Mack introduced a well filled house into very naughty company indeed. The Purple Pigeon is a cabaret, if not something more sinister, kept by Mike Morowick, ably acted by Arthur Allard. The influence against a too rapid descent into the cesspools is incorporated even a little grossly in the person of Madame Doublechin. Little is seen of her after the first act, but she is felt as a subtle force for good. By a pleasant conceit she has distinguished the girls under her care by means of red and blue hair ribbons, which the intelligent reader will at once see indicates their status as Purple Pigeons or White Doves. To the latter category our heroine, an orphaned cabaret singer, splendidly portrayed by Edith Taliaferro, naturally belongs. She loves and is loved by an American dice-roller from the gambling house over the way. She attracts the sinister regard of the local oil king, a Mexican called (at full length and often) Don Jose Maria Lopez Tostado. He frames the American crap-shooter and demands from the Dove the sacrifice of her virtue or what-have-you as the

JUNIOR RUGBY TEAM PLAYS O.A.C. IN GUELPH TO-DAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Judging by the demand for tickets yesterday there should be a capacity crowd at the Stadium for Saturday's game with Queen's. There was a long line-up when the seats went on sale at nine o'clock, and the demand was steady all day. There were still a few tickets left last night, but it is expected that these will be all disposed of early to-day. The downtown seat sale will start this morning.

The Varsity Juniors journey to Guelph to-day to take on the Aggies in an Intercollegiate fixture. The Juniors have a smart little team this year, and seem to be headed for another championship. Winning championships has been a habit with the Juniors for the past few seasons, and chances look bright indeed for a repetition of their previous successes.

Speaking of last Saturday's game the down-town papers give Varsity full credit for their wonderful showing, and give them at least an even chance to beat Queen's here this week. In fact, it would not be at all surprising if Varsity went into the game favourites over the Tricolour. Varsity had a clear cut edge over their rivals during the greater part of the game, and there is no reason in the world why they should not pull out a win. Queen's will no doubt be in there trying as never before, but they will have nothing on the boys in blue as far as that goes.

McGill have an off date on Saturday, but they will not be idle. The Red and White will take on Balm Beach in an exhibition game in Montreal. The two teams met earlier in the season, and the O.R.F.U. champions experienced little difficulty in defeating the leading contenders in the College Union. This game on Saturday will feature the forward pass which has long been advocated, but which has received little attention till this year. The game here at the first of the season attracted a lot of attention, and the forward pass met with much favourable comment.

As regards the outcome of the game it is hard to make an accurate prediction. It is altogether unlikely that Shaughnessy will take any chances as regards his stars, and McGill will not likely extend themselves to the limit. They would be foolish if they did, for both Varsity and Queen's are of the opinion that the Red team has a long hard row ahead of them.

SENIOR RUGBY TEAM IN GOOD CONDITION

Camp Borden Should Be Easily Overcome By O.R.F.U. Team

LITTLE ON INJURED LIST

Varsity's Senior rugby teams got in a strenuous workout last night in preparation for Saturday's games. The Intercollegiate showed few ill-effects from their strenuous game with Queen's, and most of the boys were out to the practice.

One bad feature of the workout was an injury to Little. Herb played a stellar game in Kingston, but he injured his knee stopping a plunge in yesterday's practice and may be out of Saturday's game.

Gay Kirkpatrick, half on the O.R.F.U. squad, has been suffering from a bad ankle all season, but has been making a game effort to keep in the game. However, his leg is showing no improvement, and he will in all probability not be able to play for the rest of the season.

Davies, another of "Mike" Pearson's star backfield men, is on the injured list. He hurt his ankle in yesterday's practice game. It is not known yet just how serious his injury is. The Orphans are short of halves at present, but there are some real prospects with the Juniors who may get a chance before the season is over.

The two squads staged a practice game after some tackling practice. The heavier Intercollegiate were able to make several gains through the line of their lighter opponents, but the latter put up a good scrap. The O.R.F.U. outfit is going great guns at present and should dispose of Borden with little difficulty. The Intercollegiate scores were mainly the result of mistakes by the Orphans. The latter squad plays a fast open game and take more chances; as a result fumbles are more liable to occur.

U.C. LOSE SOCCER GAME BY NARROW MARGIN

S.P.S. defeated U.C. yesterday afternoon by the narrow margin of 1 goal to 0 in a regular Interfaculty soccer game. The game was close throughout, but School were entitled to their win.

Downing scored the only goal of the game in the first period on a shot which gave the U.C. goalie no chance to save.

BELLS BANGED BY YEARNING YOUTH

Mysterious Musician's Mixed Melodies Make Many Mournful

IDENTITY UNKNOWN

Late yesterday afternoon the dulcet strains of "Old Black Joe" percolated out over the campus from the Tower carillon. At times it sounded as if some ribald fellow was running here and there hitting the bells with a hammer. The noises called to mind the old drinking song of Andy Gump, "Cow bells, door bells, for all we know, there may be more bells, but the poets tell that the wedding bell is the sweetest little ding-dong-bell of all!" Upon investigation by "The Varsity" it turned out that some person, with inclinations to dash off a few chords or so on the clavier, climbed the stairway and treated the upper air to a concert. It seems that the musician was absolutely unofficial, but, at any rate, he reminded a few thousand people that the bells were still functioning.

ST. HILDA'S TENNIS TEAM LOSES CLEVER PLAYER

Dorothy Fraser Prevented From Playing This Year by Unfortunate Accident

The St. Hilda's tennis team suffered a severe and unexpected loss when Dorothy Fraser, wrenched her knee and slipped the kneecap while playing in the Interfaculty Tournament on Tuesday with Nora Bateman of Victoria. Miss Fraser unfortunately injured her knee in the first Interfaculty basketball game of the season two years ago and has been unable to play since. Although debarred from active participation in the game, she became manager of the Varsity Intercollegiate basketball team for that year, 1925-26. The next year she was head of tennis at St. Hilda's, in spite of the fact that her knee was not completely sound then. She also took a very active interest in hockey, so when she is incapacitated St. Hilda's loses one of their best all-round athletes. Added to the fact that she will be out of tennis for the rest of the season is the equally tragic realization that she has thus lost the opportunity of winning her senior T. She was awarded her junior T in her first year for playing on the second Varsity basketball team.

DENTS DEFEATED BY PRESBYTERIANS

Tooth-pullers Fail to Break Record in Interfaculty Soccer Game

THIRD STRAIGHT WIN

The Knox College soccer team blanked the Dents' team 3-0 yesterday afternoon to take the third straight win of the Interfaculty series. The Presbyterians played brilliant teamwork and did not have to push themselves to show that their team was of higher calibre than the tooth-pullers. The fact that no goal has been registered against the Knox team yet this season speaks well for their backfield men and their goalie, Irving.

The line-ups were as follows: Knox College: Goal, Irving; full backs, H. Davidson, McCullough; half backs, Roland, W. Jack, D. Jack; forwards, Johnson, Kerr, D. Davidson, Skelton, Coulter.

Dental College: Goal, Brown; full backs, Corman, Twiball; half backs, A. Leith, Conn, Hopkins; forwards, Campbell, Clayman, Mason, Armstrong, Heron.

VACCINATION VICTIMS RETARD WOMEN'S SPORTS

Lure of Tennis Proves Too Strong for Some But Swimming Strictly Taboo

Vaccination—or the effects thereof—still hold sway over Victoria way, and hence the Women's athletic activities, while not altogether held up, are slowed down considerably. Baseball and basketball practices still resound with cries of "Ouch, don't knock my arm," or else a would-be champion hobbles from the floor in search of Ruth's dressing or fresh adhesive.

A few of the stars are in quarantine (not with smallpox)—but as a preventive measure for those who have not been vaccinated previously. Several prospective players are suffering from sore arms or legs.

At first it was thought that women's sports would not be hindered very much, but there has certainly been a damper on the recent baseball and basketball practices. The weather has been too perfect for some of the tennis enthusiasts to refrain from the lure of the courts, but swimming to a very prominent part; and if I may be permitted to do so, I shall mention our Premier, M. Taschereau, M. Henri Laureys, representing the University of Louvain, Monseigneur Camille Roy, on whom the degree of Doctor of Literature was conferred, and Monseigneur Vincent Piette, our distinguished Rector, to whom fell the joint honour of responding with Mr. Leonard Klinck of Vancouver on behalf of all of his co-delegates of Canada. Mgr. Piette in noble and classic language expressed, first in French and then in English, the tribute of his admiration for the University of Toronto, and at the same time expressed the honour and delight felt in our intellectual circles on hearing of the recent measures adopted for the teaching of French in Ontario. This latter is provided with a rather interesting illustration in view of the famous question of "Parisian French," if one considers a remark made to me by two students of Toronto to the effect that they were surprised at having understood the speech of Mgr. Piette, while they grasped but very little of the discourse of Dr. Emile Sergeant of the University of Paris—not that I wish to criticize at all the speech of Dr. Sergeant (a veritable little masterpiece of idea and literary style)—but the difference lay in the fact that the slower diction of Mgr. Piette was certainly more comprehensible to an unaccustomed ear.

A programme of events lasting for five days, from the fifth to the ninth of October, a programme consisting of academic, social, religious and athletic functions was provided for the delegates. The celebration was inaugurated with a great formal dinner, followed by an undergraduate ball attended by upwards of two thousand persons. On the next morning the Hon. L. A. Taschereau delivered his address on "Certain Aspects of Canadian History since Confederation." True homage was paid to our culture by M. Taschereau, and all of the newspapers of the Queen City were loud in their praises of his speech.

On the same afternoon there was the great academic procession of all the robed delegates, and their official presentation to the Honourable Sir William Mulock, Chancellor of the University of Toronto. At this moment the celebration of the Centenary was officially begun. I shall refrain from describing here or mentioning at great length, the various sequent functions: dedication, unveiling, conferring of degrees, club receptions, dinners, concerts, rugby match, and various solemn and impressive religious ceremonies; all of these transpired almost without interruption, and nevertheless without great fatigue, owing to perfect planning and flawless arrangement.

But I have as yet left unmentioned the student-delegates, and I cannot pass these by in silence. Of our group there were about twenty. The honour of representing the University of Montreal had magic properties and was able to withdraw from its seclusion for us one of the rare rooms of that unique University building, Hart House. With careful detail, this room had been furnished with exquisite taste in the ancient French-Canadian mode. "You would never really like to come into too close contact with us," said Warden Bickersteth of Hart House; "that is why we decided to prepare a little French-Canadian home for you."

I was convinced that Mr. Bickersteth was sincere to the very bottom of his heart. And these folk of the University of Toronto who really desire to know us more and more are generally believed. In this light it is difficult to understand our isolation, since there is rapidly arising the question of a federation of the students of all Canadian universities. One may admire the height of our intellectual attainment, but one cannot help deploping our athletic and social inactivity. This admitted inactivity or inertia may be largely explained more by the paucity of our faculties than by our lack of resource, but—is that sufficient explanation? The question, I believe, is worthy of the most serious consideration.

SETTLEMENT TO ENTERTAIN AT HALLOWE'EN PARTIES

The clubs at the University of Toronto Settlement are now in full swing. In the junior clubs the membership has had to be limited to thirty-five. This is a result of the comparatively small building the Settlement workers have. A much greater field could be covered with more accommodation and equipment.

This week a series of Halloween parties are being planned. The Settlement will be decorated for the occasion. A busy time is anticipated. Any students who can do so should try to visit the Settlement in the coming week to help the workers put across a happy time for the community.

to a large extent at the teaching and text-books of history. Several extracts from school books derogatory to revered traditions and respected personages in American history have been made public. One of Mayor Thompson's advisors and expert witnesses now has on his hands a lawsuit instituted by the Columbia professor who is the author of one of the text-books attacked.
As accusations have also been made regarding the existence of "disloyalty" and participation in propaganda at the University of Chicago, the situation has assumed a still broader aspect. One recent development in this connection has been the request of the university authorities that members of the staff, especially in history, refrain from making public any statements in regard to the controversy.
To an audience of teachers in Indianapolis last week, the suspended Superintendent of Schools McAndrew made the statement that "Boards of Education are a chief obstacle to education in America to-day."

MARCELIN BERTHELOT

He was hailed as the equal of Pasteur for his work on germs. He died in 1907 and was working until the day of his death. His ability has not been exaggerated by the French, because English and Germans hail him also. In his long life he made some enemies, specially because of his friendship with Renan. In politics, and even in science, some few regarded him with disfavour. But he surmounted all obstacles.

Prof. Miller closed by stressing the contribution to science of the five great men of science of the nineteenth century—Pasteur, Darwin, Faraday, Helmholtz and Berthelot.

Prof. G. F. Whitby of McGill, President of the Canadian Chemical Association, then spoke. He described many of Berthelot's scientific discoveries. His greatest claim to fame lay in the realm of organic chemistry, especially in the field of synthesis. Until Berthelot began work it was believed that life, or a vital force, was essential to the production of chemical compounds. He also unearthed the earliest receipt for preparing alcohol from wine. Many of Berthelot's discoveries are now of practical importance in industry.

Prof. Chapelon, Professor of Mathematics at Paris, and temporarily attached to the Mathematical staff of the University of Toronto, gave an eloquent address in French and English. He showed that Berthelot in his investigation had no thought of the results which would follow as a result of this work. His was the field of pure research for science and truth. He was a great example in an age of commercialism. He believed that social progress depended on science, and was confident that truth would finally prevail. Berthelot had believed that we inherit the knowledge of other nations, and that all scholars should unite to work together. Therefore it was fitting that all this world

Players' Guild

Present Play

This afternoon at 4.30 the second presentation of the Guild Players will be given at the Theatre in the Women's Union, 79 St. George Street. The production this afternoon will be two scenes from "Julius Caesar," the first the conspiracy scene between Cassius and Brutus in the Roman Forum before the entry of Caesar, and the second the famous quarrel between Cassius and Brutus. Prof. Ernest Dale, the Honorary President of the Guild, will play Cassius, and Mr. Raymond Card, the Guild Director, will be seen as Brutus. This reviewer had the pleasure of seeing these talented players in the same scenes when they were given at the open-air theatre of the Women's Art Association last June, and the reviewer advises anyone interested in fine Shakespearean scenes well produced to see this afternoon's presentation. All new and prospective members of Guild will be very welcome.

should join in his celebration.

The chairman then introduced the General Manager of the Consumers Gas Co. and President of the Royal Canadian Institute, who paid a tribute to all men of science. Science was a great equalizer in the world, he said. It was also saving huge sums by eliminating waste.

Sir Robert Falconer moved a vote of thanks to all who had helped plan the meeting, which he declared to have been a great success.

During the evening a number of slides showing pictures of Berthelot and of his laboratories were shown. An interesting feature mentioned was the fact that Mme. Berthelot, who had died only a few hours before her husband and was buried with him, was the first woman to be buried in the Pantheon.

year, in that it was the 100th birthday of the University, the year when new electric fixtures had been installed in Annesley Hall, the year of the Great Plague at Victoria, and the 25th anniversary of Miss Addison's work as Dean. The toast proposed to Miss Addison followed, "That she have as many happy years as there were happy girls in Annesley Hall."

Miss Addison, in replying, said that she believed that each generation was bringing forth better and finer women than the last. She remarked that college gave education which was the way to the very best that life could give through the development of mind and body. It was also rather unusual, she said, that 175 girls could live in perfect harmony with each other, and that there were no two students who were not on speaking terms with each other. In closing, Miss Addison thanked the girls for their thoughtfulness in arranging the party. Everyone then rose, and sang "Victoria."

The guests of the evening included Miss F. MacDonald, M.B.E., F.R.G.S., first cousin of Premier Stanley Baldwin, Sir Hugh Poynter and Rudyard Kipling, who is making a tour of a few of the Canadian cities for business reasons, and who is at present a guest at Wymilwood; and Miss Muriel Manning, Head of the Victoria Women's Union.

price of her lover's release. She agrees, proposing to poison herself when her lover is well over the border. He, however, suspecting the arrangement, returns, and is very nearly shot against the adobe walls. However, the gifted tongue of our heroine goads the Don into a very unexpected volte-face, and all ends happily with the villain playing Santa Claus with the gift of an Eight-in-Line.

The play combines melodrama with much of the colourful setting and costumes of the musical comedy. Edmund Abbey does good work as Old Bill, the presiding genius of the roulette wheel. There is considerable profanity. Satan's reputed abode is mentioned 249 times by actual count.

BEAU GESTE—UPTOWN

To attempt a critique of Beau Geste, the feature presentation at the Uptown this week, is, at this late date, like commending the architecture of the Taj Mahal. Its artistic qualities are universally known.

We use the word artistic advisedly, because Beau Geste is a work of art. Sentimental, perhaps, but it is a type of clean-cut, manly sentiment which is different from the sloppy product so much exploited in American films lately. It is refreshing to see a plot based on an ideal, the ideal of an all-sacrificing love between three brothers.

The love of the one brother for Isobel, his cousin, plays a small yet very necessary part in the plot, and doesn't give the impression of being stuck in, much like a nickle in a birthday cake, a device of many producers when wishing to ensure the success of a non-sexy film. Incidentally, Lady Patricia Brandon's and Isobel's are the only feminine roles in the film.

What a treat it is to find a film based on a novel and not see the original story hopelessly slashed. As we remember, the picturization varies not at all from P. C. Wren's original novel.

We challenge any critic, however calloused, to sit through Beau Geste unmoved.

But I hate this kind of row."

He turned his head with a glassy stare,
And I suddenly saw that he
With his big round eyes
Looked solemn-wise
Not at, but right through me.

So I said to him, "Kitty, I might have known
You wouldn't waste time on me,
For you are cruel,
And I'm a fool
To want what cannot be."

Now I go around with an aching heart
And the cat with a vacant eye,
And when we meet
In house or street
We pass each other by.

A lot of people are wondering why students are not walking the straight-and-narrow when they leave Victoria—and proceed across Queen's Park to U.C. It is certainly very amusing to think of devout Victorians walking around Queen's Park in circles in broad daylight. Do you remember the old jest:

Student (ringing a door-bell on Elm Street): Hello, madam, I want a bottle of wine.

Madam: I don't know ya!

Student: Oh, yes, you do! I'm a student, college you know—

Madam: Oh! Wiktorita—komm in! komm in!

the table, aye or no, according to the side of the motion he wishes to support. The Speaker as far as possible selects members alternately from the ayes and the noes. Members must address the Speaker alone; they must on no account refer to a member by name, nor use offensive language—briefly, they are subject to the rules of parliamentary procedure. Speeches from the floor are limited to ten minutes. At the close of its deliberation the House divides. The physical arrangements of the room have led to the adoption of the method of division of the "Mother of Parliaments," those in favour of the motion file into the lobby through the door on the Speaker's right, those against the motion through the door on his left. They are counted by tellers as they pass through the doors. Those who leave before the end of the debate are allowed to cast a vote by ballot. On the conclusion of the division the members re-enter the House to hear the Speaker announce the result of the vote. The House then adjourns.

NEED OF SPIRITUAL ELEMENT STRESSED BY TRINITY PROVOST

States Modern Life Too Busy to Allow Sufficient Time for Meditation

SERVICE FIRST OF SERIES

Emphasize Need of Hidden Life in Addition to Outer Man
Seen by World

The need of "clearing a space in our lives for meditation" was stressed by the Rev. F. H. Cosgrave, the Provost of Trinity College, during a brief service in Hart House Chapel at 1.30 yesterday. The speaker began his address by saying that this was the first of a series of weekly services, in which he hoped to point out to students the importance of reflection and thought on spiritual things.

In addition to one's outer life, which all the world could observe and comment upon, one had to develop a "hidden life," declared the Provost, a connection between the mind and God. "Treasures in heaven" could only be laid up by means of this inner life. Those who were desirous of providing themselves not only with material goods, but also with wealth in the world to come, were advised to consider this.

Going on to talk of modern tendencies, the speaker pointed out that life was too busy to-day. In the every day bustle of existence, the never-ending series of appointments (Continued on page 4)

EVOLUTIONARY IDEA OLDER THAN DARWIN

Sir Bertram Windle Stresses
Importance of Belief in Intelligent Creator

DARWIN'S IDEA NOT PROVED

In response to a query of "The Varsity" as to the recent furor caused by Sir Arthur Keith's saying that Darwin's theory was now a proven fact, Sir Bertram Windle, Sc.D., F.R.S., Professor of Anthropology at St. Michael's College and Special Lecturer of the University in Ethnology, said yesterday that he would make a clear distinction between Darwin's theory and the theory of evolution. "Darwin's theory of Natural Selection," he pointed out, "was an attempt to account for the way evolution worked, and is by no means universally accepted among scientists." Sir Bertram went on to show that the evolutionary hypothesis was older than Darwin, and that many biologists that accept evolution as a proven fact would hesitate to endorse the Darwinian viewpoint.

As to the alleged conflict between religion and science in this regard, he was most emphatic in stating that there could be no conflict as long as the scientist did not attempt to set up a theology of his own and try to account for the world as we have it to-day without admitting that an intelligent Creator had chosen evolution as the means of creation. To state that if the theory of evolution is accepted it entails the overthrow of religion is absurd. In fact the contrary is the case, for individual creation of species would involve much less exercise of the intellect on the part of the Deity than creation by way of evolution. Indeed, it is not the truly eminent in the fields of Religion and Science but those of the second flight that see any ground for controversy on this matter.

MR. DUNLOP VISITS CITIES OF NORTHERN ONTARIO

Finds Great Interest in Work of Department of Extension

Mr. W. J. Dunlop, Director of University Extension, who has recently returned from an important trip to Fort William and Port Arthur, stated yesterday to "The Varsity" that there is very great interest in the northern part of the province in the work of the department of University Extension. He was invited to visit the Twin Cities by Boards of Trade and of Education. "That part of the province thinks itself neglected by the University and is anxious to have the University extend some facilities to the young men and women who cannot afford the expenses incidental to attending the University," said Mr. Dunlop.

While there, he held meetings in each city and addressed a mass meeting in each city. These were all exceptionally well attended and indicated to him the great interest in the Extension work. Merely as beginning he established an evening class in Second Year Pass English, for which there were sixteen qualified students in Fort William and nine in Port Arthur. In addition to these a number of citizens wished to attend the classes in order to be more proficient in their mother tongue.

INTERFACULTY HARRIER MEET TO-MORROW MORNING

Over Seventy Runners Will Start From U.C.C. for Five Mile Run

The Interfaculty Harrier Meet of the University of Toronto will be held on Friday morning at 10 o'clock, starting from the Upper Canada College grounds. The course is approximately five and one-half miles, and the first five runners to finish constitute the Intercollegiate team which competes against Queen's, McGill and the Royal Military College teams on November 5th over the Toronto course.

Graham, Mitchell, Crozier and Baldwin, all members of the 1926 Intercollegiate champions, should again win a place on the team, but there is certain to be stiff opposition. All faculties will be represented, and O.A.C. Guelph is sending its team to endeavour to again win the Interfaculty team championship. Over seventy runners faced the starter last year.

Medical Visitor from Haiti Admires Canadian System

"I am amazed at the thoroughness of the training system in Canada," said Dr. J. Dominique, Dean of the School of Medicine, Haiti, who is in Toronto observing the Medical School here. "What particularly impresses me is the affiliation between the hospitals and schools," he continued. "Our medical problems in Haiti," he explained, "include the combating of malaria. In my own faculty there are 100 students."

The Ellen Mickie Fellowship for 1927 has been awarded to Mr. Bernard Willinsky, D.D.S. This scholarship is one of the most coveted in the University, ranking, perhaps, second only to the Rhodes Trust Scholarship. Mr. Willinsky is a resident of Toronto and a graduate of the Dental Faculty. The following are the conditions of the award:

A Fellowship, being the annual income from an endowment of $25,000, has been established by the late Dr. W. J. Mickie, known as "The Ellen Mickie Fellowship," to be given to the student (or students) who in the examinations at the end of the fifth year of the Six Years' Course in Medicine, shall have taken honours of the first class in at least three-fourths of the subjects of that year, and shall have obtained the highest marks in the examinations. The award will be made to the above referred to student (or students) provided he proceeded to the degree of Bachelor of Medicine in this University and spend one year in post graduate study approved by the Council of the Faculty of Medicine.

Those students who obtain an average of 70 per cent. in all subjects of the year, and not less than 60 per cent. in any subject, shall be considered as having obtained Honour Standing.

Awarded in 1921 to J. Hepburn, M.B.; 1922, J. E. Bates, B.A., M.B.; 1923, J. Markowitz, M.B.; 1924, B. I. Johnstone, M.B.; 1925, C. H. Best, M.A., M.B.

Mr. Willinsky was last year created a member of the Alpha Omega Alpha, honorary medical fraternity. He is a brother of Dr. A. I. Willinsky of the staff of the Western Hospital, and chief surgeon of the Mount Sinai Hospital, Toronto.

"Students who are the best guessers get the A's," declared Dr. Herbert N. Shenton, new chairman of the Sociology department at Syracuse University, at an all-university convocation. "Those who cannot guess quite as well get the B's, and those who guess, but not with any degree of accuracy, do not pass," Dr. Shenton continued. Scientific advancement and intellectual awakening are in the proportion of people's ability to guess correctly and make the right choices, added the professor.—Columbia Spectator.

Quarantined Residence is Recipient Of Varied Vegetarian Bouquets

The doorbell rang! Someone had dared to brave the dangers of the haunt of the Smallpox Germ Society and had come to the door of the Freshman Residence on Charles Street.

There was a general stampede to see who could open the door first, and incidentally be the first to loose from captivity a million odd playful bacteria. The portal of venerated birch at last swung creakingly upon its rusty hinges and lo and behold! There in the silent darkness of the night sat a box, a large green box, tied with the most resplendent of large green and red bows. But it bore a compelling sign, "Do Not Open Until Xmas," so it was immediately brought in, and twice as immediately opened. Oh! Oh! Eugh! Onion!

EXTENSION COURSES ADD TO PRESTIGE OF THE UNIVERSITY

Extra-mural Students Receive
An Opportunity to Attend
Night Classes

MANY SUBJECTS TAUGHT

Weekly Classes from October to March Delivered by Professors

It is becoming more and more apparent that the courses conducted by the Department of University Extension occupy a very important position in spreading the name of the University, and teaching extra-mural students who have not been able to come to college. Information given to "The Varsity" yesterday by Mr. Sharpe, Assistant to the Director of University Extension, shows that 1,100 students are enrolled this year in extension courses. Classes are held five nights a week in Baldwin House, the house at 69 St. George Street, and Social Service Building, 45 St. George Street, the Household Science Building, and the Earlscourt Public Library. Lectures are delivered by professors of the University and outside authorities; Mr. Lismer, for example, lectures on Art.

WHOLESALE CAMERADERIE WITHOUT ELEMENT OF SEX

Principal Hutton Remarks on Horrors of Co-education
in 1877

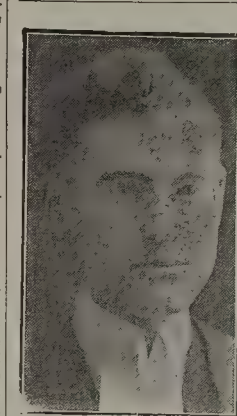

"Students have the most quaint and unfounded of all student delusions that education consists really in social functions and in rubbing off each other's ankles in a 'bunny hug' or 'fox-trot,'" declared Principal Hutton in an address on "A Retrospect of Fifty Years," in Ottawa.

"The women suffer by developing quite unnecessarily and prematurely those gifts of tact and social charm which nature has given them with her own punctual hand, which are better without the precocious forcing of a co-educational university."

"There is to-day," he added, "a new wholesome camaraderie without any of the mischievous element of sex about it, in spite of all the exaggerated rubbish which is written."

Principal Hutton remarked that many of his colleagues had been horrified when co-education had been forced upon them in 1877. He himself felt a slackening of intellectual keenness and a quickening of social life with a craze for dancing and mild flirtation.

PREMIER'S POLICIES ARE SUSTAINED IN HART HOUSE PARLIAMENT

House Upholds Liberal Argument
By Close Margin of Four Votes

VINCENT BLADEN SPEAKER

Many Speakers Take Advantage of Opportunity to Speak
From Floor

His Majesty's Government was sustained by one hundred and fourteen votes to one hundred and four votes in the debate in the Hart House Parliament last night. Prof. V. W. Bladen acted as speaker, and read the question, "That this House has no confidence in His Majesty's Government at Ottawa."

Mr. M. W. Andrew led for the affirmative. He declared that the recent visit of the Royal Princes and of Premier Baldwin gave Canada an opportunity to attract the eyes of England, but that chance had been lost because of the Liberal Government's weak immigration policy. He deplored the influx of foreigners who were the scum of Europe. In criticizing the Robb budget he showed that Canada was using her favourable trade balance with England to purchase American goods. Mr. King had promised a reduction in taxation, but in 1926 the per capita tax had increased by one dollar and sixty-four cents. In conclusion he challenged the opposition to mention any Liberal legislation of positive value.

Mr. D. G. McCullagh, Trinity, opposed the motion. He requested the House not to be swayed by political prejudice. Too often a man's politics (Continued on page 4)

FLAG IS PRESENTED BY S.P.S. ALUMNI

Athletic Association Receive
"Jousting Standard" from the Engineers

WILL BE FLOWN SATURDAY

A University of Toronto flag has been presented to the Athletic Association by the Engineering Alumni Association, University of Toronto, Toronto Branch, of which Walter Amos Esquire, S.P.S. '06, is the president. It will fly for the first time next Saturday, and will be flown at all athletic contests of Toronto team is a contestant.

This flag, like the McGill flag, presented at the opening of the season, is what is known as a "Jousting Standard." The idea comes down to us from the times when fighters wore upon their shields and armour certain designations to indicate the leader for whom they were fighting. Hence came the term "coat of arms" as well as the word "crest" to indicate the emblem carried upon the helmet. Flags bearing these arms were set at opposite ends of the field to indicate the rallying point.

The heraldic description is as follows:—Blazon Azure, two open books, and in base a beaver, all proper, which being translated means—upon a blue field, two open books and below a beaver, all in their proper colours. On the upper third, the ground of which is white, the Royal and Imperial Crown in its proper colours.

The Royal and Imperial Crown indicates the powers granted by the Royal Charter one hundred years ago, the two open books, the possession of University Powers and the beaver symbolizes the industry which should be characteristic of all students.

VIC. WOMEN FAVOUR SMALL COLLEGES

Dean of Women at St. Hilda's Addresses Victoria Women's Association

OPEN DISCUSSION

"A university is not weakened by individual college spirit, but the larger unit benefits through the strength of the smaller," said Miss Cartwright, Dean of Women of St. Hilda's College, in her address to the Victoria Women's Association, Wednesday afternoon in the Victoria College Chapel.

The question of enlarging the Victoria residences had become a vital one. There were one hundred and ninety-five women students in residence at Victoria, Miss Addison stated Wednesday afternoon, and Annesley Hall and Wymilwood were able to accommodate only one hundred students. Accommodation had to be found elsewhere, and this year it had been necessary to place forty-six girls in the United Church Deaconess Training School on St. Clair, and fourteen others in the Presbyterian Deaconess Home. It was the feeling of the meeting that this was unfair.

Miss Cartwright pointed out the advantages of the small college in that in a small community everyone had the same access to all advantages. It was easier to maintain the ideal of equal rights and equal privileges and to train each student in the supreme art of living. There was less danger (Continued on page 4)

A VERY BAD PAPER

Four times recently has the same person visited the Women's Varsity Office to make a complaint, and four times have the Women's Editors heard the statement, "It's a very bad paper!" This, though rather extreme, is not altogether an isolated case, for, as well as commendations, come many complaints to the Varsity staff—complaints which vary from criticism of proof-reading to indignation at the omission of important notices.

It is, of course, to be regretted when errors do occur, but we should like to call to the attention of those who express dissatisfaction with "The Varsity" to the fact that it is The Undergraduate Newspaper. The name means not only that it is for undergraduates, but that the work of its production is done entirely by the student body.

Very few people in the University seem to realize that almost all the material in these columns is written by students, and that all the make-up and proof-reading are done by undergraduates working the entire night. A student in attendance at lectures cannot be expected to be as proficient in such matters as a paid professional man.

Also, again for the sake of those who are continually complaining, we should like to point out that always at the beginning of the academic year there appear advertisements asking for new reporters and night editors. Here would be an opportunity for these discontented ones to practice the skill and precision which they demand, and have some right to expect, from others.

But do they avail themselves of the opportunity thus afforded? Indeed not. Apparently they are content to leave conditions as they are, and to go on saying of the fruits of our labours, "It's a very bad paper!"

AUTHENTIC PUBLICITY?

Recent publicity given to the alleged nefarious pranks of Queen's students by certain members of the down-town press cannot fail but bring to mind the zeal with which certain publications cover news that might be expected to put the student body in an unwanted light. That the public, accustomed by novels to the escapades of the College man, eagerly await news of his misadventures there seems little doubt. But just why a responsible press should cater to this desire is more hard to understand, especially when the reported facts are oft-times based on fabrication.

The case in point, the breaking into the barns of the Kingston Trolley Company, with the subsequent reported disfigurement of many of the cars, appears one of gross misrepresentation. That the cars were disfigured to the extent of having QUEEN'S in blue letters printed on their sides is granted, but that the expense necessary of repair amounted to anything like the thousand dollars declared is absurd, and that much labour would be entailed is still further in doubt.

That the Kingston people themselves were incensed over the deed is not to be believed. The townspeople look upon the undergraduate with tolerant amusement and are always only too ready to co-operate with him in his exploits. And that other than slight damage was done must be denied. And that the little red and yellow cars were appropriately decorated for so auspicious an occasion by the addition of the blue was a tribute that the Trolley Company might have been better advised to have accepted would seem, on the force of it, apparent.

But the case rests upon the fact that the general press is only too willing to accept and print information tending to discredit the student body, or to lay their activities before the public so that none of the over-advertised glamour of a College education fades. The undergraduate is, generally, a quiet, industrious fellow, and if his best interests are to be served, and subsequently the best interests of the nation, we should say "Hands off with misrepresentation of student activities" to the city press.

As an entrée we have this morning a short schnitzel from old Dee:

C-C: Our thirst for knowledge makes us ask this one: Is an unwrapped Oh Henry the same as the Open Bar that all the reformers talk about? Talking about Open Bars and Theologs, is there any significance in the fact that the Theological building at the eminent University of Chicago is christened "Swift Hall?" Next Sunday there will be a fine view from the door of Hart House, as Sunday will be Vista's day. That's what we call subtle. Now, did you hear of the sad case of the Freshman who broke his neck trying to line up in front of two brass wickets at once? This same lad flew up to the Pearly Gates. "Have you your Registration Card?" asked the w.k. saint. "No," quavered the soul. "To — with you, then," replied the gate-keeper. Dee.

C-C

And here is the first letter asking "Advice for the Lovelorn," and it is answered at once by Aunt Boadicea: Dear Kat:

It is deplorable that humans, especially of the University of Toronto, are so timorous. Anxiety for the welfare of my friend has driven me to conquer my timidity of addressing your august if feline presence. Let me assure you that the condition of the hearts of most of our fellow students is serious, yet they are too shy to bring their gnawing problems to Aunt Boadicea. You know from experience what disastrous results restrained or suppressed desires can bring. Your wicked smile and sprightly mustachio are eloquent of decidedly unexpressed desires. However, all lads are not as daring as you. How little do we suspect that those carefree faces coming from Hart House after a roistering feast and still audibly stuffing themselves with apples, mask hearts well nigh torn with doubts. In sobbing accents one of them begged me to approach you.

"I am only a poor little Meds frosh," he sighed. "I know nothing of the wicked world or the college. I adore every inch of campus she steps on. Shall I ask that glorious senior to the frosh-soph dance or should I pine in anguish alone?"

For the sake of his agony I know you will once more show us your wisdom and generosity, as well as your intuitive understanding in affairs of the heart, and answer immediately.

Dear 2T9: Your dear old Auntie has considered very carefully the problem and is delighted, my dear, to be of any help to you. Now, look at it fairly. The dear little frosh of whom you speak is much too ambitious if he wants to invite a senior medette to the dance. He is getting out beyond his depth or his years, and honestagad, children, if you take out a senior, you've gotta think. They won't neck, they don't like stories, they've done their drinking years ago, they know more about you (especially in Meds) than you'll ever know yourself. So take the advice of an old girl who has been through the mill—and pick 'em from High School. Your old Aunt Boadicea.

U.C. LIT. DISCUSS GIFTED INDIAN POET

Rubendranath Tagore Ranks
with A. A. Milne for Poems of Childhood

AN ADMIRER OF SHELLEY

The winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1913, and the greatest and most widely known of Indian writers, is Rabindranath Tagore. A very comprehensive address on the works of this author was given by Miss Margaret Gordon before the members of the U.C. Women's Literary Society in the Women's Union on Monday evening.

Born of an aristocratic Indian family whose members have achieved success in literary and artistic circles, Tagore at an early age showed his poetic ability. However, through the influence of others, and especially through eager publishers, Tagore has helped to spoil his own reputation.

Chitra was a poetical drama in one act and a lyrical gem of great beauty. It has a lovely story, and its passionate language is quite typical of Eastern writings. Chitra was considered a work of art because Tagore placed as much stress on physical as on spiritual beauty.

Tagore may well rank with A. A. Milne in his poems of childhood as found in the Crescent Moon. Although not in verse they have still that same fascination and imagery that is characteristic of "When We Were Very Young."

"Tagore's short stories are forceful and simple, but not distinctively different from the rest of his work," Miss Gordon remarked.

A beautiful little play in which symbolism played the predominant part was the King of the Dark Chamber. "It is a symbolic representation of the realization of the spirit within the soul itself. The human heart is the dark chamber where the mind of man meets with his higher self the king who rules there unseen but felt."

Characteristically Indian in thought, Tagore emphasized the subjective, the spiritual and the quiet. In Chitra, he insisted on the beauty of nature herself, on man's duality of body and soul, and the necessity of both matter and form. "The inner and the outer self and the not-self must be reduced to a harmony," stated Miss Gordon.

Gitanjali, Tagore's greatest work, was written in free verse, and there was no attempt at a definite pattern for metre. With its production, the Western world was surprised to find such tender spirituality in poetry coming from the heart of pagan India. Tagore is typical of the best results of Christianity in modern life, but he belongs to no Christian sect. For his school for boys which was conducted out-of-doors, Tagore had written a morning prayer which was startlingly similar to the Lord's Prayer.

In the collection of poems known as Gitanjali, a Wordsworthian worship of nature was found. Being a very enthusiastic admirer of Shelley, some of Tagore's poetry expressed somewhat the same ideas as both poets sought the beauty in or behind sensual objects.

INTERFACULTY HARRIERS MEET TO-MORROW STARTING FROM U.C.C.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Saturday will see all four Varsity rugby teams in action in Toronto. The Juniors, who have been travelling at a great speed, will visit McMaster, and are fully expected to win by a handy margin. The Intermediates have a harder job when Western, the present leaders, play them at the Stadium in the morning. Of the Orphans, another win over Camp Borden is what the "wise ones" are expecting, and this proposed win should leave them in excellent position for trying up with Balmy Beach for the lead in the O.R.F.U. series. The biggest job of all is given to the Intercollegiate squad. A much talked of three-cornered tie is what Ronnie McPherson is praying for; and he is not only praying, for the old adage of "Believe in God and keep your powder dry," is being applied, with heavy practices each night.

The past week-end brought a bit of business for the local jewellers. Three handsome silver trophies recently returned to Toronto and are being engraved and shined in order to make a respectable appearance in the glass cases at Hart House. The tennis trophy has been away the longest, and McGill fought hard to stretch the six-year possession into seven. The golf championship has not been away so long and returns only after two years' stay in the eastern city. The shortest trip of all was that of the cup which journeyed to Kingston for the track meet and came right back home to Toronto for another year.

Although the assaults-at-arms are far in the future, the mat and ring artists are gradually easing into work. Graduation has not made very great inroads into last year's team, and the incoming freshman year is almost sure of bolstering up the squad. The fencers are hard at work again under Messrs. Walters and Moore. Recent alterations in the arrangement of equipment has met with the general approval of the foil artists, and interest in this fine art has undergone a revival.

The recent outbreak of smallpox at Victoria has not only proved an inconvenience to the students there, but has somewhat disrupted all interfacult sports. Some of the water polo games are postponed on account of the necessary vaccinations; soccer games and Mulock cup games also had to be postponed, and this will involve some crowding at the end of the season. The co-eds are also affected by the vaccination order, as the basketball practices have fallen off, and the women's intercollegiate tennis team is threatened with the loss of Miss Norma Bateman through being quarantined.

The Medical Faculty of the Université de Montréal, it is announced, will in a year or two move into a complete new set of buildings behind Mount Royal and near the famous Shrine of St. Joseph. The extensive site has been purchased, and plans are now being made for a hospital, lecture rooms, and laboratories for the medical faculty which are to cost in the neighbourhood of two million dollars. These buildings are to be in the French style of architecture and work will begin next spring.

INTERCOLLEGIATES HELD TO 5-4 SCORE

The Two Senior Teams Held Good Workout at Stadium Last Night

NO ONE INJURED

Last night at the Stadium, Coaches McPherson and Pearson again had their proteges going through their work, and this time the Orphans were able to hold the Intercollegiates to a 5-4 score, although the firsts were within a yard of increasing their total to 10 when Ronnie decided that there had been enough of twilight work.

Harrison was showing some real good plunging in the practice game, especially when he went through the left wing for a 40 yard jaunt and later through the right wing for 20 more.

Snyder likewise made a couple of nice gains through centre. However, these were almost annulled when Lorne McIntyre broke through centre for a gain of almost half the length of the field. McIntyre was up to his old standard in booting the pill and scored a rouge on the kick-off.

While the teams were running through some signals, Ronnie had Jack Sinclair in hand to improve his drop kicking, and Jack dropped them over with deadly regularity from 35 yards out. Fortunately there were no injuries in the practice last night, for if there should be any more practices with a casualty list like that of Tuesday, the squad would have to be picked from the juniors. Gay Kirkpatrick of the O.R.F.U. line-up is still out of the game and will be for some time yet. He made a mistake in turning out last week, as the ankle was just healing nicely when it was given another twist. He has hopes of playing against Balmy Beach on Thanksgiving Day.

Spread of Smallpox Epidemic Exaggerated Outside Toronto

The six light cases of smallpox which so greatly disturbed the University have spread their fame even farther. Rumours have been spreading and increasing far beyond the limits of Ontario. The recent typhoid epidemic in Montreal, which received such widespread publicity to the south, is believed to have had some effect on the fables regarding Toronto's smallpox scare. E. R. Powell, secretary-treasurer of the Toronto Convention and Tourist Association, reported that he had received a letter saying that it had been rumoured in the States that there were 500 cases of smallpox in Toronto.

LIBERAL POLICIES UPHELD IN HART HOUSE DEBATE

were like his religion, a mere accident of birth. The Liberal government might be charged either with sins of omission or commission. But the recently adopted Tory platform did not indicate what sins of omission the King Government was committing. He characterized the Tory convention as a meeting of party campaigners dicker for the support of all people at one time. Finally he mentioned tax reduction and the adoption of the Duncan report as examples of positive Liberal legislation.

Mr. W. L. Smith of Trinity then spoke. He absolved the Liberal administration of sins of commission since they had done nothing. The only thing that kept the King Government in power was the blind partisanship of its supporters. He condemned the opposition because, having no positive policy to defend, it could only attack the Conservative platform. The difference between the Liberal and Conservative tariff policy was that the Conservatives sincerely supported a moderate tariff, while the Liberals were forced to support a tariff they did not believe in. The King Government was only concerned with an apparent present prosperity. The youth of the country had a duty to look to the future—a future that was not assuring because of the weak policy of the present Government.

Mr. F. St. L. Daly was the last speaker from the paper. He complimented the previous speaker for his eloquent address, but declared that eloquence and logic were not of necessity connected. The House was not there to listen to eloquence, but to discuss the motion. He continued the attack on the Conservative platform, quoting Mr. T. L. Church. He also quoted Mr. Baldwin, who had declared that the success of the last Imperial Conference had been largely due to Mr. King. As for positive achievements there were the Old Age Pensions, the Duncan Report and the Hudson Bay Railroad. He declared that he had more confidence in the experienced Mr. King than the inexperienced Mr. Bennett.

From the floor of the House Mr. Perkins, U.C., declared that the debate should be restrained to consideration of the Liberal Government, not of the Conservative platform.

Mr. McGregor said that the Conservatives had gone to Winnipeg to construct a platform. They had made at first a boxing ring, and then a running track, and were now on their way to the cemetery.

Mr. Aitken declared that he had no confidence in a dog that allowed its tail to wag it or in a government that let a third group sway it.

Mr. De Pencier had no confidence in any government. The Liberal Government was the best of a bad lot.

Mr. Pluntre spoke as an anarchist. Mr. B. J. Thompson, U.C., said there could be no such thing as a vigorous immigration policy at the present time. We must entice newcomers to Canada by transforming the coun-

STUDENT OF TO-DAY DEFENDED BY STAFF

Dr. J. C. Meakins' Charge of Too Much "Newspaper Mind" Answered

In reference to the charge of Dr. J. C. Meakins, Professor of Medicine at McGill University, that the University students on the North American continent suffer too much from "Newspaper Mind," several members of the staff of the University were interviewed. Dr. Meakins also remarked in the same address which he gave the Association of U.S. Medical Colleges, that Scottish University students still retained their love of good English and sound reasoning. The gentlemen interviewed all seemed of the opinion that Dr. Meakins' opinion was a hasty judgment.

A common failing of many now of middle age is to compare the students of to-day with those of twenty-five or thirty years ago, and come forth and say that the student mind has deteriorated in so far as aesthetic appreciation of good literature was concerned. It has been maintained that the personnel of the "students" has increased rather than changed and that there are just as many serious students, even in the pass course, as there are flappers looking for husbands. To-day there are more and greater distractions and no longer is the student who has time on his hands driven to reading in order to kill it.

There was much more drinking in the good old days than now, in spite of all we hear about the good old tankard carried on the hip. In one well-known Canadian University town there were thirty-seven hotels, which means thirty-seven bars, whereas now the students do nicely with one store under the management of the O.L.C.B. So lives have changed exceedingly, and from a prohibitionist point of view, probably for the better. The co-eds in those days used powder sparingly, and never the lipstick; now fortunately they do, and what is more have learned to apply both with a deftness which in many cases improves upon nature.

Other speakers from the floor of the House were: For the ayes, Messrs. Finlayson, Delmer, Soward and Arrell; for the noes, Messrs. Cadwell, Gringorten, Currie and Gelber.

Mr. Andrew closed the discussion for the affirmative.

The tellers were: For the ayes, Mr. J. H. Gringorten and Mr. J. G. Currie; for the noes, Mr. W. P. Mathews and Mr. C. F. Burk.

VIVID PICTURE OF LIFE OF EUROPEAN STUDENTS

Mr. Roy Lee Speaks on Behalf of International Students' Service

"The student is the most valuable person in the community, even if we, as students, do think so," said Mr. Roy Lee in an address to the women students of Victoria College, in Annesley Common Room at 1.30 p.m. on Wednesday. Mr. Lee, who is now touring Canada and the United States in the interests of the International Students' Service, went on to give a vivid picture of the miserable living conditions of European students during the years immediately following the World War. He pointed out that, although organizations had been formed to carry on relief work in war-stricken areas, the student class had been entirely overlooked, until the European Students' Relief supplied this need. In the year 1920 this society started its great work by opening self-help institutions in Vienna, to be run by students, for students. Such an inestimable need did it feel, that its fame soon spread to other European countries, and before long the lives of between two and three thousand students had been saved and they themselves enabled to carry on their academic pursuits.

Mr. Lee went on to say that when, after the lapse of several years, Europe seemed to be attaining a certain degree of stabilization when it seemed probable that students could support themselves unaided—the European Students' Relief proposed to disorganize. But great protests arose. "You have brought back to us faith in life!" was the grateful cry of students all over Europe.

And so this organization, now known as the International Students' Service, undertook the great task of promoting world fellowship among students. Surely the work of such a task as this cannot be over-estimated. In closing, Mr. Lee stated that "there are far more factors making for war now than in 1913," and that "it is only through the work of such societies as the International Students' Service, making for mutual understanding and friendship among the coming leaders of the world, that true world peace can be established."

Another member of the English staff remarked that the number of students who are "workers" is about the same as the "good old days," although the number of students attending universities was relatively smaller, especially when compared to the population of the country at large. Nowadays it is quite common for many students of both sexes to come up to University without the faintest idea as to their calling in after life.

NEED OF SPIRITUAL LIFE STRESSED BY PROVOST

and engagements, one was all too likely to overlook the spiritual side of things, and to concentrate all one's energies on the material side. "We are too occupied to-day," he remarked, and described how this pre-occupation was leading to a lack of interest in religion, and indifference to things connected with it.

The parable of the Sower illustrated very ably the irresponsiveness of one's mind to these matters. The Provost asserted that our Lord, in the phrase, "The Word of God," had included all the good influences with which one was likely to come in contact. Some people were by nature so hard and unfeeling that the Word and these influences made no impression on them whatsoever. The nature of others was so shallow that, while the seed of the Word might take root for a time, lack of food would soon cause it to perish.

But the most common class of all to-day were those in whose nature the seed does take root, but is choked out owing to lack of room. The pressure of other interests caused it to be neglected and so to wither away, whereas with a little attention, it might have blossomed forth, and achieved much good. It was very easy to let religion stop and to plead in excuse, lack of time, but, as Provost Cosgrave pointed out, it had its place in a well-balanced existence, and it was a mistake to ignore it.

It was a vital need, the speaker declared, to develop the spiritual element in life. This could not merely be derived from church services, some of which afforded no opportunity for meditation, but must also be obtained through prayer. Many people overlooked the medium of prayer in their rush to get started at work in the morning, and owing to exhaustion at night. But clear, calm spaces for quiet and meditation, when prayer could be made, ought not to be neglected. The Provost characterized as "extraordinarily mean" the type of person who goes through life in perfect health, and full possession of every faculty, and yet fails to render his thanks to the Creator for the benefits he has received.

"One of the most important things that faces us in life is to know the will of God," said Provost Cosgrave. In order to hear it, one must listen for it. It is necessary to do many things in carrying out His work; to endeavour to see things in the "Light of God's Truth," to strive to demean oneself and to think more of Him,

PREFERENCE GIVEN BRITISH EDITIONS

Chief Librarian and Board Appointed by Him Choose Library Books

THOMPSON "HIGH-HANDED"

William Hale Thompson, Esq., well known Mayor of hyphenated Chicago, has been conducting a campaign to rid his city of the insidious influence of British books in public libraries. "The Varsity" attempted to secure details in regard to the possibility of publicly burning on the front campus books of propaganda style from the south of us.

In the University Library, exact information as to the proportion of British and American edited books is not available. However, Professor Wallace states that it has always been the policy in the Library to purchase British editions wherever these were available in preference to editions from other countries.

In Professor Wallace's opinion the actions of Mayor Thompson are very "high-handed" and will be difficult of legal justification.

Should a Toronto Mayor attempt to retaliate to Mr. Thompson's action he would encounter innumerable difficulties. The choice of books in the Toronto Library is left to Mr. Locke and a committee appointed by him. No discrimination is shown except that where a British edited or written book is equal or better than one printed in the United States, the former is given the preference.

ACTION AND THRILLS PROMISED IN VARSITY-CAMP BORDEN FRAY

Both Teams Feature Open Style of Play—Taking Chances Galore

Varsity Needs Victory

Local Entry Must Win To-morrow
To Stay in Race With League Leaders

The Varsity O.R.F.U. team has three more games on its schedule, and in order to tie with Balmby Beach for first place, all games must be won. Last Saturday Camp Borden surprised the locals by forcing them to go the limit to win, so those unable to secure tickets for the Queen's game are well advised to travel to watch the Orphans perform. Dave Harding and his fliers are bound to bring a big surprise with them from the airdrome, as this erstwhile Queen's star has been popular for other reasons than good football. However, "Mike" Pearson has been noted in the past for using one or two tricks himself, and has a happy faculty for imbuing his proteges with these tricks.

The Ontario Union game in all probabilities will prove more to the taste of the fans than the one Queen's will play. The Intercollegiate play a steadier, more consistent and scientific game. Their task is one which requires this type of play, and hence its use. However, throughout the season, and in all probabilities to-morrow the Orphans' game will be that of a dashing attack and plenty of open work. Such play is always popular with Mr. Fan, and if there is a fumble or two to add to the interest, the aforementioned Mr. Fan does not object.

If a resume is taken of the current season, you will find that the open play has predominated in all the O.R. (Continued on page 4)

INTERMEDIATE GAME TO COMPLETE SERIES

Varsity and O.A.C. Battle for Third Place on Campus
To-morrow

Western Leads Group

Intermediate Intercollegiate rugby for the season when the Varsity aggregation engage the O.A.C. entry on the back campus Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. The University of Western Ontario appear to have clinched the title for the second successive year by remaining undefeated to date, but the outlook may be changed on Saturday when St. Mike's, runners-up, battle with the Purple and White in London. A win for Varsity on Saturday will leave the team in third position, while a loss will give the O.A.C. the position.

The Intermediates always have a hard row to hoe, as the Mulock Cup teams have many players who would more than show up well in higher circles. Then again they meet the best that opposing colleges can produce. This year several of the team show up well.

Ralph Honey at outside wing has been showing a real brand of rugby all season. He has no hesitancy in leaving his feet on tackles, and hits his man hard. "Al" McCulloch, his co-worker, is just about as good, and few plays go around either end. "Jimmie" Johnstone, the kicking half, gets the ball away neatly on punts, handles the ball well, and should be heard of later in a higher series.

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY

International Students' Service at Paris Does Notable Work to Lighten Troubles

A graphic general outline of student conditions in Europe was given by Mr. Roy Lee in the Hart House Lecture Room at noon yesterday. Mr. Lee is a graduate of the University of Sydney, Australia, and also of Oxford, England. During the past year he was secretary of the International Students' Service at Paris, and thus is very well informed on conditions under which students live in Europe at the present time.

In introducing his subject, Mr. Lee pointed out the difficulty of grasping the actual life and trends of thought in Europe when coming from a country with liberal ideas, such as Canada or Australia. In Europe classes of society are fixed, and it is difficult to move from one social status to another. Wide differences in social customs exist between different countries even though they may border one another.

Mr. Lee stated further that the economic and social system must be taken into account when dealing with student conditions. The war greatly impoverished the countries of Eur- (Continued on page 4)

"We realize that artificial illumination in University College is not up to the present-day standard," Colonel Le Pan, Superintendent of Buildings of the University of Toronto, told "The Varsity" in an interview regarding "Spec's" letter in the Correspondence Column, "and an effort is being made as money permits to remedy this condition with particular reference to the rooms referred to by your correspondent. Instructions have already been given to investigate this condition, and some effort will be made to better it."

Col. Le Pan pointed out that University College is an old building, and that therefore the permanent illumination effects could not be expected to measure up to the modern standard. He stated that it is practically impossible to remedy the lighting effects as they exist in some rooms, without disarranging the whole building. The Superintendent realizes that artificial illumination in University College and in other buildings of the University are not up to the rapidly-changing standard, but an effort is being made (Continued on page 4)

MISS CLARA GRAY OPPOSES

"This House is of the opinion that sports are an aid to study rather than a hindrance." With this rather startling statement began an interesting debate held by the U.C. Women's Debating Club at the University College Women's Union Thursday. The position of the government was ably introduced by Timina Littner, who stated modestly that the subject was chosen not only because of its interest but also because it was calculated to display the wit and eloquence of the debaters. She stressed the point that the co-operation learned in games and the competitive spirit there might be brought into the lecture room with advantage.

TEAMS ARE WELL MATCHED

Injured Queen's Players Reported
Fully Recovered and Ready
For Action

There will be two desperate teams battling it out at the Stadium to-morrow afternoon when Varsity and Queen's meet in the last local game of the Intercollegiate rugby season. Both teams will be in there trying with everything they have for a win, for the game means much to both.

Varsity cannot even consider losing, as a loss will mean that their last hope of a championship has gone. Queen's are in a slightly better position, for even if they lose they will still be on even terms with the Blue and White and will still have a chance to be in on a three-cornered tie.

Queen's supporters are confident that their team will emerge victorious from the fray, and they have good reason for their belief. Indeed, the Tricolour supporters have visions of the glories of former years, when Kingston was the rugby capital of Canada. It is reported that three thousand Queen's supporters will be on hand for the game to encourage their team.

Varsity supporters, on the other hand, realize that it is a big task that confronts the team to-morrow. It is a case of win or out. But five thousand undergrads, and more than that number of graduates, are confident that their team will come through with a victory over their old rivals. The wonderful showing made last week in Kingston has done much to stimulate interest in the game and in the team's chances.

The Queen's team this year has on it several stars of the first magnitude. Batstone undeniably is a wonderful (Continued from page 3)

Varsity Juniors TO FACE McMASTER

Victory for Blue and White Places Them in Semifinals

BLUE HAS STRONG LINE-UP

The Varsity Juniors visit McMaster footballers on Saturday morning in what looks like the best junior game of the year. The Macs seem to be the only team capable of giving the Blue cohorts a close game, and in the last set-to between these rivals, although the result was a win for Jimmie Douglas' fighting lads, the Bloor Street aggregation gave them the closest fight in the entire Intercollegiate race. A win for the Blue and White means the section, as they have yet to lose a single fixture. The last game in which the Varsity clan took part was a wild scamper home with the bacon from the Agriculturists' twelve, and though the form displayed was not the Blue best they showed that the "goods" are there.

The Juniors' line is one of the strongest produced here in many a moon, with Solandt, the Jarvis Collegiate graduate, a sure ground gainer on all plunges, while Barret and Pugley are no mean slouches at hitting the line. The game should be worth while seeing, and a real turn-out of supporters would be a great thing for the "kids."

ALL PATHS TO THE STADIUM

All paths lead toward the Stadium to-morrow. With three thousand earnest supporters from Kingston behind them, Queen's, still very much in the hunt for a College football championship, come to town, hoping against hope for their second successive victory and its promise of a fifth Intercollegiate football title since the Tricolour broke through the championship barriers five years ago.

And a cool, poised Blue and White squad awaits them. With confidence unshattered by two successive and unexpected reverses in the College race, Varsity's representatives feel confident of victory to-morrow—feel certain that they will not alone shatter the great Queen's machine but that they will also smash through the defence of old McGill in Montreal one week hence, and thus assure the Red and White of their first title since 1919, or else do their part in creating a three-cornered tie for the Intercollegiate title to once more provide the stirring gridiron features of a year ago.

Undergraduates stand solidly behind their team to-day. The Blue's resourcefulness and fight in Kingston one week ago, as well as their brilliant promise for the future, have made the McPhersonites distinctly popular, and the indications are that some distinctly old-time rooting will be in order. That the teams are most evenly matched cannot be denied. That the Blue are the better we cannot help but feel, but one cannot but fail to remember those fifty-one minutes of scoreless play provided in Kingston one week ago. Nor how we waited, as the minutes, crept by, for the scoring of the point that clearly meant the game.

With everything to win and nothing to lose, it should be a vastly different game to-morrow, with more open play and more chances taken. Like all Varsity teams, the Blue fight best when possibilities appear most faint, and even the most optimistic supporter will admit that the locals have their backs decidedly to the wall, with a loss meaning nothing but elimination and a lonely position in the cellar of the race.

The coaches have spared neither themselves nor their players during the past week, and their supporters should not confine their vocal efforts to-morrow. Given whole-hearted support, the cheer-leaders will ably assist our team as the boys fight in what may be their last local battle of the Intercollegiate season.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The statement of Colonel Le Pan, Superintendent of Buildings of the University of Toronto, with reference to the lighting conditions in University College should satisfy the undergraduate body that the matter has received the careful consideration of the University authorities and that steps will be taken to alleviate present conditions as circumstances permit. As instructions have already been given for investigation of the matter an effort should also be made, at the same time, to ascertain the state of ventilation of the rooms in question. Indifferent attention on the part of students, apparently dull lectures and heavy minds may all be attributed to the lack of proper methods for the distribution of fresh air—a condition which, if it exists as seems apparent, requires equally as careful consideration.

Would-Be Romeo Vainly Awaits Quarantined Juliet's Appearance

"Beneath thy window"—but which window, was the problem confronting a would-be Romeo who stood before Annesley Hall counting the crystal panes.
"Second window from the ivy covered portico"—so moved the index finger. "Fourth window from the rusty caverstrough," his mute lips seemed to say. And then, gazing the distance from window sill to garden bed below, he clutched a coat lapel, as if to produce from behind it a telescopic ladder or grandma's inch tape, the kind usually emitted from the thorax of a lusty hound. Still the problem baffled him. Then, no quarantined maiden appearing to gladden his soul, and with not even an encouraging rosebud tossed from the depths of a mosquito netting, the prince incognito turned on a practical heel—and fled!

The Hart House Debate

Some Critical Observations by "Onlooker"

The first of this year's Hart House debates was excellent from the point of view of interest shown, the size of the audience, and the number of those who took part (or attempted to do so). The debating itself was representative of quantity rather than quality, although there were some first-rate statements made by the various speakers. The tendency was, however, to dodge the issue, "That this House has no confidence in His Majesty's government at Ottawa," and to devote the whole of the discussion to immigration and the Winnipeg Convention. The first speaker—Mr. Andrew—left no doubt as to his ancestry and politics in his remarks about the scum of Europe filled with Soviet ideas who were forming the bulk of Canada's immigrants. In reply it might be suggested that these same immigrants will soon become our fellow citizens, and such remarks or sentiments will not make Canada's problems any easier to solve. A very able statesman has said that "an anti-alien spirit is often a confession of one's own inferiority." Mr. Smith grows better on every occasion, and his skill in repartee is delightful. One hopes that his manner will always continue, simple and internate, and never grow uncouth or "professional." Both Mr. McCullagh and Mr. Daly devoted themselves almost exclusively to attacking the Conservatives and their proposed platform rather than showing the merits of their own case. In extenuation it may be said that they only had need of that in the event of their opponents being able to show satisfactory grounds for the motion, and that was not done.

The speakers from the floor were on the whole very good and extremely keen. One sympathized with "The Speaker" in his unenviable task of trying to choose one of many without hurting the feelings of those overlooked. Among these speakers, too, the inclination was to deal with anything save the motion before the House. But on the whole it was a thoroughly satisfactory debate, and showed a great deal of interest on the part of the undergraduate body. If an observer might make a suggestion, it would be that those taking part in the debate should refer to "Mr. Speaker" less emphatically and less often. The uninitiated might be led to believe that he occupied the position of the "Good Lord."

Unfortunately, we feel obliged to devote to-day's issue entirely to the "Enlivened History of England," by Dr. John Tiffany of Volapuk University:

Episode IV.

Dear Kat:

The Normans are now in possession. In my desire to be accurate, I refrain from any explanation as to how they got there. There they are, and it is too late in the day to inquire into their credentials.

The first Norman was William I—he was also the first William, as his name denotes. He ascended the throne on a given date, and died at a later period. During the interim—he reigned. On the day of his death he fell off his horse and the sagacious beast trod on him. The horse is a noble animal.

William 2nd succeeded him. By a curious coincidence, he began to reign on the same day his predecessor died. This monarch was very fond of hunting, and one day, while engaged in the pursuit with his chosen comrades, Nat Tyler, William Tell and Robin Hood, they began the popular Norman pastime of shooting apples off each other's heads.

When it came to the King's turn, he said to William Tell, "Shoot! Father! I am not afraid." William Tell said, "Neither am I!" and shot. My history does not relate how it happened—but—there was a new dynasty.

Yours for the future,
John Tiffany.

Episode V.

Dear Kat:

Do you know who the Plantagenets were? Well, the Plantagenets were derived from the Latin "Planta," a plant, and "genus," a kind—meaning a plant of a kind, or a sort of a kind of a plant, or something to that effect. They came to the throne—because—the throne didn't come to them. Much has been written about this dynasty that is merely heresy, but out of the mass of uncorroborated detail I have, with greatest success, been able to glean a few verified facts.

One of the most celebrated of their line was a man named Richard—he sold his kingdom for a horse, and joined a few other kings in a trip to Palestine.

While there he fell in with a person called Blondin (a strolling musician, who performed, on the tight-rope). Blondin promptly assassinated Richard, and retired on the proceeds. John succeeded—and failed, so there was a fresh dynasty.

Students Take Advantage of Successful Faculty Tea

The third of the faculty teas was held yesterday afternoon in the cozy Graduates' Common Room at the Library. Many students took advantage of the opportunity to meet the professors and their wives in this delightful manner, and judging from the hum of conversation, spent an enjoyable half-hour.

Mrs. Knox and Mrs. Needler received the guests. Miss McCallum poured tea, and assisting her were Mrs. Leslie McCallum, Mrs. McKellar, Mrs. Chant and Mrs. J. F. MacDonald.

Doctor more than it worries us:

Dear Cham-puss:

Your brilliant historian, Dr. John Tiffany, in his lecture of a few days ago, says, "Boadicea heard that Julius Caesar and a few friends from Rome had dropped in to see her."

This is a poor rendering of the original. If he cares to look up Chap. XLX, lines 50 and on, in "The love affairs of Caesar Julius," illustrated by Star Weekly and published by Maie Globe and Telestar Unlimited, he will or will not find this translation, "Boadicea heard that Julius Caesar and some friends had roamed to her abode ter see 'er."

Or, again the pathetic little book (bound in calf), "Was Boadicea ever a freshette," published by the Torgill and Maconato Trouser and Tie Press Co. (no pictures), he will find this version, "Boadicea hearing that Julius roamed to seize her, said to his friends that she had a beau to see her."

Which is correct? The Doctor may like to see the books I mention.

Historically,

Kayarbee.

A lawyer who advertised for a chauffeur, when questioning a negro applicant, said: "How about you, George; are you married?" "Naw, sir, boss; naw, sir. Ah makes my own livin'."—Laughter.

VARSITY'S LAST CHANCE TO-MORROW IN GAME WITH QUEEN'S

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Well, it's a case of "do or die" to-morrow for the Intercollegiate, and for that matter for the Oriu's too. But judging by past performances, and present indications, the odds are all on "Do."

McPherson's outfit will be in there trying all the time, and it will take far more than the Queen's team showed in Kingston to hold them in check this week. Varsity let their opponents do all the playing last week, and at that had them bottled up in their own end of the field for a great part of the game. But just watch the boys step out on Saturday before a home crowd walk away.

And while the Men of McPherson are battling with Queen's, Pearson's Pets take on the ever-dangerous Camp Borden team. The Fliers have yet to win a game, but that only makes them the more dangerous as they are all set to bring into the win column. They sprang a surprise last week by holding Varsity to an 11-6 score. Varsity has to win this game to stay in the running, and it is quite unlikely that they will disappoint their supporters.

Warren, who teams up with Batstone on the Queen's backfield, is reported out of the game through injuries received in practice. Warren is supposed to be the find of the season, and was one of the stars of the game between McGill and Queen's. He was watched too closely by the Varsity outsiders to be able to get away with very much, but nevertheless he was a valuable man and will be greatly missed by the Tricolour.

But the loss of Warren to Queen's will be offset by the absence of Herb Little on the Varsity squad. Little was one of the most effective line men in the game last week, and will be sorely missed. However, there is no lack of material, and some one else will probably make a name for himself.

Chubby Dunne, star line man on the Queen's team, who has been out of the game for a couple of weeks, may be in Saturday's fracas. He has had his leg in a cast, but this has now been removed, and it is quite possible that he will be found in the line-up. Ike Sutton, who was injured in the Varsity game, is getting along nicely, and may also be among those present when the whistle blows. However, it is probable that Chick Mundell will get the call for the quarter-back position. Both are capable performers, and it should make little difference who calls the signals.

And just while we're still on the subject of rugby, don't forget the Junior game on Saturday. The Infants have a team this year that compares very favourably with the championship aggregations of past seasons and they appear to be headed for another title. They meet McMaster to-morrow, and the game should be a real battle, as McMaster gave the Blue outfit their hardest game of the season when they last met.

TRINITY SCIENCE CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MEETING

Paper on "Mining Industry in Northern Ontario" Read by Mr. Evans

The second regular meeting of the Trinity College Science Club was held on Tuesday at the home of Canon Rollo, the Honorary President of the Society, who acted as host for the evening.

The programme consisted of a paper given by Mr. C. C. Evans, on "The Mining Industry in Northern Ontario." He stressed the recency of the mining development in Northern Ontario.

Mr. Evans spoke especially of the nickel, zinc and lead mines and their tremendous possibilities. The essayist was intimately acquainted with his subject, and told many interesting stories about particular mines around Sudbury.

He described briefly the method of bringing the ore to the surface and the early stages of smelting.

Co-eds Will Conduct Tag Day To Assist Rowing Club's Appeal

In 1924 Canada was represented at the Olympic Games in Paris by an eight-oared crew from the University of Toronto. The record of this crew was excellent before their trip to France, and their showing in the Games enhanced their reputation, as they were second only to the Yale crew, representing the United States, and defeated England, Australia and Belgium.

Since 1924 the University of Toronto Senior crews have always been strong contenders in the Canadian Championship Regattas, and it is the hope of the Rowing Club to send a crew to the Olympic trials next July that will be worthy representatives of the University, and of Canada.

The general expenses of the Rowing Club are met by the Athletic Association, but there are many extra expenses such as the buying of new shells and the maintenance of a coach boat. It is the responsibility of the undergraduate executive of the Rowing Club to raise money for these extra expenses, and in view of the added expense of sending a crew to the Olympic trials, and, if worthy, to the Olympic Games, it has been decided to appeal to the undergraduates of the University and other friends of the University attending the rugby game on Saturday.

This appeal will take the form of a Tag Day, and the co-eds have shown their interest by becoming the saleswomen.

When asked to buy a tag, think of the past and help the future!

BLUE AND WHITE TO MEET IN DESPERATE STRUGGLE

player, and his team-mate, Warren, late of Western, is a worthy running mate for the famous "Red." At flying wing Bubs Britton is a tower of strength, both on the attack and on the defence. His tackling is a treat to watch, and he is a fast man on end runs. Walker and Agnew at the outside wing positions are a pair of fast and flashy wings who get down on the kicks and usually bring down their man.

It is perhaps at middle wing that the Tricolour is the strongest. Howard and Walker started at this position last week, and they gave a wonderful exhibition of line plunging. Besides this pair there is a strong probability that Dunne will be in the game. "Chubby" is a star at this position, but he has been out of the game all season through injuries.

Brown, Nagel and Handford, the insides and snap, form a strong trio in the centre of the line. At the quarter back position Mundell and Sutton are both stars. "Ike" Sutton was injured in the Varsity game, but he will probably be in the game.

The Varsity squad finished their training last night with a short snappy practice feature by a half-hour practice game with the O.R.F.U. squad. They showed more than they have at any practice to date and gave the rail-birds plenty to enthuse over. Harrison broke away several times for good gains and should make a good showing. Don Carrick was back in his old form and tore through the line like a house afire. In fact, every one on the squad seems to be right at the height of his form.

Trimble and Sinclair are catching faultlessly, and the latter is booting them in a style that promises to give Batstone something to shoot at. Daly, Kirkpatrick, Morgan and Stewart are a quartet of outsiders that will give the Queen's backfield plenty to worry about. Daly went the whole game at Kingston without a rest and is ready to do the same here if called upon. Dundas, Stollery and Calnan form a trio of middle wings that is hard to beat. Any one of them can hold his own in any company, and they do not have to take a back seat to the Queen's outfit in any department of the game. For insides Ronnie has Carrick, Rykert and Bean available, and it is a toss who will start. It really makes little difference, for they are all stars.

Masters and Keith are good snaps, and at quarter Murray Snyder and Hallam are both ready to go. Snyder played his first game at this position last week and he made good with a vengeance. With that experience back of him and with another week's practice he should be one of the stars of the game. Traynor, who comes from the Regina Pats, is a fixture at outside wing. He is a sure tackle and carries the ball frequently on extensions, being one of the fastest men on the squad.

Senior School Defeats Meds

Sr. School defeated their old rivals Sr. Meds 6-0 in a fast game in the tank last night. Goss and Thwaites starred for School. Williams was the best for Meds.

FORESTRY TAKE GAME FROM KNOX COLLEGE

Rally for Victory in Last Moments of Hard Fought Tussle

MULOCK CUP SERIES

Knox lost to Forestry in the second game of their group in the Mulock Cup series yesterday afternoon to the tune of 13-7. The game was far closer than the score would indicate, both teams fighting hard all the time. The first half of the game belonged to Knox, but in the last half Forestry rallied to take the victory from their hands. Knox did some good plunging, getting yards as often as five times in succession, but Forestry's line held in the crucial stage of the game; for four times Knox had the ball one yard from the line and failed to buck over. The Presbyterians were weak in tackling and failed to stop Forestry's backfield men.

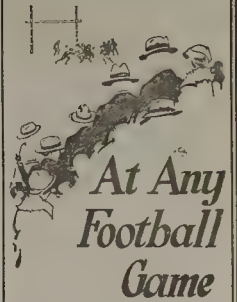

For Forestry, Simpson and Leslie in the backfield were the outstanding stars, carrying the ball through for huge gains. For Knox, Perry and Barclay starred with their repeated gains through the line, while the tackling of the veteran Hill on the outside wing was good. A perfect inside from Sinclair to Barclay in the second quarter was a feature of the game.

WOMEN DECRY SPORTS IN SPIRITED DEBATE

tion, virtuously deplored the trend of modern athletic loyalty to the neglecting of studies.

The house was then thrown open to discussion, and the number of members taking part showed that the subject was one vital to the hearts of co-eds. In her refutation Miss Litterer displayed a cynical disbelief in the students' love of study, deplorable in one so young. After a vote was taken, the house decided that sports were certainly not an aid to study. The club then adjourned to the faculty tea.

The speakers at the next meeting will be Miss Brown and Miss Bowles.

Miss Macdonald is Struck With Courtesy of Canadians

"More than anything else, I have been struck by the kindness I have received since arriving in Canada," said Miss F. Macdonald, M.B.E., F.R.G.S., of England, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday at Wymilwood. Also she was amazed at the number of motor cars here and the variety of salads.

"The students have been so courteous to me," she continued. "But you see, I shine with reflected glory, being connected with so many distinguished people; it gives me a halo that I haven't got!" Miss Macdonald is a cousin and personal friend of Rudyard Kipling, Stanley Baldwin and Sir Hugh Poynter, but her father was distinguished in religious and literary circles.

Miss Macdonald remembered when, as a lad, the former poet Laureate used to terrify his young cousins with his own imaginative stories. She recalled, also, that Premier Baldwin when very young was always forming parliaments, with himself as prime minister.

Miss Macdonald came to Canada in connection with a Touring Guild, and intends to lecture in some of the larger cities. It is her first visit to this country, and so she appreciates the fine weather which the "Canadian Weatherman" has so kindly supplied.

ACTION AND THRILLS IN VARSITY—CAMP BORDEN

F.U. games. The free passing, long lateral pass and extended runs are more effective thrill producers than any other part of the Canadian game. The Pearsonites follow this practice; they are willing to take a chance, and as often as not they come through with a thrilling play and a substantial gain. Fumbles are almost inevitable, so the locals are ever on the alert for loose balls.

To-morrow's line-up will be practically the same as in previous games, for this week's practices have been void of serious injuries. The two main casualties are still out of the game and there is no telling the length of their absence, Christie and Kirkpatrick being the unfortunate ones.

Morgan at flying-wing has been playing an excellent game all season and vies with Traynor's reputation, which has been a scintillating light of the Intercollegiate. Morgan is strong both defensively and offensively.

McIntyre and kicking are two names that are almost synonymous. Lorne has been giving the pigskin exceptionally long rides this season, and his powerful booting may almost be considered the feature in the O.R.F.U. games.

Davies is a good co-worker on the half line, and although perhaps not as consistent as is desired, he is capable of some exceptionally fine football. Against Hamilton he shone by flashy broken field runs.

Bill Woods is the third man on the half line, and this is his first year at the position, as on other years he played outside wing. The change has agreed with him, as he has proved a tower of strength on secondary defence and no mean ball carrier when the occasion demanded.

Daly had his opportunity when Keith was moved up to the Intercollegiate, and as a snap is showing some real work at this position.

For the line positions Scott, Gray, Carrick and Swartman are hefty men to stop any and all plunges of the opposition. Gray is the only veteran of the quartette, Carrick being a freshman, while Scott and Swartman are of last year's Intermediate team. These four have been doing some fine plunging.

Beal at quarter is a real general and gets lots of variety in his signals. He does not make the mistake of using one man until all in, and psychology is a big factor when George calls "em. Dunn and Jeffries at outside wing are two of the most consistent players of the team. Each tries to beat the other in getting up on kicks, and both team together well in making tackles. These two tackle hard, and it is a good team which can get a run working when "George and Jeff" are in trim playing order.

Neither are the subs weak, and Coach Pearson has men ready to step in at any moment without appreciably weakening the team. Baillie and Spencer are heady players on the back division, while Kirkpatrick would be on regular were it not for his bad ankle. "Bloody" Kirkland of boxing fame, Wesley and Jerry Woods are three dependable line men of merit, while Ruddell and Cartwright are willing to step in any time to relieve the outside wings. Dunlap has been giving Morgan a real battle for the flying-wing position and is a good ball carrier.

In all, "Mike" has real championship team, and if not successful in taking the honours, Balm Beach will know that they have had a real battle for the title, and "if" the Beacherites do come out in front, they will have well earned it.

A try-out for the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Team will be held in the Women's Union on Monday, Oct. 31st, at 4 o'clock. The contestants will be given a four minute trial and may speak on any of the following subjects: (1) Resolved that the influence of the philosopher on society is greater than the influence of society upon the philosopher. (2) Resolved that the project of the Junior College is in the best interest of higher education. (3) Resolved that the present educational system affords adequate preparation for modern life. The trials will last from 4 till 5.30. Contestants will receive any time between these hours.

EUROPEAN STUDENTS SUFFER PAUPERISM

ope, and this poverty was felt very poignantly by the student class. With a view to relief work the World's Student Christian Federation formed the International Students' Service. During the period from 1920 to 1925 this society spent millions of dollars in an endeavour to mitigate the hardship endured by the students. There is little doubt but what they saved many lives in this manner, and made it possible for student life to carry on. Mr. Lee stated that the policy of the Service is to give students the means to fend for themselves and that in this way anything resembling charity is avoided. Germany was cited as an example of this. For two and a half years the German students received help from the society; now they have reached a position in which they are able to render aid to less fortunate students in other countries.

According to Mr. Lee, the most usual way of aiding the students is by helping them to secure work. He pointed out a number of the difficulties in the way of this as experienced in France, and which doubtless apply equally well to a number of other countries. In the first place there is a great scarcity of work, and the wages which accrue to a position are usually very low. Secondly, the hours of study are longer in the European universities, and thus the student has not as much time to earn his living as a student in America or Canada. An example of the extreme economic depression in France is given by the fact that at least 50 per cent. of the students are living below the poverty line.

Another discouraging feature of student life is the system of examinations. Unlike the Canadian and American systems, it is the practice in Europe; it is not a case of getting a certain mark or standing, but of being within a certain number of your class. This is obviously unfair and is discouraging for the working student. These conditions in general have led to a number of student suicides.

Mr. Lee stated that, at the present time, there is more cause for war in Europe than there was in 1918. Students are growing up in an atmosphere in which implacable, active minorities are pursuing vigorous campaigns. This state of affairs necessitates action on the social, moral and spiritual side as well as on the material. The material action has often forced students to co-operate with those whom they considered their enemies, and this is a big step in the right direction. Co-operation is one of the keys to international fellowship, which it is the desire of the society to promote.

In conclusion Mr. Lee stressed the necessity for the students on the outside playing their part and being prepared to give and to receive.

SEASON INITIATED BY ST. MICHAEL'S

Egan. Songs and dramatic recitations constituted their offering.

Three fencing duels, featuring some of the University's foremost blade artists, next held the stage, and were accorded a great reception.

At this point, Warden Bickersteth of Hart House was introduced. He expressed his sincere pleasure in welcoming so many men from St. Michael's to Hart House. He pointed out that a unique spirit pervaded the institution because of the atmosphere surrounding its Music Room, Sketch Room, chapel and theatre; and invited St. Michael's students to take their rightful place in the life of the House.

The "manly art" as demonstrated in three high-class boxing bouts next focused the attention of the gathering. Willie MacDonald went up against Ed. Hutchison for the honours of the one hundred and twelve pound class. Sam Hackett, one hundred and twenty-six pound champion of Ontario, met George Platt in the second bout, and Ben Littner and Mat Allan mixed it up in the final. All three bouts were creditable exhibitions, with plenty of action and not a little science.

In the final sing-song session, the halls resounded with "Alouette," "Toronto Pride of the North," "Sweet Adeline" and other airs of ancient and modern vintage. This part of the programme was ably directed by the conductor of the regular noon-hour sing-songs in Hart House.

With a lusty "Hoikety-Choik" and a "Toronto" the meeting broke up and repaired to the Great Hall for the refreshments.

The President and officials of the Students' Council are to be congratulated on a high-class programme, smoothly carried out.

LIGHTING IN U.C. WILL BE REMEDIED

to better it as soon as it is possible financially. The demand for more brilliant illumination has become general in the past few years. Not very many years ago the public were satisfied with very low candle power gas lamps, now they demand a hundred watt electric light bulb in every socket in even the ordinary home. The Superintendent's department is not able to do much to change the permanent lighting effects, but it is doing its best to comply with the modern demand for high-powered artificial illumination.

This was overheard around a corner not a thousand miles from here. There were no dissenting voices.

The men and women who know a good thing in motors are usually up to the minute in other important phases of college life.

To them, ease of mind and cheery confidence come from a few minutes' weekly chat over the telephone with mother and dad at home. And you can believe their folks appreciate it!

ORPHANS ELIMINATED BY CAMP BORDEN MEN FROM TITLE CHANCES

Small Hope Left for Varsity as Possible Title Contenders, After Tussle with Airmen

BORDEN VASTLY IMPROVED

Harding Star of Visitors Scoring Two Touches, Makes Long Gains

A handful of spectators at the Oakwood Stadium on Saturday afternoon saw the vastly improved Camp Borden Senior O.R.F.U. team defeat the Varsity entry by a 15-7 score. This loss practically eliminates the Orphans from the title race, for not only must they defeat Balmy Beach on Thanksgiving Day, but some other team is required to do the same thing. This would be asking quite a bit for Hamilton or even Camp Borden to do.

The boys from the flying camp have been steadily improving all season, and may even spring a bigger surprise next Saturday when they meet the Beach team. This might happen because the cellar position Borden team stepped out to defeat Varsity, who were at one time considered possible title contenders.

As was expected, the play was wide open with plenty of thrilling runs and plunges. Varsity seemed willing to keep the play open, and many costly fumbles paved the way to defeat. The halves would make ten-twenty-three yards on extension, only to lose by a fumble or loose pass.

Harding was the outstanding player on the field, making two of the three Camp Borden touches and several spectacular runs for long gains. The Fliers' captain made several 30-yard gains, and one especially thrilling when he galloped 35 yards for an unconverted touch early in the third. Doyle featured in a 45-yard dash in the second period when he intercepted a McIntyre to Davies pass, and crossed the line.

The Varsity major counter came within a few minutes of kick-off in the first period when the ball was worked into Borden's territory. McIntyre ran 45 yards through a broken field, and later Beal went over for a try. Two solo points were added in the last half when Harding and Ault were graced for rouses.

Bill Woods and Baillie plunged well for Varsity, and both Jeffries and Dunn tackled hard. For the winners, though, Mescampbell, Coombs

ST. MIKE'S ELECTION RETURNS LIBERALS

F. J. MacNamara To Be Called By "Governor-General" to Form Cabinet

The political pot at St. Michael's College, after a couple of weeks' vigorous boiling, was taken from the fire in the general elections on Thursday last. The results as announced by the Governor-General were as follows:—

Liberals, under F. J. MacNamara—44.
Crusaders, under George Powers—27.

Nationalists, led by Sheehan—25.
Conservatives, led by V. J. Bourke—16.

Mr. MacNamara will be called on to form a government and take office for the opening of the House this week.

Persian God Arrives at Museum Mithdas' Relief Latest Acquisition

Important Addition to Famous Collection

ITALIAN ORIGIN

Was Built Into Walls of Toronto House

Very recently a new relief has arrived in the Museum, representing the god Mithdas (?) slaying the bull. The slab was brought over from Italy and incorporated in a house in Toronto, on the reconstruction of which the Museum was able to obtain this very valuable piece of art. The god represented was originally a Persian one and was later identified with the sun as a source of light. There are several hundreds of such reliefs known which are found scattered over the Empire. This is due to the fact that the cult of Mithdas was especially common in the army. These reliefs are mainly interesting to students in their bearing on the religion of the Roman world which was so largely affected by foreign influences, especially under the Empire. This particular relief is probably about 3rd century A.D. and is valuable as an artistic work, but has to be considerably restored before it is set up.

Other perhaps more valuable acquisitions to the Roman British collection have recently been received from England. Among these are several very fine specimens of Terra Sigillata, which means stamped clay. Stamped on the pottery is often found the name of the maker as Felicitas Manu (made by Felix) or Marti Officina (factory of Martius). Till ten years ago, archaeology was carried on mainly by amateurs, but the work is now becoming more scientific. Mr. Jilffe, who is the newly appointed Keeper of the Classical Collection at the Museum, explained the need for this more scientific attitude very well when he said: "We want not only the objects but a knowledge of where they came from and their relation to other objects; in other words, stratification. We rely on this for reading the history of the period when we have no sufficient written texts. "It is very important to keep all the data regarding the place in which they were found and the depth of the excavation. Finds are sometimes made twenty feet deep in London streets when building operations show things where normal excavation is naturally very difficult as at the General Post Office.

The particular pieces of pottery in question are red ware dating from about the first century A.D. To illustrate the historical importance of such a find it is interesting to trace the conclusions drawn from it. All red ware was made on the continent and not in England. The native ware, some specimens of which have been recently obtained by the Museum in the form of Celtic vases, is much coarser and displays much cruder workmanship. There was extensive import trade from the continent to England and great care must have been taken in packing these articles, which constituted the "best china" of

St. Joseph College Chapel Now Formally Dedicated

The increased number of girls in residence at St. Joseph's College, 29 Queen's Park, has necessitated a new chapel. A large hall at the east side of the house was chosen, and the work of renovating has been going on since the term began. Early last week all was finally completed and the new chapel was formally opened.

NO STATEMENT MADE BY F. A. MOURE, Mus.Doc.

Editorial Referred to Coercion Used in Settling Printing Accounts

"I have nothing to say," was the only statement that the bursar, F. A. Mouré, Mus.Doc., would make regarding the editorial of Tuesday's "Varsity." An interview with President Falconer on the subject was unobtainable.

The editorial referred to several instances in which student organizations, owing bills to the University Press for various printing jobs, had been coerced into paying these accounts by exacting the penalty of withholding examination results. The article pointed out how, in some cases, persons no way connected with the debts accrued were made responsible because of their position as executives in their year.

MALE ANCESTORS PLAYED NO PARTIES

Trinity Men Use Genealogies to Substantiate Points in Spirited Debate

TORIES ARE DISCREDITED

For the second time within a week a Student Parliament in Tory Toronto's University has given the Conservative party a black eye. The Literary Institute of Trinity College, most conservative of all institutions, carried by a single vote last Friday evening the motion introduced by the government, "That in the opinion of the House, the recent Liberal-Conservative Convention was in the best interests of the Liberal Party."

Mr. Loosemore led for the government. He pointed out the orthodox conservative pedigree of his ancestors and regretted that he had been forced during the past few weeks to come to the conclusion that the Conservatives were not in a position to be of the greatest service to Canada. The convention had been unnecessary and had only served to show up the divisions within the party.

Mr. Bilborough assailed the government for daring to suggest that the Conservatives had not been able to look after their best interests. He gave a spirited defence of the new Tory platform and the leader whom it supports.

Well over a score spoke for the

BALMY BEACH WON FROM M'GILL TEAM IN THIRD QUARTER

Reeves Sustained Broken Leg While Bucking the McGill Line

LOOSELY PLAYED AFFAIR

Onside Pass, a Modification of American Forward Pass, Was Used

(Special to "The Varsity" from the "McGill Daily")

Montreal. — McGill Senior rugby team bowed in defeat before Balmy Beach for the second time this season here on Saturday when a touchdown in the third quarter brought the O.R.F.U. champions from behind to win the game 14 to 11. The exhibition tilt was a loosely played affair, with first one team and then the other making costly fumbles. The game was arranged primarily as a demonstration of the onside pass—a modification of the American forward pass sponsored by Major Forbes and Frank Shaughnessy of McGill.

Twelve onside passes were tried in the first half, four being completed. For some unexplainable reason neither quarter-back used the play after half time, and the game developed into a mediocre exhibition of Canadian rugby. The pass seemed to find favour with the crowd, and fully ninety per cent. of the seven thousand spectators signified their approval of the new-fangled notion when a standing ovation was taken at half time. It is without doubt a spectacular play, although somewhat risky. Bill Hughes, former Queen's coach, was in the press box at the Stadium and proved to be one of the most enthusiastic supporters of it.

Chuck Reeves, Balmy Beach middle, had his right leg broken in the third quarter, when three McGill players piled on him as he was carrying the ball through the line. The Red and White will have to improve considerably in order to down Varsity here on Saturday. The tackling of the wings and the line work was something terrible. It must be remembered, however, that a number of the McGill regulars did not get into the game at all, Shaughnessy being loath to use them with an important intercollegiate fixture the following Saturday. Charlie Little-Field, middle, Al. Blair and Curly Taylor, outside, and Capt. Jack Little, half back, were not in uniform, while Ralph St. Germain and Bruds Bazin were given frequent rest intervals.

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY LIVED ONCE AGAIN

Artists in Period Costumes Charm Audience at Grange in Interesting Programme

MUSIC OF HANDEL AND GAY

The audience assembled to hear music of the 18th century, Friday night, at the Art Gallery, awaited the performance surrounded by the great spirits of Romney, Gainsborough, and Lawrence as represented in their beautiful pictures. Then the candles on the stage were lit, the curtains parted, and forth stepped a gentleman of a bygone century, white uerrique, tied with voluminous black bow, long green velvet coat with gold lacing, white knee hose, flowered waistcoat, lace and ruffles complete. It was a moment before the audience recognized the well-known figure of Dr. Ernest Macmillan, who sketched the evening's programme.

English music in the 16th century was largely under Italian influence. In 1710 Handel came to England from Italy, where he had studied, and, becoming naturalized, was to all intents and purposes an Englishman.

Handel's Sonata in E Major for violin was performed by Mr. Donald Heins, who also appeared in the dress of two centuries ago. He was accompanied at the piano by Dr. Macmillan. Two Italian duets made up the next number, the first being sung by Miss Monk and Miss Hare, the second by Miss Monk and Miss Vincent. The ladies, also in costume, were conducted to their places in true courtly fashion by the gentlemen. The second duet was especially interesting, as in it can be recognized two of the themes which Handel later used for two of the best known choruses of the Messiah. "His Yoke is Easy" and "He Shall Purify." The accompaniment was played by Mr. Heins, violin, Mr. Leo Smith, cello.

Three arrangements for violin, cello and piano represented three of the original early English composers.

The words of The Beggar's Opera were written by John Gay; the music was a mixture of popular tunes of the Varsity Lead Until Last Quarter Produced Winning Points For Visiting Team

SPECTACULAR PERFORMANCE

Thrilled Stands With Touchdown Secured in First Quarter No Score for Queen's

Varsity's last hope of a Senior Intercollegiate rugby championship was blasted on Saturday at the Varsity Stadium when a desperate Queen's rally in the last quarter produced nine points and gave the Tricolour the game by a 12-6 score. Varsity started like a house afire, had a six-point lead at half time, a three-point lead at the three-quarter mark, but weakened in the stretch, and Queen's breezed in an easy winner.

The Blue and White lived up to advance notices in the first part of the game and played the visitors off their feet. They tore through the Queen's line like madmen, and at half time looked like certain winners. But Queen's had their turn in the last frame, and when the final whistle blew, it was the Queen's rosters' section that lined up for the parade.

Varsity started off like champions and bottled up Queen's in their own end of the field. They hammered the centre of the Queen's line till it weakened and then sent play after play through the hole. When they secured a touch in the first quarter it looked like a million dollars, and the Varsity supporters went crazy. It appeared that nothing short of a miracle could prevent a victory.

The game was much more open than the one in Kingston a week ago, and as a result much more interesting to the capacity crowd which filled the Stadium. In the last half it developed into an aerial battle and there were thrills aplenty.

Warren, who teamed up on the backfield with Batstone, proved himself a fit running-mate for the famous "Red." His 30-yard dash through the Varsity team was one of the features, and it was on his return of Sinclair's kick-off that Queen's scored their touch. Batstone himself accounted for seven of his team's points with two field goals and a rouge. Britton at flying wing and Walker and Agnew at the outside positions tackled like fiends and gave Trimble and Sinclair little chance to get away.

"VARSITY" STORY LAUNCHES BENEVOLENT ORGANIZATION

Credit Due Varsity Article for Institution of New Student Movement

We hear that credit is due to "The Varsity" for the organization of a party for the benefit of the foreign students.

After seeing an article in "The Varsity" concerning a number of foreign students in the Public Health course, Mr. Macdonald, secretary of the International Students' Association, called at the School of Hygiene to arrange a party in honour of the nurses.

As this gentleman appears to be rather elusive it has been impossible to obtain further details. The idea being a good one, it has met with popular approval, and has given rise to the suggestion that there should be an International Association in the University of Toronto for men and women, the present one being for men only. Could this be arranged, it would fill a keenly felt need in the social life of these foreign students.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1927.

WELL DONE, QUEEN'S!

Now that Varsity is definitely out of the football race, we may sit back and endeavour to enjoy a game for the sake of the play alone. We may applaud good plays no matter which team makes them, and we will lose all desire to annihilate all or any of the opposing players who show brilliantly; nor shall we weep at an unexpected penalty, an unrecovered fumble or a disastrous reverse.

But it is improbable that, thus, we should actually enjoy ourselves. The mere fact of being a rabid supporter of one side or the other adds zest to any game, for it is only then that one suffers the keenest enjoyment—the thrill of anticipation vibrating with the horror of the disastrous. Self-assured we may be, but no matter how regular our minds, our actions or our habits it is the uncertainty which attracts, while sureness of result bears but a passing notice. While the joys of anticipation are long and lingering, they are rapidly lost in accomplishment and pass into the limbo of the forgotten with the rapidity of a strong verse. And fortunate indeed it is that we forget quickly, for we can then always look to the future and the brighter days ahead. There will be another football day in another season.

And so it is that, though right behind McGill now, in the Red and White's first real contention for the College rugby honours since 1919, Varsity congratulates Queen's upon her splendid fight to regain lost laurels. Undaunted by the passing of many stars, the Tricolour has mustered and trained sufficient material to bring back memories of a few years ago when one of the most brilliant machines to ever flash across the Canadian football horizon came from the Kingston University.

The Queen's—McGill clash is bound to be a hectic one. If Varsity beats McGill—and she will if she can, even though Varsity opinion may slightly favour the men from Montreal—the final game of the schedule will be all-important and the winner will hold the Intercollegiate title. But if Varsity should lose, and Queen's win in Kingston, the Tricolour and the Redmen will be forced to battle an extra game which many would be selfish enough to hope for, because Toronto would provide the neutral grounds and the city a mighty reception.

A NOTEWORTHY AFFILIATION

For over forty years the Toronto Conservatory of Music has been functioning as the foremost institution of its kind in Canada, and, owing to its development during the past few years, it is now excelled but by very few abroad. The Faculty of the Conservatory includes many brilliant native-born artists as well as others of high rank from Europe and the United States. The artistic efficiency of the teaching staff, coupled with the attractiveness of the buildings and situation, has drawn students from all sections of the Dominion, from the United States, the West Indies and Newfoundland.

In 1921 the Conservatory was affiliated with the University of Toronto, and each institution may well be proud of its connection with the other. There are many advantages for both. By being made a State School of Music with its management under the direction of a special board appointed by the University and responsible to the Board of Governors, it is possible to establish and maintain higher standards of music and to standardize the examinations. There is also a certain prestige in being a part of as world-famed an institution as the University of Toronto.

On the other hand, the connection has advantages for the University. The students are brought into closer contact with the musical affairs, and are enabled to hear the best music at reduced prices. A broader field of education is thus opened. The affiliation is so recent that, as yet, the full possibilities for mutual benefit have not been realized; but much is to be hoped for in the future.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Trinity College Year Book, containing a complete series of records and reports for the past three years, together with names of the staff, undergraduate body, and, as well, mentioning the activities of the Alumni, is just off the press. The book shows careful editing and, comprehensive in its scope, is welcomed back among the annual publications of the University.

For the first time women's Intercollegiate tennis has become an actuality. The three Ontario Colleges, Western, Queen's and

Art, Music and Drama

Sunday Evening Concert

The Forty-first of the series of Sunday Evening Concerts in the Great Hall of Hart House was attended by the usual very large and appreciative crowd of listeners. The occasion was especially distinguished by the fact that the artists of the evening were the Hart House String Quartet. The programme was irreproachably lovely, including chamber music compositions of Beethoven, Hugo Wolf and Ernst von Dohnanyi. The four movements of the Quartet in F Minor played by these musicians with all their usual deep sympathy and discerning appreciation of Beethoven's glorious work. This composition, played in that great room and on a Sunday evening, took on a very special significance—constituted an experience, really, for an audience who listened raptly, a thing to remember gratefully for a long time. Followed an Italian Serenade by Hugo Wolf that was exquisite, swift bows and fairyland surprises, sparkling, tantalizing, a triumph of the tiny drums of the plucked strings most beautifully convincing and lovely. The Dohnanyi Quartet in A Minor, which concluded the programme, was enchantment indeed. The beautiful passionate song of the first movement, the reverent beauty of the second with its passages of long-sustained notes in the second violin and viola, and the grace and joyousness of the final movement were most exquisitely played by this great group of artists.

An announcement by Prof. Davis of the Music Committee that a special arrangement has been made to enable students to hear the programme of String Quartet concerts preceding the Concert dates is an item of very great interest to all lovers of this very fine type of musical performance.

And the above is quite a nice little poem, but far too true to be comforting. Speaking of poems, would all those interested in the divine but non-remunerative art of Poetry help to make "The Varsity" somewhat literary again by contributing to "Student Verse" for next Thursday's issue? It must be admitted that we face rather tremendous opposition, but let us have one more earnest shot at it! Will B.D.B. and C.H.B. send us some of their latest efforts?

The Tennis Club hopes that this innovation in the realm of women's athletics will meet with the support of the undergraduate body. The best players of each university are lining up, and the games are sure to be well worth while. Toronto welcomes the visiting teams. We hope the Intercollegiate tournament will become an annual event.

QUEEN'S BEAT INTERCOLLEGIATES; O.R.F.U. LOSE TO FLIERS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Well, it's all over. Make your own excuses.

It was a pretty bad week-end for the Blue and White. It isn't often that we have two senior teams eliminated in the same afternoon.

What a game it was for Queen's to win. Out-scored six to nothing in the first half, they came through with a bang to win in the last frame. But, on the other hand, what a game it was to lose.

An analysis of the game shows that Varsity had an advantage over their opponents when it came to making yards through the line, but this was more than offset by Queen's gains in running back kicks. Varsity made 184 yards through the line as compared with 126 by the Tricolour. But where the Varsity halves only were able to run back kicks for a distance of 105 yards, Queen's gained 152 yards by the same method.

One interesting thing to note is that whereas Varsity lost 90 yards on penalties, the Tricolour were only penalized a total of 20 yards. Varsity was penalized a couple of times for not giving the kicker yards, and after that the wings were more careful, with a result that Batstone and Warren had plenty of opportunity to get started.

Now that the Intercollegiate is definitely out of the running and the O.R.F.U. team is almost eliminated, the only hope for a championship is the Juniors. For several past seasons the Kids have been the one bright Blue light on the rugby horizon, and this year promises a repetition of their past successes.

ST. MICHAEL'S NOSED OUT BY WESTERN UNIVERSITY

Irishmen Offer Tough Fight in One of Closest Games of Season

St. Michael's College Intermediate rugby team lost its chance of winning the Intermediate Intercollegiate championship on Saturday when they bowed to the fast and heavy University of Western Ontario squad by the score 11-10 in one of the hardest fought battles of the year.

The Irish team played brilliantly in the early stages of the game and forced the play, and were rewarded when Brown was forced back over the Western line for a safety touch. Sheehan put the ball in position for a clever play, Young accepting a long pass from McGahey and going around the end for a clean touch which was not converted. Burns fumbled a punt on his own 25-yard line, and Jewell of Western recovered. Turville kicked to deadline for point. Martin fumbled a punt on the 10-yard line and Western recovered. Turville kicked for another point. Western secured on a fumble and went over for a touch. Brown was forced to rouse by the fleet Irishway. The score at half time stood 8-7 in favour of the Irish.

Western forced St. Mike's to rouse twice to open the third period. The Irish then showed the strongest line plunging of the day, taking the ball 80 yards down the field, only to be stopped by a determined Purple and White line two feet from the goal line. St. Mike's forged ahead by scoring two rouses, only to have Turville's educated toe even the score just before three-quarter time. Neither goal line was threatened in the last quarter until Turville hoisted a long punt for the deciding point of the game. McGahey, Sheehan and Sammons were outstanding for the losers, while Kennedy, Turville and Brown bore the brunt of the battle for Western.

The line-up:—
St. Michael's: Flying wing, Burns; halves, Young, Culligan, W. Neelhan; quarter, McGahey; snap, Morin; insides, Hyde, Gammons; middles, S. S. Neelhan, King; outsides, Sheehan,

"AGGIES" STOPPED FOR THIRD PLACE

Varsity Intermediates Won Over O.A.C. in Game Saturday

VARSITY MUCH IMPROVED

The curtain was rung down on the Intermediate Intercollegiate rugby schedule on Saturday morning on the back campus when Varsity defeated O.A.C. by the score of 7-1, thereby winning for themselves third position in the group standing, while in London the University of Western Ontario copied their second successive title by nosing out St. Michael's College 11 to 10 in a hard-fought game, in which the Irish were leading 8 to 7 at half time.

Varsity has shown considerable improvement at every game, and on Saturday they earned their win about as decisively as the score indicates. Some promising material has been uncovered this year amongst the Intermediate candidates, and should form some valuable recruits for next year's senior teams. The tackling of the outsides, Honey and McCullough, has featured all year, and also the outstanding work of Jackson and Johnstone on the half line.

In the first period Varsity had a marked advantage in the play due to their aggressive start, and kept the Guelphites on the defensive for the entire period. In the early stages of the game, Johnston booted over the deadline for the first tally. Varsity

INFANTS ROMP HOME M'MASTER DEFEATED

Varsity Juniors Bright Spot One of Two Teams to Redeem Dismal Week-end

INFANTS 36, BAPTISTS 5

There is still one bright light shining in the Varsity football world, and that is the Junior team. While all the Blue tasted the bitter cup of defeat, the Infants, almost forgotten in the flurry over the Firsts, brought home the only slice of bacon the U. of T. will have to content itself with during an otherwise unfertile season. The Juniors romped away with the group title due to their decisive defeat of McMaster by the handy score of 36-5. As the score indicates, the game was all Varsity's, and the way the "kids" gamboled around the Baptists was a treat to watch. The affair provided nothing but a workout for the Blue and White, who look to be as good a team as Varsity has ever had in the minor series of the Intercollegiate Union, and there has been many a smart team fielded in the "under 21 class."

The Blues were at full strength with the exception of Jack Winnick, their snappy tackler, who was out with a "banged up" shoulder that he had received in the O.A.C. game at Guelph. The entire team went at their work of keeping Varsity on the map with a will. The punting, running, ball handling and plunging was the best aid for sore eyes discovered in many a long day. Every man on the team starred, and to pick out anyone above the rest would be a crime, but here goes with a couple of misdeameans—Squires played sensationally on the half line, while the plunging of Adams, Solandt and Slater were far above the usual run.

The only Bloor Street student that was the least bit effective against Varsity was Lorne Barton, who was tackling most effectively.

The almost impossible record of the Jimmie Douglas pack of fighters was that of a grand total during the season of 134 counters to their opponents' 6, and five of them were scored on the last game of the section. The Juniors now advance to the semi-finals, which take place next Saturday.

Teams:—

Varsity: Flying wing, Pugsley; halves, Squires, Burke, Stone; quarter, Woods; snap, Galloway; insides, Slater, Gray; middles, Solandt, Adams; outsides, Baker, Gooderham; subs, Kirk, Barret, Eastman, Cunningham, Murray.

McMaster: Barton, Hale, Whidden, Patterson, Jones, McArthur, Gilford, Rowden, Smith, Evans, Little, Smith, McAlpine, Simpson.

Johnny came running into the house the other day screaming, "Oh, mother, I just saw a big mad dog jump over the garden fence." When his mother replied that it was just his imagination, Johnny countered with, "Why, mother, has imagination got a tail?"

WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT AT TENNIS CLUB

Entries from Queen's, Western and Toronto for Intercollegiate Title

BEGINS TO-DAY

On the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club to-day and Tuesday the first Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament will be played off between Queen's, Western and Toronto. A schedule has been planned by the executive of the Tennis Club, but it must be submitted for approval to the other entrants before it is definitely accepted. Each University is entering four players, of whom one and two will play singles to-day and to-morrow afternoon, while it is expected that the third and fourth players of Queen's and Western Universities will play off their doubles this morning and the winners play Toronto Tuesday afternoon.

Toronto is being represented by (1) Marion Grout (St. Hilda's), (2) Ruth Higgins (U.C.), (3) Norma Bateman (Vic.), (4) Joyce Finlay (St. Hilda's). Marion Grout, the captain, gained her place by winning the Interfaculty Tournament. Norma Bateman was originally the second player on the team, but a vaccination that took has been troubling her for the last two weeks, and since she was unable to finish a match with Ruth Higgins on Saturday, the two girls are expected to change places. In their acceptances Queen's and Western did not give the names of their players, and so nothing is known about their representatives except that they will undoubtedly play good tennis.

Hutton House, St. Hilda's and Queen's Hall are busily engaged in preparing the most comfortable of rooms for the visitors. Since Victoria cannot take any of the girls owing to the outbreak of smallpox, their Athletic Association is giving a tea for the players in Wymilwood this afternoon. Everything possible is being done to make the visiting teams feel at home and enjoy themselves.

As this is the first Women's Intercollegiate Tournament, on its success depends whether it will become an established custom; and since Toronto has been the instigator, it is up to Toronto to make it a rousing success. So all tennis enthusiasts are asked to come out and support our team to-day, and particularly at the finals to-morrow afternoon.

WAR OFFICE CERTIFICATE CLASSES

The attention of members of the C.O.T.C. is drawn to the provision made for obtaining Certificates of Qualification, the possession of which qualifies them for commissions in the Canadian Militia and British Territorial Regiments. The first lecture of the course leading to the March 1928 examination for Certificate "A" (Lieutenant), Infantry, will be given at 184 College Street, on Friday, 11th November, at 5 p.m. Cadets who have served at least one year with the C.O.T.C. or other Militia unit desiring permission to take this course should leave their application at the office this week.

It is important, also, that applications should be received immediately from those members desiring to enter for the courses for Artillery, Engineers and Medical certificates, which have been already announced. Except under special circumstances candidates for these must be in possession of Certificate "A," Infantry.

Entries are now being received from those who have served one year in C.O.T.C. wishing to join the Artillery ("D") Company. This list will soon be closed.

FOREIGN STUDENTS FACE MANY PROBLEMS

to-day, while the condition of the French is the most destitute. Although Paris is a student mecca, there is no provision for social intercourse, and even if there were, French pride and poverty would separate the native from the foreigner. The gay frolicsome life of the Latin quarter goes on, but with a touch of desperation and cynicism.

Mr. Lee stressed the need of fellowship between nations. By living to itself a nation not only endangers its own welfare but also hampers the development of the whole. This international fellowship must be carried into the student realm. Mr. Lee makes one feel a link between the students of Europe and the students of America, and also the need of strengthening this link through a more mutual understanding.

Mr. Lee pointed out that owing to the lack of employment to-day, the students in Europe are in dire need of help. In Russia the students have to fight against great odds to carry on their education. In France the conditions have been particularly severe this year, the cost of living being high and the unemployment so prevalent. The Russian students in Paris are unable to secure work, preference being given to the French, who, in turn, fear the usurpation by foreign employees. In many cases death is caused by malnutrition and the lack of proper care.

Mr. Lee explained this persistent striving after learning at fearful costs.

QUEEN'S DEFEAT VARSITY IN IMPORTANT GAME

But it was like Sutton who filled the hole at centre and turned the tide in favour of the Tricolour. The Queen's quarter did not start the game, his place being taken by Mundell. But when the second half started, Sutton was at the pivot position, and he certainly made a difference in the team.

The Varsity team played good football. They plunged well, and indeed had a decided advantage over their opponents as far as the line went. Kilgour and Howard played great football, but they were no better than the Varsity line plungers, chief among whom was Harrison.

Varsity got possession at Queen's 25-yard line early in the first quarter when Batstone's kick went into touch. Sinclair and Snyder made yards, and Varsity was only 12 yards from the Queen's line. Harrison hit the line like a shot and went through cleanly for a touchdown. It was one of the prettiest bucks of the game. Near the end of the quarter Queen's failed to make yards on the third down, and it was Varsity's ball. An onside kick was tried, and the ball crossed the Queen's line and rolled to the dead-line for Varsity's sixth and last point.

There was no score in the second quarter. Queen's were in scoring position once, but Mundell messed up an onside kick and Little secured for Varsity.

Starting off the third frame, Warren and Batstone put Queen's in position for a drop with a 30-yard end run. Queen's tried a fake drop, and Warren made five yards, and on the next down Batstone tried a real drop, which was successful.

The last quarter started off with Batstone kicking a drop into the scrimmage, but Queen's recovered two yards out, and "Red" sent over another field goal, which tied the score. Varsity still had a chance, but not for long. On Sinclair's kick-off Warren took the ball and returned it. Sinclair took the catch on his own 25-yard line, muffed it, and Walker galloped over for a touchdown. Varsity tried hard to overcome this lead, kicking as often as possible, but Batstone refused to fumble. Queen's added another point just before the whistle blew when Trimble was downed for a rouse.

Line-ups:—
Varsity: Flying wing, Harrison; halves, Trimble, Sinclair and Traynor; snap, Keith; quarter, Snyder; insides, Carrick and Bean; middles, Dundas and Little; outsides, Daly and Morgan; subs, Young, Masters, Hallam, Stollery, Rykert, Calnan, Stewart, Kirkpatrick.

Queen's: Flying wing, Britton; halves, Batstone, Warren and Durham; snap, Nagel; quarter, Mundell; insides, Brown and Handford; middles, Kilgour and Howard; outsides, Walker and Agnew; subs, Sutton, Baird, McKelvey, Abbott, Carter, Stevenson, Reynolds, Mungavon.

BALMY BEACH DEFEAT MCGILL SENIOR RUGBY TEAM

period when Moar, Camp Borden recruit, smashed through the Beach's line from ten yards out for a touchdown, which was not converted. Scotty Cawkell, Beach's captain, tied the count just as the quarter ended, when he tore down the sidelines for 35 yards on a fake kick for a touch. McGill looked foolish.

Three 75-yard kicks by St. Germain in the second stanza gave the Red men three more points, and McGill was on the long end of an 8 to 5 at half time. However, soon after the third session had begun Red Moore booted a fast and perfect drop over the uprights from thirty yards out to tie the score. Tremaine put McGill one point in the lead by booting to the deadline.

A bad snap soon after gave Beach's the ball in McGill territory, and after making yards once, Cawkell got a touch on the third down, which he converted himself. A place kick by Tremaine at the beginning of the fourth quarter failed by inches. It was his second unsuccessful attempt at making three points in this manner. McGill added two more points before the final whistle, when St. Germain kicked to the deadline, and Bazin's onside degenerated into a rouse.

WALLY GRAHAM WINNER OF CROSS-COUNTRY RUN

Fourth Consecutive Victory, Leads 95 Contestants Over 5 Mile Course

Wally Graham, Intercollegiate three-mile champion, scored his fourth consecutive cross-country victory, by leading a field of 95 Interfaculty harriers over the college course of five and one-half miles, starting and finishing at Upper Canada College, on Friday morning.

The Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, captured the Brotherton Cup, emblematic of the team championship, by placing second, fifth, sixth and eighth in the race. It was the fifth victory of the O.A.C. runners in this event. Meds were second and Trinity third.

At the start of the race Graham of Dents and Crozier of O.C.E. jumped into the lead ahead of a huge field of runners. Crozier ran second, well up with Graham, for practically the entire course, but Banks of O.A.C. caught him in the final dash for the tape on the Upper Canada College track. Banks broke the O.A.C. harrier record by 35 seconds last week and is considered one of the favourites in the Ontario ten mile cross-country to be held at Guelph on November 7th.

McClennan of Meds ran a splendid race to secure fourth position and a place on the Intercollegiate team. He provided the one big upset of the "dope" in the run. Torrance of Meds put up a game fight, running well up with the leading group, but the pace told on him, and he collapsed at the tape. Several other runners collapsed on the course and at the finish. It was thought that the extreme heat that prevailed during the race was responsible for the casualties.

The first dozen runners to finish were:

1. Graham, Dents.
2. Banks, O.A.C.
3. Crozier, O.C.E.
4. McLennan, Meds.
5. Cowan, O.A.C.
6. Kerr, O.A.C.
7. Baldwin, Trinity.
8. Griffiths, O.A.C.
9. Garnett, O.A.C.
10. Torrance, Meds.
11. Gilbert, U.C.
12. Erb, Trinity.

The Intercollegiate harrier meet will be held over the Toronto course on Saturday morning, November 5th. Queen's, McGill and R.M.C. are sending five men teams. The University of Toronto will be represented by Graham, Crozier, McLennan, Baldwin and Mitchell. Mitchell, the Intercollegiate harrier champion, who defeated Trenchout of Queen's last year, was unable to run in the Interfaculty meet, but automatically becomes a member of the team which will try for a third consecutive Intercollegiate championship.

The movie exhibitor had just insured his theatre against fire. As he signed his name he turned to the insurance agent and asked: "What would I get if my theatre was to burn down to-morrow?" "Oh, I should say about ten years," replied the insurance man, nonchalantly.

GENTLEMEN ANCESTORS PLAYED NO PARTIES

floor of the House in an animated, brilliant and candid discussion.

The members frequently flaunted their genealogical tables in the face of their opponents, often for the purpose of pointing out how they alone of their family had seen the light of reason and made a chameleon like change in politics. One member, however, was found whose ancestors had no politics but were gentlemen. It was noticeable that more than one good Conservative, presumably swayed by the local politics of the institute, found ingenious pretences for supporting the government, one declaring that since every convention temporarily proves to the party that its leaders are not demi-gods but human, it follows that the opposing party reaps some advantage. Another said that the best interests of the Liberal party and of Canada were admittedly similar. It was to the best interests of Canada that the Liberal party should be thrown out of power.

The Tory Convention had served the best interests of Canada by bringing nearer the time when the Liberals would be defeated. It had therefore served the best interests of the Liberal party. There was considerable excitement in the House during the division and the result was announced amid cheers.

At the next meeting the government will move that "The House would rather be the Scushok of Spioth than the present Mayor of Chicago." The Scushok is a real character, an official in Tibet, who is poisoned on reaching his twenty-third birthday, and replaced by another eligible youth.

the Roman family. One sunken cargo has already been found off the coast of England in a very good state of preservation.

The collection is too large to go into detail here, but these articles illustrating Roman life are well worth the attention of the students. The Roman British collection here would seem to be the only one on this continent, is comparable to any in the world, and in many respects is unique. As it stands at present it is a nucleus which Mr. Iliffe hopes to increase by the addition of materials from excavations in London and elsewhere, which he will conduct next summer. Last summer he spent excavating a Roman-British town, Alchester, in Oxfordshire. The particular advantage of this branch of the work is that there is no difficulty in importing finds to Canada from England as there is from Greece and Italy.

OVER-POPULATION OF COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES AROUSES OPINIONS

Limitation of Registration is Often Suggested As A Solution

CLASSROOMS JAMMED

Might Look For Guidance At Yale's Solution of The Problem

The question of over-population of colleges and universities is now occupying the attention of many educationalists in the States. The proposal of the limitation of registration in such institutions is becoming more and more apparent. The editorial of 26th October discussed in "The Varsity," an article by Professor Angell of Yale on this problem. "The Varsity" interviewed certain Victoria officials, and the following is the situation as applied to that college:

At Victoria College the present building was only erected to accommodate about five hundred students, whereas there are considerably more than seven hundred in attendance today. Yale has already successfully solved the problem. It has been suggested that Victoria might do well to follow her example. The two faculties, Arts and Theology, could very easily be separated, although this would cause a break in the tradition of the College.

U.C. CO-EDS ARE URGED TO ADOPT GOWN CUSTOM

To Insure Successful "Gown Week" Must Wear Them to Lectures for Five Days

Will "Gown Week" eventually become "Gown Year?" "This," said Miss Betty Brown, president of the Women's Undergraduate Association, "is a new idea, and one to which we have as yet given no thought. I would, however, ask the co-operation of the students in first establishing a successful 'Gown Week.'"

Commencing yesterday and ending Friday, Nov. 4th, the women students of University College are asked to wear academic robes while attending lectures. For the past two years this custom has been successfully observed by those students wishing to further the movement of the universal wearing of robes. It has been thought that a larger number of students would co-operate were "Gown Week" to be set aside in October rather than in January, as was formerly the practice, because some of the undergraduates found it awkward to wear gowns while going from one building to another in cold weather.

"If only the students could realize, during these five days, what a comfort and a convenience gowns are, I am sure they would not wish to discard them at the end of that time," concluded Miss Brown.

It is hoped that "Gown Week" will eventually become an established institution to which women students of University College will loyally adhere.

Vaccine and the Sin of Procrastination

The vaccination rush is nearly over. The majority of the operations performed by Dr. Gordon were successful. The anxious query made by the fair damsels now is "Will it leave a large scar?" The only ones suffering from the effects of the vaccine are those who were vaccinated for the first time—which proves again the ill-effects of procrastination.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES MADE AT ST. MIKE'S

Prominent Grads and Undergrads to be Present at Function

The awarding of prizes at St. Michael's College will take place early next week. Of the graduating class, W. L. Knowlton will receive the Mercer Gold Medal in Philosophy. C. O'Keefe is the winner of the Alumni Prize for Pass English, and G. Hanley the Latin Prize.

In Third Year, V. J. Bourke achieved not only the Alumni Prize in English but also the Kerahan Prize in Philosophy. H. Brett won the Honour Mathematics Prize.

P. Ryan and Miss H. McGrath obtained equal standing for the Hughes Prize in Second Year Honour English. J. Ord won the Hanrahan Prize in Philosophy.

In First Year, T. V. Kennedy won the Mahon Prize in Honour English. The Harris Gold Medal, symbol of oratorical prowess, will be awarded to George Power.

Wymilwood is Honoured by Distinguished Guest

Wymilwood now has as an honoured guest Miss F. MacDonald, M.B.E., F.R.G.S., who is intending to spend a few days in Toronto, and who is particularly interested in the University and its students.

Miss MacDonald represents the Church Touring Guild which arranges tours for college people, and which is planning to conduct tours from Montreal to Europe for the special benefit of Canadian students. Her itinerary includes most of the important Canadian cities, and while in Toronto Miss MacDonald for the few days previous to her stay in Wymilwood was the guest of Lady Flavelle.

Miss MacDonald is also the first cousin of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Rudyard Kipling and Sir Hugh Poynter.

Students, Grads and Teachers of Architecture Dine

An unheralded event was the dinner held last Thursday by the students, graduates and teachers of Architecture, at their annual function. Following the dinner, addresses were given by the Honorary President, W. L. Somerville, and C. H. C. Wright, Professor of Architecture.

Mr. Somerville, with a leaning towards the humorous side, passed out welcome advice and encouragement to those struggling upwards in the profession. The high ranking of the department and its graduates was briefly mentioned by the ever popular "Dad" Wright.

The programme now changed from the oldest to the youngest present, to the youngest, as the Frosh with several humorous and musical numbers ended the evening's entertainment.

VICTORIA COLLEGE OUT OF QUARANTINE

The Few Cases of Illness Resulting from Vaccine Are the Natural Aftermath

RETURN TO LECTURES

Quarantine is officially off. All are well—the smallpox scare is over. Freedom from prying reporters will probably be the greatest source of relief to certain Victoria officials.

Yesterday found everything serene around Victoria College. The quarantine on students in residence was lifted last Friday, and yesterday everyone else was allowed to return to lectures after satisfying the authorities that they had been successfully vaccinated. Yesterday, too, women students were examined for vaccination marks in Alumni Hall, and several lectures were necessarily adjourned to the luxury of Wymilwood.

The cases at the Swiss Cottage Hospital are progressing "nicely" and have called for their books. To some extent they have been the most fortunate of all concerned in the excitement.

Perhaps the most painful affliction has been vaccination. The sores, when they "take," have laid low more than one athlete or student, through general dullness and sore arms. Dr. Edith Gordon, Women's Medical Advisor, remarked in an interview yesterday:

"With a grown person who has never been vaccinated before there is sometimes quite a reaction to the inoculation." (Continued on page 4)

DENTAL HALLOWE'EN DANCE HELD AT COLUMBUS HALL

Committee in Charge Offered Program of Novelties Amidst Many Decorations

The informal Dental Halloween dance at Columbus Hall was held last Friday. A popular city orchestra began the entertainment with splendid music which became livelier each number. The rotunda and dance floor were tastefully decorated, thanks to the efficiency of a very capable committee.

In two novelty numbers Miss Aileen Parker of Leonidoff School of Dancing drew hearty rounds of applause from her delighted audience.

Three moonlight waltzes with multi-coloured moonbeams and an enthusiastic amateur detective vainly seeking a lost telephone directory were added features to the programme.

Shortly after one o'clock the party dissolved, and many couples fled to the white tables downtown, happy and hungry.

T. E. Armstrong, A. W. Sheridan, E. J. Bramah, F. W. Dewar, S. A. MacGregor and C. G. Pearson comprised the committee in charge. Mrs. W. Secombe, Mrs. S. M. Richardson and Mrs. J. A. Bothwell were patronesses.

School Men Skulk Across Campus Neophytes Figure With Transits

Once more the genial representatives of the School are playing peekyboo across the campus with their telescopes and barber poles—known to the holy brotherhood as theodolites or transits. The old face of the campus has doubtless been surveyed innumerable times—yet still the would-be engineers must sight and shout from the front stoop of the School to the back porch of Hart House. Yet there is a purpose—one of the sacred School initiate explained that here and there throughout the campus are certain spots where the striped poles with which the students play are set.

OPENING MEETING OF CLASSICAL ASSOC.

Professor Norwood Entertains U.C. Classical Association in Women's Union

TWO PAPERS READ

In the Common Room of the Women's Union, Professor Norwood entertained the U.C. Classical Association at its first meeting for the year. After the reading of the minutes and the election of Mr. J. Fraser as first year councillor, Mr. W. Wallace read a paper on Mrs. Mitchison and her works. An Englishwoman of brilliant family, she had produced four books although not yet 30 years of age. Two most important were "Cloud Cuckoo Land," a tale of Athens at the end of the Peloponnesian War, and "The Conqueror—Time of Caesar." Her chief characteristic was a very vivid and interesting style which was not in the least pedantic. Her characters lived and talked like modern English people, but her reader never forgot the period in which the story was placed. The stories were not told from the historical point of view, but rather the characters told their own stories.

Mr. M. St. A. Woodside's paper was given on Seneca's Satire on the Apotheosis of Claudius. As humour, according to an American humorist, was based on deformity, so Seneca had both men and gods make fun of Claudius' limp and the impediment in his speech. By overlooking all Claudius' good points and luridly painting the bad, he pictured the Emperor as a man totally corrupt and whose chief characteristics were stupidity, timidity and self-indulgence.

MR. B. R. BROOKER TO SPEAK AT OPENING MEETING

Sketch Committee Plans Series of Meetings in Sketch Room

For the opening meeting in the Sketch Room this year, the Sketch Committee has obtained as a speaker Mr. B. R. Brooker. Mr. Brooker is becoming known as a painter of allegorical and abstract subjects, having exhibited several pieces of his work at the Grange. The subject of his address will be "William Blake, the Artist, Poet and Mystic," of whose death this year is the hundredth anniversary.

These meetings are held in the Sketch Room throughout the Academic year, and are open to all members of the House who are interested. They are held at 8.15, and refreshments are served. All members of Hart House are invited to attend.

DECREASE NOTICED IN NUMBER OF STUDENTS WHO CAN'T SWIM

ST. MIKE'S FRENCH CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL ELECTION

Junior and Senior Divisions Professors to Address Club Plays to be Presented

St. Michael's College French Club will hold a general meeting the latter part of next week for the purpose of electing officers. Its success last year augurs well for the coming year. The Club will be divided into a Senior and Junior section, similar to that of last year. Tentatively, the Junior Club will consist of First Year Honour and Second Year Pass Arts students, while the Senior Club will be made up of Second Year Honour together with Third and Fourth Year Honour and Pass.

Primarily, the object of the Club is to promote conversation in French. With this object in view, it is likely that several prominent professors in French will address the Club or lead discussions in French. One-act plays in French will also be enacted throughout the year.

Work on Clock of Memorial Tower is Not Completed

The brass hands of the clock on the Tower have been observed to be regularly ten minutes fast. It has caused some apprehension among the watchful observers, and it seems it is not linked up with the electrically controlled clocks of the University.

The clock in the Memorial Tower is automatically controlled in the Tower itself. It is run on an old-fashioned system of weights which are wound automatically by an electric motor attached to a drum. Although the chimes strike every hour, it has not, as yet, been decided when the carillon will be played. These arrangements have been delayed because the clock is still in the hands of the contractors, who have some minor changes to make. When the work is completed, the clock will be placed at the disposal of the University, which will then decide who is to ring the carillon.

Loretto Abbey Seniors Entertain College at Banquet

The Seniors of Loretto Abbey College on Thursday evening entertained the College at a picturesque and enjoyable banquet.

The College dining-room was transformed with streamers and decorations of pastel shades. These same shades were repeated on the tables.

At the close of the banquet, after a short speech by Miss Josephine Brophy, in which she explained that the banquet was the expression of the wish of the Seniors of 2TB to commemorate the spirit of camaraderie and good-will which is so apparent among the undergraduates, Fourth Year gave a skit. The scene was 1950, the occasion a "Mother and Daughter" Reunion at Loretto, where was discovered what "the years which bring the philosophic mind," had made of the graduates. Reminiscences were indulged in, to the great amusement of the audience. The programme was brought to a close with the singing of the year songs and the College song.

If we all floated in the air like bubbles, free to drift anywhere at any instant, the practical result would be that no one would have the courage to begin a conversation.—G. K. Chesterton.

Ninety-five Out of a Hundred Students Enrolling in the University Are Swimmers

NECESSITY OF SWIMMING

Further Comparison Shows An Increase in Numbers Taking Life-Saving

"The number of students attending this University who cannot swim has been going down slowly, but gradually," remarked Mr. W. W. Winterburn, Instructor in Swimming at Hart House, in commenting on the registration figures in swimming classes this year. "At the present time ninety-five out of a hundred students enrolling in this University can swim when they come here. The result is that we can start them off by giving them more advanced work in different strokes, and generally round off the rough corners in their swimming. We hope with the installation of the new boards to give the fundamentals of fancy diving, and last, but not least, we are able to give a fairly comprehensive course in 'First Aid to the Drowning.'"

A comparison of the present registration in learn-to-swim classes with last year's shows a drastic reduction in numbers. The Monday morning class at ten is half the size of last year's; there are none in the Monday class at twelve—last year there were fifteen. The Tuesday class at ten is the same as last year, but the eleven o'clock is only half of last year's. The Wednesday class at eleven has only one registered, where last year there were twenty.

Mr. Winterburn pointed out that the decrease in the learn-to-swim classes was naturally accompanied by a corresponding increase in the number taking Life Saving. He emphasized the necessity of everyone being able to swim. Out of fifty fatalities in the water, at least forty-nine might be avoided by a swimmer using caution and judgment.

The significance of this decrease in the number of non-swimmers who take Physical Training in the University is that the educational authorities in the preparatory schools are awakening to the necessity of swimming. The present extent of swimming instruction and pools in Toronto would have been unbelievable ten years ago. "The Boards of Education are realizing more and more the necessity of swimming and physical education among school children," said Mr. Winterburn. "This is borne out as far as Toronto is concerned by the opening of tanks in a number of colleges and high schools and by the appointment of Mr. Johns, a Toronto graduate, who is a specialist in physical training. He will stress swimming."

Initial Dance and Bridge Party Well Attended

A Halloween dance and bridge party at O.C.E. were the means of bringing the student teachers together in a social way for the first time this year.

The efforts of the social committee were well rewarded with a good turnout, though the ladies were noticeably in the majority. Several Paul Jones dances helped to mix the crowd, and made everyone feel better acquainted. The dancers' names were written on cardboard pumpkins, which they wore in order to be more easily identified. Novel paper caps, serpentine and the appropriate Halloween refreshments, doughnuts, cider and pumpkin pie, all helped to make the party an enjoyable one.

COMPETITION VS. THE "GATE"

Whether the purpose of athletics, and by athletics we refer primarily to football, is to create a large gate and a subsequent surplus of treasury funds or to provide a form of recreation and amusement is a question that has often been propounded, particularly in relation to sporting events conducted by our Universities. While the public in general holds that the development of an athlete and a gentleman is of primary importance, they realize that the financial side must have its hearing, too, but only to the extent of providing sinking funds for the provision of the future and for carrying those sports which are not self-sustaining.

And it is on such an assumption that the Athletic Directorate of the University of Toronto has worked, paying the way for practically every other University sport from the funds created by the football club and laying aside a sinking fund each year for repairs, replacements and the requirements of the future. The value of the "gate" has been adjusted so as to meet these obligations, and at no time has the admission fee been increased, in spite of the temptation of a popular demand and an inadequate supply, nor has the Association failed in giving the student prior right or special rates. In other words, the attitude of the local Directorate has been such that the monies received should cover the expenses incurred, with a sufficient surplus attained to fearlessly meet the demands of the future. And it is as thus, we feel, all athletic treasuries should be conducted.

And it is thus we feel astounded at the tone of a recent editorial in the Kingston Whig-Standard entitled "Fair play for the Queen's football team"—which is, in brief, to the effect that "While the Montreal and Toronto teams are raking in the shekels in what must to them be a most gratifying manner, Queen's must needs be content with the smaller receipts in Kingston," and this despite the fact that, as is pointed out, "Queen's is the greatest drawing card in the Inter-collegiate league."

If Queen's are, at the present time, financially unable to meet their legitimate athletic requirements, then we should say that most certainly an investigation is in order and that some small adjustment may be necessary. But if it is a profit in the offing that is sought, then most certainly the Whig-Standard is distinctly out of order. Just why Queen's, with an enrolment approximately only one-fifth as great as that of the University of Toronto, and with, as a consequence, athletics being conducted on a much smaller scale, should wish or expect to receive a share of the gate equal to that of Varsity or McGill, both with many more pursuits and much greater expenses, is difficult to understand. The case cited, Big League Baseball, is totally inapplicable in the present instance. There the "gate" is the sole consideration. Here not the "gate" but legitimate running expenses are the requirements. But if, we say, the purpose of athletics is primarily the "gate," then the Whig-Standard's suggestion should be met.

That Queen's are prepared to accept the suggestion of our contemporary we believe. That question did come up at a meeting of the Intercollegiate Hockey Union a year or so ago, but, with every team in the group showing clear deficits, fell by the wayside. That if a sport does not pay it should be abolished from Intercollegiate competition is a feeling entertained in certain College circles we feel, and is one that, in all justice, we should fight heartily against. Inter-school sports, irrespective of their nature or appeal to the general public, are our sole means of fostering a spirit of friendliness and trust with our fellow undergraduates in other Universities; and so long as our athletic receipts are sufficient to this end, and to provide to the future, we and our brother athletic bodies should rest content.

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

The Friday afternoon recitals in Hart House have opened splendidly with an admirably varied and well-balanced programme for the piano given by Miss Florence Singer, on October 28th.

Miss Singer showed throughout a real mastery of technique, and a sense of the possibilities of her instrument. She captivated her audience at once, playing Scarlatti with gay triumph and Bach with excellent precision. Everyone must have noticed the perfect atmosphere in the room, as she returned to the piano to begin Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata. And for us—if not, perhaps, for the pianist—the effect of the quietness and the stillness in the half-dark room was only intensified by the harsh bursts of shouting from the more strenuous world on the campus without.

The enthusiasm of the audience grew even more marked during the third group, and the well-known Severac selections were received with much applause. Miss Singer indeed played them with much charm, combining very skilfully accuracy and clarity with a soft delicacy of tone which is sometimes lacking in more experienced pianists.

The presence of a large and appreciative audience shows that the members of Hart House who are fond of chamber music do not need to be specially urged to remember these Friday afternoon recitals; but it may not be out of place to say, at the beginning of the season, that the Committee has been very fortunate in already obtaining promises from a number of excellent artists to provide throughout this winter programmes which will be more varied and of greater range than we have had hitherto.

More About Teachers

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

If Mr. N. R. Speirs is correct in saying that "Teachers are born, not made," and if all who are now teaching are "born" teachers, then an impenetrable argument in favour of birth-control has been discovered.

Fortunately, this is not the case. All things being equal, one with natural gifts for teaching will excel over others. But I am not going into a study of "innate ideas." Neither am I sighing for Middle Age methods, nor for leather lunged professors. What I am stressing is that anything worth doing at all is worth doing well. The great majority of the professors who, in effect, are wasting the students' time, are not physically handicapped nor wilfully uninteresting, but have simply failed to develop powers of better expression which are latent in them.

If Mr. Speirs had not given his subject a little thought in advance, he could not have written such an admirable letter. If he had written you in a scrawly, illegible hand, you could never have given its message to the world.

I infer that Mr. Speirs intends to be a teacher. If I am correct, I know that he is doing his best to make his lessons interesting and instructive. If the day should ever come when he finds out that he is not a "born" teacher, I hope he will have the grace to resign, and not continue to inflict torture upon his pupils.

If we students wrote essays as ill-finished as many of the lectures which we are forced to listen to, there would soon be no students to listen, no lecturers to be criticized, no arguments resulting, no "Varsity," no nuthin'.

Yours truly,

W.V.R.

Champions Cartoonists

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

As this is the first occasion upon which I have taken the liberty of addressing any communication to you, I hasten to congratulate you and your staff upon your efforts in the publication of "The Varsity." Without doubt this paper fulfils, and fulfils efficiently, an important function in the life of the undergrad body.

I have noticed the absence of any drawings in your paper, and my thought is that perhaps the inclusion within its pages from time to time of witty cartoons and ludicrous caricatures would be as provocative of the humorous—if not the esthetic—as the mewings of our Kampus Kitty.

Sincerely,

"Graphitis."

[Editorial note: "The Varsity" is at all times pleased to receive contributions, and suitable cartoons, etc., would be published as circumstances permitted.]

TO-DAY: FOOTBALL--VIC. vs. SR. U.C.: SOCCER--MEDS vs. ST. MIKES

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The officials of a football game have much to watch, and one ruling which consistently is ignored by all and sundry is the one regarding players leaving the playing field and returning at some point other than where they left. Time after time when a kick is called and the ball is within a couple of yards of the sideline, outside wing men deliberately race outside the playing field in order to escape interference and later return to tackle the man receiving the punt. This is absolutely contrary to the rules of the game, but seldom if ever do the officials call it.

On Saturday when Batstone had kicked his second field goal and Varsity was preparing to kick off again, the C.O.T.C. Band very appropriately started up with, "You don't like it, no, you don't like it—not much."

Saturday saw the largest crowd that the Stadium has yet seen, there being 18,504 within the walls. The last record was 17,934 when Queen's was here for the play-off last year. The increased attendance is due to the foresight of the Athletic Executive, when the temporary stands gave accommodation for 570 more. It looks as though the south bleachers will have to be moved back in a few years and the Stadium made into a vast bowl.

Though out of the running, the Intercollegiate will be practicing hard for the McGill game, and there they will be confronted with a conflict of emotions. The boys are out to win at least one game this season and will do their best to down McGill in Montreal on Saturday. On the other hand, all Toronto is pulling for McGill to take the title this season—their first real chance since 1919.

The Camp Borden team made history repeat itself on Saturday when for the second year in succession they practically eliminated the Varsity O.R.F.U. team. The Orphans' only chance now is for Camp Borden to beat the Balm Beach team a week Saturday and then for Varsity to do the same on Thanksgiving Day. This is quite possible, because if the Fliers show any stuff like they did on Saturday, they should win, and with only a day to rest up, the Beach team should not be able to put up too great an argument.

In the exhibition game against McGill on Saturday, "Ted" Reeve, star player of Balm Beach, suffered a fractured leg. This is a serious blow to last year's champions and will entail a shake-up in the team. He was a valuable player and will be sadly missed.

Now that rugby is about over, interest is turning towards basketball, hockey, B.W. and F. and the gym team. How many championships lie in these directions?

Things look pretty good along basketball lines. Mac McCutcheon has nearly fifty men trying out for Senior, Intermediate and Junior teams. Although there is very little left of last year's Seniors, there is some new material that looks pretty promising. Roy Currie and G. Lewis are the only old boys of last year's Seniors, but, together with some last year Intermediate stars, they ought to make a real time for the Blue and White. Mitchell, Johnston, Sackler, Beube and Martin all look good this year, and they will sure keep their opponents going. As yet no division has been made, and Mac doesn't intend to for some time. All he is giving his men now is routine work, trying to get them into condition. Practices are held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Victoria Scores Soccer Win, Has Comfortable Margin

Victoria opened the scoring sheet of the soccer game yesterday when after five minutes of play Searle took a pass from Houston to beat the Trinity goalie. The second goal came when Hall shoved one in from a scramble in front of Trinity's goal. Houston mounted the scoring by adding two more, making it 4-0 for Vic.

Line-up:

Victoria: Goal, Mellow; full backs, McMillan, Simpson; half backs, Cryderman, Moore, Westington; forwards, H. Hall, Houston, S. Hall, Shields, Searle.

Trinity: Goal, Erb; full backs, Hadley, Carpenter; half backs, Smith, Douglas, Choppie; forwards, McPherson, Hudson, Gunn, Wong, Wright.

VIC. FRESHETTES DISPLAY ENTHUSIASM IN SWIMMING

Inauguration of Activities Points to Widespread Popularity

A great deal of enthusiasm for swimming is being displayed by the freshettes at Vic., and some good material will be forthcoming from the first year. Kay Hunt, who graduated last June, will be missed on the plunging event, but the rest of last year's team are on deck this year. It is to be regretted that vaccination has held things up a bit, but with "Rox" Vanstone as curator, Vic. girls should soon be well away for a fine season. The meet will likely be earlier in the term this year, and there is sure to be keen competition. Ede Buchanan, Dot Ker, Anna Bicknell and Marjorie Horwood, to say nothing of Marjorie Reider, who is guiding the Varsity meet this year, are all turning out in fine style. Swimming has a growing popularity, and it is expected that there will be a fine class working for bronze medals.

The girls who are interested in swimming should sign the posters without delay.

Junior Arts and Meds Tie Up Polo Game Fast and Thrilling

Junior Arts and Junior Meds water polo teams staged a very close game Monday. Meds scored in the second period, and it was not until there was only a minute to go that Lowndes flipped in an aerial pass from Spence, tying the score at 1-1. Both teams showed a decided improvement in passing during the progress of the game.

Mulock Cup Game Postponed

The Mulock Cup game between Senior Arts and Trinity scheduled for November 7th, Thanksgiving Day, has been postponed until November 8th.

VARSITY MARKSMEN MAKE FINE SCORES

All Matches Keenly Contested Last Year's Record Broken Dents Win Shield

COOEY TAKES AGGREGATE

Toronto University Rifle Association shot their Inter-Varsity Competition Friday at the Long Branch Rifle Ranges, when Dr. Lucas, president of the association, was an interested spectator, and Major F. W. Utton, who was in charge, was more than delighted with the results. He said there was a marked improvement in the shooting over last year. It will be remembered that in scoring 767 as the team aggregate last year, it was a record for the Varsity shoot, being 13 points over any previous score, and Friday the team did even better, scoring a total of 768.

Possibles were made by Cooley and Leggett at 200 yards, and by Tilson at 500 yards.

Hayhurst had the highest score at 600 yards, although he was shooting with a very sore wrist due to a recent motor accident. He also deserves credit for his work on the ranges previous to the match which made possible such a fine aggregate.

There were no less than 16 scores of 90 and over, and the average for the team was 96—remarkably good scoring. That average proved them the winners last year.

In the interfaculty match Dents won the De Lury shield and bronze medals for each member of their team. School and Trinity followed in order.

Cooley won the O.R.A. medal for the extra series aggregate, also the association gold medal for the highest score, and the other members of the team get silver medals.

	200	500	600	Total
D. H. Cooley	35	33	32	100
J. Ammesley	32	34	32	98
G. D. Leggett	35	33	30	98
J. E. Tilson	31	35	31	97
T. E. Hayhurst	30	31	33	94
P. G. Anderson	32	31	31	94
G. W. Jacoby	33	32	29	94
L. S. Langstroth	31	31	31	93

The above eight comprise the team, and they were closely followed by Weir, Kirgwin and Sherwood with 92 each, and Smith, Macdonald and Wetherspoon with 91 each.

In the extra series, Cooley and Jacoby tied for first place in the 200 yards, both having possibles. Ainsley was first in the 500, and Hayhurst was winner of the 600 yards.

Meds Vanquish Wycliffe Strenuous Game Throughout

Meds beat Wycliffe 2-0 in a very fast and strenuous game of soccer played on the front campus Friday. Play was fairly even throughout, with combination of the forward lines featuring the game. Ayres scored for Meds in the first half on a hot shot which the Wycliffe goalie could not handle. Ririe counted another in the second period on a long shot.

Meds now stand as favourites for the group title, although Union Theologians and Wycliffe are still in the running.

Line-up:

Meds: Benson, King, Whitla, Nodwell, West, McKinney, Dixon, Ayres, Ririe, Wilford and Thrush.

Wycliffe: Wilkes, Cameron, Withers, Bailey, Coulthard, Evans, English, Perkins, Watkins, Warrall and Newby.

ST. MIKE'S EASILY DOWN PHARMACY—SCORE 18-6

Win Second Straight Game from Opponents in Mulock Cup Tussle

After a poor start, St. Michael's Mulock Cup team finished brilliantly to win their second straight game from Pharmacy by the score of 18 to 6. Both teams looked natty in their new uniforms, which is a decided change from the assorted football dress which is so customary in Mulock Cup games. The first half of the game was rather listless except for a couple of spirited runs by Regan.

St. Mike's scored a touch in the first quarter, followed by a kick to the dead-line for a point. Pharmacy came to life at this stage of the game, and their efforts were rewarded by the recovery of a fumbled ball behind the St. Mike's line.

In the third quarter St. Mike's kicked for two points, while Pharmacy added one. Darkness began to envelop the field in the third quarter, making the handling of the ball difficult. The double blue team seemed to be able to find their way around better than the boys from Pharmacy, as they plunged through for two touches in quick succession. Pharmacy was bewildered by the furious attack of the winners, who crossed their line twice again only to be called back because of interference.

The teams—

Pharmacy: Glennon, Williams, Atkins, McFarlan, Harrigan, Middleton, Asseltine, Tilson, Hudson, MacDougall, Hoffman, Devitt, Tanton, Lay.

St. Mike's: Burns, Bolger, Sammons, Hibborn, Crusoe, J. Clark, W. Clark, Fawcett, McIsaac, Regan, Radley, Patterson, Parabucki, McGarry.

McGILL RUGGERS NOSE OUT FAST VARSITY SQUAD

All the Breaks Go To McGill Varsity Always Dangerous Baltye Stars

In the return match with McGill on Saturday, Varsity rugby team was beaten by one touchdown to nil. This showed a marked improvement on last week's score, which left McGill with a lead of 20 points. It was a hard-fought game, and over-keenness on both sides was responsible for a fair number of offside penalties.

In the first half of the game, the play was fairly even, but the ball was frequently in the McGill quarter. On several occasions Varsity looked quite dangerous, but did not score, as the end runs were usually spoiled by fumbles. The Varsity forwards worked well together, Bastock, Burton and Messenger getting in some good work. The McGill forwards displayed their usual good form in passing the ball out smartly to their three-quarters, who made some very effective end-runs, but just failed to score. For the visitors, Graeme, Angerin and Noble handled the ball well and were a constant source of danger to Varsity, while Redpath's and Stirling's knowledge of the game was of much assistance.

Just before half-time Baltye got well away, and nearly scored for Varsity. A drop kick by Baltye went wide, leaving the score 0-0 at the close of the first half. Shortly after the interval McGill pressed hard on Varsity's goal-line and were only kept out by keen tackling. Eventually, after a good end-run, Graeme got over for a touchdown for McGill. As the try was unconverted, the score was 3-0 for McGill. After this Varsity

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED

At yesterday's meeting of the Athletic Directorate, L. B. Pearson was appointed to the position of Honorary Head Coach of the Hockey team on the recommendation of the Hockey Advisory Board. "Mike" has had a wide experience in the coaching line, having guided the destinies of the O.R.F.U. team during the past few seasons, and as he is extremely popular with the players, should make good with the hockey team.

Other appointments made were that of J. R. McGillivray, V Meds, to the management of the senior basketball team, and J. M. Mayor, 2nd U.C., to be manager of the Junior team.

U.C. FEMINE NATATORS PROPOSE SWIMMING MEET

Former Stars Out in Force Excellent Opportunities for Aspiring Freshies

The University College women propose holding another swimming meet this year. A few of the swimmers from last year's team have already been practicing in the Lillian Massey tank.

The curator, Kathleen Cringen, has been ill this fall, and will not be back until after Christmas. Pearl Kennedy is ably carrying on in her absence. Evelyn Wilmott, the star swimmer, is not at college this year. Eyrie has won the cup for three successive years, and her place will be difficult to fill. She will be missed by the other swimmers, as she could always be depended on to turn out. Kathleen Cringen will not be able to swim this year, and her loss will certainly be felt.

Pearl Kennedy, Margaret Fairbairn and Kathleen Scholes will turn out again in full force. Amy Essery, another swimmer, and Lilouet Green, a coming diver, will also lend their support. With the exception of Lilouet Green all the swimmers are fourth year students, and there are all sorts of opportunities for freshies to make a place on the college team; and it is hoped that a number will turn out. There will be notices posted on the bulletin board in the Women's Cloak Room at a later date.

Knox Soccer Off to Win S.P.S. Is Serious Threat

The Knox College soccer team took the first game of the second round of their group against S.P.S. yesterday afternoon to the score of 1-0. This was Knox's fourth successive win, but they fought harder for it than in any previous game. Only the almost perfect combination of Knox and the brilliant showing of their goalie, Irving, kept S.P.S. from scoring in the final minutes of the game.

A device has been invented which makes an automobile come when one whistles to it. This is quite distinct from the Ford that will sleep on the mat and bite the milk-man.—Ubysey.

went on the offensive, the forwards playing very well in the loose. McGill, however, were far superior in the line-outs. Baltye and Lee relieved many awkward situations by their good kicking into touch, while Goldenberg showed up well with useful runs. Finally Varsity carried the ball into the McGill quarter, where it remained until the end of the game. This is the first year that McGill has won the championship since 1921.

WOMEN'S TOURNAMENT LEAD BY QUEEN'S TEAM

Marge Devine and Peggy Grout Furnish Fireworks Display Finals To-day

The first round of the Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament was played off yesterday morning at the Toronto Tennis Club. The three Ontario Universities were represented by four players apiece. So far the honours have fallen to Queen's, they having won both their singles sets and taken a bye in the doubles. Western have won one singles set and both the doubles, while Varsity have won the doubles and lost with their singles sets.

The most interesting and exciting game on the courts was played by Marge Devine of Queen's and Peggy Grout of Varsity. Marge exhibited the most excellent style and form in placing and serving that was seen in the whole tournament. Peggy plays a steady, clever game that is hard to beat, and it was only after a hard fight that Marge Devine of Queen's scored (6-4) (6-1) against her. Miss O. Miller played the best game for Western. Her slashing drives were practically impossible to return. The doubles game between Varsity and Western was steady and sure rather than brilliant or daring.

Following are the results:
M. Devine (Queen's) defeated M. Grout (Varsity) 6-4, 6-4.
O. Miller (Western) defeated R. Higgins (Varsity) 6-0, 6-1.
J. Longmore (Queen's) defeated L. Billings (Western) 9-7, 6-1.
The doubles game was won by Varsity, J. Finlay and N. Bateman (Varsity) defeating K. Yeats and M. Flesher (Western) 6-0, 6-2.

The finals and semi-finals will be played off to-day at 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. at the Toronto Tennis Club. The draw is as follows:

O. Miller (Western) plays J. Longmore (Queen's), and the winner plays M. Devine of Queen's.

In the doubles set Varsity will play Queen's, J. Finlay and N. Bateman representing Varsity, and M. Perry and K. Ball representing Queen's.

quite right. There were several, and they reigned at different times—successively—which means one after the other.

Henry VIII married early—and often. He was very fond of his wife while she lasted, but she didn't last long, as a rule. The clergyman who had the contract to perform his marriage ceremonies waxed fat, both in purse and circumference, on the fees. His name was Reverend Cardinal Wolsey, and his last published remark was, "If I had only served my King as he has served me, he would never have lived to old age."

Passing over a few uneventful years, we come to the time of Elizabeth. That, of course, is a figure of speech. We can't come to it, because it is all over and won't happen again.

Elizabeth was a Queen. She couldn't be a King because she was a woman. She was very brave. She defeated the Spanish Armada by riding up and down on a white horse while the English navy sunk the Spanish fleet.

Oh! by the way, Elizabeth was the first Englishwoman who wore stockings. A man gave her a pair as a present. ONE pair—only one—funny idea, wasn't it? He might have given her two pairs—then she could have had one pair on and one in the wash. Well, never mind! SHE died—and there was a new dynasty.

It is a long while since we had any of the "S.S. Pineapple," but here goes for Canto IV:

S.S. PINEAPPLE

Perchance my readers may recall We saw the pirates dive and fall To the "Pineapple" from the "Gore," With Hardtack Jones' most savage score.

Gentle Professor Percy Pinkham Suddenly thought of how to sink 'em, And said: "Good pirates, here's a treat!

Broach some tins of my canned heat, For it's the best of 'III X Volcano' And quite upsets the clearest braino." But Hardtack Jones had come for gold

And found no bullion in the hold, He roared: "Now, after all my toil, I think we'll boil this crew in oil.

And then for a last playful prank We'll make these lubbers walk the plank!" The plank was fixed, and Captain Snoot Propelled there by a pirates' boot, Stood on the edge, and saw the sharks And paused to make his last remarks.

Said he: "Alas, I have a hunch I'm destined for a fish's lunch." N.A.B.

In a closely contested though loosely played rugby match yesterday afternoon, Sr. S.P.S. held St. Meds to a score of 6-6. There were many fumbles by both teams, but most of these were recovered.

Soon after the kick-off School scored a rouge, but their triumph was short-lived when a costly fumble was dribbled to their line for a touch by Wright of Meds. School, who had hitherto been getting decidedly the worse of the encounter, improved considerably, and in the second quarter play ranged from one end of the field to the other.

more than satisfactory. In fact there isn't a misfit in the whole cast.

The play itself is very much to type. We do not mean this in any derogatory sense, since it is a type which fills a real need in any theatre-going community, and which satisfies that mood which we all have at times, i.e., the mood for a light, not too complicated play. As such, "The Butter and Egg Man" stands among the top of its class.

In all fairness some mention must be made of the Concert Ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Elie Spivak. Their playing between acts, especially in the case of Kreisler's "Liebesfreud," is of the highest standard, and deserved more show of appreciation from the fair sized audience than it received. In short, the whole performance was—oh dash it—a hot sketch.

W.S.

UPTOWN—MOCKERY

The show at the Uptown this week is quite good; there have been better pictures, but many, many worse ones. Lon Chaney, in his distinctive roles, is probably the best actor in moving pictures to-day, and he played up to his usual high mark. The heroine, Barbara Bedford, is very beautiful, well cast for the part, and what is even better, she realizes that she is only the heroine and not the entire play. The other parts, too, are well taken.

The play itself is not as good as some of the things Lon Chaney has done, nor is the character so interesting, but it is neither fantastic nor is it tawdry melodrama. There are very few characters, and the scenes are extremely simple; no attempt at significance, but tastefully carried out.

The scene is laid in Russia sometime, we fancy, about 1918 or 1919. We have not a very thorough knowledge of the recent history of Russia and the subtleties gave no explanations whatever. There seemed to be a regular Russian army against some enemy with scenes suggesting Bolshevism, but whether the enemy were the Bolsheviks or some one else was not quite clear. Also it seemed to end happily with a countless still at large in Soviet Russia; but, of course, if the drama be good enough, little details like this should not matter. We repeat, we do not know the intimate history of the country, so we

Is Our Co-ed a "Husband Hunter?"

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

A terrible thing has been written in your paper which I think should not be left unnoticed.

Some pippant young reporter has referred to the co-ed body in the Pass Course as being "husband hunters." With all due respect which I owe to this invulnerable body, I think it is a man's duty to disagree with such unfair libel.

As a Freshman I greatly enjoy the elevating spectacle of seeing the "Medettes" diligently writing down every word uttered by our Physics Professor and giving us Frosh an example of true application.

Although I don't know the girls in the Pass Course, I think they cannot be so different in spirit to the Medettes to such an extent to be called "husband hunters."

Probably the person who has written this calumny has misunderstood the urbanity and fine sense of congeniality of these girls for grotesque forwardness.

Hoping that these lines will open the eyes of an indiscriminating young author.

I remain, yours truly,

L.J.C., Dent. 3T2.

conclude it was somewhere in Russia and leave it at that.

The heroine is a Countess, a spy for the regular army (at least her army had the uniforms), who was helped through an awkward situation by a poor peasant with the original one-track mind. The peasant falls in love with her, and when she arrives among her friends, is a little annoyed at being made a servant as reward. He becomes insanely jealous of a young officer whom she loves. There is a rising of revolutionists in which the peasant takes part, first as villain and then as hero. There is a rescue by the young officer, and the peasant presumably becomes their devoted servant for life or else dies (we are not certain which). The character of the peasant is well done, though.

The vaudeville by Jack Arthur's orchestra is pretty fair, but with nothing outstanding. There is a comedy which is good, if you like them. It is a worth-while show, by and large. B.D.B.

ST. MICHAEL'S ORATORICAL CLUB HOLDS MEETING

Variety of Topics Treated by the Several Speakers Fr. Lebel is Critic

St. Michael's College Oratorical Club held its regular weekly meeting at the College, Friday, Oct. 28th, at 7 p.m. Joseph Ord, club secretary, was in the chair.

"The Reliability or rather the Unreliability of the Press" was the theme chosen by W. J. O'Meara, first speaker. He showed how various forms of propaganda coloured the editorials, news stories and advertising of the modern press.

Ed. Garvey, in a thoughtful effort, deplored the utilitarian trend in modern education. Culture was now regarded as an aid in business and social life rather than an end in itself.

Cyril McAlpine made a humorous appeal for better telephone service around the College. He received the moral support of everyone present.

In a carefully thought out speech, Clem Crusoe analysed the merits and demerits of the "one-player one-sport" rule as applied to Intercollegiate athletics. The trend of his argument was in opposition to the move.

Rev. Fr. Lebel, faculty representative, gave an illuminating criticism of each speech.

A conservative is a man who builds a railroad where the radical has blazed the way.

"We are having a very delightful visit," Miss Divine, the manager of the Queen's tennis team, remarked enthusiastically at the tea in the Walnut Room in Wymilwood on Monday afternoon. The visiting teams from Queen's and Western were the guests of honour. Miss McCamus poured tea, and Miss Parks, Dr. Benson and the executive of the U. of T. Tennis Club were also present. Eleanor McCubbin and "Ed" Buchanan introduced the guests who had not already met. The Vic. Athletic Executive and tennis team served the refreshments.

Conversation flowed freely while the sandwiches and tea, the ice cream and cake disappeared. Girls from the three colleges exchanged ideas on many topics. All the players were keen about the courts of the Toronto Tennis Club. Miss Roy, the Queen's chaperone, was delighted with Wymilwood—"You are very fortunate in all your Women's Unions," she remarked.

Miss Miller, the first player on the Western team, and also champion of Western Ontario of 1927, expressed her admiration for Hart House, and she also felt that the Intercollegiate Tennis Meet this year was a decided move towards raising the standard of the women's game in the colleges and also in Ontario.

The tea was a great success, and everyone is looking forward with eager anticipation to the final results of the tournament, which should be finished this afternoon at the Toronto Tennis Club.

PROFESSOR GILSON RETURNS TO GIVE LECTURE SERIES

Sorbonne Doctor Will Assist with Foundation of 'Academy' at St. Mike's

LECTURES AT HARVARD

Hopes to Return for Annual Visit As Long As He Resides in U.S.A.

Professor Etienne Gilson, Ph.D., of the Sorbonne, is returning on Thursday, Nov. 3rd, to St. Michael's College to give a series of lectures on "The Psychology of St. Augustine."

With this visit of Dr. Gilson the work of organizing the Philosophy Department of the Graduate Studies at St. Michael's will be materially advanced, as Dr. Gilson is taking a real interest in the work and is lending valuable assistance in helping to build the foundation of what is anticipated to develop into an "Academy" of mediaeval studies at St. Michael's. It is with this end in view that arrangements are being made for the return visit of Professor Gilson every year during the period that he continues his connection with Harvard University, where he is engaged to lecture for one term each year.

Dr. Gilson began his teaching at the University of Strasbourg, and a few years ago he was elected to the University of Paris, which is one of the three great universities on the continent. The Sorbonne is the same University in which St. Thomas Aquinas taught, and although the University has undergone many changes since that time, still the work which Dr. Gilson is performing is closely related to that which was carried on by his holy and illustrious predecessor and at the same seat of learning.

Dr. Gilson owes his ability to deliver his lectures in English to the Great War. Having joined the ranks of the French soldiers at the beginning of the war, Prof. Gilson was

UNIVERSITY DEBATERS TOUR MIDDLE WEST

Return Compliment Paid By Visit of American Team Last Year

TEAM NOT YET MADE UP

It has just been learned that a University debating team of three men will make a tour of the Middle West States sometime during the current year. Speaking to "The Varsity," the Acting Chairman of the Literary and Debates Committee explained that it was primarily to return the compliment paid us last year when a team from the University of Minnesota debated here, that the tour has been arranged.

On that occasion a very deep impression was made upon the University by the American debaters. Though the judges gave the Toronto team the decision, a standing vote of the audience definitely indicated the opposite sentiment.

The complete itinerary of the team has not as yet been made up, but whatever it may be, a surprising display of forensic fireworks will doubtless be forthcoming. The decision of the Debates Committee attaches additional interest to the Intercollegiate and Intercollegiate debating. The possibility of such a privilege places another premium on debating ability.

Gowned Women Wanted In University College Halls

U.C. expects every girl to do her duty!

Co-operation and appreciation which are necessary for the success of "Gown Week" are lacking among the students. It is hoped that every woman student will respond to the request by wearing the academic robe to lectures during the remainder of this week, thus firmly establishing for the years to come this great institution in University College.

OPINIONS DIVERGE AS TO OVERCROWDING

Personal Contact Apt To Be Missing in Larger Institutions

PRAISES HONOUR COURSE

When interviewed with regard to the problem of overcrowding which all colleges have to face to-day, Professor J. N. Woodcock, Registrar of Trinity College, stated that there was wide divergence of views as to the best remedy. "The intimate touch so characteristic of the so-called small college," he said, "is something much to be desired." In point of fact, in the larger institutions this personal contact between faculty and student body is not attainable to any great degree. In proportion as a college becomes larger its educational system loses in flexibility. Rigidity of methods invariably has a stultifying effect upon individuality of intellectual endeavour. He thought that actual numerical limitation of registration would not be resorted to by privately endowed institutions for some time at least.

Considered strictly from the academic standpoint, Reverend B. F. Sullivan, Registrar of St. Michael's College, said that in his opinion the system of honour courses in vogue in this University represented one of the worst evils of over-registration. He pointed out that the higher requirements and diversity of subjects in the different Honour Courses tended to retain the smaller division. He also mentioned the possibility of the eventual elimination of the General Course.

GERMAN CLUB HOLDS ITS FIRST MEETING

Musical Programme is Based on Beethoven—Play is Chosen

The German Study Club of the University of Toronto held its initial meeting in Wymilwood on Tuesday evening. The first item of business was the election of Miss Elsie Masson to the office of Secretary-Treasurer.

The President, Miss Victoria Mueller of Loretto Abbey, addressed the club in German and English, stressing the fact that the membership of the club should include all who were interested in the study of the German language.

The musical programme, consisting of Beethoven, Miss Dwyer read a short paper on his life and work. Professor Holt, accompanied by Mrs. Holt, sang one of Beethoven's very beautiful songs, "Sonata Pathetique" was then played by Miss Beatrice Moran. Miss Victoria Mueller, accompanied by Miss Constance Nolan, sang one of the songs from "Wilhelm Meister," "Kennst du das Land." "The Moonlight Sonata," played by Mr. Thompson, ended the programme.

After coffee and cake, Mr. Holt sang to a silent and appreciative group of sleepy students "Guten Nacht."

NEW COURSE OPENS FINE OPPORTUNITIES FOR PROFESSIONALS

Occupational Therapy is Valuable Supplement to Work of Physicians THOROUGH TRAINING GIVEN

Two Classes With Enrolment Limited to Twenty-five

"We are the last word," printed in large green letters, identified the Occupational Therapy float in the Centenary parade, as the course was first offered by the University, under the Department of University Extension, one year ago. The purpose of the new course is to train young women so that they may be qualified to act as therapists in government institutions, mental hospitals, homes for incurables, sanatoria, general hospitals, orthopedic hospitals and private homes.

The work of a qualified occupational therapist consists in rehabilitating patients by providing them with interesting occupations designed to exercise and if possible restore limbs which may have been injured, as well as to keep the mind engaged and thus prevent despondency. Expert attention given these two frequently brings about a return to health and the possibility of patients resuming their regular occupations when otherwise a physical and mental recovery would not have been possible.

For this reason Occupational Therapy is a valuable supplement to the work of the physician and surgeon. In the last few years especially it has been developing rapidly in the United

ART CLASSES TO BE HELD BY SKETCH COMMITTEE

Afford Excellent Opportunity For Those Wishing to Begin Study of Art

For some years past it has been the practice of the Sketch Committee to arrange for a series of Art Classes to be held in the Sketch Room. These classes afford an exceptional opportunity not only for those who desire to improve their drawing and painting but also for those who wish to make a beginning in one of the most fascinating hobbies any man can possess. The Director of the classes is Mr. F. S. Haines, one of the best known artists in Toronto, a past president of the Ontario Society of Artists and an experienced teacher.

The first class takes place to-night in the Sketch Room at 7.30. Those who are interested may procure further details at the Warden's office.

VARSLITY TEAM WINS CHAMPIONSHIP TITLE IN WOMEN'S TENNIS

Olga Miller of Western is Winner of Spectacular Singles Match

RALLYING FEATURED

Teams Are Given Banquet Following Tournament—Dr. Benson Speaks

In the finals of the Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament played yesterday Varsity captured the doubles championship, while Olga Miller from Western carried off the honours for singles.

The doubles, between Norma Bateman and Joyce Finlay for Varsity and Marg Perry and K. Ball for Queen's, was a consistent and careful match. K. Burns was the only player who made any attempt at net playing, most of the rallying coming from the back line.

Norma Bateman, handicapped through vaccination, played her usual consistent game, and showed unusually good footwork. Marg Perry put over a heavy serve, but was unable to baffle the Varsity girls, who worked splendidly together. Two sets were played, with scores of 6-3, 6-4.

The singles match between Olga Miller, Western, and Marge Devine, Queen's, was a more spectacular game. It was featured by good rallying and some splendid service work. Olga Miller was particularly noticeable for her serve. Miss Miller won the set with two games, 6-1, 6-2.

In the morning, Olga Miller defeated Josephine Longmore of Queen's in a preliminary match, which also proved exciting.

Last night the Women's Athletic Directorate gave a banquet for the visiting teams at the Madison Inn. Dr. Benson, at the head of the tables, welcomed the girls to the University of Toronto, and hoped that the Women's Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament, at last realized, would become annual. Marge Devine replied on behalf of the Queen's team, and Olga Miller spoke for Western.

The banquet was followed by an informal dance.

St. Hilda's Will Hold Bi-weekly Reception

The St. Hildeans will hold their bi-weekly reception at the College on Thursday at eight o'clock. The annual Halloween party, at which the sophomores entertain the other years, is causing much speculation, particularly among the freshmen, who are subjected to certain mysterious rites on that hallowed eve when the St. Hildeans revel at the masquerade.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen

The former Prime Minister of Canada, will be the guest of honour at the opening banquet of the Commerce Club in Hart House on Thursday evening.

MEIGHEN TO ATTEND COMMERCE BANQUET

Many Distinguished Men Will Be Guests of Club at Opening Banquet

STILL RETAINS INTEREST

On Thursday evening the Commerce Club will hold their opening banquet in Hart House. The guest of honour on this occasion will be the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, B.A., LL.D., ex-Premier of Canada. Many other distinguished guests will be present, including Sir Robert Falconer, Mr. H. H. Evans of the Canadian General Trust, and Mr. C. L. Burton of Robt. Simpson Co. A large turnout of members and their friends is anticipated.

Considerable interest is attached to the event, as it marks the appearance for the first time of Mr. Meighen at any function in Hart House, and in fact his first appearance at any University function in quite a number of years.

Mr. Meighen since his retirement from the political arena has become a resident of Toronto and is now engaged in business in this city. He has severed all his former connections with public life, but apparently still retains an interest in his Alma Mater.

TRY-OUTS FOR DEBATING TEAM WELL ATTENDED

Representatives From Four Different Colleges a Remarkable Feature

The try-outs for the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Team were well attended. It was remarkable that the four speakers chosen happened to represent the four different colleges in the University. The representative from St. Hilda's was a first year girl.

Mary Winspear—St. Hilda's. Norah Holden—Victoria College. Tmima Littner—University College. Helena McGrath—Loretto Abbey. Should any member of the team withdraw, Victoria Mueller, former president of the Intercollegiate Debating Union, has been chosen to fill her place.

November the twenty-first has been decided upon as the date of the Intercollegiate Debate. The Varsity debaters are to go to McGill, McGill to Queen's, and Queen's to Toronto. "Resolved that the present educational system affords adequate preparation for modern life" was the subject chosen for this debate.

BUFFALO DIRECTOR GIVES ADDRESS ON MOVEMENT IN ART

Traces French Progress in France Since Franco-Prussian War

DISCUSSES FRENCH ART

Emphasizes Importance of Reading in Appreciation of Art

"As leader of almost the whole occidental world in the Fine Arts, France has had a unique position for some centuries past, and her influence still continues." This was the dictum of Mr. Hecking, Director of the Albright Gallery in Buffalo, in his address at the Art Gallery last evening on "Modern French Art." The strain of Latin in the French makes them more sensitive, and for this reason the French have encouraged artists and recognized the fact that art is a great part of their national existence.

The early modern movement in French Art began shortly after the Franco-Prussian war, when French national life developed along new lines. In Literature this was the period of Flaubert, Maupassant and Balzac. These writers were filled with a scientific spirit and depicted the social atmosphere of the time, opening the eyes of youth to a new sense of beauty. The movement was felt in the realm of art as well, and it became the aim of art to emancipate itself from the slavery to tradition by means of the growing independence of artists. As a result, modern French Art tended to become more and more the art of the people, its inspiration derived from the world of the working man and the middle classes.

About the middle of the nineteenth century artists tended to divide into two groups, in which line and form were ranged against colour. Among the seers or dreamers who came into prominence at this time were Millet and Crot. Following these there came

FREE LANCES HOLD FIRST MEETING

Enables Girls Who Work Way Through College to Get Acquainted

DR. GORDON SPEAKS

Although co-eds may come to college to get a husband, it was evident at a meeting of the Free Lances that many of them do all kinds of work to earn their way through. The first meeting of the year was held at the University College Women's Union on Tuesday. Dr. Gordon sketched the history of the club, and the members told of their experiences. It was decided that last year's enterprise—a darning bureau—would be taken up again. A list was formed of the kind of work the members would like to do and what they had done.

"The club is not an employment bureau," said Dr. Gordon; "it is primarily held so that the girls who work their way through college may get to know each other."

After a description of crocheting runs in silk stockings so that they would not show, and a short informal conversation, in which experiences in tutoring, waiting, housekeeping and so forth were exchanged, the meeting adjourned to the Common Room, where Mrs. Kirkwood held a charming tea for the members.

Spooks and Freshmen Visit Co-Eds of Hutton House

Spooks and witches walked abroad on Halloween and undaunted stormed the sacred precincts of Hutton House. The fair co-eds within obediently returned to long ago childhood days and entered into the spirit of the evening. Beguiled by the promise of rosy red apples, three delightful youngsters entertained the girls with the Charleston and comic songs, and one pretty maiden transported the audience to far-off Russia with her Sonya dance. A group of small boys including the Varsity mascot, turned hand springs and other acrobatic stunts.

Not to be outdone by their juniors, the men from "73" came over en masse and treated the co-eds to a fair imitation of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" by the frosh members. In an eloquent outburst of oratory, one of the U.C. men deplored the lack of femininity within their monastic confines and fervently hoped for closer relations between the two residences. It is to be hoped that the practical outcome of such a speech will not be later than next Halloween. The party broke up with college and residence yells, after the members from "73" had been allowed to show their terpsichorean art.

THE CHICAGO BOOK SHOP

The absurd conditions created by a wild vote-getting election campaign appear to have been most clearly demonstrated of late in Chicago, where Mayor Thompson, in an effort to remove all "pro-British propaganda" from the public library, declaring "My pre-election pledge is a sacred thing to me," has reached a supreme height of flagrant blatancy. Following the statement "I will not rest until I've purged this entire city of the poison that's being injected into the heart of American youth to eulogize England at the expense of their own country," the Mayor, it is stated, charged Mr. George H. Locke, Toronto's Chief Librarian and President of the International Library Association, with flooding Chicago with alleged British propaganda, and declares that every offending book in the library will be burnt forthwith.

That the slanderous books credited with glorifying the British Empire to the discredit of Americans have, in many cases, American authors with reputations and a sense of honesty, rather than bigotry. "Big Bill" has overlooked this, or rather, perhaps, he feels himself on safer ground in waging a campaign against the literati rather than against the banditti, who had previously made Chicago notorious. Politicians, at least ward politicians, seldom play the martyr, and it is to be expected that the voting power of the public adversely affected by the frenzied activity of the Chicago Mayor would not be nearly that gained by a policy of "hands off the bad lands."

But the condition will persist, and there will be those who, fearful of our erudition, will nobly sacrifice all self-interest to the benefit of our morals, our learning and our welfare—provided that they are given due public notice.

MODERNITY AND MONASTICISM

The academic gown comes to us from the clerical gown and hood of the old benedictine days. It is traced, in England, as far back as the 14th century. In 1342, "excess in apparel" was rebuked in scholars, and in 1432 students were restricted to "sad-coloured habits" of budge. The most ancient gowns were long flowing robes with hood attached, and, accompanied always, according to manuscripts left us, by a sad and solemn mien. The hood has vanished,—the solemn mien, too, and as an undergraduate uniform, the gown has practically disappeared from the campus of the University of Toronto.

We revel in our modernity. We are proud of the innovations which the twentieth century has brought. But the gown, as our last outward link with the ideals and thought of the old monastical universities, deserves preservation, and a place. We need it to hold us to something approaching the intellectual fervour of those men who gathered, under the sword of Damocles, to seek for knowledge and truth. It undoubtedly creates an academic atmosphere, and acts as a defence against the mighty onrush of the outside world.

The women of University College are making an effort to re-establish the wearing of gowns by undergraduates. We would that the whole University would take up their cry, "For every girl—a gown"—and every boy, too.

Art, Music and Drama

Sketch Room

Mr. B. R. Brooker, the speaker of the evening, was greeted with a large attendance at the opening meeting of the Sketch Club in the Sketch Room, Hart House, last night.

Mr. Brooker delivered a very interesting and highly philosophical address upon the works of William Blake, his prophecies, and his artistic ideals and tendencies. Throughout his address he made constant comparisons with the work of El Greco, an artist living at the same time as Blake.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Brooker exhibited a series of lantern slides, reproductions of some of the works of Blake and El Greco.

A.C. Players' Guild

This afternoon at 4.30 the Players' Guild of University College will present in their theatre in the Women's Union one of the most recent of Lord Dunsany's one-act plays, "The Evil Kettle." In this play (published last year with the tragedy "Alexander") Dunsany presents the humble cottage of the youthful James Watt who conceived the idea of harnessing steam for the benefit of mankind. Watt, at the age of fifteen, is suddenly made aware of the titanic forces in his invention that will destroy the natural beauties of the countryside and of the world. The playwright shows the struggle in the mind of the youthful genius unable to refrain from his great invention, yet realizing its full destructive powers. As in all of Dunsany's dramas the supernatural plays a great part, and "The Evil Kettle" is rich in peculiar Celtic mysticism.

The cast is—

EVOLUTION OR NO?

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Partially due to ceaseless cries from our friend the kitty and partly because of religious prejudices and investigations based on those prejudices I am writing this letter.

Unfortunately I am somewhat behind with my letter, not having noticed the discussion about the evolution conflict in last Tuesday's "Varsity." This may be somewhat due to the said pussy's attractive column.

Champus has cried for scraps, and being a Chemical student, decidedly hardened to precipitates, I bethought myself to precipitate a heavy discussion.

It may be entitled "Evolution or No?" or whatever you choose, but the discussion is about the above-mentioned conflict.

Personally I don't believe in Evolution, meaning, of course, the Darwinian and Wallacian theories, etc.

Those of the University wishing to attack myself due to this should be lenient with their technical terms in biology, etc., as I am an Engineer by Academic standing.

There is a decidedly large field for encounter and battle for both sides of the question, and the discussion should be of intense interest.

There are so many methods of attack that one must of necessity be somewhat bewildered at first, but let us start with, say, Dr. B. H. Shaduck's statement, or rather question.

"Why should a creature that can multiply by division and add to its numbers by subtraction adopt a sex complication that would double the hazard, slow up the process, start a fight amongst rivals and cumber the settlement with more or less helpless infancy?"

Although you must overlook the Ph.D.'s enthusiasm, yet his ability must not be under-rated. I understand he has a world-wide challenge to any evolutionist leader to debate by paper or platform on the question. Let us discuss all the theories of Variation Heredity, Adjustment and Selection in their completeness as well as the Philosophical and Theological sides of the question. It may give us six or eight weeks of enjoyment and enlightenment.

Hoping this does not bear the marks of a challenge—more that of a request.

I am, respectfully,
Charles W. Humber,
of the Engineers.

In regard to the Jardine Memorial competition, can you tell me whether a lone sonnet has an equal chance of winning recognition with, say, a poem of six hundred lines? I have heard

The bad boys were out in full force Monday night. Apart from the wicked juveniles who cut loose from all tradition and shoot peas at parlour windows, the Old Red Boy and his side-kicks must have been machinating around the front steps of Victoria the other night. A small tin automobile of popular make was carried bodily up the stairs and placed under the very canopy of Victoria's august brown-stone front itself. When the janitor came out to sweep the place off, he was faced by the enormity of the situation. Barney Oldfield himself would have been perplexed.

And here is Comrade Dee's attack on the introspective, psychoanalytical type of Co-ed:

C.—C.—Now that we have successfully hooted the Collegiate Credo, let's form a jolly old league to commit kari-kari as messily as possible upon the front porches of women's residences to protest against these conditions.

THE MYSTERY SHIP—EMPIRE

More and more dire doings are on the Empire menu for this week in a new mystery melodrama, "The Mystery Ship." For three acts hooded figures, dark groping hands, wild screams, pistol shots, locked doors, and all the other paraphernalia peculiar to the mystery mello, are in order. A man is murdered in his stateroom, the corpse is spirited away by supernatural means, the Great Detective has his thorax compressed by unseen hands, his daughter is abducted hither and yon, pursued hence and how, and finally restored to safety. Good men and honest men sit in deck-chairs on the poop of the haunted S.S. Idiotic listening to the playful pee-wits planning from the crow's-nest, and suddenly maniac hands reach out from nowhere and anywhere and begin to claw about maliciously. Many a state-room is broken into, many a ghostly entry takes place, many an ardent swain in the audience clutches his beloved's fluttering pulse and assures her that He will protect her!—and the ultimate end of the mystery mellerdrammer is achieved. As for the acting, you need none in such a play; as for the settings the deck scene was very nice; as for the rest—Phooey! and in the same tone—Hiffesquiff!

To be honest, we think that the Empire Players wanted a week's rest and took it—they have been very pleasing so far, but next week comes "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"—and someone will review that—but as Old Bert Williams used to sing, "Somebody's gotta do that thing—but it's gotta be somebody else—not me!"

SORBONNE PROFESSOR TO DELIVER SERIES

captured and held for many years in a German prison camp, where in association with many English prisoners, he availed himself of the opportunity of learning their language.

Professor Gilson, who is by no means old, is considered at the present time to be the greatest authority on the History of Mediaeval Philosophy, and it is certainly a source of great satisfaction to St. Michael's College to have Dr. Gilson come here yearly to deliver a series of lectures and continue the work which was begun some years ago by Professor Maurice DeWulf of Louvain.

These lectures, to which the public is cordially invited, are being held in the auditorium of the college. The subjects are as follows:

Thursday, Nov. 3, at 2 p.m.—"The Nature of Sensations."

Thursday, Nov. 3, at 5 p.m.—"The Origin of Ideas."

Friday, Nov. 4, at 9 a.m.—"Memory and Its Metaphysical Meaning."

BUFFALO DIRECTOR GIVES ART ADDRESS

a group who in the artistic sense placed the world on end. These were the Impressionists, who, originating and believing in an idea, forced it in spite of unpopular criticism. Renoir, Manet and Monet were leaders of this group. Monet as the storm centre believed that an impression should be recorded regardless of detail. He believed in the broken colour idea which he developed scientifically and which has become the basis of the modern face-colour scheme. Renoir showed the racial tendency to a piquant point of view, and at times inclined toward the sensuous. He could suggest with the utmost fineness and delicacy the French fondness for merry-making as well as use the colour scheme of the group.

Manet was influenced by Velasquez. Yet he was intrinsically a Frenchman.

Pearly greys intrigued him, and he loved best of all flat and dark tones against silvery greys and whites.

In Digas is shown a finer sense of humour which saved his work from becoming trite. Disgusted with the commercial side of art, he became a recluse and made motion and poise his chief study. His studies of race-horses were particularly fine. By the time the art of the Impressionists had been recognized and appreciated, a new group was developing, that of the Modernists. Between these two groups was Suzanne, who acted as a stepping-stone. Trained as an Impressionist, he broke away from that style and endeavoured to create a form of his own which should be entirely self-supporting and intrinsically significant.

Surat of the Modernists was an unmistakable genius. He used a certain impressionistic interpretation and applied his colours in a very unusual manner. The Modernists threw off as much as possible what was conventional and academic in art. They felt that a work of art should exist for its own sake and as a mirror of civilization. In this group was evolved the plane idea in form, called cubism. Frequently colour was used by the Modernists for its psychological effect alone.

In concluding his lecture Mr. Heeking emphasized the importance of reading in appreciating art. In addition it must be remembered that art is a visual language complete in itself, although not in any one picture or any one artist. It is necessary to cultivate intensive observation without being too analytical, thus allowing the charm of the artist's work to seep into the mind of the on-looker.

States, and already there has been a great demand for Occupational Therapy aides in Canada. The course was begun at the request of doctors who had seen the results of Occupational Therapy during the war.

Short courses had been conducted by the University during the war, in the Mining Building, but in beginning the new course it was thought advisable to make it a two-year course leading to a diploma. There are now two classes—a second year and a first year class, the number in each being limited to twenty-five. The majority of those now in their second year spent two of the summer months instructing in the mental hospitals of Ontario and were paid for their work by the government.

Among the subjects of study are anatomy, physiology, hygiene, physical culture, psychology, English and French. The entire list of subjects is not taken throughout the two years, but a very thorough training is given in all. It is anticipated that there will be positions waiting in Ontario for all who graduate next May.

The sleepy adherents to the nine o'clocks at Vic found that the doors were barred yesterday morning. Some mischievous sprites, filled with Halloween spirit, had solved the difficulty of curb parking. A car of ancient and honourable vintage had, during the night, taken up new garage space on the front steps.

The engineering feat had been undertaken with such precision that the door was inaccessible and the car almost unmovable.

Tried Players Tackle R.M.C.
in Home and Home Games
Starting Saturday

JIMMIE DOUGLAS IS COACH

Steady Backs and Strong Line
Expected to Retain
U. of T. Title

At last the date for the Junior football has been set, our Blue Infants playing Royal Military College at Kingston on Saturday, the 5th, in the first of the home and home games for the Intercollegiate title. The return game will be played in Toronto on the following Saturday.

The Varsity Juniors won the Junior title last year, and at the rate at which the "kids" are travelling at present it looks like a repetition of last year's success. The R.M.C. team, however, are nobody's fools at the gentle game of "push me over," and the result should be a smart battle, even though the odds favour the last season's champs.

The Blue team in their workout with the Orphans have shown that they can stand the "gaff," for on Tuesday they gave the Seniors a great run for their "sheekles."

These workouts with the Orphans will do the Minors a great deal of good, as they have suffered from the lack of close competition in their own series, and consequently are now learning to take the bumps. Every man on the Jimmie Douglas squad is playing brilliantly, and are responding to the tuition of their heady mentor. These lads are by no means new at the pastime, as each one of them was a star in their collegiate, and many a home town has applauded their efforts on the gridiron.

The team's backfield is of the steady variety, with excellent ball-handling featuring throughout all their fixtures. The front line are no weaklings, and those who saw the Blue and White scamper off with the section in their decisive defeat of the McMaster team will bear witness to the plunging ability of the Juniors.

They are Varsity's last hope in the Union College and Victoria

College Undergrads Hold Banquet

The Union College and Victoria Theological College Undergraduate Association held their first formal opening yesterday evening. At 5.30 p.m. the Holy Sacrament was dispensed in the Victoria Chapel. Dr. Alfred Gandier and Chancellor Bowles took charge of the service. One hundred and sixteen students in Theology and in preparation for Theology partook.

Following this service all the students and their professors sat down to a banquet in Burwash Hall. Speeches were made at the conclusion of the dinner by Dr. Gandier and Dean McLaughlin.

The President of the Association, Mr. Bruce Miller, took the chair and the business of the first meeting was brought before the Association.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, a social hour was held, during which all new men were introduced to their fellow students and to their professors.

This event inaugurates the official Student Organization for the Theological students of the United Church in Canada.

Following the banquet, the Music Room has been reserved for the use of those who wish to while away the rest of the evening with a pipe or a game of bridge.

ROUND TABLE TALKS

"Our interests are so many and so varied that even a student who has been with us for a year would not attempt to write a comprehensive article on our work," said Miss McGregor of the Social Service Department to "The Varsity" representative.

The Department needs young people with plenty of courage and enterprise, more mature than the average undergraduate in the other faculties of the University. Drawn by the fascination of the work, this year's freshman class has come from England, Newfoundland and Japan as well as from every corner of the Dominion.

While social service work is rapidly becoming a very popular profession, the field is still uncrowded, and well-paid positions open to graduates are increasing every year.

Many interesting guests find their way to that secluded corner of the campus where even the dial telephone has not dared to penetrate.

Countess Biondi spent last Thursday studying the various branches of the Department's activities. The Countess on her return to her native Genoa expects to initiate training for Public Health Nurses and Social Workers under the Fascisti regime.

This week Mary L. Ross, B.A., and Gregory Clark, well known member of the "Star" staff, are conducting round table discussions on publicity. To-day Charlotte Whitton, M.A., is to speak under the auspices of the Child Welfare Council.

JANITORS CONTROL HEAT IN INDIVIDUAL BUILDINGS

"I say, do you find it hot around here?" So we asked, walking hither and yon about the place yesterday. Our answers were varied: "I hadn't thought of it"; "Yes, how can a bird keep awake in a store"; "No, it's just fine, but the library's chilly"; "This building is all right, but go to the library; it's like three shades of hell"; "Well, the weather is sultry to-day." We asked them all, students and professors, and no two people thought absolutely alike.

Still, all agreed that there were days when things were a little extreme, so we went down to ask Colonel Le Pan, "How come?" The answer is piped from the central heating plant behind the Meds' Building. (Continued on page 4)

LIBRARY COMMITTEE WILL ORGANIZE BOOK LOVERS' CLUB

All Interested Should Leave
Names and Address in Suggestion Box

SIXTY MEMBERS NEEDED

Proposed Scheme Similar to Sketch Club—Addresses
by Literary Men

A new undergraduate literary organization is likely to result from a recent action of the Hart House Library Committee. A notice has been posted outside the library door asking those interested in the formation of a Book Lovers' Club to hand in their names. The idea of the formation of such a society originally came from last year's committee. After the visit of Mr. Cutty of Manchester, England, who addressed the Library Committee, it was felt that there should be some means whereby book-lovers throughout the University might hear such men.

The extent to which such an organization can be developed depends on the interest shown by the regular users of the library. At present the idea is that the club should be run by the Library Committee, and meet three or four times a year when some prominent literary man might be present to address it. The meetings would not necessarily be held at regular intervals, and would be quite informal in character. To some extent the club would be similar to the Sketch Club, run by the Hart House Sketch Committee. For such an idea to be practicable, at least fifty or sixty members must signify their willingness to join the club. If unusual interest is exhibited, the club might take a more concrete form and meet regularly with a definite programme. The secretary of the Library Committee, Mr. Soward, requests that the names of those interested with their faculty and address be placed in the suggestion box in the library in Hart House. For the present the club is to be restricted to male undergraduates of the University.

PROVOST COSGRAVE CONDUCTS CHAPEL IN HART HOUSE

Correct Notion of Prayer is Self-denial to Further
Kingdom of God

SEEK TO DO GOD'S WILL

Service Held Under Auspices of Student Christian Association

"Our task in the life of devotion," was the subject chosen by the Rev. F. H. Cosgrave, Provost of Trinity College, at a service in Hart House Chapel yesterday afternoon. Prayer should play a large part in the "hidden life" of contemplation. In trying to define prayer, the Provost pointed out that the popular idea of it was a misconception. Most people thought prayer was a means of using God to further their own ends. For them, it was a way to force His will to agree with theirs. The correct notion of prayer, however, said the speaker, was the exact opposite of this. Prayer was a means by which we could deny our own wills, and seek to further the Kingdom of God. It was not an effort to make things easier for ourselves, but a way in which we could endeavour to carry out the will of God.

The Provost likened the life of devotion to "a pilgrimage away from ourselves to God: a long and difficult journey." He declared that the truest form of religion was to seek to do the will of God. The Lord had exemplified this in His own life. It was necessary for us to strive to follow His example.

The importance of knowledge was stressed by Provost Cosgrave. He compared the search for truth in religion with the perpetual efforts of men of science to make new discoveries for the benefit of mankind. There was an element of romance in both pursuits. It was possible to make use of the benefits of knowledge to "co-operate with God intelligently and efficiently."

The speaker referred to the saying of our Lord, "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you." Scientists had asked for the right things, sought the best aims, and knocked at the correct doors. By this means they had finally been able to make valuable discoveries. The searcher for truth must do likewise and pursue his goal, indicated by setbacks and hardships.

The service, which was held under the auspices of the Student Christian Association, (Continued on page 4)

RELATIONSHIP OF ENGLISH POETRY TO LIFE DISCUSSED BY MR. NOYES

An important meeting of the University of Toronto Intercollegiate Harrier team will be held in the Locker Room at Hart House at 5 p.m. to-day, for the purpose of electing a captain. It is essential that each member of the team be present.

EXTENSION RUNS PRACTISED BY THE INTERCOLLEGIATES

Weight Seems Lifted From Players' Shoulders—No
Over-training

DUNDAS OUT AGAIN

Orphans Are No Longer Taking Exceptionally Long Chances
in Passing Ball

In the past there is the possible complaint of over-training the two Senior football teams. So this week, with less at stake, the coaches appear content to keep the teams in the perfect condition they have been, and keep them familiar with the signals. The practices have not that sense of grim death that the previous ones had. The weight seems to have been lifted from the shoulders of the players, and they are practicing for the joy of it and not through the sense of responsibility. Some would say that the old "snap" is no longer in the practices. Rather it is an invisible weight lifted, no longer the dread of making a slight mistake with dire punishment.

One thing of note was that the Intercollegiates seemed more willing to get the ball out on the extension plays. Time after time the ball changed hands, four times on an extension, and (Continued on page 4)

CRUTCH AND CANE DUE TO VACCINATION ON LEG

Daily Walk is One Relaxation
For Quarantine Victims
Among Vic. Women

"Leg vaccinations proved fatal in almost every case," says Dr. Phelps of the Victoria Women's Residences, "both because the leg is more susceptible to infection and because patients are unable to be active while suffering the effects, whereas in the case of a sore arm the patient would not be as vitally handicapped."

Dr. Phelps refused to vaccinate any Victoria woman on the leg. Those who insisted upon it were obliged to go to other doctors—but they suffered the consequences; with the exception of half a dozen, the infirmary was occupied by those suffering from leg vaccinations.

The Victoria women both in quarantine and in the infirmary had no such hilarious time as the men. Slings and crutches were seen along the halls of the residences, while those in quarantine were degraded to a state of looking forward to their daily walk around the block. Since they have been "let out" they can scarcely be induced to re-enter their former place of confinement except to sleep.

Several of those who had been seriously ill through vaccination results were allowed to go home last Monday for a week's convalescence before the new term.

Extraordinary Confusion in Views With Regard To Literature

"SPECTRA" DISCUSSED

"Poetry is a Kind of Song," says
Speaker in Convocation Hall
Last Evening

"It is generally admitted that there is no greater heritage given to English-speaking people than their literature," stated Mr. Alfred Noyes in his talk on English poetry and its relation to life, delivered in Convocation Hall last night. "Carlyle has said that Shakespeare is of more value to us than India, and in 1880 Matthew Arnold said that the future of poetry is immense, because in poetry, where it is worthy of its high destinies, our race, as time goes on, will find an ever surer and surer stay." Mr. Noyes went on to tell how an extraordinary confusion as to what literature is has crept into our views during the last twenty-eight years. The newspaper makes the mere stunt of the moment the important thing. The confusion is partly due to this and partly to an amusing thing which occurred about twelve years ago. Publishers discovered that a violent interest in poetry had developed. Until then these publishers were of the opinion that poetry was nonsense, and so published all sorts of nonsense for poetry. As a result, we now find shelves and shelves of such nonsense. To show the extreme to which this process has gone, Mr. Noyes related an incident of three years ago. Two young American writers, in an attempt to discover how far they could impose on the reading public, wrote a book of verse in two nights. They gave it a pseudo-scientific preface and called it Spectra. To carry out their idea they numbered the poems as in music, and called the first poem Op 14. It consisted of fourteen words placed in the centre of a beautiful page of handmade paper. The book created a great impression and was taken seriously on two continents. One old, conservative, English journal stated that Op 14 was a brilliant example of the imagery in the poems of the young poets of to-day. In taking this book seriously the press implied that Tennyson and the Victorians were worn-out forces, dead volcanoes and all that sort of thing. The authors even received letters from compilers of anthologies for colleges asking their permission to print Op 50, the concluding lines of which ran thus: "She thought she looked like Cleopatra—"

"Which proves the futility of thinking."

Gay Kiddies at Settlement Holding Hallowe'en Parties

The University Settlement is a scene of gay festivity this week. All the clubs are holding Hallowe'en parties. The kiddies are having the time of their lives. The older clubs are elated at their more mature evening party; while the Mothers' Clubs are being entertained at the Easter Recreation Rooms. The library is also a busy place these days. The Settlement workers appreciate the help given by the students of the University.

There may be some students who have not visited the Settlement yet. To reach it, walk down McCaul St. to St. John and turn to the right. The Settlement is on the corner. Every kiddie in the district can tell you where the Settlement is. More help is needed.

Gown Week!

Gown Week! Cold weather! U.C. women scurry from U.C. to the Women's Union and then to the Library with chattering teeth and numb fingers, cursing the weatherman who has so inconsiderately changed his weather. Gown Week this has been decreed, and gowns they wear, even though they suffer for it. But once inside the college gowns are really appreciated. In draughty U.C. a gown has warmed off more than one cold from frail co-eds, and as pen-wipers they have no equal. We even saw one ambitious student using hers as a shoe-polisher. And they cover a multitude of sins as well as protecting the clothes of the wearer.

Over at Oxford, where the bicycle prevails as the collegiate mode of travelling, students place the tails of their gowns in small baskets fastened to the handlebars while riding; but at Toronto the dainty co-ed saunters across the campus with her robe fluttering boldly in the breeze. Neither do we wear gowns at all University dances as is compulsory in the old country.

Gown week has always proved successful, but this year more so than ever. Harcourt and Sons say that the sale of academic gowns has greatly increased in the last three years. Anxious freshettes are heard inquiring: "Where do you get them? They make you look so like a senior." Many graduates would gladly sell their gowns at reduced rates, and an equal number of students would willingly buy them, if some sort of a gown exchange could be arranged. "Some day," the enthusiastic sponsors of Gown Week say, "all women will realize the comfort and convenience of gowns and insist on wearing them to all lectures."

WHY NOT OPEN MEETINGS OF THE S.A.C.?

That the average University student takes but an inactive part in undergraduate activities throughout his student days is no new thought. That a man is willing to drift with the crowds, assume no responsibilities, and exert himself to no other purpose than that of having a good time is only too apparent. And that while faculty activities may, at times, receive due support, University activities are either neglected or misunderstood must be admitted.

And in this connection one particular student body comes to mind,—the Students' Administrative Council and its Joint Executive. It is a serious thought indeed that but very few of us have any idea of the purpose, aims or jurisdiction of this, the leading executive organization on the campus. Habitually we elect to office the men who formed our executive in our first year at school,—by custom the honours belong to them. In their Freshman year they gained a start on most of us so far as executive knowledge is concerned, and the majority of us remain indifferent to overcoming the handicap.

We do feel that our field for gaining executive knowledge should be increased, and there appears to be no better fount than the S.A.C. itself. A similar idea recently found expression in an Eastern University, where, discouraged with lack of student support, the Council threw its meetings open to the entire student body with the statement that "Since the Council represents the students in their different activities, it is only right that the students should have the opportunity to witness college legislation." It is expected that this system will do away with complaints to the effect that the work of the Council was rather an unknown quantity and that proceedings in the Council room were not given enough publicity.

Such a system would provide each student with an opportunity for gaining first-hand information regarding the workings of his governing body and would educate prospective Council men in their probable duties of the future. As well, the electors would be afforded an opportunity to discover the qualifications necessary to make a good Council man, information of which they might take advantage in coming elections.

It may be that, away from their electors, the representatives on the Executive lose some sense of their responsibility. But under the observation of those to whom they directly owe office, each would be forced to do his duty to the fullest or answer to his "constituents." Hence, the members would be certain to attend all meetings and would weigh each question brought up with greater care and with an eye for more rational improvement.

With closed meetings cries of "secret diplomacy" do, from time to time, arise. The student comes to feel that, rather than working in his interest, the executive carries on in the benefit of some other organization. They may be all wrong, but they want to find out; they could by the "open meeting." As well, the executive could scarcely be open to criticism along these lines if all undergraduates were privileged to attend.

While little dissatisfaction has been expressed with the S.A.C. or the manner in which it conducts its business, we cannot help but feel that, given the opportunity to watch this executive, better office men would be produced and a better spirit aroused throughout the undergraduate body.

A PLEA FOR CANADIAN HISTORY

It has been recently brought to our notice that this year the Department of the University Extension is not conducting a class in Canadian History. Upon inquiry, we learned that an insufficient number had applied to take the course. Twenty applications would have ensured the lectures. As a matter of record not one request has been received. It is truly amazing to discover that there are not, in the city of Toronto, twenty persons with enough interest in the History of Canada to take advantage of the lectures afforded by the University Extension.

Nevertheless, during the last quarter of a century, due to the influence of Professor G. M. Wrong, an enthusiasm for Canadian History has been growing steadily among students in attendance at the University. Through his lectures and his writings Professor

Student Verse

Above a star
Hangs jewel like
On the dusky throat of night.
Beyond, a shade
Glides silver white
The ghost robe of a sprite.
Below the snow
Reflects the light
Of a low moon crystal bright
Near by, a stream
Of liquid light
Half stops, to murmur of its flight.
A stark, bare cross
Leans, at the right
The end, the aim of all the fight.

DREAMS

The leaves are whispering, "The summer's done,"
A faint haze shimmers before the sun,
The blue lake greys,
The heron strays;
I know that all my fair dreams are gone.
But ah! what magic the trees trans-form!
Can this the harbinger be of storms?
Shall witchcraft strange
My dreams derange,
And snatch from me these familiar forms?

Beside the lake with my dreams I lie:
Are these my dreams all unreal, or I?
Each tinted pond
I hear respond,
"To-day we glow, but to-morrow die."

I understood what the leaves had told,
The leaves all crimson and burnished gold,
The leaves so gay,
So fair to-day,
Yet soon to sere and decay and mould.

My dreams are like to these beautiful things:
To-day they glow, but to-morrow bring Oblivion,
Their seer gone,
They fade, but ah! how their memory clings.

SONG FOR ALL HALLOWS' EVE

Are peopled full with fairy shapes,
And to the elfin-pipers' tune
Grim goblins dance in flowing capes;
Between the haunted stars there fly
Witches on broom-stick steeds that rove

Wrong has imparted something of his own intense interest in Canadian and American History—of the age of discovery and the French Seignors. He has also carefully compiled a History of Canada for use in the Secondary Schools, and has edited and been largely instrumental in the writing of the "Chronicles of Canada"—perhaps the greatest authentic History of Canada.

Those who have attended those lectures—studied those books—cannot fail to have discovered the very real interest and charm of the History of Canada. They must consciously or unconsciously impart something of their enthusiasm to the world with which they will come in contact, and although Professor Wrong has left the History Department, the enthusiasm of his interest remains, and it is hoped will long remain for the students of the future.

We'll begin peacefully to-day, and work up to better things. Here is the last instalment of Dr. John Tiffany's "Enlivened History of England." A very wise lad from St. Mike's tells us that he has discovered the book from which Dr. J. T. has purloined all his stuff, so it is up to the learned doctor to come out into the open, and deny it:

Episode VII. Dear Kat:

The Stuarts came from Scotland. The first king was James—he sat on the throne for many years. I don't mean to say he actually SAT there for many years, because he had to get off to have—his meals. That is merely a historical phrase. Towards the end of his life—he died, and his son Charles had so little respect for his memory that he started to reign right away—before the old man's funeral.

Charles had the makings of a great statesman, and, if he hadn't lost his head—but that's a long story, and we needn't rake it up now. It's all over. Let bygones be bygones. Oliver Cromwell came next. He wasn't a King—he was only a man. They nick-named him the "Boot-Pro-tector" because he looked after the soles of the people.

Phrenologists declare that Oliver had a very dangerous bump—the bump of Generosity, or the desire to give things away. Unfortunately, I have this myself, but I keep it in subjection by the constant application of melted butter. In spite of this precaution, however, I am constantly giving my friends away. I know a man who is greatly afflicted with the bump. He has given away eight daughters, and is anxious to give away four more. In fact, he finds it almost impossible to keep himself.

About Cromwell's time, some very interesting events took place. I'm not sure what they were, and I don't think they'd interest you much. They're all over now, anyway. The most important was—there was a fresh dynasty.

J. T.

Episode VIII.
Dear Kat:
Do you think it would be very good taste for me to speak about the reigning dynasty—the Royal House of Hanover? It's all very well to talk about dynasties, that are dead and done with.

INTERCOLLEGIATE HARRIER MEET HELD HERE ON SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The gymnasium team always works under difficulties, as they practice from early fall until spring preparing for their meet. A semi-interfaculty meet is held at some point in this long stretch in order to pick the team for the Intercollegiate contest which is held in Toronto once in three years. Three years is a long stretch to work for one home public appearance. Don Barton has the boys out every week, and the skill and precision they acquire is almost miraculous. They don't get much publicity, but they keep right at it.

The Intercollegiate Harrier competition is called for Saturday on the Toronto course. The Little Cup has been in Toronto for the past two seasons, and with such men as Graham and Mitchell defending it, the probabilities are that it will remain.

Those who are in the city on Thanksgiving Day are well advised to take in the Balmy Beach-Varsity O.R.F.U. game. Coach Pearson is taking no chance on the boys going stale this time, and a real game is assured.

Up until yesterday Ontario has been blessed with phenomenal autumn weather, which has more than met with the approval of everyone, especially those interested in the great fall pastime: FOOTBALL. It has been many a year since the weatherman has been so propitious to the gridiron devotes. Perhaps he is trying to make up for some of the raw deals of past years.

The authorities in charge of Interfaculty football may be expected to change the hour of Mulock Cup games soon. These fixtures will have to start either earlier or later, as several complaints have been received from the players about these twilight fixtures. They want sunshine or moonlight. Spectators have been noticed to cheer wildly when seeing a head hurtling through the ether, thinking it but the pigskin.

Hart House is becoming known as a training centre. Larry Gains drops up every now and again for a workout in private, and now "Soldier" Jones is the latest recruit. Those fortunate enough to be around when these surprise visits are paid, see some real classy training work.

VIC. TENNIS TOURNAMENT IS NEARING COMPLETION

Winner of Cragg-Davidge Set Meets Balfour For Title

The Victoria College singles tennis tournament is nearing completion, and already the first match of the semifinals has been played. Balfour, as was expected, defeated Deroche, but only after a hard battle. When Deroche had taken the first set 6-4, his younger opponent settled down and

Water Polo Group Standing Announced for Sections

Standing of water polo teams to date:—

SECTION A.		Won	Lost
Senior U.C.	1	0
Senior S.P.S.	1	1
Senior Meds	0	1
Victoria	0	0
SECTION B.		Won	Lost	Drn.
Junior U.C.	1	0	1
Junior Meds	0	1	1
Junior S.P.S.	0	2	0

Owing to the fact that Junior Meds have a banquet to-night, one game only of water polo will be played, when Victoria meet Senior S.P.S. at 5 o'clock. H. Hethrington and L. Latchford will be the officials, and the teams will line up as follows:—
Victoria: Starr, Howe, McCulloch, Bryden, Kirby, Perrett, Ramsey, Woods, Wansbrough.
S.P.S.: McCarthy, Thwaites, Bul-ten, Goss, Irwin, Scarth, Farah, Howard, Shenstone.

was victorious in the last two to the scores of 6-1, 6-4.

Balfour is a cool steady player who seldom seems to get excited, and places his shots with deadly accuracy.

It is impossible to even attempt to pick the other finalist from Cragg and Davidge. Cragg is the possessor of an effective forehead drive and an excellent service which should carry him far. However, his opponent is known all over Victoria for his steady play, so the match promises to be a very interesting one.

Last week the doubles tournament was won by Balfour and Cragg. These two defeated Deroche and Zinkam 8-6, 9-7, 6-3.

TREE MEN BEAT KNOXITES IN GAINING GROUP TITLE

Running and Kicking Featured When Forestry Triumphs By 10-5 Score

By defeating Knox last night 10-5 on the Vic. campus, Forestry made sure of its series, having previously won two games and having just one to play.

Forestry took the lead early in the game when Leslie punted to the dead-line for one point. In the second quarter they added three more on a well-kicked field goal from forty yards out—Leslie again doing the trick. Although working hard, Knox failed to score in the first half.

The third quarter was featured by Cowan's run of half the length of the field. Forestry added another on a kick to the dead-line.

In the final period and with three minutes to go, Mathews plunged over for a touch and thereby clinched the game for Foresters. Knox came back, however, and before the whistle sounded pushed the ball over the line for the final score of the game.

Outstanding for the winners were Leslie, Wyllie and Mathews, and for Knox, Cowan, Stewart and Seare.

Schoolmen Defeat Dents in Football by 7-0 Score

Displaying a fine brand of football, S.P.S. swept Dents before them last night to the tune of 7-0. Downing, Campbell and McDonald featured in the win. S.P.S. line-up—Helper, Mag-nan, Hooper, Riddell, MacKay, Hag-gart, Franklin, McDonald, Downing, Campbell, Ward.

SCHOOL DEFEATS JR. ARTS BY 16-0

Fumbles Plentiful During Game—School Now Leads Group

McMULLEN STARS

In a Mulock Cup game played on the back campus last night, Jr. School defeated Jr. Arts by a 16-0 decision. This leaves School undefeated at the head of the group. In the first quarter the play was very even, with School slightly on top. Their halves made yards frequently, and their plunges were very successful. However, U.C. played a beautiful defensive game. At the start of the second quarter U.C., by reason of School fumbles, proceeded to School 25-yard line. From then on School settled down, and the play was very even in mid-field. An onside was successful for U.C. and they advanced to a dangerous position. U.C. nearly got a touch on a muffed School kick. School recovered the muff, and kicked out of danger. U.C. muffed a kick, but regained the ball after losing about 30 yards. Score at half time—Jr. School 1, Jr. Arts 0.

In the second half School had decidedly the better of the play. Hancock made several long runs. School plunges were working well. After a run by Hancock, Grovenor kicked a drop successfully. This was followed by a touch for School. Both teams fumbled often, but play remained in mid-field. Score at three-quarter time—Jr. School 9, Jr. Arts 0.

School advanced the ball up the field, and on a kick they rouged a U.C. half for 1 point. U.C. advanced the ball into School territory. School kicked. The kick was returned, and U.C. obtained the ball. School advanced the ball, and on a lucky break scored a touch.

Final score—Jr. School 16, Jr. Arts 0.

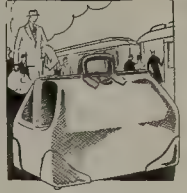

Line-up:—

Jr. School: Snap, Langford; insides, Algie, McVean; outsides, Champagne, Davidson; halves, Smith, Hancock, Grovenor; quarter, Chalmers; subs, Wilson, Scott, Clark, McMordie, Stone, Little, Hardy.

Jr. U.C.: Snap, Finningley; insides, Ward, Brown; middles, Stringer, Clark; outsides, Hamilton, McHugh; halves, Rosenberg, McMullen, Armstrong; quarter, Moran; subs, Leek, Beal, Yeigh, McGibbon.

 Between the rows of waving corn
 Soughing in a wind forlorn,

 At ghosts that fly the break of morn.

To-night outside my window are
 Sights that frighten moon and star:
 Blue lights on marsh, and banshees

MEMORIAL VESPERTINAL

The purple haze of distant hills,
 A sunset of deep crimson glow,
 Recall to mind fond memories
 Like an old love song, sweet and low.

The spirit of the past entralls,
 As the softening shadows lengthen,
 And vogue bitter-sweet half longings
 Entwine about the hearts' of men.

The plaintive moan of the dying wind,
 The elusive night-birds' lonely cry,
 Fill the soul with sad repinings,
 And the unbid tear o'erflows the eye.

And when the rosy glow has faded
 Far beyond the silver sea,
 Then in silence deep, returning,
 Shall we enter, Peace, to thee.

 Let she should poison your coffee, I me:

Mr. Dee.
 Dear Sir (I assure you the "dear" is mere formality):
 Champus' column has long offended me with its base, disgusting, in fact, terrible attempts at humour, but now
 I find (alas) his satellites are not even honourable in their methods of getting it. The idea of stealing and purloining the private diary of a high souled, dear souled, deep souled, pure, sweet, dear, lovely, ample maiden is prostrating.

If everyone communed with one's

And now you ask my forgiveness!
 Why, I am so mortally wounded, my actions, that I've had to hide myself to take mental castor oil, and put hot

RELATIONSHIP OF POETRY AND LIFE

"This case is not exceptional," said
 Mr. Noyes. "Much of this kind of work is turned out." One old conservative journal quoted as the greatest burst of lyricism since the Elizabethans' a poem which goes somewhat like this:

"We are two,
 Yet one

Just like the pair of scissors
 With which we cut our hair."

"In the advanced literary columns of to-day, there is nothing too crazy to be praised as great work."

Mr. Noyes next asked the question,
 "What is poetry?" Although it is claimed that poetry cannot be defined, one can obtain a reasonable description of it. "The safest way is to go to the poets themselves, and see what they say about their art. Poets have all agreed on one point which is in absolute opposition to what is said to-day. Poetry is a kind of song, for which a kind of music is required.
 Of old the poets called on the Muses for help in music. Read poetry that is music, and you are reading poetry.
 Take the music away from poetry and you take poetry away from literature." Homer begins the Iliad,
 "Sing, goddess of the wrath of Achilles," and Virgil the Aeneid, "I sing of arms and the man." In the nineteenth century Browning, to-day called The Apostle of Modern Formlessness, wrote this invocation in the Ring and the Book:

"O lyric Love, half angel and half bird
 And all a wonder and a wild desire,—"

This is song, song, song. The greatest artist in the manipulation of words since Virgil is Tennyson, who must not be mentioned in modern literary circles. Mr. Noyes read his Ode to the Roman Virgil, as an example of his song, orderly rhythm, measure.

The question may be asked what the poets meant by song and rhythm, and why they employ regular measures.
 Certainly not for artificial purposes.
 There are people who really seem to think that poetry is fettered by these measures, and their view is expressed in the following—

"Underneath this heap of stones
 Lies the body of Ephraim Jones,
 His name was Smith, not really
 Jones,
 But Jones was put to rhyme with stones.

Great poets know that by laws freedom is attained—that certain laws are necessary. "Free verse is license to talk nonsense. It is a contradiction in terms. Verse is one thing, and freedom, in the phrase 'free verse' is another thing." The true poets, by although the gains were not exceptional, it was a good sign and bound to find favour among the supporters.

 Some fans have been complaining of the seeming over-cautiousness of the players, and now Saturday will see what the open play will bring.

The Orphans in the past have been too willing to pass the ball, and many costly fumbles have resulted. This week, though they apparently have had a lecture, and though still willing to pass the ball, they no longer take the exceptionally long chances that they formerly did. Another thing of interest between the two senior teams is the type of play. The Intercollegiates play straight football, while the Orphans are more apt to use the odd trick in gaining ground.

Freddie Dundas, who was carried off in Saturday's game with a slight concussion, was out in uniform last night but did not enter much into the play.
 All the subs were freely used, and the practice last night was fairly even.

the use of law obtains strength, and his best effect. This is illustrated in practice—we have the living voice of Shakespeare. In the great moments of his plays there is no loosening of metre but rather an added precision.
 The greatest lines would be marred if a single word were changed, because there is an inevitable order in accord with natural laws.

Mr. Noyes then returned to Arnold's statement, and added that in poetry the idea is everything. A poet is occasionally able to seize something of the divine significance of things, as in Keats' Nightingale.

What our moderns say of a tragic poet is the reverse of the real case.
 They claim that a man's greatness will rest on his power to show the insignificance of human nature, and any schoolboy can do this. They quote from Macbeth to prove that Shakespeare held this view. Mr.
 Noyes pointed out the foolishness of their theory. After the murder when Macbeth exclaims to Lady Macbeth—

"But wherefore could not I pronounce 'Amen'?"
 I had most need of blessing, and
 'Amen'

Stuck in my throat."

We have in the last six words the most wonderful words in our literature. Not only have they rhythm in music but contain a great saying in philosophy.

Mr. Noyes then read a number of his original poems as attempts, not as illustrations of his views. His readings were delightfully varied and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

Caretakers Control Heat and the pipes and radiators are designed according to the areas of the respective buildings. There is no automatic thermostatic control, but there is a thermometer in the boiler-room, and the general steam pressure is regulated by that. The heat in each building is controlled by the caretaker of that building, who turns it on and off at the intake like gas. The buildings, by the way, are allowed to cool off at night.

We gather that when one building is violently overheated the person about whom to think black thoughts is the caretaker of the building, and when all buildings are cold, curses are in order against the heating plant. The system, however, seems to please most of the people most of the time.

VERY LITTLE KNOWN ABOUT AUTHORSHIP OF HOMERIC POEMS

But Iliad and Odyssey Should Be Considered For Their Artistic Significance

WRITTEN TO BE HEARD

Ancient Literature Read in False Light, Says Professor Owen in Lecture

"I mean by Homer the two poems, the Iliad and the Odyssey," stated Professor Owen in his lecture on Homer, given in West Hall of University College yesterday afternoon. The problem of whether Homer is the author of these great poems is an ever-present one. Nothing is known about Homer—neither where he lived, nor when he lived, nor if he lived at all. Professor Owen quoted Gilbert Murray, "One fact is known—that he did not write the Iliad or the Odyssey." But the question of authorship is not the important question. Two facts are clear—that the poems do exist, and each, at it stands, is intended to be taken for its artistic significance. Professor Owen stated that he meant by Homer the poet, the Iliad and the Odyssey as they are, and that the serious weakness in this position lies in the fact that no poem can truly be appreciated unless understood, and the artistic environment must be known for it to be understood.

"There is no doubt but that we read all ancient literature in a false light," continued Professor Owen. We cannot read the Homeric poems in their true historical setting. They come to us as beginnings, and yet it is clear that they are not. They are the consummation of a long literary development, and Paradise Lost is another example.

The Iliad and the Odyssey are the epics par excellence—yet we cannot (Continued on page 4)

PLAYERS' GUILD PRESENT DUNSANY

Miss E. Norton Directs Play "The Evil Kettle" at the Union Wednesday

DECEMBER PRODUCTION

"Why, bless the lad! What harm can come from a cup of tea?" asked Mrs. Watt, in the play "The Evil Kettle," by Dunsany, presented by Miss E. Norton at the Players' Guild Wednesday afternoon.

Jimmy Watt is a dreamy boy, telling his mother, "When I grow up, I'll make big kettles, and whenever the lids move, iron bars will move, and the iron bars will make wheels go round." The devil enters and shows the would-be inventor the future results of his idea. Jimmy is horrified and cries, "I won't! I won't invent it. Mother! don't let me!" But the devil is sure of himself: "We shall conquer the world, dear evil kettle. Speak to him, evil kettle; speak to him once again." He weaves a spell; poor Jimmy forgets his vision, and proceeds to invent.

"Well," said his mother, "if you must have steam, get it from the plough horses when they are hot—good, honest steam."

The roles were taken by Miss M. Gordon, N. A. Benson and A. E. Fawcett.

The first week in December was set tentatively for the evening production. The play will probably be "Will Shakespeare."

Tickets Allotted For Masquerade

The allotment of tickets for the Hart House Masquerade, to be held this year on November 18th, is officially announced by the House Committee. In a registration of 3,746 there are 866 tickets, that is one ticket for about four students. The allotment is based in proportion to the registration in the various faculties and is as follows:—

FACULTY	Registration	Allotment
Medicine	620	143
U.C.	706	161
S.P.S.	543	125
Dents	259	61
Victoria	360	84
St. Michael's	133	31
O.C.E.	67	16
Trinity	117	28
Forestry	60	14
Faculty and graduate members	834	191
Wycliffe	40	10
O.C.A. and Music	3	1
Dept. of Social Service	4	1
	3746	866

Biology and Medicine students registered in both Meds and Arts will receive their tickets from the various Arts Colleges' allotments.

Tickets will be given out to the Faculty representatives at the Warden's Office from 12 to 1 p.m. on Friday, November 18, the day of the Masquerade. Each representative must be prepared to pay either in cash or cheque when he receives the tickets at this time.

There will be a few changes this year from previous Masquerades. The Upper Gym will NOT be used for dancing but as a sitting-out room, since it has never been really popular. In its place the Lecture Room will be used, which ought to spread the crowd and obviate the crush which usually exists. The Library will be as usual used as a rendezvous.

AMATEURS ARE ADVISED NOT TO MIMIC MASTERS

Mr. Frederic Jacobs Gives Informal Talk to Press Club

"If you are familiar only with a Sunday school, do not attempt to describe a palace," was the advice of Mr. Frederic Jacobs in giving an informal talk on "One-act Plays" to the members of the Press Club yesterday afternoon. "If you are a Canadian, write Canadian plays. Do not attempt to depict the lives of people with whom you are not familiar. Observation and adherence to the authentic form the necessary frame-work upon which the would-be playwright must build."

Mr. Jacobs pointed out the tendency of the amateur to choose a theme which he has seen successfully treated by a master hand, to ignore the same principles of technique to which Shaw and Galsworthy looked for support, and to seek false strength in that which is morally loathsome. This imitability of subject leads to mimicry of plot and style. Inevitably the play loses all excellence with which the characteristic taste of the author might otherwise have enhanced it.

"If you would write a one-act play," concluded Mr. Jacobs, "see that it is not sufficient unto itself, that it casts a shadow, and most important of all, that it abounds in those colourful episodes of life as lived by just such people as you yourselves."

WEARING SPECTACLES GOES BACK TO NERO WHO USED A CRYSTAL

Dr. McTaggart Speaks to M. and P. Society on Manufacture of Eye-glasses

PTOLEMY ON LENSES

String Around Ears Was Used to Fasten Spectacles to Wearer

"The development of spectacles is an achievement that has many aspects," as Dr. McTaggart pointed out in his address to the Mathematics and Physics Society in the Physics Building on Thursday afternoon. There is the work of the medical man, the physicist, the mathematician and the optician. Dr. McTaggart's talk was along the line of the manufacturing of spectacles.

The custom of using the lens to aid sight is by no means modern. Yet medieval painters were guilty of anachronism when they graced their biblical subjects with spectacles. The custom goes as far back as 79 A.D. when Nero used a crystal ball shaped like a lens to aid his vision.

In the year 150 Ptolemy wrote a book on the subject of lenses which was later enlarged upon by Al Hasan and translated into Latin. This book has been a treasury in optometry, although it lacked the scientific basis of the law of refraction.

The real discoverer of technical lenses was Salvino D'Armato at Santa Maria, who came about three hundred years later.

The earlier spectacles were manufactured by the Glass Works at Namura, near Venice and Nürnberg, Germany. In the latter place a guild of spectacle lens workers was formed and soon similar guilds spread throughout Europe. This manufacture was a craft more than a science, the whole work of making the frames and grinding the lenses being done by the same worker.

Dr. McTaggart explained some interesting pictures, showing antique (Continued on page 4)

ROMAN CATHOLICISM SUBJECT OF LECTURE IN THE MUSIC ROOM

Sir Bertram Windle Speaks in First of Series Arranged by S.C.A.

RELIGION BASED ON REASON

Speaker Discusses Several Outstanding Features of Roman Catholicism

"Roman Catholicism" was the subject of the lecture delivered by Sir Bertram Windle last night in the Music Room at Hart House. Introducing the topic, the distinguished scientist-author stressed the point that he was not going to treat it polemically. "I shall merely lay before you a few of the more salient features, some of the outstanding facts," he said.

There were certain articles of faith which every member of his religion must accept, as the Trinity, the Crucifixion and the Ascension. These and other dogma of the Church might not be accepted or rejected at will, but must have the full consent of the reason. "The basis of religion is reason. It is the view of the Church to which I belong, that man, entirely apart from, and unassisted by Revelation can arrive at certain of the religious truths, solely by the exercise of reason." There was a distinct difference between an act of credulity and an act of faith—the latter implied the acceptance by the reason, the former by the purely "knowing" element of man, without any personal conviction.

Infallibility of the Pope, continued the speaker, must not be confused with impeccability, omniscience, or the ordinary routine instructions issued to the clergy throughout the world. The latter were received with profound respect, but might prove entirely untrue and erroneous. Infallibility was only possible in pronouncements made by a Council of the bishops of the Church, or by the Pope himself, speaking "ex cathedra." As a matter (Continued on page 4)

President Denies Allegations That Graduates Go To States

From Sir Robert Falconer last night came denial of the oft-repeated charges that Canadian universities are educating the country's youth to leave its borders and seek remunerative employment elsewhere, especially with the powerful neighbour to the south.

Replying to the toast "To the University" at the Commerce Banquet last night, he took occasion to reveal the fact that in his forthcoming presidential report he was producing figures to prove that the University of Toronto, at least, did not see her graduates leaving in large numbers the country which had given them education.

His conclusion was that the University ranks suffered less migration from Canada than did any other class in society.

Of 8,875 students who graduated between the years 1917 and 1926, it was true that 1,174 were in the United States to-day. The figures would bear analysis, however, he observed.

This 1,174 included 150 or 175 native-born Americans who came here to study. Of the remaining 1,000 there were approximately 400 odd medical students who were, or had been, internes in the large United States hospitals acquiring specialized post-graduate work. These would come back to Canada, he predicted.

"I have come to the conclusion," he said, "that between 900 and 950 are now in the United States. That is to say, between 10 and 11 per cent. of the graduates in those ten years."

A still further factor in this exodus was the large post-war classes whose graduates had been unable to find employment here during the years of depression. This in particular held true where Dentistry graduates were concerned.

Rather than the theory that the universities sent their graduates out of the country, the reverse held true. "There is not such a large exodus from our universities as from other grades of society," he again averred.

Some absorption of graduates by the United States he held to be a good factor. He pointed out that in conversation with Sir William Mitchell, vice-chancellor of Adelaide University, Australia, he had learned that the Antipodean country suffered by not having a neighbour to absorb University graduates.

Due to that situation in Australia, there was little encouragement for higher education. Australia had lost in this regard, for the "best brains of the State didn't think it worth while" to acquire a higher education in face of the possibility of future non-employment.

ECONOMIC TENDENCIES OF FUTURE DISCUSSED BY FORMER PREMIER

HART HOUSE FEES ARE TO BE RAISED

Greater Revenue Needed to Meet Increased Expenses of Management of House

IN EFFECT NEXT YEAR

At a meeting of the Board of Stewards held last April a resolution was unanimously passed that, in view of the fact that the financial position of Hart House requires an increase in revenue, the Board approves of the undergraduate fee for Hart House being increased from eight to ten dollars, this to take effect at the beginning of the academic year 1928-1929. This resolution has been approved by the Board of Governors of the University. It is of course intended that a proportionate increase in the Graduate and Faculty fees shall also take place.

The reason for this increase is not far to seek. The undergraduate and graduate activities of Hart House have increased enormously during the last six or seven years. It is only necessary to compare the life of Hart House to-day with the life of Hart House in 1920 or 1921 to find evidence of the great development which has taken place on every side. This development has naturally entailed a considerable increase in the administrative staff, in the wear and tear of equipment and in the general expenses of management. Hart House has now become an extremely important part of the University, and inefficient management would immediately effect many hundreds of men who daily use the House. Though the expenses of management have greatly increased, the revenue from student fees has decreased. This revenue is dependent on the number of men registered in the University. The decrease in registration between 1921-1922 and 1926-1927 has meant a decrease in fees amounting to approximately seven thousand five hundred dollars a year. To meet this situation the most rigid economy has been practiced, but it has now become evident that unless the essential life of Hart House is to be crippled the revenue must be increased.

Scarlet and Gold Dance Takes Place at Wymilwood

Conquering the smallpox epidemic and the subsequent quarantine orders of the M.O.H., the Scarlet and Gold Club held their oft-postponed dance at Wymilwood last night. The success of the evening was ample compensation for the previous disappointments.

Apparently alarmed by the appalling increase in crime and disorder in the city, the committee in charge assured their guests a safe homeward journey by the distribution of ugly six-shooters. Or perhaps the appeal of Chief Dickson for 600 more men did not fall on deaf ears.

Eugene—Freshmen smoking on the campus is against Oregon traditions, but is permissible on cross-campus paths, say the traditions committee of the student council, as quoted in the Oregon Emerald.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen Scores The Lament in Address to Commerce Club

MUCH ABILITY UNUSED

Diversification of Demand is Outlet For Energies Released by Modern Methods

"The multiplication of human needs is not a curse but a blessing. It will afford an outlet for the energies of the children coming on. It will enable every country to share in the expansion of human activity."

Thus Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen scorned the lament in an address in Hart House last night during Commerce Club's celebration of its seventh birthday.

The Club's distinguished guest centered his remarks on some economic tendencies of the future. He drew the vivid word picture of society riding itself of irksome toil and finding intellectual outlet in pleasures hitherto seldom tasted. He pictured possibilities of social revaluation; of war between social classes; of material success undermining the "safe and sane" structure of the ages; of a re-learning of the old lessons which were so unwillingly once digested.

"Prepare for this," he entreated. Out of the flux would come hardness. To mould the future would be needed men of right intellectual ability.

At the outset, he described present world economic movements as merely a stage in the "Great Evolution" still going on. He found in the economic world to-day, as a result of greatly accelerated production, an immense (Continued on page 4)

PROFESSOR GILSON DELIVERS LECTURES

Guest from Sorbonne Discusses "The Psychology of St. Augustine"

SENSATIONS AND IDEAS

Professor Etienne Gilson, guest professor from the Sorbonne, delivered two of his lectures on "The Psychology of St. Augustine," in the Assembly Hall of St. Michael's College yesterday afternoon.

The opening conference at 2 p.m. was entitled "The Nature of Sensations." At the outset Professor Gilson connected his present series of lectures with that delivered by him last year, showing that the system built up by St. Augustine was the model for that which he outlined at that time. Further, since St. Augustine's psychology was the most prominent element in his whole system of philosophy it was the logical choice as subject for these conferences. The Augustinian psychology hinges on its definition of sensation, namely: "Sensation is any passion suffered by the body, when by itself it does not escape the soul and is not overlooked by it." Dr. Gilson explained the definition at length and introduced the problem to which it leads, namely: whether the material is superior to the spiritual or vice-versa; that is whether the external stimulus is superior to the perception. St. Augustine concludes that since sensation is the work of the soul, a work in which the material has no part, the perceived is accordingly superior to the material. Memory was regarded by St. Augustine (Continued on page 4)

HART HOUSE FEES

The statement issued to-day regarding the increase of from eight to ten dollars in the Hart House fees, to come into effect at the beginning of the academic year 1928-29, should satisfactorily answer all those who have questioned the advisability or purpose of this move. The increase, sanctioned by the Board of Governors of the University, is to be general and is to comprise the Graduate and Faculty members as well as the Undergraduate.

It is pointed out that the activities of the House to-day far exceed those of 1920 or 1921, when the present fee was set. At that time no provision was made for music recitals, art exhibits or debates, nor was the general use of the House nearly as large as it is to-day. But in spite of this fact, and also notwithstanding the fact that the revenue of the House was decreased by over six thousand dollars by a small male registration in the University, the management has, by virtue of the strictest economy, managed to carry on.

However, the time has come when both the Board of Stewards and the Board of Governors believe that the financial condition is running too close to the line, and, as a consequence, the only suitable means of putting Hart House on a solid financial footing is to be undertaken.

That the management of the House is strongly devoted to the interests of the student body the majority realize, while those students closely in touch with its administration are quite aware that its activities are carried on in a most wholesome and efficient manner. Not one cent of the student money has been wasted or misspent, and, with the present group of men at the head of the House, we might well rest content with its future, and be assured that fees and expenses will be regulated entirely by actual requirements.

ALAS—THE POOR TURKEY

Thanksgiving is a season of the year, a state of mind, and a very important occasion. It is represented by autumn foliage, harvest fruits, and, of more interest to the student, perhaps, by a fat feathered fellow with scarlet headgear. We like to think of the student,—he of the brains and the intellectual heart, as having left behind the cravings and weakness of the human appetite, in his search for higher things. But not so! To-day, yesterday, to-morrow, essays are being scrawled to completion, and executive matters hurriedly transacted. Why? Because every student feels the call of the home fireside, and the family table. Daily teas are forgotten, residence meals swallowed with indifference, and the proverbial three thousand calories per day left on the restaurant table, together with the check.

All roads lead homeward. Monday, the campus will be deserted; the library will be closed; and the "official organ" of the institution—mute. While around a thousand tables in a thousand homes of Canada University of Toronto students will apply their college-trained concentration to the home-grown feast before them.

The Thanksgiving feeling is in the air. People are saying, "When I return, I shall work." Chestnuts are popping in front of stores; someone is burning up leaves. The world is straining at the leash. Everybody happy? "Not I," quoth the "turk."

Art, Music and Drama

Flonzaley Quartet

Hailed as America's premier chamber music ensemble, the Flonzaley Quartet will be heard at the University on the evening of November 17 in the second concert of the Hart House String Quartet series.

In the twenty-three years of its public career the Quartet has established itself as a standard, as its remarkable record of successive annual appearances demonstrates each season.

For the past eighteen years it has made annual appearances at Wells College, Aurora, N.Y.; for seventeen years it has played yearly at the Westover School in Middlebury, Conn.; for sixteen at Williams College, and for fifteen each at the Peabody Institute in Baltimore and in Minneapolis, Minn.

While the members of the Flonzaley Quartet are all European, the Ensemble took root and gained its first recognition on this continent. Adolfo Betti, first violin, is Italian by birth, and studied with Cesar Thomson at the Liege Conservatory. After touring Europe as a virtuoso, he became Thomson's assistant at the Brussels Conservatory until he joined the Flonzaley Quartet.

Alfred Pochon, second violin, was born at Lausanne, Switzerland, and also studied at Liege. He was for a time concert master in the orchestra of Eugene Ysaye in Brussels, prior to becoming a member of the Flonzaley ensemble.

Iwan d'Archembeau, cellist, was born near Liege in Belgium. After carrying off the highest honours at the Conservatory of Verviers, he toured Europe with great success as a soloist prior to joining this organization in 1903.

Nicholas Moldavan, viola, was born in Odessa, Russia, and is a prize graduate of the Petrograd Conservatory. Forced to flee during the Bolshevik uprising, he came to the United States in 1920 and joined the Flonzaley in 1925.

Correspondents are reminded that all letters must be accompanied by signatures, and they are requested to limit themselves to approximately 300 words.

Thunder on Parnassus

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Having carefully perused the respective reports in "The Varsity" and "The Mail and Empire" of Mr. Alfred Noyes' lecture, I feel that the time has come to speak out loudly—for if no one speaks out, in a few short weeks we will have to resist another Tennysonian impetus. Mr. Noyes' lecture was indeed stimulating and his stresses were placed emphatically upon (1) "the imperative breath of song," (2) the mental deficiency of the vers librist, and (3) the vast Victorian. With points one and two we agree heartily—but when Mr. Noyes is reported to have said that "Tennyson is the greatest in the manipulation of words since Virgil" we feel that the provincials have swallowed another literary gum-drop without a word of protest. It is indeed a very great pity that the lecturer in referring to "Tennyson as the greatest manipulator of words since Virgil" was forced to omit consideration of a few comparatively unknown litterateurs, by name Wm. Shakespeare (1564-1616), John Milton (1608-1674), Percy Bysshe Shelley (1792-1822) and John Keats (1795-1821). Alas, how often does the sweeping statement encounter no resistance! But this occasion must be an exception.

If great English poets are allowed to vibrate thus in the hinterlands, one can expect that literary firesides in London will be regaled with tales like that of Rupert Brooke, who wrote back in 1913, apropos of Toronto: "A man came up to me here at their Arts and Letters Club and said: 'Wal, Mr. Brooks (my Canadian name), you can't imagine how glad I am to meet you. I think that you have Mr. Noyes skinned—that means I'm better than him—thrills!'"

In the holy and defenceless name of Canadian literature, let us not be unwisely acquiescent, nor unprotestingly submissive. In the future may this humble correspondent hope that we will regard all visiting English poets with proper awe and due suspicion, and lest our tone seem too serious, may we ask if any reader has ever heard of the young man who asked the young lady: "Do you like Noyes?"—and was answered with: "Yes, let's all shout at once!"
Yours, etc.

VARSITY O.R.F.U. TEAM PLAYS CAMP BORDEN ON MONDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

To-morrow Varsity's Senior Intercollegiate rugby squad will make its last appearance of the season when it faces McGill in Montreal. Despite the fact that Varsity was decisively beaten in the last encounter between these teams, there is a possibility of the Blue and White pulling out a win. They have improved greatly since the first of the season and have shown no let up this past week, even though definitely out of the running. And it must be admitted that they have never had that fickle woman "Lady Luck" in their cheering section this season. Varsity is about due for a break.

It must be admitted that McGill are decided favourites in the contest, but that means nothing to Ronnie McPherson or his team. It is many a long year since Varsity has failed to win a game, and it will not be this year if the team can help it.

While the Intercollegiate is in Montreal the O.R.F.U. squad will have an off day, but they go into action on Thanksgiving Day against the champion Balmy Beach outfit. Beach's are almost "in" in the Ontario Union, but they have two games in three days, and anything is liable to happen. The Varsity entry was given an excellent chance to defeat the East-enders prior to last Saturday's game, but since their defeat by Camp Borden their stock has taken a tumble. This is due to the fact that although they do defeat Beach's some other team has to accomplish this feat to tie up the group.

It is still rather early to hand around the honours, but just think this one over. Balmy Beach has beaten Varsity once and McGill twice. These victories in exhibition games may not mean much, but no one is going to walk over Harry Hobbs' team in their sleep. Whoever tries it is in for a rude awakening. And that's not maybe. Beach's may not win the Dominion Championship—we are not saying that they will—but it is going to take a real team to put them out of the running.

DETERMINED SENIORS TO GO TO MONTREAL FOR LAST FIXTURE

Blue Team will Make Desperate Effort to Break Into Win Column

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED

Considerable Change in Varsity's Style of Play May Be Looked For

Varsity faces McGill in Montreal in the local team's last game of the Intercollegiate to-morrow. And it is a determined team indeed that will do battle with the Red and White. Defeated three times this season, or, in other words, in every start to date, the Blue entry is all set to end up the season with a win.

They have not eased up in their training and are going as strong as if the title was at stake. It is not a mere matter of filling out the schedule—there is the fact that if they lose, Varsity will have gone through the rugby season without winning a game. McGill realize that they will be facing a desperate team and are taking no chances. The boys from Montreal know that Blue teams are not beaten till the final whistle blows, and then, if beaten only after a hard struggle. Reports from Montreal are to the effect that there will be a record crowd on hand for the game in expectation of a great struggle.

McGill have one of the best teams this season that they have ever had. Little and St. Germain are a brilliant pair of halves who handle the ball in a manner that is almost uncanny. St. Germain is one of the most elusive broken field runners seen in action for some time, and Jack Little is a wonderful man to team up with. The McGill captain is one of the best passers in the game, and most of St. Germain's big gains came as a result of a play by his team-mate.

The question is, can Varsity hold the McGill halves and take a fall out of the team as a whole. In the game here McGill ran wild, and aided by costly fumbles, had little difficulty in winning. The fumble menace has been almost completely overcome. The Varsity backfield has only made one fumble of any account in the last two games, and it is safe to say that this factor may be practically disregarded.

As to the ability of the Blue team to prevent those gains by the McGill halves there is some room for doubt. Varsity's outsiders are good tacklers and they know the game and how it should be played. But in the last meeting of the two teams something certainly was wrong with the defensive system. The coaches realized this at once and there was a noticeable improvement in the next two games. They have been devoting considerable time to this end of the game, and the McGill halves will find it much harder to get away than they did before.

Varsity should have an edge on the line. They were head and shoulders

VICTORIA BEATS TRINITY IN MULOCK CUP SERIES

Frequent Fumbles and Greater Weight Give Easy Victory to Scarlet and Gold

Victoria took the lead in their group of the Mulock Cup series on Thursday afternoon on the back campus when they defeated Trinity by a score of 20 to 5. It remains for Trinity to play a return game with Vic. to complete the schedule of the group. A win for Trinity will tie the standing and necessitate a play-off.

In the first half Vic. opened the scoring when Howe bucked over for an unconverted touchdown. This was followed up later by a rouge on Frame's kick. Yates for Trinity carried the ball over the line, and a moment later Frame booted another rouge, making the half-time score 7 to 5. In the second half Crosby kicked to the deadline, and Frame counted two rouges. A blocked Trinity kick in the latter's territory resulted in another touchdown for Vic., Cannon carrying the ball across. Another fumble, and Lindsay galloped twenty-five yards to bring the total to 20 points.

The game was very loosely played throughout, fumbles being anything but infrequent. In this respect the winners were responsible for as many as the losers, but Vic. were much heavier than Trinity and showed the effects of better coaching which carried them to an easy victory. The front line appears to be as strong as any in the Mulock Cup series, both in line plunging and in tackling. The backs kick and run faultlessly, and their tackling is very effective, but in catching and passing there is a decided weakness. Turnbull and Hager at outside turned in fine games and were well down under every kick, and Searle at inside broke through repeatedly, stopping Trinity plays before they were properly started. In the back division, Douglas caught and ran well, and Crosby pulled off some spectacular runs for long gains. Frame kicked well throughout the game, and was given ample time to get his kicks off. For Trinity, Cummings and Summerhayes turned in good games and were most effective against the heavier Vic. team.

above Queen's in this department for the greater part of the last two games, and there is no reason to believe that they cannot show Mr. Shaughnessy's boys some fancy line plunging. With nothing at stake except the stigma of not turning in a victory, Varsity may be depended to open up the game and take chances that they have refused to take so far this season. Their play has for the most part been marked by caution, but the practices this week give the impression that they will have a different style of play to-morrow. They have been spending considerable time on extension and an open game may be looked for. With this style of play anything may be looked for, and while McGill will enter the contest favourites, a Varsity victory would be far from a surprise.

VARSITY BASKETEERS SHAPING UP WELL

Quality of Material Augurs Well for a Successful Season

TRY-OUTS ARE WELCOMED

The basketball squad is getting away to a good start for the coming season, and despite the loss of many of last year's regulars, prospects are good for a successful year. Currie and Lewis, the defence pair, are the only men remaining of last year's squad. However, with several stars of last season's championship Intermediate and Junior teams, plus some sensational new material, the team should round out into a powerful aggregation, and there should be plenty of opposition to keep the boys fighting for positions.

The Seniors will be managed by Jack McGillivray, Meds, who is a basketball star himself. McGillivray is a hard and consistent worker, and will spare no efforts to insure the success of the team.

Roy Currie, who has been elected to assume the responsibilities of captain, is a veteran to Intercollegiate basketball. This will be his fourth year with Varsity teams, and it should be his big one. He is a defence player and rated as one of the best in the Intercollegiate series.

Notable additions from last year's Intermediates will be "Mo" Mitchell, who starred on the forward line, and Cord Johnston, who was last year's regular centre. Carl Faber and Lin Sharpe are reappearing in Varsity uniforms this year after finishing a brilliant year with Broadview Y Seniors. These two men are forwards and will have to be reckoned with when the team is chosen.

Sakler of last year's Intermediates and Hurwitz of the Juniors, both defence men, are showing up well, and along with Beath and Ballache are fighting for positions. The new material is all of junior age and can be utilized for any of the three teams. There are several good boys here from the west, and in addition there are three or four basketball "finds" from the States.

The squad will be further enlarged at the close of the football season when several Varsity stars are expected to report. Traynor will appear, as will Geo. Dunn of the Orphans and several of the men with the Intermediate and Junior rugby squads.

Vic Thomas has been appointed to manage the destinies of the Intermediate men, and Jim Mayor those of the Juniors. Both these men are ex-players and should fill the positions to the best advantage of the men.

There are between sixty and seventy men fighting for places on the three teams. However, it is expected that this number will be cut to a workable size after Thanksgiving. Practices are being held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 p.m. Additional practices will be arranged later. It is not too late yet to report, and any man wishing to do so should come to the big gym at the above hours. Every man will be given a fair chance, and a try-out is welcomed by the management.

Positions Available On Basketball Teams

The management of the basketball teams wish to impress on the undergrads the fact that there are several positions open on all the teams. There is much basketball material around the University, and every one turning out will be given ample chance to show his wares.

Coach McCutcheon in an interview with "The Varsity" expressed the opinion that there were several players of ability who had not yet put in an appearance. These men are requested to turn out at once as training is going ahead at a rapid rate.

Soccer Club

The annual meeting of the soccer club will be held in the Lecture Room, Hart House, on Friday, November 18, at 5 p.m. This meeting is open to all members, but voting members are restricted to the following:—(a) Players of this club who were registered in the C.I.A.P. during the past season (i.e., members of the Intercollegiate teams); (b) two playing members from each faculty and college who entered teams in the Interfaculty series during the past season.

Nominations must be made in writing signed by two voting members of the club and filed with the Secretary of the Athletic Association not later than Friday, 11th November.

VARSITY PREPARED FOR HARRIER MEET

Toronto Confident of Result of Gruelling Contest With McGill and Queen's

TO BE HELD SATURDAY

This year's Varsity Harrier team, which to-morrow morning defends its laurels against three visiting college teams, is confident that the cup which has decorated Hart House so long will remain undisturbed for at least one more year. The team is practically the same as that which won so handsily over the Kingston course last year. Wally Graham, "Mo" Mitchell and Crozier are out to eclipse their last year's times, and from previous performances they seem to have every chance. Graham won the Interfaculty a week ago, running in splendid form, while Crozier gave one of his best performances. Bill Mitchell's place will be hard to fill out. McClelland, a Med freshman, who was the find of last Saturday's run, finishing fourth, looks to have the necessary speed, while Archie Baldwin, the hard-working Trinity star, and fifth man on the team, is running better every time out.

McGill and Queen's, judging from their performances in the three miles, will have nothing to upset the dope, though in such a gruelling endurance test something may always happen. Last year Wally Graham, the favourite to win, developed cramps and only finished in the place he did after a great display of gameness. Whether Trenouth, the Queen's man, who won from "Mo" Mitchell last year in the most exciting finish in years, will be back to defend his title is not known,

Wycliffe Beats Union Theologues

Wycliffe again defeated Union Theological College in the Interfaculty soccer league yesterday by two goals to one. Wycliffe dominated the play except for fifteen minutes in the last half. Curiously, although the Anglicans pressed repeatedly in the first half, Union tallied from a melee in front of the Wycliffe net and led by one to nothing at half time. Just after the opening of the second can't Withers evoked the count on a penalty shot. Worrall put Wycliffe one up on a high, spinning shot which the Union goalies misjudged. Although Union tried hard to equalize, they were unable to score again, and the final whistle found Wycliffe victorious.

but in any event Wally and "Mo" will do their best to prevent a repetition of last year's result. Balmer of McGill is always a strong runner and should be well up at the finish.

Nothing is known about the R.M.C. team, but the cadets are always strong, which may result from the fact that every man in the college must run in their harrier—and it is rumoured one of their best men, out a year, is back.

The course is the same as last year, starting from the Upper Canada College gates at the top of Avenue Road and completing 5.6 miles before the finish lap around the track, two miles being cross-country and the rest road work. The race is scheduled to begin at 10 o'clock, and all markers are to report at the Athletic Office, Hart House, at 9. There are several more needed, and volunteers should give their names to any member of the team.

SIR BERTRAM WINDLE
of fact, examples of either category were now rare, there having been only two since the middle of the 19th century.

Transubstantiation, for Catholics, was the changing of the bread and wine into the body and blood of Christ at Mass. Catholic Philosophy took the view that behind everything there was a substance, while the appearances—the touch, smell, taste, etc.—were accidents. Thus although the bread and wine retained their original "accidents," the original substance, Catholics believed, had disappeared.

"In the matter of the Sacrament of Penance, the Church—and I do not by any means wish to imply disrespect for other Churches—differentiate between mortal and venial sin. Damnation is the lot of a man dying in the former state." Absolution, it was pointed out, presupposed the proper dispositions on the part of the penitent. He was acquitted of the spiritual guilt, but the temporary satisfaction for sin still remained to be made. Purgatory fulfilled the function of purging the soul of this lesser temporal guilt. Incidentally, the flames of Purgatory were only symbolical.

A certain man had defrauded his father of some money; shortly he returned to the parental domicile craving forgiveness. His father readily granted him pardon for the act, but stipulated that the stolen money should be returned. The young man's sister offered to pay the required sum of money for her brother. Her act corresponds to an indulgence. In such graphic fashion did Sir Bertram elucidate the question of Indulgences. They could not be bought, nor were they licenses to commit sin. "An Indulgence is the remission of the temporal satisfaction due for sin, which in the early days of the Church was frequently very severe."

The lecturer made it clear that his co-religionists had no harsh words for members of other faiths, providing they were sincere: as doubtlessly the enormous majority were.

Rev. Mr. Moore, of the Students' Christian Association, announced that next week's lecture will be on "Protestantism." This lecture would be in no sense of the word a reply to Sir Bertram Windle's of yesterday.

Three students at the University of Illinois were fined three dollars each recently for playing ball in the streets.

FUTURE ECONOMIC TRENDS
store of unused ability which had to find its outlet. It had been released with the coming of the methods of present-day production.

"It is the enlargement of human needs which is the salvation at this time and the solution of the whole situation as far as our race is concerned," he continued. "Diversification of demand gives something to which the youth of the land can address himself."

As a result of a tremendously increased variety of human needs, there was going to be more employment for those whom the machine had released and the great increase in population was going to be cared for.

"I have often heard it lamented," he said, "that by reason of false policy, or perhaps false taste, the country is being emptied and the city enlarged." In this situation the speaker could see no cause for alarm. He acquiesced that it was so, however, and quoted statistics to show the movement toward urban centres.

"We have now reached the stage where our city population is greater than our rural population." It could be made the subject of lamentation, but, in his opinion, was not worthy of moaning over. In a time when needs were multiplying, there was bound to be a movement toward those places where they could best be met. In that fact lay the answer. "You can't get people to stay where their energies can't find useful outlet," he added.

Diversification of needs had left its mark on the politics of the world. Each country was working to procure a variety of industries. "Those in the political parties of the nations are within their countries those who those within their countries those who satisfy these diversity of needs," he said.

He believed that for the next two generations at least the world would be so organized that its component nations would be on a basis of competition. They would endeavour to keep within their borders those industries which employed their people. He introduced the moot method of tariff barriers as a probable solution. "Don't imagine the future is going to be dull. It is going to be much happier." As the address reached its close, an outburst of applause was sent up to the gothic arches that echoed through the building.

C. Jones, president of the Commerce Club, was chairman of the evening. He opened the toast list with a plea to see through the maze of University life to the objects beyond. "All too often we do not appreciate, while 'going through the mill,' just what it is all about," he emphasized.

"Bob" Chisholm, Commerce graduate, proposed the toast to "The University and Faculty." Sir Robert Falconer replied.

WEARING SPECTACLES
spectacles; the earlier ones made out of a single piece of glass, the later out of two lenses hinged together. The frames were made of leather, horn or bone, the metal frames not being introduced until 1600. These frames were skilfully shaped and bore the master mechanic's own private mark. The custom was to fasten the spectacles on with string tied around the ears.

It was in 1610 that the telescope was developed, through the accidental putting together of two lenses.

Dr. McTaggart told some amusing incidents in the effects of fashion on the wearing of spectacles. In 1319 at the Austrian court, an Ambassador caused quite a stir at his sister's wedding when he appeared wearing glasses. In 1596 in Spain the custom was common among men of fashion. In France, fashion did not decree the wearing of spectacles. But unfortunately with defective sight might carry small opera glasses, "perspectives," as they were called.

Franklin is supposed to have introduced bi-focals, in which the lower half of the lens inclined back. It was in the nineteenth century that Sir Thomas Young made a study of astigmatism, and advocated wearing spectacles on a slope. But in 1827 Sir Charles Airy corrected astigmatism in his own eye through the superficial lens.

It is not, as Dr. McTaggart stated, authentic that the monocle was discovered by the Scotchman whose economy has won for him the credit for so doing.

Previous to Dr. McTaggart's address, Mr. Milne of the third year traced the development up to 1827, in the laws and theories of Heat.

OF HOMERIC POEMS

say that Homer composed an epic in the same sense that Milton did. Homer was merely seeking to tell a long story, and so in our eyes his poems are simply novels of a heroic age. It is a natural tendency for us to read the books backwards, taking into consideration all that has come afterwards. Homer had a public to please and had to follow strict connections in style and manner of which we are ignorant. The invocation to the Muses, with which Homer begins his poems, is not merely poetical but the expression of a solemn fact. The poet is, to him, the mouthpiece of the Muses—the book in which are recorded the chronicles of the past. Homer makes no assumption of originality—he is merely an accurate recorder.

In answering the question—How far did the mainstay of the incident of the poem exist before—Professor Owen said there is no record of a previous knowledge. But Homer had to be responsive to the demands of his public. His subject and language must be familiar to them.

"Writers who attempt to capture the secret of Homer's greatness seek great subjects." Homer, however, did not know that an epic should be on a subject of national renown. We think of the Iliad as the epic of the Trojan War. But Homer himself considered the war only as an occasion of the wrath of Achilles. The subject of the Iliad to Homer was the wrath of Achilles, and so he did not write an epic of some outstanding event—but an intensely personal story. The Odyssey is similarly personal.

"The length of the Iliad and the Odyssey has always been very puzzling to me," Professor Owen went on. Why are they such immense poems? Their great length is not accidental—they were planned for length. Each poem is filled with other sources. In the Iliad, the hero appears in the first book and then absents himself for some time, and the intervening space is filled with accounts of the Greek heroes. In the Odyssey the depressions are provided by the hero himself, who relates many incidents which occurred during his wanderings. Everything of this sort that comes up, Homer treats as of the first importance, and this results in even action. All the results are in the foreground, and each event is developed for its own sake. The explanation of this prominence of detail lies in the fact that the poems were written to be heard, not read—that they were written before there was any tradition that poetry is to be read. Moreover, Homer realized that a thing once said is of the past, because there is something new always coming up, so everything must be stated as of great importance.

The poet reciting his poem is freer to follow the development of episodes. As the interest must be sustained, the poet must make each part a unit in itself and fully developed for its own sake. Homer's public wanted not life but literature, and Homer was faced with the problem of keeping up the interest in the far-off theme while in-between depressions were being kept up. Homer's purpose was not to concentrate his story, but he deliberately spread it out, and so holds back the action and draws it out. For this reason he introduced the divine machinery. as the organizing factor in the world of sensations, very much as the sight of man is the organizing factor in the world of material things.

The lecturer pursued his theme in the second conference entitled: "The Origin of Ideas." Having concluded that the soul produces perceptions, St. Augustine's problem was to decide whether or not the soul produces ideas. In this connection Professor Gilson made reference to the nature of teaching. We cannot be taught anything wholly new. New ideas must be founded on what we already know. Thus each one arrives at the truth individually. This truth, which transcends every individual conception of it, is synonymous with God.

Professor Gilson will deliver the concluding lecture at 9 to-morrow morning on the subject, "Memory and Its Metaphysical Meaning." This will conclude his survey of the Augustinian psychology.

the Homeric Age when reading about Achilles.

Professor Owen concluded his lecture with these quotations: "From Homer and Polygnatus I every day learn more clearly that in our life here above ground we have, properly speaking, to enact Hell"—Matthew Arnold. And a Freshman in Victoria remarked, "When I read Homer, I feel twenty feet high."

BELLS RING OUT IN BRAZEN PAEAN OF THANKSGIVING

Memorial Carillon Awakes to Vibrant Life Over
Week-end

MR. SKILLICORN PRESIDES

Stiffness of Mechanism Entails
Injury to Carillonneur's Hands

The Carillon programmes over the week-end have again demonstrated the value of the Alumni Federation's Centenary gift to the University. On Sunday afternoon a number of people, undeterred by November chilliness, flocked to the University grounds to hear Mr. J. L. Skillicorn of the Metropolitan United Church play a varied selection of tunes upon the Carillon. It had previously been arranged for Percival Price, Carillonneur from Ottawa, who inaugurated the bells, to play, but other arrangements detained him at the last minute.

Mr. Skillicorn opened his programme with "Old Hundred," a selection which is particularly adapted to the bells, and was heard previously at the opening ceremonies on October 6. He also rendered some old-fashioned songs, including "Believe me, if all those endearing young charms," "The Rosary," and "Sweet and Low." The programme ended with "The Day thou gavest, Lord, is ended."

Yesterday afternoon, at 4.30, another programme was given with Mr. Richardson, carillonneur from St. John's Church, West Toronto, at the keyboard. In spite of the large crowds dismissed from the Balmby Beach Varsity game, very few people stayed for the music.

The stirring week-end programmes on the Carillon in the Soldiers' Tower are reminiscent of Tennyson's "Helen's Tower" as amended by Professor I. H. Cameron:

"Soldiers' Tower," here I stand
Dominant on Alma Mater's land,
Dons' love built me, and I hold
Mother's love in cloistered fold.
Love is in and out of time,
I am mortal stone and lime.
Would my granite girth were strong
As either love, to fast as long.
I should bear my bells entire
To and thro' the Doomsday fire,
And be seen of Angels' eyes
In earth's recurring Paradise.

Although the melodies produced seem delightfully free and easy, playing the carillon is a task for an athlete. The apparatus in the Soldiers' Tower is quite new—and therefore stiff. In spite of the fact that the player on Saturday wore heavy gloves and was protected by adhesive tape, his hands were badly bruised.

It is announced that Percival Price, Dominion Carillonneur, will be in Toronto for a concert next week-end.

Mayor William Hale Thompson of the Stockyards announces $10,000 as a prize for the best all-American history for use in Chicago schools. The winner will be announced on the Glorious Fourth, next summer. This new history is to tell the real and only truths about American history. There is nothing in the conditions which bars Canadians, or undergraduates, so students in the University of Toronto who need pocket-money are advised to look into this and give it their most serious consideration.

Third Consecutive Victory For Intercollegiate Harriers

S.C.M. TO BANQUET VICTORIA FRESHIES

Function Planned for Tomorrow Night in Burwash

IN PLACE OF RECEPTION

The Victoria College union of the Students' Christian Movement hopes to help the "Vic" freshies to forget their disappointment over the cancellation of the Freshman Prom by giving a dinner in Burwash Hall, Wednesday, November 9, at 6.30, especially to welcome Vic 3T1 and to introduce to them the aims and functions of the S.C.M. The speakers of the evening are to be Mr. F. J. Moore, the men's S.C.M. secretary at Hart House, Miss Gertrude Rutherford, the associate secretary for the Students' Christian Movement of Canada, and Mr. Harold Swann, a former student of Victoria College, in whose undergraduate days the movement began. It is not possible to extend an invitation to all those in other faculties who may be interested, so invitations are being sent to the Presidents of the S.C.M. in each faculty.

The Students' Christian Movement of Canada is made up of groups of students in every Canadian university who seek through fellowship, study and service to discover for themselves the real meaning of life. The students from the various universities are kept in touch with each other through conferences and through the work of the National Secretaries. The work of the Toronto secretaries, Miss Mary Rowell and Mr. F. J. Moore, is to correlate the activities of the S.C.M. in each faculty.

The dinner is to be held under the auspices of the joint executives of the men's and women's units of the S.C.M. of Victoria College. Tickets are available to all Victoria students and may be procured in each of the Victoria residences.

RABBI ISSERMAN AT MENORAH SOCIETY

Says All Shades of Opinions
Have Tolerance in Modern Judaism

NO NEED FOR SECESSION

"Religion for the Modern Jew" was the subject of a talk by Rabbi Isserman before the first of this year's series of open meetings of the University of Toronto Menorah Society on Sunday in the Holy Blossom Synagogue Chambers.

The Rabbi gave an impression of what the world considers an ideal religion for the modern Jew. He pointed out that there was room for all shades of opinion within the folds of Judaism, and concluded that there was no need for any Jew to secede from the ranks of the Jewish race because his idea of religion was different from that of his predecessors or his contemporaries.

After his address the Rabbi answered a number of questions put to him by members of the audience.

Musical entertainment preceded the address.

Medical Soph-Frosh Banquet Is An Unqualified Success

The good old yell of "Epistaxis!" marked the beginning of the 1927 Medical Soph-Frosh dinner and dance, held at the Sunnyside Pavilion Thursday evening. Excellent provender was a feature of the evening, and short speeches were in order. Doctor W. H. T. Baillie and Professor W. H. Martin were guests at the dinner. An informal toast, "Bigger rabbits with more fuzz on," provided hearty cheers for the Biology department.

After a short adjournment, dancing commenced at nine, and snappy music kept everybody lively until 2 p.m. Class yells, punch and a crowd full of fun went to make the evening a huge success.

The Return of the Native

Weewee Lake, Ontario, Nov. 7.—(Special to "The Varsity" from the Weewee Progressive Liberal Conservator).—Considerable excitement was evinced to-day at that vortex of traffic, Queen and Main Street, when J. So great was the traffic jam that our police force broke his arm directing the cars of admiring friends of our Oswald. The representative of this paper secured a picture of our learned son receiving at the fountain in our public square which was donated by his public-spirited father.

"Heck, yes, Toronto is a pip of a college," remarked J. Oswald Pinkerstaff in a special interview, showing his inimitable humour. "It's a darn swell joint—and hot mamma! those Hart House meals!" On being pressed for details, Oswald explained that Hart House was a Y.M.C.A. run for students, containing a swimming pool. "They put two cakes of ice and a Determined Effort Results in 8-1

Score For Blue at Montreal

POWERFUL LINE-PLUNGING

McGill and Queen's Teams
Now Tied For Rugby
Championship

A crashing line attack, brilliant work by the halves, a perfect defence, and, above all, the determination to win, brought the Blue and White to an 8-1 victory over McGill in Montreal on Saturday. The Blue went on the field determined to show their critics that they had the goods, and they succeeded.

Staging one of the most powerful attacks seen in years, they carried the ball 105 yards for a touchdown in the first period and were never headed.

The brilliant McGill backfield stars were bottled up by the Varsity wings, and the Varsity halves stole the lime-light. Led by Captain France Trimble, the Blue and White team played their best game of the season and cut McGill's chances of the title in half.

There was not a weak spot on the Varsity team; veterans and youngsters alike were right at the top of their form, and for the first half of the game at least McGill did not have a look-in. In the second half they did break through occasionally, but the Varsity defence was as good as the attack, and McGill did not even threaten to overcome the early lead.

Sinclair and Trimble, the Varsity halves, more than made up for any fumbles they made earlier in the season. They ran the ends brilliantly, plunged through the McGill line for huge gains and caught faultlessly. In short they were stars in every sense of the word. The work of the Varsity line was a treat. They broke through and smothered the McGill plays before they were under way, and Little and St. Germain were unable to get their famous end-runs started.

Little, the McGill captain, was the star of his team; he tried hard to stave off defeat, but it was a hopeless task. Twice in the first period he robbed Varsity of almost certain scores by carrying the ball out from behind his own line.

Varsity's touchdown came as a result of four brilliant plays which carried the ball from the shadow of the Blue goal-posts across the McGill goal-line at the other end of the field. A long boot by St. Germain in the first quarter forced Varsity back to their own 5-yard line. Harrison, the youngest member of the squad, was given the ball, and he started the procession by plunging for yards. Dundas, veteran of four years' service, then came through with a break through the McGill line, which carried the ball to centre field. Then Trimble, the captain of the team, tore through the line for a gain of 50 yards, being stopped five yards out by St. Germain. On the first down Trimble came right back and crashed over the line for a touchdown.

Varsity had a couple of chances to score later in the period, but Little ran the ball out on both occasions.

Varsity added two more points in the second quarter. The first came on a punt by Sinclair, and the second was the result of an onside kick going into touch behind the McGill line.

McGill threatened temporarily in the third quarter and scored their only point on a rouge. They were dangerous for a time, but the Varsity out-sides smothered their end runs, and they could make no headway through the line.

TIME FOR WORK

To-day we settle down to work. Back over a month now we have been passing through a period of more or less re-adjustment, with the Freshman endeavouring to fit himself to new conditions and surroundings and thus become inconspicuous, while the more experienced man, back from his second or third year, has slowly absorbed atmosphere until Thanksgiving, heralding term examinations, forces upon him the realization that it is time to get down to business.

But it is particularly the Freshman with whom we wish to speak. His lot has not been altogether an easy one. Coming up from lower schools, where he may often have found himself the centre of an admiring throng, he now finds himself unknown and his honours unsung. He finds no direct supervision over his studies, his work or his attendance at lectures. He may do this or that. And he is apt to be distinctly lost when he finds his responsibilities exclusively his own, with his success depending entirely upon his own initiative.

He has realized by this time that he must carve his career anew. If normal, he will wish to gain that prominence in University circles that he held in the school from whence he came, and he probably feels that that prominence can come only after actual effort on his part, whether it be on the football field, on the ice, in executive work or in his studies. And we say that, with but few exceptions, it is upon the foundation laid in the Freshman year upon which all future success in University life depends. The student who is content to drift through his first year is, in almost every case, content to drift throughout his College course, whereas by making some small initial effort at the time when initiative, though most difficult to the timid, will be the most productive, he may gain prominence.

The second and third year man generally commences his year's work with the close of the football season. This year Thanksgiving has been an added indication that the time is ripe for study, and from now on lectures will receive a better attendance and the library more students in an actual search for knowledge.

STUDENTS AND THE MUSEUM

That there is an increased interest in relics of the past is shown by the fact that the attendance at the Royal Ontario Museum last month was a record for October. We wonder how many of those who made up that record attendance were students.

How many students know of the advantages afforded by the Museum? There we find a representation of early life in Canada as well as displays of the natural resources of our country. There are also to be found historical collections from many other countries of the world; students of the history of ancient civilization will find relics which will help them to reconstruct the life of those early periods; members of the C.O.T.C. can trace the development of weapons there, and co-eds can follow the course of fashion.

All these privileges are free to undergraduates. On presenting his registration card, a student is admitted to the Museum on any day. Hence we cannot but wonder that there is not every month a record attendance—and that of students.

UPHOLDS NOYES

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:
It is with great pain that we note these budding geniuses and other young freaks attacking in the pages of this newspaper one of the greatest poets of to-day. In Friday's letter signed with the familiar—alas, all too familiar—initials, N.A.B., we see the disgusting spectacle of a man, nay, rather the boy who was responsible for "S.S. Walrus" and that other hunk of garbage "S.S. Pineapple," telling the writer of the greatest English epic of modern times, "Drake," that he does not know whereof he speaks.

Does this correspondent, sir, have the impudence to imagine that his fiery (?) letter is going to bring Mr. Noyes to the supposed error of his ways? Does he really believe that Mr. Noyes will even see this letter, or, if he did, that he would give it more than a hearty laugh?

Tennyson is far beyond us all, even your correspondent. It is our fault that we do not understand him. The reading of his poems is sufficient proof that N.A.B. has at least one superior in the poetic art.

Fundamentalist.

SHEA'S HIPPODROME

Stage and screen offer a variety of attraction at the City Hall square this week. John Gilbert gives one of his passionate impersonations in St. Elmo, based on Augusta J. Evans' novel of fifty years ago. The plot is none the less modern, was brought to the screen a year or two ago, and continues to enjoy the popularity it did as a stage play.

Of the Keith-Albee attractions Mayo and Lynn draw the laughs in their dialogue, "Two Strange Gentlemen," with voice and repartee characteristic of the Two Black Crows. Archie and Gertrude Falls in "A Few Hard Knocks" give refreshing novelty to an act of tumbling antics. We are not sure that an unnamed number will hold its place on the bill for the balance of the week. If it does, patrons will find entertainment in the original ideas brought into the skit.

Boudini and Bernard bring out the best that is in the accordion—or in two accordians.

CLARA BOW—AT THE TIVOLI

Only a professional reviewer knows the supreme difficulty of getting into a theatre on a pass on the night of a holiday. For instance, we asked L.J.R. (who can bejape a movie better than Geo. Jean Nathan) to review the Uptown for us, and here is a note that he left for us, "We do not give complimentary on holidays—famous words of famous people"—by famous people he means Mr. Arthur, Mr. Shea and Co. of the Uptown. Well, if they are going to be so high-hat, they can go without a review until they learn how to treat our representatives.

How different it was with us! We went down to review the Tivoli for the first time—and we were escorted inside by Mr. T. S. Daley, the manager, and shown our seats only three rows behind the august Luigi Romanelli himself. We repeat that Mr. Daley is a good and genial egg. Long may he prosper!

The feature picture is Mlle. Clara Bow in "My Lady of Whims"; what the Hollywood Hoozies are doing to Clara is a crime only second to arson, and it appears that they have decided that in all her pictures she must show that she has an absolute corner on all existent IT, to be exact, S.A. True, she is very fetching and wears only enough to appease the censors, but she has ceased to act any more, and only mimics Colleen Moore, which is a darn shame. The picture was interspersed with the "wit" of a terrible gag-man, who deserves not only to be quartered but eighthed. So much for the feature—if you go to the Tivoli, you will be entertained by a Collegians' Comedy, the very good work of Signor Luigi Romanelli and his Riotters (including the ebullient Jean Fritzley), a very fair reel of Topics; and who knows but that Mr. Daley himself may welcome you, if you claim to be a friend of ours.

BLUE BRING FOOTBALL SEASON TO CLOSE WITH THRILLING VICTORY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

"Better late than never."

Saturday's victory over McGill demonstrated that Varsity has the goods. In their last two previous starts they out-played their opponents for the first half of the game, and then the "break," or whatever you like to call it, went against them and they were unable to overcome it. But against McGill they proved themselves a sixty-minute team.

Harrison, the youthful star from Appleby, looks like the find of the season. He did not make a very auspicious start, but it must be remembered that it was his first season in senior rugby. In the last two games, however, he proved his mettle, and promises to be one of the stars of the game. He carried the ball across Queen's line for Varsity's touch, and a week later started the rally that resulted in a touch against McGill.

The O.R.F.U. team did not win yesterday, but they played a fine brand of rugby just the same. The Orphans have been in tough luck this season through injuries, but they put up a good battle on every appearance, and without the support that accompanies the Intercollegiate manage to give a good account of themselves and uphold the reputation of the University. They showed a smart collection of plays which speaks words for the coaching of "Mike" Pearson.

And maybe the Juniors didn't live up to their advance notices. R.M.C. were reported to have a smart little team, but Varsity were just too good. The score of 23 to 1 may be a little lop-sided, but Varsity has a real team in the Junior series, and it looks like their title.

Balmy Beach touch McGill a week ago, and on Saturday the Blue and White beat them again. There is always the angle, of course, that the Balmy Beach game was only an exhibition one and that Varsity were desperate. But Queen's will be trying on Saturday just as hard as Varsity, for the title will be at stake. The question is—can McGill come back? They appear to be in a slump after three weeks' lay-off, and two defeats in a row will not aid the old morale very much.

McGill at the first of the season looked like this year's champions. They were still favourites ten days ago, but it would be surprising if Queen's do not enter the contest on Saturday favourites over the Red and White.

The McGill-Varsity game just goes to demonstrate the spirit that exists in Intercollegiate contests. There is little doubt that Varsity hoped, and still hopes, McGill would win the title, though not wishing Queen's any ill-luck. It seems like McGill's turn. But that did not prevent Varsity from going out there and playing their best game of the season. Nor did the fact that Varsity was definitely out of the running prevent 15,000 fans from attending the game. They knew that it would be a battle, and they were right.

BALMY BEACH OUSTS ORPHANS AT LAST MOMENT

Foster Scores Winning Touch in Final Three Minutes of Last Period

HOT FIGHT THROUGHOUT

McIntyre Stars for Varsity as Aerial Attack Gives Lead

The Orphans are out of the running. After leading Balmy Beach for over three-quarters of the game, the "Mike" Pearson squad tasted defeat through a last minute onrush of the Beachers that netted them a brilliant touch due to the smart gallop of Yip Foster for 35 yards, and gave the East Enders the game.

The game was marked by the proverbial two and a kick, and the only variety of the game was provided by Varsity, who took plenty of chances and were easily the better for three-quarters of the game.

At the start of the last stanza it looked like a sure Blue victory, as they had the strong wind behind them, and in addition were leading 4-2, and the way McIntyre was hoofing them it looked like an almost certain. The entire "Orphan" team deserve loads of credit for their brilliant fight against a team that has won the O.R.F.U. title for three successive years and have yet to taste the bitter "pill" this year.

McIntyre of the Blues played a most brilliant game, his catching, hoofing and general all round playing featuring the entire tussle. The work of Scott at the inside position was good, while Kirkpatrick ran kicks back to perfection. Carrick was certainly hitting the old line hard and made plenty of gains.

Varsity kicked off against the wind and the opposing halves used the aerial attack. Foster kicked the old pill about right smartly, despite the fact that the snapouts were poor. Beal was ploughing through the line in this period, for good gains, while the whole Blue squad were holding the upper hand in the number of plays worked off smartly.

The first score of the game came when a bad snapout was fumbled by "Red" Moore and dribbled across the Beach's line for what looked like a touch, but the spurt put on by "Scotty" Cawkell saved the Beachers as he fell on the oval for a single for the Blues.

Queen's Alumnae Meet and Organize Campaign

The Queen's Alumnae met in Kingston on Saturday and elected Miss M. MacDonnell their president. A move will be made to raise money to build more women's residences. A committee was appointed to establish a scholarship for women students. Mrs. Plumptre of Toronto addressed the meeting.

The tackling of "Jimmie" Keith at this juncture was really smart. The play became pretty hot when Moore kicked 55 yards for a single, tying the score, 1-1.

On straight bucks Varsity gained yards, and put themselves in a fine position for a drop, but the attempt by McIntyre was low, the ball bounding across to Moore, who was downed for a single, putting the Orphans ahead two to one.

McIntyre again tried the "Pop" Leadley specialty, but he failed to come through with the triple count. He managed to slip one point across, giving the Varsity team a two-point lead. Beal and Carrick combined in a nice effort to bring the ball into the close vicinity of the Beachers line, but a fumble gave the East Enders the ball, and they kicked out of danger. A fumble by Foster that was picked up by Dunn put Varsity in a position to hoof over another single point. This period was featured by the smart running back of the punts by "Red" Moore and Foster. Near the half-time whistle Balmy staged a whirlwind attack that had the Varsity line buckling under the heavy thrusts. The half-time found the Varsity gang leading 4-1.

Balmy with the wind behind them took the offensive with a will. Moore tore off 35 yards through the centre. The attack of the Beachers could not be denied, and McIntyre was forced to rouge, setting the score 4-2. Kirkpatrick pulled off a fine run for 40 yards, and was only downed by Moore with a half-Nelson for which he was sent off.

The last quarter handed out more thrills than your first view of the hula dancers. Crowhurst was sent on and promptly began using his beef to perfection, making gains through the Blue line. McIntyre saved by inches when he carried the ball out of danger with a horde of tacklers all around him.

Foster snatched off 45 yards to put the Beachers in a position to try an onside. There was a wild scramble that resulted in a single for the Beachers. The score is now 4-3, and the Beach team is coming strongly in a great come-back that is sweeping (Continued on page 4)

VARSITY JUNIORS OUTCLASS CADETS

Show Marked Superiority in All Departments Against R.M.C.

FUMBLES PROVE COSTLY

Varsity Juniors ran off with an easy victory over R.M.C. at Kingston on Saturday afternoon in the first of the Intercollegiate final games by a score of 23 to 1. The Cadets were easily outclassed in all the "tricks of the game." The Varsity boys plunged through their line time and again for considerable gains.

Early in the game Spencer showed his form when he plunged through the R.M.C. line for a 30-yard run, ending in a touchdown. A few minutes later Kirk caught up a fumbled ball and went down the field for another touch, which he converted.

It was in the second quarter only that the Cadets showed any signs of recovery. Bainnie sent one to the deadline for their solitary point.

In the third quarter Spencer again booted for a point, and in the last quarter Varsity again reaped a bountiful harvest.

Adams got the ball through a fumble on the Cadets' 30-yard line, and reproduced Kirk's exhibition in the first quarter.

Just before the end of the game, Kirk sent over an onside kick, which was recovered by Spencer behind the R.M.C. line.

Spencer's running and kicking throughout the game was notable, while Kirk's feats show signs of great promise.

Line-up:— Varsity: Flying wing, Scott; halves, Stone, Burke, Spencer; quarter, Kirk; snap, Galloway; insides, Frey, Slater; middles, Adams, Solandt; outsides, Gooderham, Baker; subs, Leggett, Pugsley, Woods, Murray, Eastwood, Boles.

The game was the final one of the season for the Varsity squad, and they made certain that it was a win. WORK ON MEMORIAL IS FOR DRAINAGE

Tablets Need Waterproofing to Prevent Crumbling, Says Superintendent

NO ILLUMINATION YET

Many and varied opinions have been offered by passers-by regarding the work going on at the Memorial Tablets by the Soldiers' Tower. One theory has been that the lights, which were much discussed in the columns of "The Varsity" last year, were being installed to illuminate the Memory of the Dead. However, upon being interviewed, the Superintendent informed us that a system of waterproofing the tablets is being installed so that they will not crumble or disintegrate.

Panhellenic board at the University of Nebraska awards pins each year to the girls with the highest scholastic averages in the three lower classes.

U.C. WOMEN'S LIT

The subject of the paper to be given at the U.C. Women's Literary Society has been changed to "Dostowsky," by Miss Marjorie Eoll. Dostowsky is a very interesting Polish writer of modern fiction. ing Varsity aside. Dunn is tackling effectively at this period of the game and is saving the Varsity team plenty of worry. Moore, who was off due to injuries, came back on again and lead the Beachers in three attempts that made yards each time. Foster then kicked to McIntyre to tie the score 4 all. Then came the play that decided the game. Foster took the ball and galloped around the end for 35 yards and a touchdown that came with only three minutes to go. It was unconverted.

Varsity came back in a mad effort to pull the game out of the fire and tried two onside in succession, the first gaining a good deal of valuable ground, but the latter was pulled down by Balmy as the whistle blew. Final score 9-4 Balmy Beach.

The Orphans deserve all the credit in the world, and although the Beachers took the title in that game the Blues provided the champions with their hardest opposition to date, and don't forget that the East Enders took McGill into camp twice.

University History Traced at U.C. Literary Society Meeting

Prizes Presented To Athletes

BEGAN "VARSITY"

Refreshments Boost Attendance

Mr. Christie, as President of the Society, opened the meeting by moving an expression of sympathy for Canon and Mrs. Cody in the loss of their son Maurice, who previous to his death had been a leader in the Society's work. Some sort of memorial was suggested, such as an oratorical prize, to be given to the man considered as the best speaker from the floor. The various reports were read and appeared to be in a rather healthy condition as contrasted with many former reports. The remarks of the year presidents were very meagre. Mr. Gilbert of 3T0 being about the only one who had anything to say. Bigger and better class parties was the subject of his talk.

These preliminaries were followed by the presentation of medals to the winners in the Interfaculty track meet. "Cam" Mabec was the individual champion and was presented with a small loving cup. Bill Finlayson and A. Christie were right on Mabec's heels, and between them assimilated most of the ribbons not cornered by the fleet "Cam."

Mr. McLaughlin in the course of his address endeavoured by means of old records and excerpts from diaries to trace the history of the U.C. Literary Society from very humble beginnings in 1854 to its present influential position in University life. He pointed out that the Society had fostered, or at least participated, in practically every major event at the University since its inception, and should endeavour to carry on a policy of sharing in any undertaking likely to prove of benefit to the University. Among the pioneers of the Society was mentioned Sir Daniel Wilson, who possibly more than any other individual was responsible for much of the Society's later success. The average attendance at meetings during Sir Daniel's regime was about twenty, and fell off from that figure at his death. It should be remembered, however, that in the early '60's and '70's University College was not in the heart of the city as now, but well out on the outskirts, and required half an hour's drive behind "old Dobbin" to reach. Possibly the Society's greatest achievement was the founding of "The Varsity," or the "Blue and White," as it was then called. During the paper's infancy large grants of money were made by the Society, and very often were all that separated the paper from closing up its doors. The meeting closed with the refreshments and a rather sudden increase in attendance.

Sigma Delta Chi Hear Friday Address

Mr. Jeffer, Financial Editor of "The Globe," gave his impressions of his duties on a daily paper at a luncheon meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, Professional Journalistic Fraternity, last week. Every afternoon the Financial Editor visits the two Exchanges towards the closing hour to see the market prices of stocks. He must analyze the trend of stocks, and delve into the causes and effects of the trading. Unlike the weekly papers, a daily must devote itself to news of the various stocks and of the market. Mr. Jeffer concluded his address by answering queries as to financial problems of the fraternity members.

1927-28 Directory Ready This Week

The Directory of Staff and Students for 1927-8 will probably be ready for circulation at the end of this week. Enquiries at the Registrar's Office, Simcoe Hall, elicited this information, which, although not positive, is nevertheless very probable.

The manuscripts are in the hands of the Press, which is at present working upon them. Just as soon as the directories return from the Press they will be available for general circulation.

JARDINE MEMORIAL PRIZE CONDITIONS

Competition Judged By Five Examiners, One From Each College

ENGLISH VERSE PRIZE

The Jardine Memorial Prize for English Verse, which was the subject of a letter to "The Varsity" Wednesday, is of the value of $100. It is the gift of the late Mrs. T. Herbert Barton in memory of her brother, Flight-Lieutenant Gordon Jardine, and is open to any regular undergraduate student who has been in actual attendance at the University during the academic year preceding the date of submission (November 1) or who graduated in the previous academic year. The subject and metre of the poem is left to the choice of the competitor, who may submit a series of sonnets or lyrics instead of a longer poem. The poem, signed with a pseudonym, and with a written guarantee that it is absolutely an original work, must be in the hands of the Registrar of the University by November 1st. The competition is judged by a board of five examiners, consisting of the head of the Department of English in each of the four colleges, and a fifth examiner to be chosen by (Continued on page 4)

FOREIGN DISCUSSION RESUMED TO-NIGHT

Organization Formed Last Year to Study International Relationships

MEET IN MUSIC ROOM

All students throughout the University who are interested in the affairs of the outside world and their relation to Canada are informed that the Foreign Affairs Club, which was first begun last year, is again being organized. The Club last year grew out of the desire on the part of certain men for some sort of organization or association in which international affairs and relations could be intelligently discussed. It was hoped, also, that the Club would be able to meet with men prominently connected with international affairs who happened to come through here. Last year the Club had the pleasure of hearing Sir Herbert Ames and Prof. Zimmer on the occasion of their visits here.

There is room in Canada, especially in view of the fact that Canada has just begun to have her own diplomatic service, for an educated public opinion along international lines, with a knowledge of the relative importance of foreign events, from a national viewpoint. University men should have (Continued on page 4)

FUNERAL TO-DAY OF DR. HOYLES EMINENT JURIST

Second President of Wycliffe and Past President of Osgoode Hall

LOSS TO UNIVERSITY

University Flag at Half-mast in Sympathetic Regret

The University flag is flying at half-mast in sympathetic regret over the death of Dr. N. W. Hoyles, president of Wycliffe College and member of the University Senate, who passed away on Sunday evening, and whose funeral takes place this afternoon.

A man of admirable versatility, the late Dr. Hoyles will be mourned by many branches of intellectual activity. For twenty-nine years principal of the Osgoode Hall law school, the late doctor was an eminent jurist and will be specially remembered by the members of the Ontario bar who have attended his lectures.

An active member of the Church of England, he was also the second president of Wycliffe College at the time of his death.

Dr. Hoyles was born in 1844 at St. John's, Newfoundland, the son of the late Chief Justice Hugh Hoyles. He was educated at Trinity College, Oxford, and returned to Toronto to commence the study of law. He was called to the bar in 1874, and in 1889 was appointed Queen's counsel. In 1894 he was appointed principal of Osgoode Hall law school and held that post for twenty-nine years until 1923. That year he and his wife, who survives him, celebrated their golden wedding.

The late Dr. Hoyles will be mourned by the members of the University who have come in contact with him during his lifetime—truly a man, whose praises cannot be exaggerated.

Wurzel-Flummery at Players' Guild

Members of the University College Players' Guild should be very interested in Mr. Paul Gardner's production of "Wurzel-Flummery," by A. A. Milne. This satirical comedy by the author of "When we were young" is the story of a wealthy and eccentric misanthrope who left two enormous sums of money to two outstanding men of different political parties on the condition that they would both take the surname of "Wurzel-Flummery." The complications are most amusing and will provide a very delightful afternoon's entertainment.

CAMPBELL MINNES TO WIELD BATON FOR SONGSTERS

To Start Season Next Sunday in Hart House

UNIQUE INSTITUTION

Conductor Makes Trip Every Week From New York City

The season of evening songsters re-opens again for the year next Sunday. Verbum Sapientibus. To newcomers and those who in times past have remained without the pale, however, a few descriptive and explanatory words may not come amiss. The songster is a unique Hart House institution, and merely implies the informal gathering together of a group of men, musically inclined, though by no means necessarily so gifted, to sing old ballads and folk songs.

Mr. Campbell Minnes is again to wield the conductor's baton. Earlier in the year it appeared that this was going to be impossible when Mr. Minnes was lured to New York City by the American Opera Company, but so intense is his interest in these songsters, for whose development to their present form he is largely responsible, that he has voluntarily undertaken to make the long and dreary trip to and from New York every week-end that the songsters are held, with the sole purpose of conducting them. Such action on the part of Mr. Minnes is not only an example of unparalleled generosity from him, but a gratifying tribute to the musical value of the songsters.

DR. BRUCE CURRY TO LECTURE HERE

To Give Series of Study Groups on Student Life Problems

REGISTER AT S.C.A.

Dr. Bruce Curry, the noted Special Lecturer at Union Theological Seminary, New York, and at Oberlin, is to visit the University of Toronto under the auspices of the Student Christian Association, to conduct a series of Study Groups on the subject of Student Life Problems.

Already this term Dr. Curry has been at McGill, Queen's, Western and Guelph, where he drew enthusiastic crowds throughout his stay. He has a method all his own, and no Bible Study leader is in such constant demand in the Universities and Colleges of U.S.A. as he is.

It was on account of the great impression he made at our own Elgin House Conference in September that he was invited to visit the Canadian universities, and we are extremely fortunate to be able to bring him to Toronto for four days. He will be here for the week-end of the American Thanksgiving—Thursday, November 24th, to Sunday, 27th, inclusive. It is fully expected that one hundred and fifty to two hundred will attend the course, and any student desirous of joining should register at once either at the office of the Men's S.C.A. in Hart House, or that of the Women's S.C.A. in the Household Science Building. The group will meet at 7.15 each evening, and the fee for the course is one dollar.

It will interest football fans to know that Dr. Curry was an outstanding Football star. As coach of one of the American college teams he introduced the forward pass.

Three students of Northwestern University bear the names of men famous in athletics and movie production. They are Jack Dempsey, Bobby Jones and Mack Sennett.

Trinity College Library Scene of Address on Ancient Orient

ILLUSTRATED BY SLIDES

Egypt the Subject of Last Night's Public Meeting

"There is no interest in modern life to which Egypt has not contributed, either directly or indirectly," said Dr. Mercer last evening in the first of three public lectures on the Ancient Orient, at Trinity College Library.

Though no larger than Wales or the State of Vermont, the contribution of Egypt to civilization is unique among nations. Consisting of a group of city states in the period 4400 B.C.—3400 B.C., Egypt had become a large substantial kingdom by the end of that period. From 3400—2000 B.C. is known as the Pyramid Age, when literary art and engineering skill reached an advanced stage—moral literature especially attained a high degree of perfection. By 1580 B.C. Egypt had been converted from a simple peace-loving people to a warlike nation. The years 1580—1150 B.C. are known as the Empire period when art developed to its highest point.

After giving a quick historical sketch of Egypt, Dr. Mercer went on to stress the great contributions made by Egypt to our modern world. Not only is her influence felt in the political, social and religious life of our day, but especially in the realm of art. "In some respects the art of ancient Egypt has never been surpassed," he stated.

Dr. Mercer went on to say that only in the last 120 years have we really formed a definite idea of Egyptian civilization. Only during the last century has the work of excavation been going on, resulting in the discovery of marvelous works of architecture and in the decipherment of ancient manuscripts.

In conclusion, Dr. Mercer put the question, "What place is Egypt going to take up in the future?" Situated as it is on the highway to India, Egypt forms an important link in the British Commonwealth of Nations—a link which binds the East and the West—a link on which depends, to a large degree, the peace of the world.

Dr. Mercer illustrated his lecture by a series of lantern slides.

PAPER ON EUGENICS READ AT TRINITY SCIENCE CLUB

Experiments of Mandell Discussed in Paper by L. M. Ives

The third regular meeting of the Trinity College Science Club was held on Tuesday evening in Trinity House. After the business of the Club, Mr. L. M. Ives, B.A., gave a very interesting paper on the science of Eugenics. The Austrian, Mandell, originated the science in 1865. He was experimenting in the mating of sweet-peas and discovered that there were certain laws governing their reproduction. In 1900 the science was applied to human beings. It was found that similar laws held, other influences considered.

A lively discussion followed the paper. Refreshments were served, and the meeting closed after a vote of thanks to the essayist, Mr. Ives, and the hosts, C. C. Evans and J. J. Bowden.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1927

That the situation with regard to student support at games at the University of Toronto has become alarming is readily appreciated when one realizes just what steps are being taken to ensure a better attendance by the student body at all contests of an athletic nature. For some years past it has been felt that the volume of support was steadily decreasing, but this year the situation came to a head when approximately only one hundred and fifty Freshmen availed themselves of Rooters' Club accommodation at the Stadium, while less than fifty took advantage of the special train to Kingston.

At the majority of the games here the support was of a most spirited nature. Colour schemes were found to be impossible in as much as the Freshman rooters, having paid their small admission, appeared to feel that they had done their share. Half-time stunts seemed to lack interest and were discarded, and in all, the undergraduate settled back to watch the game with a viewpoint quite similar to that of the average city fan.

But it is not alone in rugby that attendance and interest lags. Basketball cannot make any showing at all unless the game is "to be followed by music"—which may be interpreted as you will; while less than a hundred season hockey tickets went to the student body last season, the majority being purchased by the alumni and city subscribers.

The S.A.C. is of the opinion that the experiment, inaugurated two years ago, of restricting the sale of rooters' tickets to Freshmen has demonstrated itself a failure, just as the system previously in force was found inadequate; and it is highly improbable that season tickets will be available next season at student rates. That we have a new situation here to cope with—that of scattered faculties and large bodies of students living in all sections of the town, with, consequently, little fellowship—must be admitted; and it is for this reason that the S.A.C. saw fit to set aside a sufficient sum of money to send a representative down to a College game in the United States, where the situation with respect to numbers is similar to our own, in order that the methods employed there might be studied and duplicated or revised according to our requirements here. And at the same time a small committee was appointed to study local conditions and to make a report on them before the close of the spring term of 1928 in order that an adjustment might be made before next season. All of which was occasioned by the fact that the Rooters' Club found it almost impossible to carry on under the present arrangements this year.

And independently of the S.A.C., the Athletic Advisory Board, composed of all former members of the Athletic Directorate, were forced to action. To these students of days gone by it was most apparent that the spontaneous support to which they themselves had become accustomed was now lacking, and hence they appointed a committee to enquire into the causes and to seek a remedy.

And with the time such that two independent bodies, not knowing the action of the other, swing into similar lines of endeavour, it is indeed apparent that cries of non-support from University teams are indeed justified.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

It is unfortunate that the Students' Administrative Council found it necessary to withdraw from the Inter-University Debating Association, but such was the only apparent course left open in view of the poor support accorded Intercollegiate debates during the past two years. In coming to their decision the Council considered the fact that not more than forty students in all attended the two debates, that the subjects selected did not always appeal to the local undergraduate body, and that the open system of debate, rather than the Intercollegiate system, found greatest favour here. That debates between the University of Toronto and sister Canadian Universities might not be entirely dropped, the Council was of the opinion that, if sufficient interest was evident, debates between ourselves and one or two other Canadian University teams might be arranged throughout the year.

Athletic interest in Eastern Canada will focus on Hart House to-day, for it will be there that the fall meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Amateur Association will be held, and it will be during the meeting that those two great bones of contention, the "Two Sport Rule" and the "Four Year Rule," will come up for discussion.

Art, Music and Drama

M.C. Players' Guild

To-morrow at 4.30 the Players' Guild of University College will present in their theatre at the Women's Union, A. A. Mine's one-act comedy, "Wurzel-Flummery." In this comedy the playwright ironically shows that a respectable family will do anything to obtain a fortune—in this case a fortune which can only be obtained by the entire family adopting the weird name of Wurzel-Flummery. The production will be under the direction of Mr. Paul Gardner, and the cast includes Moffatt Woodside, Helen Allen and Isabel Brown.

Unrepentance

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

Although it may be an impossible deed to kill three literati with one letter, nothing is as worthy of attempt as the impossible. It is no small matter to confront "Fundamentalist," Mr. Noyes and Tennyson at one fell glance, but it must be done. It was no small gratification to me to find that at least one forthright pen was voided of ink and venom in the noble defence of immortals alive and dead, and my only regret is that the defence was so obviously puerile, petulant and awkward. In his letter "Fundamentalist" allowed personal animosity to replace logical argument, and undergraduate opprobrium to stand for mental self-discipline. However, one may at once pronounce the poet's erratic champion to be a sound judge of literature, yet he might have used the term "doggerel" rather than the unpoetic waterfront epithet "hunk of garbage" to classify the epic-fillers of a certain humorous (?) column. We concur heartily with him in his judgment of Mr. Noyes' "Drake," but it is indeed pitiable to read "Tennyson is far beyond us all, even your correspondent. It is our fault if we do not understand him"—how very depressing it is to think of "Fandy" (Continued on page 3)

Student Verse

Echoes

Eyes dark, faintly gleaming through a mist of falling years;
Silvery voice retreating on an ebbing tide of tears.

Starry distances before me as above the mist I soar;
Only silences pursue from brackish pools along the shore.

But were cold pale stars to beckon to warm worlds of Love's delight,
Golden voices shatter silence, crimson torch-flames lash the night;

I should reach some dazzling threshold trembling with a fierce desire,
Clasp a radiant form of Beauty, run to leap on Passion's pyre.

Blinded by the great red flashes, deafened by the surging roar,
I should yet halt scatheless—wheeling, falling prostrate at the door:

Silvery voice advancing softly on a flooding tide of tears;
Dark eyes, brightly gleaming through a swirling mist of years.

G.B.W.

That the Two Sport Rule was adopted without due consideration appears to have been generally admitted, and that, in view of later and more deliberate thought, it will be abolished to-day is the general expectation. The sport most directly hit is that of Intercollegiate hockey, Varsity, McGill and Queen's all having good students ineligible, under such a ruling, to participate in the winter pastime; and it is improbable that, with the interest of Intercollegiate athletics truly at heart, the representatives at to-day's meeting will uphold the spring resolution.

ARE YOU A COLLEGE MAN?

I approach this heavy subject full of awe and ill at ease,
For I realize and feel my humble station,
But I want to write and tell you here and now and if you please
That I've never had a College Education.

Now the reason I am writing you to tell you such a thing
Is because the point has caused me irritation,
For I'd like to mingle with the throng who dine and dance and sing,
Although I lack the College Education.

I never knew how much I'd missed until I'd reached the age
Where people try to find their life's vacation.
Then all at once the sudden shock just filled me full of rage—
To think I'd missed the College Education!

I've never been a "Freshman" nor a "Sophomore" at Yale,
Nor figured in the Great Initiation,
And just to think of what I've missed has often turned me pale;
By this I mean a College Education.

I pride myself in knowing that I've travelled quite a bit,
And sometimes turn to that for consolation,
But, hang it all, in spite of that I'll never be a hit,
Because I lack the College Education.

When youngsters wearing Oxford bags and overcoats of fur
Approach me with this one interrogation
It fills me full of sorrow and it makes me feel a cur
To say I lack a College Education.

I've never been the owner of a cosy coonskin coat,
(Nor won't as long as rhyme's my occupation),
When asked if I'm a "College Man" has often got my goat,
ALAS! I lack the College Education!

To them it means a lot of things—an outward sign of "class,"
And one that often saves the situation,—
So, right or wrong, I cannot help but feel a silly ass
Because I lack a College Education!

MULOCK CUP GAMES TO-DAY---DENTS-SR. MEDS; FORESTRY-KNOX

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The two senior teams and the Intermediates are out for the rest of the season, and the Varsity Juniors are once more the last hope of the University of Toronto for rugby honours. If they play up to the form they have shown so far this season, they should experience no difficulty in annexing the honours. Winning championships is getting to be quite a habit with the Junior rugby artists, and is one that might well be copied by their elder brothers.

With the Intercollegiate rugby season nearly over, the fans should have more time to devote to the Mulock Cup teams and the rest of the Inter-faculty games. The brand of football played in these games may not be the highest in the world, but there is one thing—every team is out there fighting in every game. And there is a lot of hard work and endeavour spent by the players and coaches alike which brings little reward in the way of glory.

The hockey season will soon be upon us, and it is none too soon to give the Varsity prospects the once-over. There will be ice in the Arena in a day or so now, and practices will soon be in order. The Grads will hold their first workout this week, and should be down to serious work by next week. Most of the players have been doing a little training on the side, so they are far from being out of condition.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union will be held in Toronto to-morrow. It is quite likely that the four-year rule and the one-sport rule will come up for reconsideration. Queen's are known to favour the continuance of the one-sport rule, but they are opposed to the four-year rule for quite obvious reasons. However, despatches from Montreal have been to the effect that the one-sport rule is to be done away with. This will meet with the approval of the hockey fans, who can see no future for the Intercollegiate hockey while it is in force.

It is impossible to predict accurately what action will be taken, but it is to be hoped that the powers that be look at the matter in a sane light and do not allow themselves to be swayed by the prejudices of their respective Universities. There is a great deal to be said both for and against the rules, and whatever happens some one is bound to be dissatisfied.

Speaking of rules, did anyone ever seriously consider a Freshman rule? If not, why not? It seems as if one solution for the whole problem would be to pass a Freshman rule and thus do away with these one-season stars.

Regulation Khaki Shirt Discarded by Boston O.T.C.

White collar jobs in the army? Certainly.

No more will the weary cadet of the R.O.T.C. at C.B.A. have to worry about his chafing, perspiring neck, for the regulation khaki army shirt which hitherto has been part of the R.O.T.C. uniform will no longer be worn. In place of the much discussed and hated shirt, the cadets will supply their own white cotton shirts. A stiff military collar, known as a stock, will be worn with the new type of shirt—Boston University News.

Hockey Aspirants Sign Immediately

All those intending to try out for places on any of the three Varsity hockey teams, Senior, Intermediate or Junior, will please sign the hockey forms at the Athletic Offices immediately. In view of the fact that Varsity will, in all probability, enter a team in the Junior S.P.A. series, it is particularly necessary that the Junior candidates respond at once.

JR. MEDS VICTORS IN LOOSE MATCH

Jr. U.C. Defeated by 20-0
Score in Poorly Played Football Game

FOUR TOUCHDOWNS

Junior Meds took the Junior U.C. team into camp to the tune of 20-0 on the back campus yesterday. The game was poor, since many of the players were unaware of the date. The best Meds can do now is to tie with Junior School.

FIRST QUARTER

Play was very even. Both lines were wide open. Nothing eventful happened and no score resulted.

SECOND QUARTER

The game appears to be a farce, and a truck could be driven through either line. Rosenberg for U.C. pulls a long run, but a Med half responds with a better one, which yields a touch. Meds pull off a smart play and become dangerous. Their quarter plunges for another touch. Score, three-quarters time, Jr. Meds 10, Jr. Arts 0.

FOURTH QUARTER

The game resembles a practice. Play is very loose, and the players are only half-hearted in their attempts to play. Jr. Meds obtain another touch. This is quickly followed by a fourth touch earned by a beautiful Med run. The ball is hard to see, and the game ends 20-0 for Jr. Meds.

Line-up:

Jr. Arts: Snap, Finningley; insides, Ward, Brown; middles, Stringer, Clark; outsides, Hamilton, McHugh; halves, Rosenberg, McMullen, Armstrong; quarter, Moran; subs, Bell, Leek, Yeigh, McGibbon.
Jr. Meds: Flying wing, Nott; outsides, Bull, Soboloff; middles, Baldwin, Long; insides, Scandiffy, Spence; snap, Bartlett; quarter, Robinson; halves, Sinclair, McLeod, Steele; subs, McMillan, Burnett.

TENNIS SYSTEM WOULD BE ALTERED

Davis Cup Elimination Method
Favoured for Intercollegiate Union

ZONE PLAY SUGGESTED

That the present system of declaring Intercollegiate tennis champions is a poor one and the suggestion that in future the tournament should be conducted on the lines of the Davis Cup elimination, was the aftermath of the Intercollegiate tennis championship tournament, concluded last week. Six colleges now compose the union: University of Toronto, McGill, Queen's, Royal Military College, Osgoode Hall and University of Montreal, and with the large number of entries to represent these schools, the present system of declaring champions is an unwieldy one, it is claimed. Each of these colleges enters a team of four men in the singles and two in the doubles, a draw is made as in an ordinary tournament and one point is awarded for each individual victory scored. Two additional points are awarded for wins in the singles and in the doubles. This arrangement is unfair, it is claimed, for a certain number of points are lost in first round byes, which are awarded purely on the luck of the draw.

Then again, no regular system of placing the men in the draw is in force, so that two men of the same team can be drawn against each other in the first round. This has been avoided in the past by careful arrangement by the tournament manager, but it is felt that this leaves too much power in the hands of that official.

The present system would work well if there were four or eight teams in the union. At present it is composed of six, and three other colleges, McMaster University, Western and Ontario Agricultural College, have already applied for membership. If two of the applications were accepted the difficulty would be solved, but the decision would be unfair to the third college.

It has been suggested, then, to run the tournament on the style of the Davis Cup eliminations and institute zone play to declare the champion. Under this arrangement, U. of T. and McGill could form the eastern zone, Queen's and R.M.C. the middle, and Varsity and O.A.C. the western, with the winners in each to play off for the title. The plan used in the United States college tournaments, whereby the championship goes to the team whose representative wins the singles title, is unfeasible, because it does little to foster team spirit. The direct system of each team playing the other is also unfeasible because the season is too short.

It is likely that before next fall, when the next college tennis tournament will be held, the situation will be improved upon, or at any rate steps taken for the provision of other teams entering in the future.—Montreal Gazette.

The Junior Common Room of University College was the scene last evening of the first meeting of the Literary Society during the College year. With the exception of the main address, and possibly the remarks of one or two members from the floor, the meeting passed off very quietly and inconspicuously. The house was comfortably filled by a gathering well up to the usual quota. Mr. McLaughlin, the new honorary president, occupied the chair and seemed just as much at home as when during his College days he took a prominent part in many of the society's undertakings.

Old age is not a friend I wish to meet; And if some day to see me he should come, I'd lock the door as he walk'd up the street, And cry, "Most honoured sir, I'm not at home."

CORRESPONDENCE

reading the majestic "Idylls of the Prince Consort," and beating his temples and crying aloud: "What does the Master mean?" We offer the deepest personal condolences.

Another point of interest arises: Mr. Noyes referred to Tennyson as "the greatest manipulator of words since Virgil"—and the word "manipulator" is not altogether complimentary, as it suggests myriad erasures rather than the lightning-strokes of poetic genius. Mr. Noyes' term reveals to us the Heir of all the ages laboriously polishing his productions to a final gloss more brilliant even than the many-faceted splendor of our correspondent's intellect. All in all a very inspiring picture and one worthy of a better defence.

Last the too-familiar initials may offend an envious aesthete, I shall not use them, nor crouch behind the comparative safety of pseudonym, alias, or nom de plume, and, after thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the use of space, sign myself

Pedagogy

Editor, "The Varsity."

Under the heading "More about Teachers," Mr. W. V. R. (somewhat chastened) returns to the question of making instruction more palatable. We note gratefully that he no longer holds it against a professor because his natural endowments are not up to standard, and he has shifted his ground sufficiently to relinquish his desire to return to the Mediaeval Tutorial system. However, his adroit statement of his new position calls for examination. Here is his new confession: "What I am stressing is that anything worth doing at all is worth doing well. The great majority of the professors who, in effect, are wasting the students' time, are not physically handicapped nor wilfully uninteresting, but have simply failed to develop powers of better expression which are latent in them."

First he professes to believe that their failure is not wilful, but in the next breath he attributes it to frustration of latent talent! Now, W.V.R., you really cannot expect to wriggle out of your dilemma thus easily. If a man fails to develop his talents, there must be a reason for it—either he can't or he won't. Yet in both of these alternatives W.V.R. has agreed (under persuasion) to exempt his professors from blame.

If my previous letter had really been as successful in conveying my thought as W.V.R. has been kind enough to say, he could not possibly have written again a sentence declaring the belief that powers of expression are latent in everyone. If experience has never taught you that the communication of ideas is the finest of the fine arts, no one will ever persuade you. What hope have I of success where so many professors have failed?

As an instance of how careful you have to be with words, let W.V.R. examine his glib Y.M.C.A. motto: "Anything worth doing at all is worth doing well." I hope he doesn't believe that. Life is too complex to admit the uncompromising application of such idealism. Scarcely anything we do is done well. Take the simplest and most important act we perform—breathing. Would you suggest that the ninety per cent. of mankind whose lower lungs are withering from disuse (because we don't breathe well) would be advised to give it up? If so, there is no limit to the "impregnable arguments in favour of birth control." Imagine how unemployment would pyramid if we extended this drastic test to other less harassed professions! How many preachers, civil servants, or baseball umpires would still draw pay envelopes? W.V.R.'s solution bears a whimsical resemblance to the Queen in "Alice in Wonderland" who was forever shouting "Off with their heads!" With W.V.R.'s standard staring him in the face, who would dare enter the teaching profession? Who would be arrogant enough to set himself up as an equal of the well-known Adam Smith?

EXPLAIN ALLOTMENT MASQUERADE TICKETS

Eight Hundred and Sixty-six
Tickets for Graduates and Undergraduates

SOME ARE COMPLIMENTARY

Although there are eight hundred and sixty-six tickets issued to the graduates and undergraduates of the University to the Masquerade, which makes a total of seventeen hundred and thirty-two people, two thousand are expected to attend. The two hundred and sixty-eight tickets which are not thrown upon the market are designated for various purposes.

To begin with, all members of Hart House committees are given one or more complimentary tickets, depending on the position and responsibility of the recipient. For instance, every member of the house committee gets two masquerade tickets, while the lesser lights have to be contented with a miserly one. But such are the rewards of service to one's fellow students in and around Hart House.

As to the proceeds, if such exist, after all expenses are met, these are invariably taken care of by the House committee and devoted to the purchase of a picture for Hart House. Pictures, the proceeds of former masquerades, may be seen in the various common rooms of the House bearing the label, "Donated by the House Committee."

If every Varsity compositor who ever put "a-pect" instead of "respect" felt the urge towards graceful resignation, then truly "there would be no Varsity—no nuthin'!" Fortunately every teacher does not resign the moment he has misgivings that he is not born to the birch. As a result some of us learn a few useful things and in time learn to thank our preceptor, though we grieve to think how much less diverting he is than Adam Smith, or the new student essayists.

Yours truly,

N. R. Speirs.

PHYSICAL TRAINING TIME-TABLE

Compulsory for Men Students in the First and Second Years

Classes in Physical Training for men students in the First and Second Years commence next Monday, October 17th, and students are required to attend at the hours indicated below as provided in the time tables of the respective Faculties and Colleges.

Students are reminded that they must attend 80% of these classes in order to get standing, and also that each student is personally responsible for the recording of his attendance.

Members of University teams and of all Interfaculty teams will be given credit for Physical Training, provided that the managers of the respective teams file a record of their attendance in the Athletic Office, Hart House, each week. This holds good only during the playing season of that particular sport, and no attendance can be recorded other than on the certificates of the team managers.

The number of men that can "make a team" will be found on Pages 28 and 29 in the Athletic Hand Book, now on distribution at the Athletic Office.

a sufficiently developed interest in foreign affairs to be able to understand the significance of current international events—and this the Foreign Affairs Club will try to give.

It is intended to hold six meetings at least during the year. At each meeting two papers, one on each side of the subject to be discussed, will be presented, and, if possible, some authority on the subject will be present to guide the discussion. The first meeting of the Club for the year will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the Music Room. Prof. N. A. Mackenzie, the moving spirit in the organization of the Club, will give a survey of recent international events. Discussion will follow. Plans for the year will also be drawn up, and officers will be elected.

these four. The examiners also have the power to withhold the award in any year, if no poem which has been submitted for that year is found worthy of the prize.

Professor Edgar, of the Department of English at Victoria College, was interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding the type of work most eligible for the prize. He stated that the fact that a poem submitted was a sonnet or some other short piece did not mean that its chances in the competition were entirely eliminated. However, a poem of only fourteen lines or so in length would have to be of outstanding merit to be able to compete successfully with one which, by virtue of greater length, possessed greater content and the possibility of more material of value. The number of poems submitted in any year are generally about eight to ten in number, and the majority of them range from 150 to 250 lines in length.

Old Sol Vies With Jupiter Pluvius
In Establishing Mathematical Honours

Mathematicians have found the perfect alibi. The only difficulty lies in establishing the supposition as a fact. If the matter is finally accomplished, woe unto the poor instructor in algebra.

Results of experiments conducted in Chicago indicate that arithmetic is difficult when the skies are overcast, but easy when the sun is shining. It has been further estimated that approximately one-half of the days in the year are cloudy. Herein lies the alibi. Arithmetically speaking, nearly every other day should be gloomy; mathematics classes are held on alternate days; therefore, if one flunks, it is the sun's fault.

A warning should be issued, however, against trying this line of reasoning in a literature or history course. The report of the experiment shows that these two types of work are much easier when the sun is behind a cloud and harder when the day is clear.

Fortunate, indeed, would be the student taking algebra alternating with literature, if he could depend on the sun. He would have an invincible alibi every day. If by mistake the sun should happen to shine on the wrong day, complications would result. The luckless student would have to prepare his assignments for every meeting of class.

Arrange the courses in the right way and no preparation should be necessary—providing, of course, that the sun could be depended upon, which it cannot. Blame your flunks on the sun, but just try to make the instructors see it your way!

PARLIAMENT LEADER
ANNOUNCES CABINET

Students' Parliament at St. Michael's Strengthened By Coalition

TO DEBATE CONFERENCE

F. J. MacNamara, Liberal Leader and Premier of St. Michael's Students' Parliament, announces the personnel of his Cabinet:

Secretary of State: F. J. MacNamara.
Minister of Justice: V. J. Bourke.
Minister of External Affairs: J. F. McGarry.
Minister of the Interior: E. J. Hartmann.
Minister of Trade and Commerce: J. F. Mallon.
Minister of Education: H. J. O'Connor.
Minister of Marine and Fisheries: J. T. Harris.

Minister of Railways and Canals: M. King.
Minister of Labour: H. Bradley.
Minister of Immigration: E. Garvey.
Minister of Finance: H. Mogan.
Solicitor General: R. Scollard.

As will be noticed, V. J. Bourke, Leader of the Conservatives, has accepted a Cabinet position together with several of the more prominent members of his party. It would seem that the parties have effected a coalition, and with such a strong Cabinet Mr. MacNamara should be enabled to carry on indefinitely. The first meeting of Parliament will be patterned after the Hart House debates, two speakers defending a motion and two attacking it, followed by speeches from the floor of the House. Two prominent speakers are expected for the opening night to team with two of the regular members.

The motion before the House will be: "That this House is of the opinion that the recent Imperial Conference defined the status of this Dominion on a basis of equality with that of England." The Hon. Nelson Parliament, former Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, has consented to appear with his chair and robes of office and to act as Speaker on the opening night.

ADVICE TO FRESHETTES
How to Make a Hit with a "School" Man

Schoolmen have one great weakness—their slide rules. If there was ever a remark more designed to grab off a Schoolman than to say "How's your rule to-day?"—it is yet to be discovered. If you can catch him on the campus with it in his pocket you're in luck. All you have to do is ask to see it—you won't be refused—then undo the little leather catch at the top, take it out and run the slide thing back and forth a few times. Get a mystified look on your face—you don't have to be a good actress either, it's amazing how glibly a Schoolman is then pass a few of the following remarks. Your stock will go up 400%. "Oh! how can you ever make head or tail of it, it seems so complicated?"—he won't disillusion you—or, "What are all those funny little signs and figures for?"—or, "They must be awfully hard to understand because none of the other faculties ever use them." A puzzled sigh goes in well at this stage. A few of these remarks will have him hogtied in no time. His chest will expand; he will grow voluble in explanation and that what-a-great-boy-an-I manner will ooze from every pore. He will wonder where you've been all his life and what a great world this is anyway.

If you can get him talking about the logarithmic scale on it you can have your pick of going to the Hart House Masquerade, the Athletic At-Home or the School At-Home.

Another point that is worth working up is the fact that Schoolmen like to feel they are pretty rough customers in spite of the fact that five of them disgraced the rough standards of their faculty by appearing at the faculty tea last week. Can you imagine five Schoolmen dandling tea on their knees and nibbling at little sugared cookies. Many an old-time Schoolman will turn over in his grave when he hears this.

However, you've got the formula. Go get 'em freshies.

SCHOOL OF SCIENCE HOLD SOPH-FROSH ANNUAL BANQUET

Over 300 Present, Including Dean Mitchell and Officers of Engineering Society

TOASTS FORM PROGRAMME

Banquet Demonstrates a Good Feeling Between the
Two Years

Amid the murmur of many many voices, the School of Science held one of the most successful of their annual Soph-Frosh banquets at the Hotel Carls-Rite. For a number of years this hotel and the function have been almost synonymous.

Over 300 dinners were served. Dean Mitchell and most of the Engineering Society executives were present. T. W. Wilson, President of first year, presided. During dinner a three-piece orchestra contested with the vocal efforts of the School men.

In reply to the toast to the Faculty, Dean Mitchell asked for co-operation between the two years, and read an old English essay on Discovery and Exploration, dealing with its dangers and pleasures. He drew similes from it apropos to the duties and rights of the four different years. In closing he remarked how much easier learning had been made for us to-day, as compared with conditions in the past.

The toast to the Sophomore Year was proposed by Traynor of first year, and responded to by Jerry McVean, President of second year.

Adams proposed the toast to the Freshman Year.

The toast to Faculty was proposed by Bill Duncan, President of the Engineering Society, who later spoke on important forthcoming school functions.

NOON CHAPEL CONDUCTED BY PROVOST COSGRAVE

Forces of Nature Conquered
By Understanding of Universal Laws

The third of a series of services was held in Hart House Chapel yesterday at noon, under the conduction of Provost Cosgrave of Trinity College.

In a short sermon which occupied most of the twenty-minute service, Provost Cosgrave referred to the universally accepted fact that Christ was the greatest Master of the moral and spiritual life of men. That while He Himself had given much time to prayer or meditation, outside of the model prayer which He taught to His disciples, He admonished them little in that respect. Although the disciples were not urged, they, of their own accord, followed the example of their Master in the pursuit of the highest endeavour of which prayer and meditation is a form. In emphasizing the fact that nothing can be achieved by approaching a subject in a prejudiced manner, the speaker drew a scientific parallel. He remarked that the forces of nature were being conquered not by seeking to make them transgress universal laws, but by understanding them, and that all scientific questions should be approached with an open mind in order to progress.

Persistence, too, is an important factor in science as well as in prayer, for without it we gain nothing. As the best things of life are only given to those who work, so too in religion, and by prayer do we qualify.

Premier of Saskatchewan, who will deliver his only Toronto address on his way West at the Liberal Club luncheon on Friday.

HON. JAS. G. GARDINER AT LIBERAL CLUB

Premier of Saskatchewan Will Address an Open Luncheon Meeting

TICKETS AT HART HOUSE

The Hon. Jas. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan, will deliver his only Toronto address at an open luncheon meeting of the University of Toronto Liberal Club at 1 p.m. Friday, November 11th, in the Graduates' Dining Room, Hart House.

Premier Gardiner, former Provincial Secretary in the Hon. Charles Dunning's Cabinet, has been Premier of the Prairie Province since 1926. Coming originally from Huron County, Mr. Gardiner is, like his predecessor, a self-educated man, and is considered to be the most widely-read Provincial Premier, with the possible exception of Premier Taché. No political mountebank, he handles his subjects with a sincerity and an eloquence that won him the greatest ovation in the history of the Empire Club when he addressed it on his way to the Provincial Premiers' Conference.

Attendance is not limited to the members of the Club, but capacity is available for sixty men only.

Tickets at fifty cents may be secured by any interested University man at a short meeting of the Liberal Club at 1.30 p.m. to-day (Thursday) in the Lecture Room, Hart House.

HART HOUSE GUEST ROOM FRENCH-CANADIAN STYLE

First Guest to Occupy Room Will Be Hon. Mercier of Quebec

A unique addition has recently been made to the guest rooms of Hart House in the form of a French-Canadian room. All the furnishings of this bright little bedroom are the work of French-Canadians, most of whom live at Baie St. Paul, Que.

The bedstead, chest of drawers (made to the design of Arthur Lismer), Canadian artist's table and small mirror, Canadian artist's The bed-chairs were made especially for this room by M. Napoleon Leblond, as were also the curtains by Madame Simon and her daughters. The bedspread, a particularly fine piece of work, was made by Madame Gosselin. The strips of carpet (or catalogue) and rug are the work of French-Canadian habilitants.

The bedstead is of regular French-Canadian pattern, with the exception of the addition of modern springs to it.

REALITY IN ART IS SUBJECT OF SPEECH TO WOMEN

Arthur Lismer Appeals to Artistic Sense in Speech at Union

SAYS ARTIST IS REBEL

Realism Does Not Concern
the Outward Expression of Things

"Reality in Art" was the subject of Arthur Lismer's address in the Auditorium of the Women's Union at 1.30 Wednesday. This was the first of a series of lectures to be given on Reality from different points of view.

Mr. Lismer appealed to the sense of the artistic in everyone, that part of man which responds to sights and sounds of beauty. Beauty in this sense of reality does not refer to merely outward appearances.

The artist is a "rebel" in the sense that he never accepts life as it is. When an artist paints a picture or models a statue he may demonstrate perfect technique, and show a resemblance to life, but this technical correctness may not be art. The observer may be trying to escape from the noise in the streets and find it in the picture! Such pictures interest only the superficial, who regard art as they regard life.

"Again," Mr. Lismer said, "an artist may paint in crude garish colour that would cause the observer to cringe, but still the picture would be an expression of reality. It may even be the artist's disgust and dismay at life as it appears to him. But we should not easily accept other's ideas."

"Religion," Mr. Lismer went on to say, "is taken up often by us because we feel it to be a service, while Art is taken up as a challenge. Artists, in their way, usually have their religion."

"In mediaeval times we have Art as a development of religion. Then came the Renaissance with men like Dante and the building of fine cathedrals. In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries there are Milton and Rembrandt. The Puritan idea followed when anything to do with Art such as colour paint, brightly coloured dresses or anything created out of joy, was condemned. Art was by then considered a doubtful pleasure when most amusements were condemned. But the universe was created out of joy. As Tagore, the Indian poet, said, 'Art is the response of man's creative soul to the call of the unreal.'"

"In Art the ultimate idea is that God created the world. The fact that nature exists is a stimulus to the artist, just as the fact that life exists is a stimulus to religious devotees."

UNIVERSITY LOSES GREAT SCHOLAR IN MAURICE HUTTON, M.A., LL.D.

Principal Hutton

Principal of University College,
Will Leave Active Work
At Christmas

CLASSICAL AUTHORITY

Keen Student of Human Nature
And Widely Known
As Lecturer

After Christmas Maurice Hutton, M.A., Principal of University College, will sever active connections with the College and the University which have known his presence for nearly half a century. During his career in University College Principal Hutton has witnessed the major developments in University History, and has seen a single college develop by its affiliations into the largest university in the British Empire. Principal Hutton has come to be regarded as almost an institution in himself, one of the best and most respected, and his retirement will leave a great gap in University life, especially to those who have graduated from University College in Classics since 1880.

Professor Hutton is one of the most widely-known scholars in Canada, and an international authority on Greek Life and Culture. He is also a keen student of human nature, and his good-natured observations of modern youth have attained great popularity. He is noted for his ironic comments on things in general which have been likened to the celebrated "eironeia" of Socrates.

Dr. Hutton is the author of many books and articles on the Classics. Among these are his translation of Tacitus' Agriicola in the eminent Loeb Series, and his treatise "The Greek Point of View" which was published several years ago. He has also issued recently "Many Minds," a book of reminiscences. His lively view of the Classics may be judged by this extract from "The Greek Point of View": "Aristotle, were he alive to-day, would find his place as a research Fellow in some graduate university. Plato might be a hard-working clergyman of the Church of England and a religious rationalist of the type of Dean Inge."

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE BUSY PREPARING FOR SALE

Many Attractions Planned for Annual Event Which Occurs To-day

St. Hilda's walls re-echo the din and bustle of the last minute preparations for the annual sale to be held at the College from 4 to 7 to-day.

Miss Florence Allan is the capable convener of the sale, and she reports that all the tables will be well supplied with interesting articles. Judging from the variety of "odds and ends" accumulated by Miss Isabel Cammell, head of the fish pond, it will be well worth ten cents to investigate the mysterious depths. The candy table attracts everyone, and if the whiffs of chocolate fudge which assail us from the kitchen mean anything, we advise eager purchase of it.

The tea-room, in charge of Miss Dorothy Cox, will be a pleasant rendezvous for friends and graduates of the College. Miss Gwen Carter is head of the pennant table, and since every St. Hildaian appears to be industriously sewing on black and scarlet felt or clipping edges on blue and grey cushions, there will be pennants and cushions galore. The Trinity men are expected to rally round as they have always done, and help to make the sale a success.

LIFE IS ETERNAL PROBLEM

Canadian Universities from Coast to Coast Interested in S.C.M.

"The Student Christian Movement is an aid for College men and women to help them in their endeavour to put together the jig-saw puzzle of life," said Mr. Harold Swan in speaking at the Victoria S.C.M. Banquet held last evening in Burwash Hall. Mr. Swan presented the viewpoint of the recent graduate, and gave some of the vital reasons for the commencement of S.C.M. The first he mentioned was that students had found the need for a Canadian organization, that would be directed by students. The war left behind it a gap in the ranks of the student body which those who were left felt it their obligation to attempt to fill. There was an idealism present which found outlet in the meeting together of students to discuss Jesus and life.

Mr. F. J. Moore, director of the local S.C.M., told of the activities, more especially of the men's, which had been planned for this year. He said that it brought students together to discuss "the eternal problems" of life and gave them friendship, religion, faith and brotherhood along with an indescribable something which they found they needed in their lives to-day. There is no other student movement, as far as he knew, with such profound international relationships.

FOREIGN RELATIONS CLUB FIX PLANS FOR YEAR

Professor McKenzie Discusses Important International Events of Year

Last night the Foreign Relations Club held its first meeting for the year. To quote its newly adopted constitution, the purpose of the Club is "the consideration, by study and discussion of matters of general international interest, especially those directly affecting the foreign policy of Canada and the British Commonwealth of Nations." In adopting the constitution it was decided that meetings should be held once a month, the next to take place on Wednesday, December 7, at which time Mr. A. H. G. Grosland and Mr. A. W. Lind say will lead in a discussion of the Chinese situation. In addition to these regular meetings the Club may be convened upon the occasion of the visit of any celebrity or authority on foreign affairs.

Mr. M. W. McCutcheon of Osgoode Hall was elected President, with H. F. W. Plumptre, L. M. Gebber and F. J. L. Evans as Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer respectively.

After all the business had been transacted, Professor N. A. McKenzie, the Honorary President, led a discussion of the major events of international importance which had transpired since the last meeting. With a brief reference to the British difficulty at Shanghai, United States' intervention in Nicaragua, the abortive revolution in Mexico and the redefinition of status in Panama, he turned to a consideration of European problems.

Vic. Gym. Cause of Comic Complication When Co-eds Bat The Ball About a Bit

The Vic. Men's Gym is as it is—a co-ed is supposed to experience a thrill of gratitude for the use of it for baseball or basketball practice as she mounts the somewhat uncertain and very steep fire escape—with one eye on the rugby players who are tearing around on the field below. The low rafters and confining brick walls are particularly undesirable in baseball. On Tuesday at the Vic girls' practice a rather comic situation arose when the ball lodged on one of the rafters and refused to budge. The coach thought that the best way to solve the difficulty was to leave bats at the ball, which could just be seen on the ledge. But the bats fell clattering to the ground and the ball remained immovable. Other articles were fired at the elusive ball with no more success than the bats, and a ladder several feet too short, and with a shaking join in the middle, was also produced. However, finally an unknown man's running shoe did the trick—but at the minute when it sent the ball to the waiting girls below, it unfortunately lodged on the rafter itself.

In the last innings of the Vic-U.C. game on Wednesday, when U.C. was creeping up on the Vic lead, second base made a high hit—the ball disappeared above the rafter, waved a moment, and as it fell, the first base made a sensational catch. But what else can you expect—the Vic girls are on to the peculiarities of the Vic Men's Gym.

COLLEGE JOURNALISM MUST SHOW TEMPERANCE

That friendly inter-University relationships may be severely harmed, and, perhaps, suddenly offset by rabid, biased or misinformed College journalism, is a fact that has for years been recognized by many members of the University Press at Varsity, Queen's and McGill. And fortunately, as a consequence, their influence has been such that little of an antagonistic nature has appeared in their columns,—rather have these journals adopted an attitude of good fellowship, or, if you like, tolerance.

But, from time to time, a sudden wave of impetuous indignation has forced its way to the surface. But, in lean years, when facing a paucity of championships, jealousy has reared its head, and a College press, wishing to appear distinctly "in the know," has broadcasted misleading statements and false accusations. While The Varsity may, at times, have offended in this respect, it has been more the policy of this paper to mirror student opinion here and in our sister Universities rather than to nurse ill-feeling; and in many cases facts have been under-stated rather than over-stated, or else entirely ignored. But our fellow journalists at Queen's and McGill have not always been quite so moderate in this respect, and several times this year have they transgressed the bounds of good judgment and good will in a deplorable fashion.

Whatever the hue and cry may be, we do know that the Canadian Universities themselves conduct their sports in an honest manner, and neither they nor their undergraduate bodies should be the subject of attack because of some graduate interest. Nor should one or more of the Universities be made the subject of attack because they wish to foster a move that will work to the benefit of the Intercollegiate Union as a whole.

The Queen's Journal recently attacked both Varsity and McGill because the two latter were said to favour the abolition of certain athletic rules, although urging upon the Union the retention of a ruling that would work to the benefit of Queen's. It was a case of one shoe fitting and the other pinching, because the Journal was honest enough to confess that Queen's had but few men affected under the clause protested by Varsity and McGill. All of which might be condoned on the score of fanaticism. But not so the attack on the representatives at the C.I.A.U. meeting. The Journal, to the contrary, the day has long since gone when the representatives of the Universities "continually jockey to their mutual benefit." Rather the day has come when these representatives look to the weal of the Union as a whole without prejudice or thought of their own self-interests.

It is hardly to be thought that the Journal represented the attitude of the thinking heart of Queen's, but rather the impetuous urge of youth toward the bombastic and sensational. Nor is it probable that they expected their cry to be heard, but rather that they would now wish it to fade away in a whisper, for it betokens a mind far too narrow, too provincial, to be associated with the editorial mind of the newspaper of a splendid seat of learning.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

A map of Central Canada showing transportation and commercial development has just been placed in our hands by the Department of Political Science of the University with the explanation that it was originally made privately and as a labour of love for students in Commerce and Finance, but that, since then, a world-wide demand has made its printing necessary. The map may be had without charge from the Department of Political Science, Baldwin House, because of the reason that, complete in detail as it is, it should be found useful to the staff and students in the School of Science, the Faculty of Forestry and elsewhere.

ADVICE TO THE LOVE-LORN

She sat at home upon a bench
Just before the piano O,
Her mind was full of many thoughts
That made her heart a flutter go.

Last evening's mail, oh! ho! how happy!
Had brought a thumping letter O;
Upon it still she was so dappy,
She scarce could think it happy.

For in that letter there came a message,
Just so lovely, dearie O,
I scarce dare tell the passage
Lest some wee birdie tattle.

"So down among the cushions soft,
That night I sank to think O;
For all the world I took my pen,
And wrote to my wee boy O.

"Now in our house last Sunday night,
My pa tried hard to sleep O;
But another and I, we made so gay,
Poor pa stayed fast awake O.

"So my dear boy if you will come
To me, next Sunday night O,
Into the kitchen we must go,
And make our prattle light O."

So upon that clear and cloudless night
He walked along beside her O;
They came into that quieted house
And talked into the midnight O.

Then well-a-day that joys must cease,
And back to work in daylight go;
But rumour on the feet of wings
Ran just before that boy O.

Oh! well, we talk of wars
And battles long and bloody O;
But just observe this boy
As to another he approaches O.

Fast friends they used to be;
But now, oh! boy oh!
'Tis sad as sad can be
To see them so shy O.

Now boys and girls what'er you do,
Don't love the one girl O;
For strife is sure to come
If you just try it out O.

MORAL:
One fish at a time is good fishing for one;
One fish at a time is poor fishing for two;
Yet two fish at a time will never do too.

C.-C.
S.S. PINEAPPLE
(Canto IV—With apologies to "Fundamentalist")

Another "hunk of garbage" comes
Wrote to the sound of muffled drums;
We fear our epic has been missed
By jolly "Fundamentalist."
If we remember rightly, friends,
Canto III abruptly ends
Just as poor old Captain Snoot
Was standing on the plank-edge, mute
With pale dismay to see the sharks
Clothed in their scaly cutty-sarks
Swimming about from left to right
And sharpening up their appetite.
He fell into the briny ocean
And all the sharks with rapid motion
Swam up to him in such congestion
That they developed indigestion.
A playful fish then bit his ear,
Whereat he shed a bitter tear,
And on the deck the pirates play
To see the Captain an entrée—
I wonder if he'll be alive
When we get to Canto Five?

BERATES "FUNDAMENTALIST"

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

How anyone who is capable of no better writing in prose than this clumsy ambiguous letter of "Fundamentalist" has the courage to express opinions in regard to poets and poetry is beyond my understanding. I hold no brief for either Noyes or Tennyson. They belong to other times, other wheres, and no doubt have served their end. But the apparent lack of information and discrimination on the part of this fundamentalist in regard to our own bright particularly contemporary poet a-Noyes me! Of the good work of N.A.B.—well and proudly known by most of us to be Nathaniel A. Benson—surely that correspondent has read more than "S.S. Walrus" and "S.S. Pineapple," which, delightful as they are, could not be called serious or representative products of the pen of "this man—nay, rather boy." I doubt if it is a matter of very grave importance to him or anyone else whether or not Mr. Noyes alters his opinions. The point is: May the humble Canadian express his opinions in this country with the same freedom as Mr. Noyes or any other visitor and be accorded the same yawping respect. I think not!

C. I. A. U. DECLARES TWO-SPORT RULE UNCONSTITUTIONAL

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The Varsity Juniors have apparently taken their fourth consecutive Intercollegiate championship. R.M.C. were snowed under in the Limestone City on Saturday, and so the locals should have little trouble in repeating the performance in the return match.

The Orphans have one more game to play before finishing the season, the Hamilton Tigers entertaining them in the Ambitious City this coming Saturday. The championship has been decided, but since each team has lost three games, this one will decide who has the second rung.

Real football weather is in vogue now, and henceforth it will be more common to see friction burns, as the frozen turf will produce more minor injuries. This is something pleasant for the Mulock Cup stalwarts to look forward to.

Despite recent warnings from this column, the Interfaculty games still start as late as ever. Oh well, it won't be long now.

Some of the students in athletics have no rest. Rugby season is over now, and some of the players without a chance to break training are right back in the harness under the basketball coach.

Last night was the first time the ice in the Varsity Arena has been used this season, and it won't be long now until the several teams of the University will be doing their stuff.

The fencing classes under Mr. Moore this year are proving rather popular among the students. This sport has staged a great rally here in the past few years, and its popularity is increasing all the time. If it keeps up, it will be necessary to include more than the foil competition among the Intercollegiate sports. The duelling sword and sabre are being given more attention now, and the embryo gallants are making real progress. The ring of steel on steel issues from the fencing room nearly every afternoon these days.

The boxers are swapping punches now too, and Don Barton has a healthy bunch of them trading whiffs in the beginners' class, while Dr. Les Black gives the advanced boxers individual attention in the boxing room.

The withdrawing of the two-sport rule will relieve those who have the interests of Intercollegiate hockey at heart of a great deal of worry. With the stars of the hockey field all turning over for rugby, it was thought that hockey would be almost dead as far as the Intercollegiate was concerned, but now that the rule is officially abandoned there is no reason why the Intercollegiate should not enjoy one of the most prosperous seasons in years.

With many of the stars of the O.H.A. making the jump to the professional ranks, the College series should attract more support than in previous years. Queen's, McGill, U. of M., and Varsity form a strong group, and competition should be keen for the honours.

Indications of Result of Mulock Cup Series

This is the present standing of the teams which are competing for the Mulock Cup, emblematic of the Interfaculty championship. Dents appear to have Group I cinched, while in Group II Jr. Meds can tie it up by defeating S.P.S. Friday night. Victoria are well away in Group III, as are Forestry in Group IV. Pharmacy are two games down to St. Mike's, and will scarcely overcome this lead.

BASKETBALL TEAMS SHOW GOOD FORM THIS YEAR

Men May Still Try Out For Positions on Senior and Intercollegiate Teams

Last night's practice revealed to "The Varsity" that the Senior and Intermediate teams are in for a strong season. Roy Currie, captain of the Senior squad, in an interview with "The Varsity," seems to be pretty confident of his men. He stated there are several players in different faculties and colleges of ability who have not yet put in an appearance. These men are requested to turn out at once, as training is going ahead at a rapid rate.

There have been about forty men fighting for places on Senior and Intermediate teams. However, the number has been cut to a workable size.

The following will continue to report at the big gym for Senior and Intermediate basketball:

Ballache, Barr, Beath, Buchanan, Buebe, Burns, Cassidy, Currie, Daly, Dunn, Foex, Faber, Hallinan, Hurwitz, Johnston, Kenny, Lewis, Mitchell, Matten, McMahon, Newman, Putnam, Riley, Scott, Sakler, Sharpe, Traynor.

All men under twenty years of age who have been dropped from the squad will report on the upper gym for Junior.

U.C. Women Make Plans for Hockey Season

Now that the cold season has set in, the U.C. women are beginning to think of hockey. The Arena has recently been flooded, and before long the girls will be out on the ice again.

The U.C. hockey team last year won the Interfaculty series without losing a game. Their team was strong and fast, and they showed splendid team play.

A number of the star players have graduated and left vacancies. Phyl Griffiths, an outstanding player, has left, and her presence will be greatly missed.

The loss of Ev. Wilmott, brilliant wing player, leaves another gap to be filled.

Bet Barr, who made the team in her freshman year, is studying occupational therapy, and is barred from playing this year.

It is hoped that those who play hockey will turn out and do their best to make the team.

Grace Martin of first year and Betty Rous and Wilma Speers of third will be out this year. All these girls ably filled positions last season and will lend their support this year. A notice will be posted at a later date in the Women's Cloak Room, and all hockey enthusiasts are urged to sign up.

BAN TWO-SPORT RULE VARSITY JUNIORS TO SAVE HOCKEY AT C.I.A.U. MEETING

Declare Insufficient Notice Given When Motion Introduced

FOUR-YEAR RULE UPHELD

Western University Fails to Enter Intercollegiate Rugby Series

The two-sport rule, which has provoked much comment and discussion lately in Intercollegiate circles, went by the boards at yesterday's meeting of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. The rule passed at the semi-annual meeting last spring was one preventing a student from engaging in two major sports in one term. The main argument used against the rule in the newspaper discussions was that it would destroy Intercollegiate hockey. The C.I.A.U. declared that the rule was unconstitutional on the grounds that sufficient notice of motion had not been given when it was introduced.

The other bone of contention at the meeting was the four-year rule, which prevents a player from engaging in one sport for more than four years. This rule was upheld by the meeting and stands as originally passed.

The meeting opened yesterday morning at ten o'clock, but the delegates were kept busy with routine business till afternoon, when the real points of interest were brought up, and they did not finally adjourn till after 6 o'clock. Professor M. A. McKenzie of U. of T., President of the Union, was chairman of the meeting, and Professor J. C. Simpson of McGill was secretary. The University of Toronto, McGill, Queen's, Western, R.M.C., Loyola, U. of M., McMaster, St. Michael's, and Bishop's College were represented at the meeting.

It was expected that an application for admission to the Senior rugby series would be made by Western, but it was not received, and the Intercollegiate will operate as a three-team group for another year at least.

The much talked of Freshman rule which operates in most of the American colleges was discussed, but no action was taken on it. It was felt that in view of the small attendance at some of the universities the Freshman rule would not be suitable.

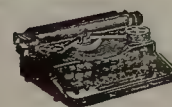

School Outclasses U.C. By Lone Tally

In the last scheduled soccer game of the group, S.P.S., showing more aggressiveness throughout the entire game, shut out U.C. by 1-0. The lone tally came in the first half when Downing of S.P.S. beat the U.C. goalie with a nice shot.

take the place of the straw which is usually spread over the slats of the bed. The whole effect of the room is at once cosy and unmistakably French-Canadian.

The idea, conceived a year or two ago by Mr. Bickersteth, the Warden, was not put into effect till recently. Mr. Bickersteth, with the aid of Mr. Arthur Lismer, ordered the furnishings at the Handicraft and Folk Song Festival held in Quebec last May. Among the pictures which it is hoped will hang in the room are two portraits, one of M. Napoleon Leblond, presented to Hart House by the artist, Mr. Lismer, and the portrait of Madame F. X. Cimon, by the same artist.

It is expected that the first guest to occupy this room will be the Hon. Honoré Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests in the Tachereau Government in Quebec, who is coming to Toronto shortly.

Rev. Father Lally, S.J., of Guelph, will this year preach the annual retreat at St. Joseph's College, 20 Queen's Park. The retreat will commence this evening and will continue until Monday morning.

REALITY IN ART IN SPEECH TO WOMEN AT UNION

"Our idea of perfection of what God is changes with imagination. The Puritan viewed imagination with ill-favour, claiming it allowed the mind to soar to undesirable regions."
 "To-day," Mr. Lismer continued, "the industrialist says the artist does not exist in a real world of red-blooded individuals. Art is becoming more our religion. It is something progressive, mobile, on which we can build, move and soar. It is a reality that is a foundation for a noble, finer concept of God."

Most of our pleasures are sensory. Drama, perhaps the finest of all Arts, is more than sensory. It brings within a limit of space and time a concept of life, as music in time would bring. We live in that drama.

Music is not a mere technical performance. You do not listen to mere notes, but to the things that are expressed.

And so in religion. As Mr. Lismer said, the miracles that Christ performed were not wonderful in themselves but in the love that Jesus could not express except through growth within us.

Thus we are brought this, as the Chinese would say, "something behind the form, something beyond the sound." For this we do not need to go to music or art, but we must seek inside ourselves.

Realism has not to do with the outward expression of things. There is another sense beyond the five senses; to the artist this is the aesthetic; to us it is awareness to beauty, a contemplation, a resting place. It is a sense of wonder, of reality and of awe.

UNIVERSITY TO LOSE
PRINCIPAL M. HUTTON

Principal Hutton is a native of Manchester, England. He is the son of the Rev. Joseph Henry Hutton of West Heslerton. His university career was brilliant; going from Magdalen College School to Worcester College and thence to Oxford, where he held an open scholarship. In 1899 he graduated with first-class honours. In 1903 he was awarded the honorary degree of LL.D. by the Universities of Toronto and Queen's.

RUSSIAN NOVELIST
DISCUSSED AT U.C. LIT.

Eoll stated. Though tormented in mind and body, the Russian loved life and dreamed that there might be a secret hidden from him, which he conceived as God. He could not believe in Him as a Person, but as a Way of Life, and his works were the record of a great mind seeking a Way of Life.

"Crime and Punishment," his first great book, was the story of a young man who had murdered an old pawnbroker who had lived by evil usury. His only motive for such a crime had been that "he wanted to have the daring." Yet in the end the torments of his own conscience had forced him to come forward and accept the punishment.

Dostoevsky's crowning achievement was "The Brothers Karamazov," the outcome of ten years of study and thought. In this book the writer gathered together all the thought, doubt and faith of a lifetime. The characters consisted of the father, an extremely sensual person, his three legitimate sons, his natural son and three women who played their part wholly in the material or earthly story. The contest of the natural sort and one of the legitimate sons over the possession of one of the women was rooted in a natural hostility of father and son. It was the attempt on the part of the sons to rise above the rut of baseness and sensuality in which they had found themselves at birth.

In 1880 Dr. Hutton came to Toronto from Firth College in Sheffield, where he was lecturer on the Classics and Ancient History. He took his M.A. at Toronto and was Professor of Classics in University College until 1887, when he became Professor of Greek, which post he has occupied up to the present. In 1901 he became Principal, and was acting President of the University in 1906-7 previous to Sir Robert Falconer's appointment. For three years he served as a member of the Educational Advisory Association of Ontario.

It is understood that he will bring his long career to an honourable close, now that the Centenary of the University has been celebrated, at Christmas.

PROFESSOR JOHN C. McLENNAN IS RECIPIENT OF COVETED AWARD

Receives Royal Society Medal For His Research Work In Spectroscopy

IS AUTHORITY ON AURORA

His Study of the Upper Atmosphere
Has Solved a Baffling Scientific Problem

Professor McLennan

John C. McLennan, Professor of Physics at the University of Toronto, has been awarded the Royal Society's Medal for his research work in spectroscopy and atomic physics. The importance of the award may be estimated from the fact that the Royal Society is not only the oldest society in Great Britain but one of the oldest in Europe, having been founded in 1660.

The award is probably in recognition of Professor McLennan's study of the spectra of the aurora which resulted in his discovery of the origin of the spectra, thus solving a problem which had hitherto baffled scientists.

Through a study of the colours in the spectra, Prof. McLennan discovered that they were produced in oxygen and aurorified in the upper atmosphere, between 50 and 60 miles away from the earth's surface.

Through his discovery, the professor was able to give to the scientific world, information regarding this layer of light in the upper air. Its chief scientific value is that it affords an explanation for the passing of radio waves about the earth and enables scientists to study more intelligently the action of these long-distance waves, thus making a valuable contribution to the science of wireless.

Prof. John Cunningham McLennan is a scientist who for years has been

WYCLIFFE PROFESSOR SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

Professor Mercer-Wilson Gives Lecture on Protestantism
in Hart House

IS ONE OF S.C.A. SERIES

"Protestantism" was the subject of the lecture delivered by Prof. Mercer-Wilson of Wycliffe College, in the Lecture Room at Hart House last night. Introducing his topic, the speaker pointed out that, due to the limited time at his disposal, he would only give a very broad outline of the main principles underlying the faith to which he belonged.

Some facetious persons would have us believe that the Reformation of the 16th century was due solely to Luther's desire for a wife, or to Henry eighth's penchant for variety. Great as the influence of the ladies most assuredly was, Prof. Mercer-Wilson was inclined to doubt this explanation. Long before the close of the Middle Ages there were potential Protestants, as witness the Albigensians and the Lollards. The etymology of the word gave the real significance of the term—to be a witness to the truth, and against error. On the other hand, the historical connection of the word Protestant was the idea of "protesting" against certain abuses. Thus, Protestantism was both positive and negative.

To those who thought that the reformation of the Christian Church might have been accomplished from within, the speaker would say that all previous attempts at improvements had been so ruthlessly suppressed as

Board of Governors Requests Principal Hutton To Remain

At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the University yesterday it was decided to request Principal Maurice Hutton, M.A., LL.D., of University College, to continue his active duties until the end of next June.

It had been announced previously that the Principal would sever his official connections at Christmas, but the decision of the Board will permit him to continue until next summer. It is understood that Principal Hutton will accept this invitation.

PROFESSOR NORWOOD PHYSICALLY UNFIT ESTIMATES PINDAR UP FOR DISCUSSION

Only in Original Greek Can Poet's Work Be Truly Appreciated

University College Women's Debating Society Hold Spirited
Debate in Union

EXCELLENT WORD PICTURES

Pindar was the subject of Professor Norwood's lecture given in West Hall of University College, Thursday afternoon.

Prof. Norwood first touched briefly on the life of the poet, and then went on to consider his art. Pindar is exceedingly difficult to translate adequately into another language because his work is of value only for poetry as poetry. He has no great originality of ideas, but depends utterly on the beauty of his verse in its vowel sounds. He is the noblest example of an aesthetic poet. Motion, light, physical beauty, above all colour, form his materials. He is not lyrical at all in the modern sense. His great merit lies not in his narrative ability, nor creation of great characters, but in his magnificent word pictures. Above all, he is great as a colourist, yet his work is governed by the Greek rules of order and form, by the steady surge of rhythm and studied structure of phrase, blending the dactylic motif with the trochee. Above all, he has a distinctive angle of vision. Some of the passages are so difficult that critics have to take them one or two ways—first declare the passage corrupt and leave it out, or, second, to water down the Greek till only a shade of the original splendour remains. The best way is to take several translations and get the literal meaning of

"That this House favours the extermination of the physically unfit," was the resolution brought before the U.C. Women's Debating Society, held yesterday afternoon in the Women's Union. In support of the government, Miss Peggy Whitby stated that in the event of mobilization, the maimed and paralysed were but a drag on the State, and themselves were in need of protection. Deformed people were very often highly sensitive about their deformities, and made others uncomfortable and nervous. "The sins of the fathers may be visited upon their children" was quite often proved regarding the marriage of those physically unfit, even though the parents were ignorant of this fact.

Miss Vivian Bowles, opposing the motion, urged that if the physically unfit were exterminated many geniuses would be lost to the world. Taking illustrations from the literary world, Miss Bowles mentioned Scott's lameness, Milton's blindness and Newton's childhood ill-health. On the moral side, Miss Bowles declared that it was wrong to kill even those unfit, as "Thou shalt not kill" included not only the able but also the disabled. The progress made by modern surgery no longer made it necessary for any such extermination, since almost every disability can be remedied. A great many defects were due to care-

BREAK IN INTERCOLLEGIATE FEARED AS QUEEN'S TAKES DEFINITE STAND

Surprise at Toronto

In speaking with a member of the U. of T. Athletic Directorate, "The Varsity" was assured that Queen's action was quite unexpected, and he was of the opinion that the report might prove groundless. He stated that the feeling at the University of Toronto was that the Intercollegiate sports should be maintained at all costs. He also felt sure that Varsity would be represented, as she always has been, in all branches of Intercollegiate athletics.

GENERAL GUGGISBERG WILL VISIT TORONTO

Distinguished Soldier is Present
Governor of the

Sir Gordon Guggisberg, Brigadier-General, Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Gold Coast, will arrive in the city to-day. He was born in Toronto, where he received a part of his education, the remainder of which he received at a private school in England and at the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich. At the age of twenty he received his commission in the Royal Engineers. For a time he was instructor in fortification at the Military Academy at Woolwich, but most of his life has been spent in the service of the Empire in various parts of Africa. He was employed in the colonial office surveys of the Gold Coast and Ashanti, and in 1914 became Surveyor-General of Nigeria. And since 1919 has been Governor of the Gold Coast, where he founded the Negro College of Achmota. He is also well known as a writer of short stories and articles.

During his stay in Toronto he will address several engineering organizations and clubs.

Action May Mean Crash of Hockey Series As Well As Rugby Union

McGILL IS SCAPEGOAT

Varsity Not Likely To Remain In Hockey Series if Queen's Drops Out

(Special from the "McGill Daily")
Montreal, Nov. 10.—A special despatch from Kingston to the Montreal Star to-day reads in part what may be the biggest sensation ever sprung in Canadian Intercollegiate sport. It is now believed to be only a matter of time, following the meeting of the C.I.A.U. in Toronto yesterday, and well-posted authorities on the sport in Kingston are looking, not only for a break-up of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union, but also a crash of the college hockey series.

There is more bitterness than ever toward McGill, who are blamed for the present situation. This morning one official went even so far as to suggest that both Varsity and Queen's withdraw from the College Union and seek berths in the Interprovincial.

Later (from Kingston).—Queen's took action at one o'clock to-day. They definitely decided to drop out of the Senior Intercollegiate hockey series for at least a year. Queen's action practically means the breaking-up of the College Series, for Varsity will hardly remain in the league with McGill and University of Montreal.

UNIVERSITY ARENA OPENED LAST NIGHT

Merry Crowd of Skaters Gather on Fine Sheet of Ice

RINK DESERVES SUPPORT

To the sound of snappy music and amid the brilliant glare of lights, a crowd of merry skaters gathered last evening at the opening of "Our Own Rink," the Varsity Arena. There was a beautiful sheet of ice, and every one of the skaters in their gay winter costumes seemed to be enjoying themselves, despite the fact that a few awkward collisions and spills proved that it was the first skate of the season for many. The attendance for an opening night was fairly large, considering the fact that there were many other attractions last evening.

Skating is being held in the Arena every evening until the open-air rinks open, then hockey games and practices will entirely fill out the programme for the rest of the season, with an occasional evening given over to the University Skating Club. Those who are interested in figure skating or waltzing on ice are afforded an opportunity to enjoy such by becoming members of the University Skating Club, the fee of which is remarkably modest.

The Varsity Arena is as large as any other rink in the city, and offers all modern conveniences to the student, including a lunch counter and check rooms. The lighting arrangement of the Arena is to be equalled by only one other rink in Canada, surpassing that of any arena in the city. The Arena is entirely under the control of the Athletic Directorate of the University. It is being operated at modest prices to serve the student body, and therefore deserves the support of every undergraduate.

HYMN—

O Valiant Hearts, who to your glory came,
Through dust of conflict and through battle-flame,
Tranquil you lie, your knightly virtue proved,
Your memory hallowed in the land you loved.

Proudly you gathered, rank on rank, to war,
As who had heard God's message from afar;
All you had hoped for, all you had you gave
To save mankind—yourselves you scorned to save.

Splendid you passed, the great surrender made,
Into the light that nevermore shall fade;
Deep your contentment in that blest abode,
Who wait the last clear trumpet-call of God.

TIPPING IN BAD TASTE

Tipping is an evil that has been decried since the days of the first waiter, bell-boy, shoe-black or Pullman porter, but, although detested by every traveller and hotel guest, is one that has never satisfactorily been dispelled. And the average experienced traveller, generally bearing in mind the idea that if you want service you must pay for it, has dug down deep to fill an unwanted custom.

And so it is that we note with askance the fact that signs of the tipping demon are appearing in Hart House. We feel that it is far from the purpose of the donors or of the management of that House that such a practice be condoned. Certainly salaries are supposedly sufficient to make such a tax on those employing the services of servants of the House unnecessary. If not, they should be raised. If they are, then both the donor and receiver are open to censure in equal proportion. The man who tips establishes a precedent that all others, who follow him in demand for service must continue if they are to receive the attention which their requirements warrant. Tipping places a false value on service, and a regular salary is apt to be entirely overlooked, and services are to be given only to those who individually wish to pay extra for them.

As we remember a few years ago, signs were prominently displayed in certain portions of the House warning the undergraduate or visitor that tipping was not permissible. And it was with a care-free air that the members made regular use of the employee of the House. But when the time comes that tips are sought, the student who is financially unable to meet any extra expense feels himself cramped, and employs other means than those at his disposal in Hart House to obtain service. The matter rests entirely in the hands of those using the House, and if they are desirous of keeping out an evil that should most certainly be prevented, they will see to it that employees are not encouraged to seek for tips.

A GREAT SCHOLAR

With the retirement of Principal Maurice Hutton next spring, the University of Toronto will lose one of its most historic figures. Dr. Hutton joined the staff of the University in 1880, when there were sixteen professors and lecturers, and two hundred and seventy-nine students. Of the sixteen then on the staff, only four are now living, and of these four, the Principal is the last to give up active work.

Principal Hutton's influence on the student body can hardly be estimated. He has had nearly fifty years of personal contact with students passing through the classical department, many of whom are now occupying prominent positions throughout the Dominion. He is internationally famous as an author on Classics, and an authority on Greek life and culture.

As an additional link with the early days of the University, it is interesting to remember that Dr. Hutton succeeded his father-in-law, Rev. John McCaul, who was the first President of the University of Toronto.

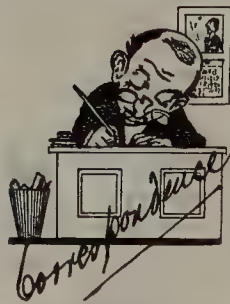

Canada and the University owe a debt of gratitude to Principal Maurice Hutton for the contribution he has made to the educational life and spirit of this country. Nor, we are sure, will his interest and influence cease with his retirement from the principalship and the professorial staff.

A.C. Players' Guild

"Wurzel-Flummery," by A. A. Milne, was the whimsical title of the very whimsical play presented at the Players' Guild Wednesday afternoon. The story was about two politicians of different political parties, both of whom were left fifty thousand pounds on the condition that they take the surname of Wurzel-Flummery. The younger of the two men, in love with the other's daughter, at first scorns the legacy, but, because of his poverty and Vio's persuasions, he accepts the fortune. The play was directed by Mr. Paul Gardner, and the cast was excellent. The outstanding performance was that of Mr. J. J. Knights as Richard Meriton. The rest of the cast included Mr. Moffatt Woodside as Mr. Crawshaw, Miss Isabel Brown as Mrs. Crawshaw, Miss Helen Allen as Vio Crawshaw, and Mr. Cowan as Mr. Dennis Clifton.

MORE SUPPORT FOR MR. NOYES

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

I see that our unrepentant and ubiquitous Nat still marshals his faithful supporters. It grieves me sorely to ally myself with N.A.B.'s childish critic, "Fundamentalist," but as a protagonist of Mr. Noyes I am constrained to do so. For Mr. Benson's gratification I assure him that I was no less disgusted by "Fundamentalist's" unreasonable denunciation than I was displeased at the criticism of Mr. Noyes. I can only pray that I do not raise our amiable cat to fresh furies in calling his attention to the fact that, although boasting unrepentance, he has recanted sufficiently to satisfy those who were pleased to hear Mr. Noyes last week.

C-C S.S. PINEAPPLE (Canto V)

The Captain cowed the fishes' wills
And tickled them beneath the gills,
He kicked them sharply on the shins
And smote them 'neath the dorsal fins,
Saying: "Good fish know when to quit
If they receive the worst of it!"
And on the snout of an octopus
He promptly left the piscine fuss.
For many a day and many a night
His scaly steed swam left and right,
He seized its squashy oozy tentacles
And swum upon its fundaments.
At length he whispered: "Little Ouida,
Kindly steer toward the Fiji,
For there, I hear, one has a chance
To see them do John Russell's dance!"
Obedient, the sea-squid swam
Through seas of storm and seas of calm
Until upon the Fiji beach
The Captain spied a sunburnt "peach."
But waves and women never mix,
So, readers, wait for Chapter Six.

Wycliffe College Harrier is Won by "Hap" Gilbert

"Hap" Gilbert was the winner of the Wycliffe cross-country which was run off yesterday over the Varsity harriers' course. Gilbert took the lead at the beginning of the race and held it throughout. He finished an easy winner over two minutes ahead of Hughes, who came second. Hughes, Bailey and Jones were bunched until they came on the track, but finished in the order mentioned. Latimer, the winner for the two previous years, came fifth.

Philosophers of St. Mike's Hold First Regular Meeting

St. Michael's Undergraduate Philosophical Society held its first regular meeting last night. President C. Cruse was in the chair. Mr. Leo Knowlton, last year's president, gave a short illuminating talk on the Society's history and aims for the benefit of the new members. A paper on "The Duty of Distributing Superfluous Wealth" was then read by Mr. W. J. O'Meara. In the general discussion which followed, Mr. O'Meara ably defended his views. Dr. Phelan helped to direct the discussion in a most satisfactory manner.

VARSITY JUNIORS AND R.M.C. CLASH TO-MORROW MORNING

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Queen's and McGill meet to-morrow in the final game of the Intercollegiate series, and the title is hanging in the balance. The two teams are tied for the leadership, and the game means everything. If the Tricolour are triumphant they will in all probability go on into the play-off series with the Tigers of Hamilton. But if McGill win they will hang up their togs and call it a season.

In the event of Queen's winning, it is expected that the Tiger-Queen's game will be played in Toronto. This game would attract a capacity crowd at the Stadium, and for this and other reasons many local fans will be pulling for Queen's to win.

The dope gives the Tricolour an edge. McGill started the season with a decisive victory over Varsity, and were picked as the ultimate winners, but Queen's came back a week later and held the Red and White to a one-point lead. Queen's two victories over Varsity raised the stock of the Tricolour considerably. Then the defeat of the McGill outfit by the Varsity team gave the Montrealers somewhat of a bad name. On the record of the games played, Queen's will be favourites, but McGill are never beaten till the game is over.

The Juniors play R.M.C. to-morrow morning at the Stadium in the final game for the Junior Intercollegiate championship. The Juniors are the only team at Varsity to attain any measure of success this season, and they are deserving of support.

Speaking of support of college teams, which, by the way, has not been anything like it should at Varsity this year, an item appeared in an American college publication the other day which is interesting indeed.

The story was to the effect that out of a total registration of 7,354 students at the University of Washington only 422 failed to purchase tickets for the recent Washington-Stanford football game. This is quite a different situation from that prevailing here where rooters' tickets went begging.

It is a strange thing to see a team out practicing hard when the championship is already decided, but that is exactly what "Mike" Pearson's crew is doing. The whole team has been turning out faithfully, with the exception of Lorne McIntyre, who suffered a twisted back in the holiday fixture. The kicker is expected to be ready for the game against the Tiger Cubs though. That was the only casualty in the game, and the whole team will be intact for the grand finale. A win will put Varsity second, Hamilton third, and Camp Borden fourth, but if the Orphans lose it will mean the Tigers are second and the locals tied for the cellar.

Plans are now under way for the Orphans to have a post-season exhibition fixture with the Argonauts Inter-provincial team. This has not been definitely decided as yet, but such a game would be to the liking of the fans.

VIC WINS GROUP IN HARD TUSSE

Scarlet and Gold Defeats Trinity With Weakened Line-up

BACKFIELD STARS INJURED

Victoria won the final game of their group schedule on the Vic campus Thursday afternoon when they defeated Trinity by the score of 8 to 2. This leaves the Scarlet and Gold at the top of the heap with four wins and no losses, and also gives them the right to compete in the Mulock Cup play-offs with the winners of the other four groups.

Vic started out handicapped considerably on account of the inability of three of their backfield stars, Crosby, Frame and Cannon, to get into the game because of injuries. The absence of these men was obviously felt, and as a consequence the team was noticeably weakened. The Red and Black, as the score indicates, displayed much improvement on the form shown by them a week ago when the first game with Victoria was played. Their line plunging especially was much better, and the kicker was given more protection by the front guard on his boots. The result of the game was always much in doubt, due to the erratic brand of rugby played by both teams. Fumbles were quite frequent, and consequently the scene of action changed with lightning-like rapidity from one end of the field to the other. Neither pair of backs were at all sure of their catches, but Victoria were much more effective in recovering their own fumbles and pouncing on those of Trinity's to give them the breaks that won the game.

The scoring was opened in the first quarter when Vic booted to the deadline. This score stood until a few minutes before half time, when, on a low dribbling kick, Birge was forced behind his own line, giving Trinity a safety touch and the lead at half time by the score of 2 to 1. Early in the third quarter, however, on an attempted inside, Addison kicked a rouge to tie the score. A few minutes later Vic counted a deadline when one of the wings kicked a fumbled catch to the fence. Another outside this time proved more effective, and Addison took his own kick behind the Trinity line to end the scoring for the day and making the final count 8 to 1. Douglas was the most outstanding man on the field, his line-plunging and running being a treat to watch, and his kicking was also very good, considering the fact that the most of them were of the hastened variety.

"My girl always goes to bed in her working clothes."

"Howzat?"

"She's an artist's model."

FINAL JUNIOR GAME TO-MORROW MORNING

Will Clash with a Strengthened R.M.C. Team at the Stadium

CADETS STILL A THREAT

The treat of Saturday in Toronto is the Varsity Junior-R.M.C. tussle at the Stadium. The Intercollegiate title depends on this set-to, and don't run away with the idea that it will be a walk-away for the Blues. The Cadets are always known to give all opposition a great fight, and the Saturday morning affair will be no exception.

Although the Infants won the last game by a one-sided score, it will be no cinch this time, as the "would-be soldiers" will field their strongest team.

In the last battle at Kingston the "pill boxes" were short of no less than six of their regulars, and with the entire Cadet team showing up this time, it will surely develop into a torrid struggle.

The "dope bucket" points to the direction of a Varsity win, but there has been many an upset in the wise ones' calling this season, so watch out for these Cadets, who are always best when fighting against great odds. The Blues in their practice showed that they are taking no chances, and are not fooling with the fact that they trimmed the R.M.C. squad in the last game; but last night showed as much at practice as they did before their win at the Cadets' stamping grounds.

It is hoped that Varsity will present a line-up devoid of injuries, as all indications point to the healing up of the bumps of other days. This is the first time that the undergraduate body has been given a really good opportunity to support the Jimmie Douglas gang, and a real turn-out of students will not only give the "kids" a whole lot of heart in their fight, but will also give the rooters something to cheer, who have had a rather weak season for the use of their lungs.

Hockey Managers

Managers of the various hockey teams for the coming season were appointed at yesterday's meeting of the Athletic Directorate. George C. Morgan was appointed to the position of Manager of the Senior team, and Bill Dewar to the Intermediates. The Juniors will be managed by Frank Stone.

Sr. U.C. Defeats Sr. Meds

Sr. U.C. water polo team defeated Sr. Meds in a very loosely played game yesterday. The two goals for the winners were made by Graham and Latchford.

PROFESSOR NORWOOD ESTIMATES PINDAR

the words, at the same time having regard to colour, form, living material. Also one must try to listen as a Greek would have. In Pindar's poetry there is gloom first and radiance after. This too must be remembered in translation.

The Ode to Theron, who in 476 B.C. won the chariot race at Olympia, is one of the finest examples. It contains gorgeous colour and exquisite phrasing.

The whole ode falls into a visible pattern when we realize that in the name of the victor himself is the clue. Thean means wheel, the ancient symbol for the everyday routine of life.

But it must not be forgotten that Pindar stands outside the stream of European poetry whose main theme is morality, the discussion of right and wrong. Pindar's theme is the proclamation and guest of beauty. He is the truest Greek of them all.

to render this impossible. Up to the 16th century the enemies of reform, the reactionary forces, had always been triumphant.

Protestantism stood for the reinstatement of reason to her proper place in religion. Our discovery of the Bible, which had been kept from the masses for centuries, had been made with the Reformation. The Reformers had cut loose from tradition in so far as they thought it inconsistent with Revelation. Side by side with this was the appeal to Antiquity. It had been said that the 16th century saw a complete break with the past; in reality there could be no complete destruction of continuity; the cutting of the threads had only been partial and selective.

"All Christian churches have certain beliefs in common such as the Apostles' Creed and the Nicene Creed," said Prof. Mercer-Wilson. On the other hand, the Reformers had rejected certain medieval tenets and beliefs, such as Transubstantiation, compulsory Confession, the worship of the Virgin and indulgences. The practice and theory of Indulgences differed widely; much leeway had been left for widespread abuse in this matter. Viewing the question of Transubstantiation in the light of reason rather than of pure belief, the Reformers had not accepted it. At the time of the Reformation, the moral foundation of the masses had been shaken, their sense of evil and sin had been dulled by the corruption in the Church itself; confusion of mortal and venial sin had led to the destruction of sense of relative moral values.

It was interesting to note that Wycliffe was the first man to question the justice of the slave trade, so passively had it been accepted by previous generations. Ecclesiastical taxation during the Middle Ages had been relatively heavier than post-war imposts in England.

Recapitulating, Prof. Mercer-Wilson said in part: "Protestantism stands for a personal adequate religion as opposed to mechanical righteousness, as opposed to religion for political sovereignty and temporal power. It stands for One Mediator instead of many mediators between God and man. The Protestant religion is bound up with the liberty of England, of Canada, of the world. May you and I not be found untrue to our rich inheritance."

Rev. Mr. Moore of the Students' Christian Association introduced the speaker. At the end of the lecture he announced that next week's conference will be on "Modernism."

ST. HILDA'S ANNUAL SALE IS OUTSTANDING SUCCESS

Everything is Sold, Including Ten-cent Baskets of Peanut Brittle

The annual sale at St. Hilda's has come and gone, leaving in its wake a substantial sum of money which is donated to the W.A., and a medley of confusion reigning in the college. Everyone, of course, is worn out, exhausted, and "simply dead," but apart from these mere details the sale was an outstanding success.

The cosy tea tables were arranged in the Library and the Common Room, where Mr. C. D. Stewart and Mr. Colin Strathy of Trinity entertained the guests with music. Miss Molley Simpson and Miss Margaret Ray, as gypsies, read fortunes in the tea cups. Colourful booths occupied the dining room, and the St. Hildians, in their blue and gray blazers, which must have brought luck to the wearers, sold everything, including ten-cent baskets of peanut brittle, cushions, and decorated clothes pins. The treasurer, Miss Muriel Cames, reports that approximately three hundred dollars was cleared.

widely known throughout both America and Europe. Since 1907 he has been professor of physics and director of the physical laboratory of the University of Toronto.

For a considerable time he has been intimately connected with both the British and American Associations for the Advancement of Science, and is at present a fellow of the American organization. He is a former president of the Royal Society of Canada, and is also scientific advisor to the British Admiralty. He is a member of the Honorary Advisory Council for Scientific and Industrial Research of Canada.

Prior to his discoveries in connection with the aurora, probably his most important achievement was the liquefaction of helium. This he achieved in January, 1923, in the laboratory of the University of Toronto. The successful experiment followed the professor's discovery that helium could be extracted from natural gas at a cost of about 10 cents per cubic foot. Therefore the cost had been about $1,500 per cubic foot, and thus the local scientist's discovery resulted in making the most satisfactory gas for balloons and dirigibles economically available.

Of Scottish parentage, Prof. McLennan is a native of Ingersoll, Ont. He is in his 61st year.

Sir Ernest Rutherford, president of the Royal Society which has just honoured Professor McLennan, was formerly professor of physics at McGill University.

GARDINER UPHOLDS PREMIER'S CONDUCT DURING WAR PERIOD

Saskatchewan Prime Minister
Speaks Before Liberal Club Here

LIBERALISM MIND ATTITUDE

Nation-wide Parties Extolled
As Against Smaller
Economic Groups

The only Toronto address of public character of the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan, engrossed the attention of all those at the Liberal Club luncheon on Friday. The meeting was non-partisan in character, and a number of University men were present from parties other than the Liberal.

Premier Gardiner declared at the outset that he was going to review Liberalism in a non-partisan spirit. The Liberal platform did not only deal with economic questions, he said. If such questions as the tariff and the freight rates were settled to-day, there would still be a conservative and a Liberal party.

Liberalism was an attitude of mind towards public policy. It involved the basing of all actions on the experiences of yesterday, and stood for the greatest possible degree of individual freedom. What was Liberal policy to-day became Conservative policy to-morrow.

The speaker reviewed the struggle of the Liberal parties in past ages for constitutional reforms.

SIR JOHN TAYLOR SMITH TO CONCLUDE ADDRESSES

Swimming Tank

On Tuesday night at Wycliffe College the concluding address of Rt. Rev. Sir John Taylor Smith will be given before the annual meeting of the Students' Mission Society. It is a matter of keen regret that the services held by this eminent visitor have come to a close, and it is felt that every opportunity should be taken of hearing this, his concluding address.

Bishop Taylor Smith last week conducted a special mission in St. Paul's Church, which was very largely attended, as he is known far and wide for his far-reaching knowledge. He has become a well-known figure at the Hart House swimming tank, and has been greatly admired for his ability to swim and dive despite his growing years.

The Bishop is also to address a meeting in Hart House before his departure in the middle of the week.

Wouldn't Worry Over Eve's Wiles If Separate Colleges Didn't Exist

"The advantages and disadvantages of co-education would not be under such discussion or scrutiny if there were only co-educational colleges," said Miss Margaret Crutchfield, a graduate of Vassar in 1925, in an interview last evening.

Miss Crutchfield was generally of the opinion that co-education was a good thing, but more especially that it was worth-while from the study point of view. So often the social side of college was over stressed, whereas contact with other people and the search for knowledge were just as important, if not more so.

Miss Crutchfield is here in connection with the Detroit Quadrennial American Christianity decided upon.

MASQUERADE RULES ALLOW 24 DANCES; FOUR DURING HOUR

Free List Suspended in Strict Regulations Just Issued

DINING SERVICE SPEEDED

Clandestine Departures Barred
As Excuses
Ignored

The following regulations affecting the Hart House Masquerade on Friday have been made public. A summary is given following.

All committees, including the Special Committees and the Debates Committee, have the privilege of buying one ticket. There are practically no complimentary tickets.

This year there will be 24 dances—four an hour, lasting ten minutes, with a five-minute interval between. As previously announced, the Lecture Room will be used for dancing. This innovation is expected to be popular.

There will be two supper hours, the first from 10 p.m. until 11.15 p.m., and the second from 11.15 to 12.30. It must be clearly understood that the guest must go to supper at the time of their supper ticket. Not only will this facilitate the service, but will allow the guests to eat in comfort and without crowding.

The costumes will be judged between 9.30 and 10 p.m. Arthur Lismer and H. Sprout have consented to act as judges of costumes this year. The method of judging will be as in former years: (a) to the couple with the most original costume, attention being paid to the costume of both the man and his partner; (b) to the couple with the most beautiful and complete costume, attention being paid to the beauty and completeness of the costume in accordance with some historical period or historical characters or some definite idea of this kind.

As usual, no smoking will be allowed in the Gallery of the Swimming Pool. Violation of this rule has given the attendants in Hart House much trouble, and observance of this rule will be appreciated. No one will be permitted to leave the House after the dance has begun. No one will be admitted without a ticket, and in case of having "forgotten" it, will be obliged to "go home and get it."

Captain Cliff Howard Crashes Through

BATSTONE HURT, OUT TWO PERIODS

McGill's Deadly Kicking Game Held
Serious Threat

By J. W. K.

Kingston, Ont.—Queen's University won their fifth Senior Intercollegiate Football Championship in six years on Saturday at Kingston when they disposed of McGill by a 11-5 score in a spectacular contest. Until well on in the second period, Queen's were the under dog, as the Montreal machine, with the wind and Tremaine's powerful booting, steadily pushed the Tricolour back to their own territory and registered five points. Queen's staged a sensational recovery in the lagging minutes before the half-time whistle blew, and Captain Howard carried the ball over for a touch. From then on the boys of Kingston had the edge, and, while holding the Shag men scoreless, they added a touch and rouge to make a safe margin.

PRAISES VARSITY "CHIEF"

Mr. Entriehan of the New Zealand Forestry Service addressed the Foresters' Club in the Lecture Room of Hart House on Friday. The speaker is a colleague of Mr. S. M. Ellis, Forestry '11, who went from Canada to take charge of the operations of the New Zealand Forestry Branch. Mr. Entriehan referred to Mr. Ellis warmly as "our chief."

Mr. Entriehan spoke of the work of his branch, describing the native trees; the kauri, also, which is exported for its gum as well as its wood; the tawa, matai, native beeches, and others which to most of the listeners had existed formerly as mere names.

He described the work of regeneration of the native trees, and the reforestation by means of the more rapidly growing foreign trees, among which our own Pacific Coast play an important part.

No less interesting than the forestry problems discussed was his description of the country itself and the

PARENT INDUSTRY SERVES DUAL ROLE

Says McCrea in Commencing
R.C.I. Series Saturday in Convocation Hall

MINING OF PRIME IMPORT

"Mining is one of the primary industries upon which civilization depends. It furnishes us with weapons of war and with instruments to prosecute the arts of peace." Thus spoke the Honourable Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines for the Province of Ontario, in an address entitled, "The Mining Industry of Ontario," at Convocation Hall, Saturday evening.

The occasion was the first of a series of lectures by prominent authorities upon various topics, given under the auspices of the Royal Canadian Institute.

Mr. McCrea commenced his address with a short description of the great natural gifts which Ontario enjoys—its strategic geographical situation in the heart of Canada, and its easy communication, through the Great Lakes, with the northern and central States of the Union.

He then entered into a description of the mineral industry of Ontario, from its beginnings to the present day. Even so recently as the latter part of the last century, "popular opinion had decided that neither gold nor silver could be discovered east of the Rockies." This certainly sounded ridiculous when it was stated that Ontario now occupies the position of third greatest gold producer in the world.

Mr. McCrea next discussed the nickel industry, in which Ontario supplies of 90 per cent. of the world's demands for this metal.

Finally, he discussed an outline of the part played by the government of (Continued on page 4)

VASSAR GRAD URGES VARSITY TO ENTER DETROIT CONVENTION

Miss M. Crutchfield Explains
Christmas Meeting to S.C.M.

FOREIGN MISSION PROBLEM

Says Natives From Many Countries Will Present
Views

"One of the most important questions to be settled by the convention at Detroit is how to make the foreign missions as Christian as they should be," said Miss Margaret Crutchfield, a graduate of Vassar, at the S.C.M. tea given in Annesley Hall yesterday afternoon.

Miss Crutchfield stated that ever since the world began there had been people to disturb its serenity by great ideas. Christ's idea of the Kingdom of Heaven was the most outstanding one the world had known. Paul and the Apostles adopted it, and ever since Christians had been trying to further it.

But it had not been received with enthusiasm. "We might try to reason that the only way to settle world problems is to live together in one brotherhood, but when people refuse to accept this, and by their selfish ambition throw the world into confusion, the only thing to do is to share their misery with them and try to win them over by their own helpful example."

Miss Crutchfield spoke of the coming convention at Detroit, which will meet during the Christmas holidays. The convention will discuss Christianity from every side. Natives from Japan, China and India will tell what effect Christianity has had on their respective countries, mentioning its possibility as a force for world peace. Business men and statesmen will also speak. Several days will be spent in discussing how to make Christianity an effective and practical power in the world.

Miss Crutchfield enquired whether the interest of the Varsity S.C.M. was keen enough to prompt them to send thirty delegates to the Detroit convention. A campus committee composed of a boy and girl from each faculty is organizing the delegation.

Dead Revered in Simple Ceremony Beneath Majestic Soldiers' Tower

Hundreds, Bareheaded, Observe Armistice Celebration; Memorial Arch Decked

The Armistice service before the Soldiers' Tower on Friday was marked with the solemn simplicity which such an occasion merits. The C.O.T. C. marched south under the Tower and took its place; the square was lined with people ten or fifteen deep, and the windows of Hart House were filled with faces. The band began the ceremony by playing the hymn, "O, Valiant Hearts," and in a few moments everyone was singing.

As the hymn ended, the rifles jumped to the "present" and the bugles played the "Last Post." There was the customary two minutes of reverent and respectful silence. Then again the bugles sounded and rang out the "Reveille" from the upper part of the Tower.

One by one the memorial wreaths were laid under the arch as Sir Robert Falconer read the names of those presenting them. The benediction was then pronounced by Bishop Taylor-Smith, Chaplain to His Majesty's Forces: "May the peace of God... which passeth all understanding be with you and remain with you forever."

THE STUDENT AIMS AT BUSINESS

The majority of us have some hazy idea of the general public's conception of the University student. We believe that he is rated as being careless, happy-go-lucky and irresponsible, with a pronounced tendency toward the sensational and daring; that his time is occupied with sports, songs, dances and fraternities and in hazing Freshmen, and that his sole aim is in seeking the joyous in life. Or that, on the other hand, he is the typical bookworm who wears heavy glasses and spends hours in poring over heavy manuscripts in an earnest search for knowledge. In either case, he requires the exceptional to jar him out of the rut of his own thoughts and his own desires.

But, though he may appear silly at times, the average collegian is not so far removed from the hoi polloi. In our Canadian universities, at least, the undergraduate cannot be distinguished from the office boy by mannerisms or clothes. Rather the individuality of dress would be demonstrated by the latter, and if at times the student exhibits what appears to be undue enthusiasm or hilarity, it is more to give off the steam accumulated from arduous lectures and the serious aspects of life which he is now facing and which he is about to face.

In a survey of one hundred and seventy-five American colleges made a short time ago, it was found that forty-four per cent. were self-supporting, Tufts College in Massachusetts leading the list with eighty-five per cent. putting themselves through school, and so on down the line. All of which is a splendid refutation of the theory that the average college man leads a life of indolent ease in passing through the term of at least four years in University class rooms. Because, the student working his way through College has usually but one aim, business, and, no matter how diversified his other interests may be or how strange his habits while in school appear, he has a fixed purpose.

And whether he got without garters or wears collegiate clothes it is purely because of an imaginary atmosphere which he is expected to depict, and which, in later years, he will all too soon forget.

And past experience has shown that you can't tell what is in a man by his vests or his neckties.

CAN CANADA PROVIDE A DISTINCTIVE ATMOSPHERE FOR THE DRAMA OR NOVEL?

For some years the annual appeals for the purely Canadian drama or novel have met with little success. True it is that a certain phase of Canadian life has been depicted, but that picture has largely been of French-Canadian inspiration and to the odd million of us who cannot claim even the veriest drop of French blood, this picture is strangely out of drawing. Snow-shoes and dog sleds are not our only means of travel, nor is the patois of Quebec the only language we hear spoken. But this angle of the problem has been satirized bitterly enough in recent years. Now, it might be wise, in the light of this existing condition, to face the problemus which present themselves.

Is there a universally Canadian atmosphere which can be incorporated into a novel or drama with sufficient accuracy for a casual reader to sit up in delight and say, "That's Canadian"? Are we, as a people, with out approximately seven millions of population, (some of whom are foreign-born), sufficiently individualistic as a nation to warrant any such expectation? Frankly, one is inclined to be skeptical.

However, we have one optimist in our midst. A prominent local critic and playwright, contends that, were a novel written about the University of Toronto, the casual reader, without any aid from descriptions or place names, would be able to state positively that the locale was placed in Southern Ontario. We may be inclined to believe that such is the case and most certainly we would not be disgruntled if such were proved to be so. At any rate we agree with the implied contention that, in the universities of Canada, such an atmosphere would first make itself felt and we eagerly look forward to a day when such a distinctive atmosphere will make itself apparent.

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

The whole of last week's recital was given over to violin solos by Miss Flora Matheson. If we were one of these obnoxious persons who swank five or ten letters after his name, we should probably declare that her phrasing of the Allegro from the Beethoven Sonata was open to criticism, or that she took undue liberties with the tempo of Brahms' Hungarian Dance; not that either was true, but it does sound so impressive.

We, on the contrary, have to make a confession. We went to the Music Room at twenty minutes to five and selected a comfortable chair well hidden behind the upright piano and beside a window giving a full view of the School-Meds rugby game then in progress, so that when the artist proved uninteresting we could watch the game unperturbed by disapproving frowns from the artist or the august representative of the Music Committee. What we want to know is whether or not the game developed into another general engagement of the School-Meds feud. At five o'clock it appeared to have possibilities in that direction, but we entirely forgot to look. So did the rest of the men who crowded the Music Room to its capacity and put standing room at an unwonted premium. We enjoyed every minute of Miss Matheson's programme, and when it was over, joined with a will in the insistent applause that forced the artist to explain that, believing herself strictly limited as to time, she had not brought any more music with her. By this alone the artist placed herself in a class apart. How often have we seen applauded artists make the appropriate gesture of surprise and modesty and then produce a whole sheaf of encore selections. Furthermore, her repetition of the last number showed a generosity as unusual as her ingenuous improvidence of extra music.

J. G. C.

In a very interesting article in the "Star Weekly" this week one of their fluent fungi, Frederick Griffin, has invaded the gyms and written up a deal of sure-fire bilge to the undying glory of those boys of bulging biceps, D. M. Barton, "Bill" Winterburn, Mr. McCutcheon and "One-round" Martin. No doubt it went over hugely with the inert populace. Another nice touch was added by that eminent humanitarian and Herculean Dr. Porter, who said: "Up here we take the same interest in the Crock and the Mollycoddle as the star half." What appreciated kindness! We have just received two letters, short and to the point:

Dear Kat:
I just love Dr. Porter. He takes such interest in me.
Crock, 2T9.

Dear Kat:
I must write my praise of Dr. Porter and those fine men, the P.T. Staff. They are doing more for me than Kruschen ever did.

Gimme a match or a gun!

We gotta book, that "Sport" has found

British hokum down to the ground—
Wouldn't it make you screech?

For I'm to be Paul Revere, mother—
And yell: "The British are coming!"
For I'm to be famous this year, mother!

Is that a machine-gun humming.
Close your eyes, you cops, blue-coats,
The boys must have their game—
A darn good gun's worth fifty votes
And gets them just the same.

Close your eyes when the gunmen shoot,
Or I'll throw you off the force!
But I'll pull up England by the root

A CORRECTION.

The Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir:

In your editorial comment this morning you speak appreciatively of the map of Central Canada which has just been made available for students by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa. Unfortunately your description of the map gives the credit for its production and publication to the Department of Political Science here instead of to the Department of the Interior where it belongs. While the Department of Political Science is always grateful for your commendations, in this case it has not earned them, and in justice to the men who prepared this map, which is of immense value to any one studying the development of mining in Quebec, Ontario, and Manitoba, I hope you will be good enough to correct your statement and give the praise where it belongs.

Incidentally I should add that we have no copies of this map available for distribution in Baldwin House. I am led to believe that they can be procured from the Natural Resources Intelligence Service at Ottawa.

Yours faithfully,
GILBERT JACKSON.

McGill '29 debaters will discuss the subject "Resolved that history is bunk."

tie students at Montreal on Friday afternoon is an additional tribute to this splendid band of musicians and would indicate that the undergraduate is at least as appreciative of the best in music as he is of the familiar jazz. Local undergraduates will be privileged to hear this group on three occasions during the coming season, the first time on October 19th, and season's tickets for five recitals in all are now available at a most moderate rate for members of the student body.

As noted in our correspondence column of to-day, we were guilty of an unfortunate error in our Editorial Comment of Thursday last, where we stated that a map of the natural resources of Central Canada had been prepared by the Department of Political Science and was available for the student at Baldwin House. As our informant points out, the credit for the publication and protection of this map should go to the Department of the Interior, and is available through them at the Natural Resources Intelligence Service at Ottawa. The Varsity regrets any inconvenience it may have caused to either of these departments and is very glad to place the credit for this work where it properly belongs.

QUEEN'S 1927 CHAMPIONS OF SENIOR INTERCOLLEGIATE FOOTBALL

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By virtue of their victory over McGill on Saturday, Queen's are once more champions of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union. At the first of the season they were not given much consideration as possible contenders for the title, but they have shown plenty in their last few games. Above all they have shown a fighting spirit that refuses to admit defeat. In their game with McGill, as with Varsity, they had to come from behind to overcome what looked like an overwhelming lead, but in each case they came back stronger than ever in the last half of the game and pulled out a victory.

Queen's play Hamilton Tigers next Saturday in the first of the C.R.U. play-offs. The Tigers, champions of the Big Four, are reported to have one of the best teams in years and are popular favourites for the Dominion championship. But they will have to be at their best to take the Intercollegiate champions into camp. Tigers gave their supporters little to enthuse over in the game last Saturday against Argos, and they will have to show a great deal more against Queen's if they want the championship to go to Tigertown.

The Women's Undergraduate Association of University College held their annual Autumn Tea in East Hall on Saturday afternoon. The wives of the faculty and the freshies were the guests of honour. Mrs. Kirkwood, Mrs. Cochrane and Miss Elizabeth Brown, the President of the Association, received. Chestfields and chairs were arranged in cozy groups, and tall candles on the tables lent a very charming atmosphere. The Juniors, attired in gowns, served tea.

Varsity Juniors are once more champions of the Junior Intercollegiate rugby series. It is not definitely known yet whether the Juniors will continue in the play-offs for the Dominion championship. If they do, they should stand a good chance for the title. Coach Jimmie Douglas has developed a smart team this year, and they are a credit to the University which they represent.

Varsity O.R.F.U. and Argos certainly made a wreck of the Hamilton Tigers on Saturday. The two Toronto teams practiced together last week and apparently found some system that would beat the Tigers. While the Double Blue were whaling the Tiger Big Four team in Toronto, the Varsity squad went right up to Hamilton and took the Tiger cubs into camp.

The call to arms for the hockey season has been sounded, and the candidates for the various Varsity teams will start practice to-night. There is a wealth of material at the University, and there should be no difficulty in rounding out several smart squads. Coach "Mike" Pearson finished his duties as rugby coach for this season on Saturday, and starts coaching the hockey to-day after a whole day's holiday.

SENIOR U.C. TIES TRINITY IN MULOCK CUP SERIES

Decisive Defeat of Trinity Ties Both for Second Place in Number Three Group

Senior U.C. won the final game of the Mulock Cup Group No. 3, tying with Trinity for second place, Saturday morning on the back campus, by a score of 13 to 0.

Despite the fact that the game had no bearing on the group championship, both teams turned in a good brand of rugby.

U.C. with the wind to their backs tore through for two well-earned touchdowns scored by Gibb and "Price" Brown respectively, which were not converted.

The line-ups were:
Senior U.C.: Flying wing, Stephens; quarter, Rose; snap, Bird; halves, Omand, Macpherson, Henderson; insides, Brown, Wilson; middles, Henry, Gibb; outsides, Mueller, Morrow; subs, Martin, Evans.

Trinity: Flying wing, Edwards; snap, Turnbull; quarter, Cummings; halves, Ralfe, Lister, Martin; insides, Coleman, Little, middles, Howy, Yates; outside, Perdue; sub, Mewin.

JUNIORS GAIN TITLE IN VIGOROUS MATCH WITH R.M.C. CADETS

Infants Are Again Champions Fifth Successive Time in Jr. Rugby Series

FOURTH QUARTER DECISIVE

Both Teams Flash Great Style Though Juniors Not Up to Usual Form

Varsity Juniors are Intercollegiate champions for the fifth successive time, the latest one coming at the expense of the Royal Military College aggregation.

After the smoke cleared away, the Varsity Infants headed the Cadets 18-8, having pulled out the victory in the last quarter. The battle was a real one, and for a good part of the game the "pill boxes" had the Varsity team guessing. In fact, the Blues were in a bad position, as they were unable to get going until the last stanza.

In Toronto the Juniors did not show their usual form, and were incapable of holding the Cadets for the most part, while in Kingston they sent the soldiers down to defeat without much trouble.

The Blue started out on the right foot when Don Woods kicked for two singles in the first canto, but a miff on the Varsity line gave the Cadets possession, and aided by a penalty they went over the Toronto line for the first touch of the game. Kingsmill did the trick on the second plunge to put the Cadets up on the Varsity team for the first time in the present season, as the Juniors were never headed in any game to date. Varsity came back strongly, and tore up the soldiers' line, but the Cadets held, and the quarter ended 5-2, with Varsity down.

In the second quarter a Varsity fumble gave R.M.C. a change to hoof for another single, to put them four points up. On a bad snap the Blue and White grabbed the pill and were able to plough through 30 yards for an unconverted touch, Woods being the lad to do the trick.

For the most part of the third quarter play was around centre, and R.M.C. broke the ice when Crombie kicked to the deadline to tie the score 7 all. Immediately after the kick-off the would-be soldiers hoofed another over, putting them one up.

In the fourth chucker, the Blue came to life and showed some rare form. They tore the Cadets' line to shreds, and it took them but two line smashes to shunt Adams through for the necessary. Varsity made full use of Adams' effort and converted the touch.

The Blue "kids" began flinging the ball around like basketballs, taking the pigskin from their own 10-yard line to the Kingstons' 9-yard mark. From this position Solandt steam-

ORPHANS VICTORIOUS OVER TIGER SECONDS

Bengals Backed From Second Place By O.R.F.U. Squad in Fast Contest

LARGELY KICKING BATTLE

Defeating the Tigers' Second team in Hamilton on Saturday by 14-6, the University of Toronto O.R.F.U. squad finished second place in a very successful season. There was not very much at stake in Saturday's contest, but while neither team was at full strength, those on the field gave of their best, and spectators were repaid by a good exhibition of the sport.

Gay Kirkpatrick was back on the line-up, and he and McIntyre showed some nice team work on the back division. McIntyre had his kicking foot in operation on Saturday, and besides accounting for four single tallies, used this means of forcing the play into enemy territory. Davies shone again in this game after a partial eclipse following the first Tiger set-to, and carried the ball for great gains. For the losers, Rankin, Dunkerly and Swency were prominent in line plunges, while Crawford and Hunter stood out on the back division.

The game was largely a kicking battle with McIntyre's long punts forcing the Bengals back. There was no score in the first stanza, but in the second each countered a lone point,

O.R.F.U. TEAM VICTORIOUS DOWNS HAMILTON TIGERS

Varsity's coming from an attempted drop. The locals added a rouge in the third period before Tigers started a line-plunging attack, which ended in a touch by Dunkerly. Fumbles were of assistance to both teams, and Varsity recovered one at three-quarter time which enabled them to kick for their third point.

The last stanza opened with the locals trailing by 6-3, but extension plays proved effective, and shortly after the period started, a Spencer to Gray run resulted in an unconverted touchdown and put Varsity in the lead. Tigers staged a short rally, but it died out when Reid made a spectacular 40-yard dash for the goal line. Reid was playing at the top of his form and put in his best game of the season. The Varsity line was very effective in providing interference for the extension plays and in opening holes for Beal and Carrick to romp through.

The line-up:

Varsity: Flying wing, Carrick; halves, Morgan, Kirkpatrick, McIntyre; quarter, Beal; snap, Daley; outsides, Dunn, Cartwright; middles, Wesley, Gray; insides, Scott, Wood; subs, Kirkland, Galbraith, Ruddell, Reid, Bailey, Spencer.

GARDINER UPHOLDS PREMIER'S CONDUCT

The Liberal party had not always been right, and had often been defeated. But it was necessary at times, in order to consolidate positions gained by progressive thinkers, that a Conservative government be in power. Liberal leaders had again to be returned to power when further advances were necessary.

Mr. Gardiner pointed out that the French-Canadians had saved Canada for the Empire at the time of the American revolution. Since then it had been regarded as only right that a majority of French-Canadians should consent before any change be made in the constitution of Canada.

The speaker drew a lesson from the life of George Brown, founder of the modern Liberal party, for all Liberals. The party must never seek to stay in power at the cost of forsaking principle. If it could not do what it believes to be right, it was better out of power than in power.

The Liberal party was national in scope. It was opposed by a national Conservative party and by some other groups. But no organization that divided Canada sectionally or economically was in the best interests of the country. The speaker begged the young men of Canada not to join a small group but to unite with a nation-wide party.

Premier Gardiner closed by referring to the statesmanlike qualities of the Premier of Canada. Premier King had proved himself a servant of his country both in peace and war. During the war he had, in spite of criticism, remained in Canada and the United States in order to help his country in the way he best was able. The Liberal party might well be proud of such a leader.

B. J. Thompson introduced the speaker, and thanked him for giving the University of Toronto Liberal Club the advantage of hearing his only speech while in the city. K. Christie and D. McGregor moved and seconded a vote of thanks to the speaker.

TO PROMOTE WORLD PEACE DUTY OF UNIVERSITY MAN

To promote world-wide peace, was the outstanding duty of the present-day university man, constituted the main theme of Chancellor Bowles' Armistice address at Victoria College. He pointed out how university ideas and learning were international, knowing no boundaries or limits, and it would be through this diffusion of learning and relationship that peace could be maintained.

The service held at ten o'clock, though short in character, before the eleven o'clock Memorial Tower service, was nevertheless most impressive and fitting to the occasion. The service, composed of two hymns, a prayer and address by the Chancellor and

RECOVERY IN SECOND GIVES QUEEN'S TITLE

30 yards—Batstone for 10 yards—and Howard wound up these exciting minutes by carrying the ball over to tie the score. Even that did not end the action, for Warren gave a beautiful exhibition of broken field running when he tore through the McGill line for 35 yards. The half-time whistle blew just as Britton recovered a blocked kick. Score 5-5.

That Batstone-Warren combination looked good, and several times they tossed the ball around for gains of 20 and 30 yards. Both teams seemed quite willing to open the play up, and as a result the fans were standing most of the afternoon; they couldn't be made to sit down. Tackling was hard all round, and both teams were slowed up considerably, both teams being often forced to relieve the injured players.

Little made a nice gain for McGill when he gathered in a short punt and carried it 35 yards to the Queen's 25 mark. On the ensuing punt, Warren again defied the Red tacklers by carrying the ball out from behind the posts. The Tricolour forced the play and the Shag men faded badly. Agnew intercepted a Tremaine-St. Germain pass, and both Sutton and Durham handled the ball in bringing it 45 yards to the 5-yard mark. Howard was again used to carry the ball over.

That touch saw the end of McGill's championship hopes, and they fought doggedly, vainly hoping for a "break." Their whole team seemed to sag, despite the valiant efforts of St. Germain, Tremaine, Lovering and Taylor. End runs were broken up when starting, and kicks were necessary. Carter finished the scoring when he booted a long one over St. Germain's head and he was graced for the eleventh point. It was a long punt and travelled over 80 yards. With this safe lead, Queen's closed the play a bit and kept possession of the ball as long as possible, ripping the Red line for substantial gains and kicking only when forced to. Final score—Queen's 11, McGill 5.

Line-up:

Queen's: Flying wing, Britton; halves, Batstone, Warren, Durham; quarter, Sutton; snap, Nagel; insides, Brown, Handford; middle, Kilgour, Howard; outside, Walker, Agnew; subs, Carter, Mungovan, McKelvey, Mundell, Baird, Reynolds, Godwin, Young, Gaynor.

McGill: Flying wing, Millen; halves, Tremaine, St. Germain, Little; quarter, Lovering; snap, Spears; inside, Carson, Littlefield; middle, Moar, McTeer; outside, Taylor, Blair; subs, Doherty, Brown, White, Krizwiser, Bazin, Monroe, Heenan, Petch, Granger, Sharpe, Altimas.

Officials: Joe O'Brian, Lieut. Panet. Dr. Alfred Tandier, closed with the benediction.

CANADIAN BARDS VIRILE

Asserts Pauline Johnson's Reputation Due to Single Poem

"Canada is the only country in the world where the people do not know the names of their own poets; a situation caused by blind prejudice induced by overpraise of mediocrity which leads to the condemnation of real poets. The Americans gave me bread where Canadians would not," said Wilson MacDonald at the St. Hilda's Literary meeting yesterday evening.

However, in spite of this lack of appreciation, Masfield has been able to say that "there is no group of poets so virile and so strong as the little group of Canadian poets." So the speaker went on to comment briefly on our more outstanding poets. In his eyes Oliver Loomis can lay claim to fame only by priority, while others could establish their reputation on a single poem like Charles Healey's "Introspection," or Pauline Johnson's "Corn-Huskers," which alone should entitle her to a place in posterity.

He concluded the address by quoting from some of his own poems and describing their setting, ending with "Old Things" as a Gregorian chant.

VACCINATION EDICT PLEASES DR. PORTER

Trouble Always Started By Those Unvaccinated, Says
Health Director

85% ARE VACCINATED

"Eighty-five per cent. of the students coming to Varsity are already vaccinated. The majority of those unvaccinated have failed to attend to this matter through neglect." Thus spoke Dr. G. D. Porter, Director of the University Health Service, in stating his views on the recent enactment of the Board of Governors by which all unvaccinated students must be vaccinated on entering the University. Dr. Porter thinks that the rule is indeed most forward looking and that the means resorted to is the only way to stamp out smallpox among the student body. He pointed out that it was always in an unvaccinated person, and that, as this year, untold inconvenience was caused to totally blameless students through quarantine and other measures absolutely necessary to prevent the spread of the plague. He also affirmed that the vaccine as prepared in the laboratories of the Provincial Board of Health was absolutely the best and that any danger connected with its use was negligible. Concerning those who are opposed to the practice of vaccination, Dr. Porter had nothing whatever to say.

Federation Seeks Co-operation

Arrangements for the reduction of railway fares for students travelling between universities, for the writing of special insurance policies for students, and for a discount in the purchase of sporting goods are now occupying the attention of committees which will report the results of their work to the convention at Christmas of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

It has already been reported in some quarters that a well-known sporting firm has granted a discount of thirty-three and a third per cent., but according to a local official the matter is still under advisal.

Other proposals of the Federation are the affiliation with overseas unions, the granting of scholarships, and exchange students between universities. It also plans to procure the purchasing of medical and scientific instruments at a reduced price. The touring of athletic and debating teams and the formation of a National Universities Newspaper Association are also projected.

These aims are in consonance with the article in the constitution of the N.F.C.U.S., which states: "To promote in every way possible a better understanding among all students, a greater degree of co-operation between all Canadians for the promotion of national interests and to provide a means for developing international relationships with student groups in other countries."

TREASURE HUNTERS SCOUR HUMBER FAR AND WIDE

Wind-blown Coiffures Are Much in Evidence Despite Weather

Sweaters and knickers kept the cold blasts from a shivering crowd of O.C.E. students and professors at the corner of Jane and Bloor Streets on Saturday as they waited eagerly to start on a treasure hunt along the Humber.

Initial directions were given to each of the leaders of four groups into which the crowd was divided, and the task which remained for the hunters was to find further directions fastened under bridges, on fence posts or in hollow tree trunks in the vicinity.

Finally all the groups were seen searching for Professor Cornish, who was quite oblivious of the fact that the "treasure" was hidden in a bag, which he had offered to carry for one of the girls.

The hunters returned to the annex at O.C.E., where a battle was staged between Professors Ferguson and Cornish over the treasure which each claimed for his own group. However, to end the struggle, the treasure, a large box of chocolates, was served as a last course to the refreshments which everyone enjoyed in the Women's Common Room.

Wreathes Clothe Memorial Tablet In Atmosphere of Wistful Sadness

At the base of the Memorial Tablet the beautiful wreathes which were placed there Friday morning in memory of our departed heroes continue to flutter and wave with the passing breeze. Even the most careless and casual passer by catches something of the spirit dwelling in that spot, where the flowers stand as a solemn reminder of that great sacrifice made not so many years ago. The most beautiful flowers that our hothouses can produce are arrayed there, but the one which tells the story best of all is an alien flower, the poppy. Though the day is dull and skies are grey, the poppy seems to flourish while our own flowers fade away and die—even as the flowers of our land passed away on Flanders fields, and the poppy remained as a tribute to their noble sacrifice in a great cause.

General Sir Gordon Guggisberg has accepted the invitation of the Warden to lunch in the Great Hall to-day and to give a short address in the Lecture Room between 1.30 p.m. and 2 p.m. on "African Problems."

Sir Gordon Guggisberg is a Canadian, having been born in the Niagara Peninsula. He left this country as a boy, and after passing through the Royal Military Academy at Woolwich he joined the Royal Engineers, and went out to Singapore. In 1902 his long connection with Africa began—a connection which has lasted for twenty-five years except for the period of the War, when he rendered distinguished service and gained the rank of Brigadier-General. In 1919 he became Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Gold Coast, and his term of office has seen the most remarkable development in that colony. The revenue has trebled in size, and many interesting experiments have been carried out, the most outstanding of which is the foundation of a university for the Africans at Achimota, the first of its kind ever to be established. The opportunity to hear what this expert on African affairs has to say should not be missed.

Junior Dents' Frolic

On Friday evening the first, second and third year members of the Dental Faculty held their Junior dance at Wymilwood. The party was well attended despite the fact that the students of the gnathological institution have already had several entertainments this year.

A very abundant supply of favours and an inspiring orchestra featured the lively programme provided by Bill Dewar and "Sandy" MacGregor, the members of the At-Home Committee in char-

Bishop Taylor-Smith Delivers Interesting Address In Hart House

SYMMETRY ESSENTIAL

Speaker Declares Hart House Has No Equal

"To-day is the harvest of yesterday, and the seed-time of to-morrow," was one of the statements on which Bishop Taylor-Smith built up his discourse in a speech yesterday in the Lecture Room of Hart House. A fairly large gathering responded to the opportunity afforded by the S.C.A. of hearing the Bishop, who "won his spurs" in Sierra Leone, and was for many years Chaplain-General of the British forces. The problem of life occupied most of the speaker's time, and he also gave a very interesting answer to the question "What makes a man?"

The marvellous gifts of existence were dwelt upon by Bishop Taylor-Smith in opening his talk. He referred to thought, action, speech; to muscles, veins, and nerves; to our hands: "the most wonderful tools in the workshop of the world." The speaker pointed out the inadequacy of human intellect to appreciate and understand all these evidences of God's goodness. "Every soul is an original; God makes originals; man makes copies," went on the Bishop.

There were ample evidences that this life did not end all, and there was another existence beyond death. The Indian who wanted his weapons buried with him was looking forward to the "happy hunting grounds." The migratory instinct of birds gave further support to the belief. This idea of another, greater existence involved responsibility in this life. "We must develop mind, body and spirit," declared the speaker. His conception of life was a co-partnership with God, in which man received God unto himself, and showed Him forth in his own existence.

Bishop Taylor-Smith referred to a question asked him by some undergraduates while he was on a visit to Oxford. "What makes a man?" they inquired. His reply was as follows: "Brawn alone won't make a man; brain alone won't make a man; brain and brawn together won't make a man. The world has only seen one Man yet: 'behold the Man'; all the rest are fragments. Contemplation of the Jesus of history won't make us men. Those who received God into their hearts to them gave He power to be—"

Carillon Anthem Demands Bared Heads and 'Shun'

What should be the reaction of a carillon audience to the rendering of the National Anthem? In this connection there has been considerable adverse comment on the conduct of the large crowd of spectators at the end of the programme on Saturday. Dr. R. T. Noble, President of the Alumni Federation, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday, expressed himself as strongly in favour of the springing to attention of the audience and the baring of heads. This has been the practice in Ottawa on similar occasions.

More than one undergraduate has been faced with a difficult problem of deciding whether he should trust his patriotic fervour to his vocal powers, or merely stand in an attitude of reverent attention. In any case it is agreed by all that all chattering should be silenced.

Field Trips Planned to City Papers and Plants

From all parts of Ontario delegates will be present in Convocation Hall for the Annual Convention of Editors of Collegiate Publications next Friday and Saturday. This gathering is held under the auspices of the Department of University Extension, Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalistic fraternity, and Sigma Phi, the women's journalistic fraternity.

Sir Robert Falconer will welcome the delegates Friday morning in the name of the University. In the morning as well Mr. C. H. J. Sneider, News Editor of the "Evening Telegram," will speak on "Scoops and Scalps."

The afternoon will be occupied by various speakers, including Hector Charlesworth, Managing Editor of "Saturday Night," and Gregory Clarke, noted writer of feature stories for the "Star Weekly."

During the afternoon field trips will be conducted as well to advertising agencies, photo-engravers and the plants of downtown newspapers.

Friday evening a banquet will be tendered the delegates by the downtown press, and speakers will include men prominent in journalistic work. Following the banquet a trip will be taken to see the presses of the morning papers in action.

Saturday morning will be spent in the discussion of technical problems concerning high-school journalism, and staff advisors of the various schools will take part. The afternoon will be spent at the Royal Winter Fair as guests of the sponsors of the Convention.

This, the second convention undertaken at the University of Toronto, is dedicated to the raising of the standards of high-school and collegiate journalism in Ontario. The convention last year was the first of its kind ever attempted in Canada, and proved an overwhelming success.

MR. PERCIVAL PRICE TO PLAY SATURDAY

Dominion Carillonneur Will Come Weekly During Fall and Spring

NO RECITALS IN WINTER

Next Saturday and Sunday will witness the commencement of a series of weekly carillon programmes by that distinguished carillonneur, Mr. Percival Price, who has consented to come to Toronto especially for these programmes.

On Saturday the hours will be 12.30 and 4.15, and on Sunday 10.15 and 4.30. These concerts, which in the past have excited so much interest, will be given on Saturdays and Sundays for the next three weeks.

It is the intention of the Alumni Federation to make these programmes a weekly feature in the fall and spring months. It is, however, generally considered that the cold weather would tend to keep the numbers of the audience to such a minimum that it would hardly be worth while bringing Mr. Price to Toronto for that purpose.

OF AN EVENING

Just what, taking them in whole and in part, have the downtown theatres to offer the University student of 1927? "Amusement", is the answer of the fun-seeker; "Learning", says the studious scholar; "Musical appreciation", replies the artistic soul, all in varying tones of enthusiasm, but all with that same "take-it-for-granted" attitude.

Most theatres combine the three attractions, and attempt to please the picknick public with a strange Christmas candy-like mixture of highly coloured humour, drama and tragedy with the odd bit of jazz, thrown in to give the whole a spicy flavour. But is this jumbled-up sort of entertainment the thing that educated, civilized people of to-day want to listen to? Evidently not—for in the case of Mantell, Matheson Lang, and Martin Harvey, they had packed houses at every performance. So also had the D'Oyley Carte Co.; and "Beau Geste" ran for six weeks last year and returned to the city again this fall.

But stop to think—are these fine productions a good example of what is always shown in the Toronto theatres? Unfortunately not; they are rather rare. At one theatre last week two actors sang the "Miserere" from "Il Trovatore" and were applauded for three bows. On the third one they gave an encore "Tell me you love me just once again," which, needless to say, did not draw the applause that the operatic selection had, but made rather a ludicrous sequel.

It would rather seem that people of to-day, including University students, appreciate live theatrical entertainment, and welcome the change from the usual hum-drum hash that is served to them on gilded platters of marble-tiled lobbies, and costly entree dishes of solicitous attendants.

It rests then in the hands of University students, as majority members of the class of discriminating theatre-goers, to demand a logically planned and skilfully executed performance.

A VICTORY FOR THE CAUSE OF LEARNING

Undergraduates were astounded and the cause of learning achieved an unexpected victory a few weeks ago when the Harvard football manager resigned so that he might devote more time to his studies in an effort to secure an "A" standing in his studies. Students found it hard to believe that a man, on the threshold of an opportunity presented to but few, would renounce the honour which carried with it the glory of an "H," and were left gaping and bewildered.

Though accused with "lack of spirit" by many members of the student body, The Harvard Crimson professed to see in the action a new trend away from over-emphasis on extra-curricular activities. And in this we are inclined to believe they may be right. More and more the undergraduate is coming to realize that he has time for just so many duties, and, if he be of the industrious type, he carries on as many outside activities as possible, but always with careful regard that permits but a minimum interference with the all-important duty of obtaining his year.

It has been realized that the College education tends to produce a man who is insular and unbalanced, and it is for this reason that student activities of all kinds have been encouraged. The student requires a mixture of the curricular and the extra-curricular to fit him best for his life's work, and the better balanced is he who, though satisfying examination requirements, also satisfies external obligations.

Almost invariably the student who is active in other than College hours and who is in one of the higher years does well in his term work and examinations,—at least proportionately well for the time that he has spent on his studies in comparison with others whose sole activity is that of study. It would seem that the youth at College for pleasure alone either quits, is plucked, or reforms at an early stage, for, after passing an examination or two, he considers that he is on the threshold of serious life and comes down distinctly to business. And instances are locally rife where the senior student, most active in his earlier University days, has settled down and gone into almost complete retirement.

Art, Music and Drama

Sunday Evening Concert

The second of the series of Sunday evening concerts will be given on Sunday next, 20th November, by the Music Maker Singers, under the direction of Mr. J. Campbell McInnes.

The Music Maker Singers came together in 1926 for the purpose of studying the English Madrigal under the direction of J. Campbell McInnes. They first appeared in public at the Art Gallery, Toronto, singing examples of the Elizabethan Madrigal. After this appearance they were engaged to sing Madrigals between the acts of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" production at Hart House Theatre, University of Toronto.

In May, 1927, they were specially engaged for the Folk Song and Handicraft Festival at Quebec, where they to their being engaged to provide a sang old French Madrigals, which led programme of music for the reception of the Prince of Wales by the Governor-General of Canada.

The Music Maker Singers have made an immediate artistic success with the public and the Press. They are an artistic ensemble of voices, rehearsing daily, with the object of interpreting to the best advantage the mind of the composer's music they perform.

The Music Maker Singers are trained and directed by the eminent baritone, Mr. J. Campbell McInnes, director of English Lyric diction to the American Opera Company, who is also the Director of the Hart House Singers.

"The Rivals," by Richard Bremley Sheridan, which will be presented to-day, Wednesday and Thursday at Loretto College, Brunswick Avenue, has a very interesting history. That a young man in his twenty-fourth year should have written a play that has held the stage for 150 years is sufficiently remarkable. The names of various characters in the play have become synonyms for certain comic absurdities such as Mrs. Malaprop, Lydia Languish and Bob Acres testify to its strong characterization, while it abounds in the charm of refined wit, and in its picture of manners.

It was first performed at Covent Gardens, London, in 1775, and first produced in America, in New York, in 1786. Though produced by various "star casts" the honours at present rest with Mrs. Fiske's company.

Its production is of special interest at this time when great care is being given to the preparation of standard plays by amateurs in consequence of the present condition of the stage which is preventing professional companies from visiting Canada, except at rare intervals.

It is reported that the registration at Wycliffe will be more than doubled next year. Ten Masquerade tickets were allotted to them this year, and nearly went begging.

Oh I love the French-Canadian Room! I do, I do. It is a credit to Warden Biedersteth, For the whole design was his.

Oh I love the French-Canadian Room! It makes me feel bonne entente, There are crazy quilts and jolly rugs And local colour aplenty.

Oh I love the French-Canadian Room! To Canadian art it is a big boom, It makes my small pulse throb, It's quite a job!

Oh I love the French-Canadian Room! I think it's wonderful stuff, But there's one thing: most untrue to life—

The bed's not large enough!

STUDENTS TOO FRIVOLOUS

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir:

The Annual Masquerade is now at hand, and some remarks from one who views such displays somewhat apathetically may be timely. The Masquerade is typical of our student life as a whole; college is to-day a colourful and gilded pageant put on by frivolous individuals who are obviously "sent" to college and who form the largest part of our undergraduate body. In many instances these students

SHEA'S HIPPODROME

Henry Santry's orchestra with Harry and Anne Seymour heads the bill at Shea's Hippodrome this week. "his orchestra is quite good and in ideas a clever jazz harpist whom you will enjoy if you think such things proper. The Seymours are very funny in their tandem bicycle act, and Anne Seymour has some bright remarks to offer. She called her goings-on "Platonic," and here is a small ticket for the benefit of students of Greek philosophy:

Mr. Seymour: "Let's go places and do things."

Mrs. Seymour: "I'll go places." Incidentally, Mr. Santry gets off a number of witty jokes for which the rhyming scheme was evidently provided by Beau Geste, and which Mr. S. recites under the impression that upon his lofty should Mantell. There are two other acts, one of which is very brightly done by Elsie Flatus, who dances and sings, and Judy show with much daintiness. The Ryan Sisters work very hard for applause, and the bill as a whole seemed very popular.

There is the jolliest movie fun on one of those Douglas Fairbanks things in an Emerson Hough setting, done by good old Lupino Lane, who looked every bit as smart as Harry

VARSLTY JUNIOR CHAMPIONS TO ENTER C.R.U. PLAY OFFS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

It has been rumoured that Jean Brousseau would coach the Queen's B. W. and F. team for this season, but now comes the report from Kingston that Jack Jarvis will handle the Tricolour boxing squad, and he is supposed to have reported yesterday. Jarvis is well known among Canadian boxers, having handled several first string professionals. Before the war Jarvis did quite a bit of boxing himself. Queen's ought to make a better showing this year now.

The first game of the play-offs for the Dominion title will be played in Kingston on Saturday. Queen's could get several thousand dollars more in gate receipts if they had chosen to play in Toronto, but they think that they owe it to their local supporters to stage the game right in Richardson Stadium. A noble gesture on Queen's part.

When McGill decided not to enter the C.R.U. play-offs had they won on Saturday, it was purely a players' decision. Of course it does not matter now, but it lost them a few supporters who considered the decision unfair to the other teams. And yet they can hardly be censured, for some of them really would like to get some studying done before the hockey season opens.

Varsity's last football hope is getting ready for the C.R.U. play-offs. The O.R.F.U. is ordered to declare a champion by a week to-morrow, and the locals run up against them. Then the winner of this bout is called to meet the eastern winners.

The Mulock Cup series is nearing completion now, and the final draw is in to-day's issue. The particular faculties interested need not be urged to attend these games, as they undoubtedly will support their college. Advanced Interfaculty games are productive of some good rugby which fans sometimes miss by passing up.

Though no tea party, the Queen's-McGill game on Saturday lacked what many people expected to see. There was an entire absence of ill-feeling between the players, while the supporters of each team showed only the usual rivalry.

and will be on the ice again before the Christmas games.

Several of last year's Intermediates and Juniors were going great guns, among them McKnight, Evans, Crosby, Graham and McMullen. One newcomer on the squad who looked good was "Red" Legon, who performed for four years for Queen's Forestry and is now attending O.C.E. Unfortunately "Red" will be unable to play in the Intercollegiate owing to a ruling of that body which prevents a player transferring from one University to another from playing in his first year at the second college.

To-morrow's practice will probably see many more candidates out, but even now there should be no trouble in rounding up a couple of strong teams. However, Coach Pearson will give everyone a chance, and everyone turning out will have every opportunity in the world to make good.

Mulock Cup Playoff Dates; St. Michael's Draws Bye

The schedule for the Mulock Cup play-off is as follows:
Tues. Nov. 15—Forestry vs. Dents. King and Park as officials.
Wed., Nov. 16—Victoria vs. School. King and Park as officials.
Mon., Nov. 21—Winner Forestry vs. Dents vs. St. Michael's. King and Duncan officials.
Fri., Nov. 25—Winner Victoria vs. School vs. winner Forestry vs. Dents. Officials to be appointed later.

All games will be played at the Varsity Stadium at 2.30 p.m.

HOCKEY SCHEDULE IS ANNOUNCED

Queen's Quits Intercollegiate Due to Financial Considerations

WESTERN SEEKS ENTRY

The schedule for the coming Intercollegiate hockey season was drawn up at the meeting of the C.I.H.U. held at Kingston on Saturday. Queen's will not be represented in the Intercollegiate this season due to financial reasons, but they retain their franchise and will probably be represented next year.

An application for admittance to the senior series was received from Western, but as little was known about the strength of the Western team no action was taken. The suggestion was made that exhibition games with Western be arranged this year, and if they proved strong enough their application would be considered next year.

The suggestion was made at the meeting that Princeton, Yale, and Dartmouth be approached regarding the forming of an International group. A committee was appointed to discuss the matter. Of course such an action would be subject to the ratification of all the members of the C.I.A.U.

The schedule as drawn up is not complete, McGill and U. of M. having a game to play whenever they can secure a satisfactory date.

The schedule as drawn up is as follows:
Jan. 12—Varsity at McGill.
Jan. 19—McGill at U. of M.
Jan. 28—U. of M. at Varsity.
Feb. 4—McGill at Varsity.
Feb. 9—Varsity at U. of M.

FORESTRY DOWNS KNOX IN MULOCK CUP SERIES

Leslie and Simpson Star for Forestry, Perry and Hill for Knox

In the fourth consecutive victory of the season, Forestry eliminated Knox College from the Mulock Cup series with a score of 6-1 on the Victoria College campus. Despite the fact that they were playing only to fill out the schedule, the Presbyterians put up a stiff fight with the remnants of their team, several good players being on the casualty list. For Forestry, Leslie and Simpson were the outstanding players, with Francis playing his usual brilliant game at quarter. For Knox, Perry and Hill were the stars. Hill, a veteran on the Knox team, displayed some good tackling at flying wing in the last game of his career.

Jr. U.C. Noses Out Jr. School

Jr. Arts defeated Jr. School water polo team by 2-0. Morrow and Spence scored. The play was close throughout.

Senior Hockey Practice At Arena To-day

There will be a Senior hockey practice to-day at the Varsity Arena. The practice will be from four to five and all players are requested to be on hand.

Athletic At-Home Dec. 9th List Opens To-morrow

The date for the Athletic At-Home, the annual formal dance in honour of first "T" holders at the University, will be held on Friday, December 9th. As usual, the admission will be $3.00 per couple, and, with the attendance strictly limited, it is necessary for those intending to take in this function to sign the list at the Athletic Offices immediately. The list will be opened at the Athletic Offices to-morrow (Wednesday).

Dents Meet Forestry in First Mulock Play-off

Rugby at Varsity seems to be nearly over as the Mulock Cup play-offs have arrived. The first game is at 2.30 p.m. to-day at the Stadium with Dents meeting Forestry.

WITH THE THEATRES

Lloyd last night. The feature picture, "The Gingham Girl," is a large bowl of hoocy, but gives George K. Arthur a chance to show his skill in brash young fella parts.

THE UPTOWN

In "The Magic Flame," Ronald Colman may be seen at his best. The fearless French legionary of "Beau Geste" demonstrates the rare ability, which is his, to fill the roles of circus clown, passionate lover and Libertine Count, just as dextrously as he fills the role of intrepid soldier in "Beau Geste." At one moment he is "Tito," the king of clowns, delighting the hundreds who flock to Old Baret's Circus; at another he is the impassioned true-love of his Bianca; and at still another moment he is the Count Carlo Casati, the recipient of the royal pomp of "Royalists with roses and Republican with raspberries." In all these roles, Ronald Colman displays the dramatic excellence and the maturity of craft which marks the real actor. Vilma Banky, the object of his affections, evinces in the same degree a sincerity of purpose that seldom fails to invite our sympathy. Throughout the picture can be seen the gradual development of a well-ordered plot and the culmination of a clearly defined romance.

Featuring in Jack Arthur's Uptown Stage Band performance is Eddie Hanley, guest conductor, who fairly captivates his listeners by his pleasing manner, his direct communion with his audience, and his splendid execution of a delightful and varied programme of artists. This week's bill at the Uptown provides one with three hours of genuine entertainment.

GREEN STOCKINGS—VICTORIA
"Green Stockings," a polite comedy by A. E. W. Mason, is presented by the Malcolm Fassett Players at the Victoria Theatre this week. The announcement on the programme that "Green Stockings" had been "played with great success by the famous Canadian actress Margaret Anglin" is almost entirely unnecessary, for the play is just the nice, sweet lady-like type of schnitzel in which the Mile. Margaret was wont to scintillate. The play has no amazing faults, and the same amount of genuine dramatic value. It is just nice, clean, wholesome entertainment of 1905 vintage wherein a girl who had been treated by her refined family as an unmarriageable responsibility achieves domesticity. Just like a girl friend of ours, she created a fiancé of military mien out of thin air, whereat her family is jubilant and appreciative. Of course, her myth comes to life, and a fine military gentleman finally appears, after his reported decease, and makes the now-appreciated Celia, Mrs. Col. John Vavassour-Smith.

If the play is relatively unimportant, the acting is good without exception. A most amusing bit of ineptitude is contributed in the last act by Miss Viola Roache as the genial aunt of the heroine. Helene Sinnott as the unmarried Celia is quite fine, and good support is contributed by Eugene Wellesley, Malcolm Fassett, Hal Thompson, Halbert Brown and Margaret Doty.

The settings are fine, and should be, for the wait between acts is interminable. "Green Stockings" is a nice amusing play in which grandmothers could be taken with safety and delight.

NUT WEEK AT THE TIVOLI

Romanelli and his Melody Maniacs (I.Q. .023) use high pressure methods in putting over their orgy. They work hard and enjoy every minute of it. An ideal entertainment for preadolescents and maturer persons with childhood fixation. For we others, bewildered and headaché. This reads sourly, but the present reviewer captured no coloured balloons. This week Luigi's confederates percolate through the wings dressed in costumes ranging from Grenadiers to Federal stone-breakers. The piano end-men embody the now rather counter-soiled Smith Brothers.

The picture, chosen for its appropriate title "The Poor Nut," contributes to the collegiate legend launched by H. Lloyd. It has several hot touches irrelevant to the main thesis as when an undertaker is shown at the shop door idling with a fly-swatter. Charlie Murray is excellent as the Irish coach. The sight of him wandering in frantic circles vainly looking for something to hurl at a gentleman who jostled him was balm to a troubled spirit.

The news reel is excellent, containing amongst other things glimpses of sky-writers at school.

O yes—and there is a twelve-year-old film of Mary Pickford and King Baggott. It is part of Salvation Nell, we are told, and is dolled up with smartish captions to show how far we have come.

The Tivoli has gone irrevocably Romanelli. In our opinion, the uncrowned "King of Jazz" should be crowned forthwith.

T.T.C. EXECUTIVES GUESTS OF ENGINEERING SOCIETY

Schoolmen Learn Toronto Fares Lower Than Average in American Cities

The Toronto street car fare is one and three-quarter cents less than the average American street car fares, Detroit being the only city with a lower rate. This is what Mr. Tate, Assistant Manager of the T.T.C., said yesterday afternoon at the second meeting of the Engineering Society.

Mr. Tate and Mr. Harvey, the General Manager of the T.T.C., are both School men and have quite a large staff of School men spread about in the different departments.

The average street car fare in Toronto is 6.16 cents; of this 2.12 cents goes to the interest on investment, 2.12 cents goes to the conductor and motorman, .82 goes to power.

C. O. T. C.

Owing to the large number of students attending the first lecture of the Infantry Course held last Friday, it would be mutually advantageous if some of these could attend at 2 o'clock on Thursday afternoons for "A" Certificates and at 3 o'clock on Thursdays for "B."

It would greatly assist matters if students able to attend the Thursday lectures would send their names to Headquarters, 184 College Street, at a very early date.

CAMPBELL MCINNES CONDUCTS SONGSTER

Old English Ballads Prove Enjoyable Feature of Occasion

Mr. Campbell McInnes, having come up from New York expressly for the purpose, conducted the first of the Sunday evening songsters Sunday night in the Music Room, Hart House. In addition to the programme announced in Friday's issue, Mr. McInnes introduced two Old English ballads. The first, "The Bob-tailed Mare," was trotted, galloped and run to a state of breathless exhaustion; the second was "The Tale of Robin," a thrush whose "wife turned out to be not of the best." Both of these were sung antiphonally. The final number of the programme, "Let us take the road," from "The Beggar's Opera," will be supplemented in later songsters by other numbers from the same work, in the hope that toward the end of the season a whole songster may be devoted to selections from Gray's magnus opus. Mr. McInnes closed the songster with a short talk on the evolution and value of folk-songs, more particularly English folk-songs.

Junior U.C. and Dents Will Tie Up in Water Polo

This afternoon at 5.30 Junior U.C. play Dents the water polo game which was postponed from last week. This promises to be one of the best games of the series, and will have an important bearing on the winner of the section. Both teams have yet to be beaten, although Junior Meds almost did the trick against U.C.

H. Heithington and L. Latchford will be the officials.

BISHOP SMITH'S ADDRESS

come the sons of God. Only the reception of God through Jesus Christ by the Holy Ghost can make us men."

Nicodemus had deemed the knowledge of his Saviour worth more to him than "truth, education, wealth, possession, position," said the speaker. He was a philosopher, and his estimation of values was a lesson to every man who took upon himself that name. The power of prayer was stressed by the Bishop. He regretted the fact that many fine men in the army, men whom he would like to have beside him in a tight corner, never offered prayers to God. "They drink of a stream of which they do not possess the source; their descendants could never be the men they themselves were if they neglected spiritual development." In conclusion the Bishop tried to come to some solution regarding our existence. "How shall we live this life? Linked with God and abiding, we shall be abounding."

The Bishop declared that he would carry back to England happy memories of Hart House, both of the swimming pool and lecture room, where he had just concluded a half-hour talk. With reference to the building itself, he said: "There is nothing like it in the British Empire."

Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Michigan's state golf champion, instructs the women of the University of Michigan in that game at the university golf course. She has served on the women's physical education staff in this capacity for three years without pay.

dents are backed by their parents who impart the startling information that they are only young once—carpe diem. Do they reflect that all of us will perhaps spend fifty years out of college, and in the latter twenty may not be able to enjoy ourselves at all owing to our general skittishness at college?

The Varsity is an excellent representative of the great insincere. Count the front-page items describing teas, dances dinners and athletic events as opposed to the events of practical value.

The enigmatic and ubiquitous N.A.B. is also a stalwart of the Khayam aggregation and both in his daily column and his theatre reviews shows himself a seeker of the dross rather than the true gold.

I beg indulgence for this crepe-like effusion. Personally I enjoy a show or dance as well as any, but I have also an eye to the future. I intend to retire wealthy at fifty and gloat over the poor unfortunates who once read this letter, sneered and passed on. I am,

TROPICAL AFRICA IS NOT THE GRAVE OF THE WHITE MAN

Sir Gordon Guggisberg Gives Details of Gold Coast Life

QUICK ECONOMIC GROWTH

Education and Health Are Run
According to Native
Standards

A crowded hall listened to Sir Gordon Guggisberg speak about "African Problems," in Hart House yesterday. Sir Gordon is a native of Ontario. He has served in Africa for twenty-five years and is now Governor of the Gold Coast.

The speaker began by showing the economic importance of the British West African States to the Empire. Last year the Gold Coast alone had a trade of three hundred and fifty million pounds. Most of this trade is due to the development of resources such as lubricating materials that cannot be easily secured elsewhere.

Sir Gordon declared that the idea that tropical Africa was a white man's grave was all nonsense. The white death rate for 1926 was only 124 per thousand. Of course care must be exercised. For instance, if a man likes drink, he must not go there, for he would soon have to return.

The country has reached different stages of civilization in different sections. The ideal of the British Government was not to impose a western civilization on the colony but to develop African civilization to a high state by working through the natives. To that end the interior states had local self-government, though there was a British representative in each state to advise the people on matters of health, government, public works, and industry. The British are only trustees of the African colonies. The country belongs to its inhabitants, who

MAESTRO J. CARBONI PRESENTS PROGRAM

NOW TEACHES SINGING

The Spanish-Italian Club was most fortunate last evening in obtaining the services of Maestro J. A. Carboni, who not only had charge of the entire musical programme at Wymilwood, but acted as accompanist as well.

Signor Carboni, who is at present a teacher of singing in Toronto, was born in Venice, Italy. He commenced the study of music at an early age, and at twenty was an orchestral conductor. In Paris he received the titles of "Officier d'Academie" and "Officier de l'Instruction Publique." He is also a "Membre de la Societe des Auteurs et Compositeurs de Musique," having composed two operas.

For some years Signor Carboni has turned his attention to the vocal art, and last evening the programme was given by his pupils—Mr. Irving Levine, baritone; Miss Jeanne Hesson, soprano; Signor Giuseppe Ventrella, tenor; and Miss Marguerita Nuttally, soprano coloratura. The programme was entirely in Italian and Spanish.

The next meeting of the Club will be held December 13, when Dr. Craigie will give an illustrated talk on Spain, and Mrs. Craigie will sing.

SENIORS RIDICULOUS COMPARED TO FRESH

U.C. Parliamentary Club Upholds the Dignity of the First Year

ELECTIONS ARE HELD

That the Senior cuts a more ridiculous figure than the Freshman was the conclusion reached at the meeting of the U.C. Parliamentary Club yesterday afternoon, when the Government's motion of "Resolved that in the opinion of this House the Senior is more ridiculous than the Freshman," was carried by a majority of three. Freshmen in stockings and pants were depicted by Mr. MacGregor, the newly elected premier, but Seniors were more ridiculous since they stay only through lack of initiative of getting out.

Mr. Currie, leader of the opposition, claimed Seniors the most noble people in the world and hoped to be one next year by the grace of God and the Registrar. Hart House Masquerades were held up as the height of the Seniors' foolishness.

It was claimed by Mr. Plumtre that since the Premier had failed to make an ass of himself, it showed the Seniors were not ridiculous, and therefore the motion should be defeated. Several members spoke from the floor when the matter was thrown open for discussion.

Mr. MacGregor in conclusion replied that the Senior is seen at the most assine point of his college career the night of the graduation dinner.

In the division which followed, three members bolted on the Government, but the motion carried 13-10. Elections were held and the following elected.—Mr. MacGregor, Premier; (Continued on page 4)

ATHLETIC AT-HOME GIVEN IN HONOUR OF "T" HOLDERS

Only Social Activity Where Athlete and Scholar Meet on Common Ground

That the list for the Athletic At-Home to be held on Friday, December 9, would be closed after three hundred names had been received was indicated by the committee in charge yesterday afternoon.

Though the list was over-subscribed last evening, it was pointed out by W. M. Masters that it was advisable that the number attending be limited to that of a year ago in as much as the function was purely in honour of "T" holders in the University, and it is desired that they and their friends receive the best accommodation possible.

With the scattered faculties of today the Athletic At-Home, recognized as the best student formal dance of the season, is the only social activity where the athlete and the average undergraduate come into contact. Though the committee is making special arrangements this year in regard to decorations and music, the price of admission will remain at $3.00 a couple.

Professors Will Trust Undergraduates

CO-EDS' DESIRES

Many Demand More Food at Dances

That students had passed the peak of their fad for social activity about two years ago, and things were now settling down to a quieter regime, was the opinion voiced by Professor DeWitt, Dean of Victoria College, when interviewed by "The Varsity" in reference to the letter written by "Postumus" which appeared in yesterday's issue of this paper.

Principal Hutton of University College, while not making exactly the same remark, believed that social activities, which are inevitable with a co-educational institution, were fewer than in the past, and believed that the pendulum, if it had not reversed itself, would at any rate soon do so, not through any action on the part of the faculty, but that present craving for excitement would pass away of its own momentum.

The Dean of Victoria College was quite in accord with the statement of Principal Hutton that the present fad for frivolity could not be attributed to the after-effects of the war. Professor DeWitt went on to explain that the emancipation of women from so many of their duties by modern discoveries and inventions had much to do with the attitude of those of the present day. Short skirts are not to be blamed on morals, or lack of them, but upon well-heated houses, heated busses and other means of transportation which makes it absolutely unnecessary for women to swathe themselves in yards of flannel as of yore. In other words, it is an industrial revolution to which we must attribute the changed attitude of the people and students of to-day and not to the effects of the war. The sewing machine and the typewriter are two inventions made within the last one hundred years which have changed women's relations towards their social life enormously. To these may be added the names of a legion of other inventions and discoveries which have relieved women of many

Long Line-ups Linger No Longer Lucky Lot System Now In Vogue

One conversion from the line-up system to distribution by lot features the methods of handing out the tickets for the Hart House Masquerade by the various faculties this year.

Victoria College, long the stronghold of the stand-in-line system, gave out its apportionment of tickets by lot for the first time this year. This faculty had been the scene of many a notable queue in years past, and opinions varied as to the replacement of the old method. The lot system, however, now obtains in most of the faculties with two notable exceptions, S.P.S. and the faculty of Dentistry. The drill sergeants on College Street turned out in force for their Indian file exhibition to secure the precious pasteboards. The most spectacular breadline was as usual provided by the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. The hardy Engineers have come to look on the line-up for Masque tickets as a traditional rite and an additional proof of their virility. The boys from the red mill certainly did their stuff this year.

On the appointed day they began turning out at four in the afternoon.

MISSION ENDEAVOUR IN DISTANT LANDS THEME OF LECTURE

Bishop Taylor-Smith Delivers
Farewell Address to Big Meeting

PRESENT YEARLY REPORTS Jubilee Year Meeting Best in Entire History of College

The annual meeting of the Students' Mission Society of Wycliffe College was held last night and proved to be the most successful in years. An attendance of over 500 bore witness to the widespread interest in the meeting, and the main speaker of the evening, Rt. Rev. Bishop Taylor-Smith, K.C.B. The meeting was opened by the singing of a hymn, followed by the reading of a lesson by Professor Mercer-Wilson. The President, Mr. W. R. Sproule, in a few well-chosen words, welcomed all those present and then called upon the secretary, Mr. R. M. Weekes, for his report. This was ably delivered, and the work of the society for the past summer was then outlined by Messrs. C. F. Heathcote, H. R. Hunt and E. S. Otley in a clear and lucid manner, as typified by their experience in the summer missions that they undertook.

Dr. C. V. Filcher then gave an inspiring clarinet solo from Mendelssohn's Hymn of Praise, which was greatly appreciated.

The Bishop took as the text of his address, "The habitations of the heathen are filled with cruelty," drawing a comparison between the lament of Elisha and the call of the mission field of to-day. He spoke of his work in Sierra Leone and Uganda in order to illustrate his point.

Following this address a hymn was sung, and the principal spoke briefly of the work and needs of the society and the great part played by it in the life of the students.

The Doxology was then sung, and the Bishop closed the meeting by pronouncing the benediction. Thus concluded the jubilee meeting, the finest in the annals of the society.

Long Line-ups Linger No Longer Lucky Lot System Now In Vogue

The lists filled as the names were taken down at seven-thirty. At ten o'clock the chemical conquistadores, the geological greathearts and the mechanical Montezumas returned and saw the night through until the day broke and the shadows flew away and rosy fingered Dawn came skipping over the campus to end the long siege. All of which means that the Engineers who had been asked in advance were not disappointed and deposits on costumes were not forfeited. Seniors who had not gone before were well looked after in some faculties. Whether they had gone before or not, Seniors had first choice of tickets at Trinity College and St. Michael's, while the odds were heavily in their favour at Victoria and comparatively so at U.C.

As usual the Freshman's lot was not a happy one. His chances of getting a permit in U.C. were those of a selling plater against Sir Harry. St. Michael's provided all of three tickets for the members of the first year, while traditions were rudely jolted at Trinity when the powers that be allowed the frosh two tickets instead of one.

As this is an open meeting, all students of the University, including ladies, are welcome to attend.

NEW PICTURES HANG IN WOMEN'S UNION

Varied Group of Pictures Cause Varied Comment on Respective Qualities

LENT BY GROUP OF SEVEN

"A French Canadian Village" is probably one of the most striking of the pictures which, loaned by members of the Group of Seven to the University College Women's Union, have recently been hung in the dining room. Accepting the definition of art as "an intensification of the object," this picture would seem a somewhat violent expression of that desire for intensification. Yet there is undoubtedly a charm about the quaint village with its steeped church and low-lying hills in the background.

Two pictures by A. Y. Jackson, "Jasper Park" and "Autumn," are less intense, although the latter is vivid in colouring.

J. E. H. Macdonald and Lauren Harris show in an unusual manner the elemental forces which underly nature, the subjects of Mr. Macdonald's pictures being "The Rocky Mountains" and "The Element." The pictures by Lauren Harris display the characteristics of all his more recent work—simple and clear lines and colours. In his "Sunrise on Lake Superior" his happy choice of subject has made possible that accommodation between the concrete material in which the artist is working and the emotion which the particular scene has created in him, which is, in Mr. Harris' opinion, essential for a perfect picture. The same might be said of "Afternoon Sun," where a vivid impression of brightness and light is given in spite of the bare grey tree trunks starkly outlined against the sky.

"Red Pines," by Carmichael, and "Before Rain," by A. J. Casson, complete the group and attract many admirers because of that quality of representation, the lack of which, in the others, is felt by the more conservative.

Last night in the Library of Trinity College, Professor S. A. B. Mercer, C.E., D.D., Ph.D. (Munich), delivered the second lecture in his series on "The Ancient Orient." The first lecture in the series, on Egypt, was given on November 8th. The subject of last night's address was Babylonia, and the third, on Assyria, will be given on Tuesday, Nov. 22.

The lectures are all illustrated by coloured slides, which illustrate the ancient architecture and present scenery of the countries being discussed.

GAVE SECOND LECTURE

Discovery of Planets Due To Accidents in Mathematical Calculations

Professor C. A. Chant last night delivered before the Royal Astronomical Society the second of a series of three lectures on "Elementary Astronomy." Mr. A. F. Hunter, the President, conducted a short business meeting and introduced the speaker.

Dr. Chant told the story of the planetary system, illustrating by means of a new set of well-assembled slides. Dealing first with the earth, he went over the arguments, which proved that the world was round. By means of photographs taken in the world's largest observatory, Mt. Wilson, Dr. Chant explained the markings on the surface of the moon, pointing out the mountain ranges, valleys and so-called seas.

Taking the planets in order, their relative sizes and weights were shown, and comparative distances from the sun. The phases of Venus were shown to be similar to those of the moon, and its appearance as an evening and morning star, explained by its proximity to the sun.

Dr. Chant told how the planet Uranus was discovered by accident and Neptune by mathematical calculation. Astronomers felt that some body was acting upon Uranus and causing it to deviate from its calculated path, and so the orbit of the supposed body was plotted and Neptune found.

Finally Dr. Chant described the asteroids and meteors, giving some interesting slides of comets and falling stars.

The third lecture of the series, on "Stars," will be given at the next meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society.

LATIN DISCUSSION HELD AT VICTORIA

First Meeting Characterized By Latin Spelling-bee and Sing-song

PAPER GIVEN BY MR. GOULD

The Victoria Classical Group held their opening meeting for 1927 in the Annesley T Room last evening. Owing to illness, the Chairman, Mr. Stevenson, was unfortunately unable to be present, but Miss Irwin, as vice-president, substituted.

The programme was varied, the first year members providing musical entertainment. Mr. Gould of 279 read an amusing paper on Martial, the famous Latin epigrammatist, while Miss Stevens was good enough to relate a few humorous anecdotes of her teaching experience.

A novelty feature of the evening was a Latin spelling bee, under the direction of Mr. Gould, which created much consternation among the group members. A Latin sing-song, led by Mr. Westington, completed the programme, after which refreshments were served by the members of 370.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1927.

THE VIEWPOINT OF THE W.C.I.A.U.

That the time may soon come when the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union will be asked to change its name is indicated by the fact that the President of the Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Union, speaking at a recent banquet at the University of Alberta, claimed the name adopted by the Athletic Unions of McGill, Queen's and Varsity to be a decidedly misleading one, and then continued to state that he considered the matter one that the western representatives might well bring up at a meeting of the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

The claim was made that inferences from the name are far from fair to either eastern or western universities not represented in the Union. The W.C.I.A.U., directing all inter-university sport of the four western provinces, feels that it has a distinguished record,—one that compares favourably with the east, and that the title of Canadian Union here is misinterpreted by those uninformed with the exact status of our sports and our universities. And, it is claimed, it is highly probable that the Maritime Colleges would appreciate any action that would place the other universities of the Dominion on a less anomalous position.

The Gateway, the official organ of the University of Alberta, points out one obvious answer on the part of the C.I.A.U. to such a protest,—that the name of the Union, like the name of a new brand of molasses, say, is the property of the first claimant. But that is not the sole answer nor explanation that might be given. When our own Union was formed some thirty years ago it seemed more than probable that the larger universities in Ontario and Quebec would alone be in a position to carry on inter-university athletics for many years. But as time went on, expansion came, and the smaller colleges of Ontario and Quebec were admitted to various sections of the Union according to their proven qualifications and their expressed desires. And so it is that, to-day, the Union is at all times prepared to admit to membership those student bodies who seek affiliation, and who are able to carry on in equal terms to those bodies already members.

Of course, the true Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union would be one embracing all qualified universities from coast to coast, but the breadth of our Dominion and the necessary travelling expenses, and the time that team trips would entail from lectures, renders at the present time such an association prohibitive. In any case, it would appear that the matter is one that might shortly be brought up for local discussion, and, from the viewpoint of the westerner at least, fully merits detailed consideration.

WHERE ARE WE?

During the summer months, presumably for the sake of Convention visitors and students in summer courses, we find maps of the University posted at the entrances to University property, but as soon as the October session begins, the maps give place to advertisements of special lectures and organ recitals. We are not, of course, objecting to the advertising of lectures and recitals, but it is our wish that advertising need not eclipse such valuable guides as maps would prove themselves.

It may, of course, be felt that the more or less permanent population of the academic year has no need for help of this kind, but we disagree with that feeling. Although fourth year students might be expected to "know their University," we are sure that many of them would be quite perplexed were they asked the location of the Department of Social Service, or that of Public Health Nursing. If this is true for the Seniors, what of the first year men and women, who have been suddenly introduced into this maze of buildings which constitute the University of Toronto? Here, certainly, a directory in the form of a map would be of great assistance.

Our visitors, too,—and here we mean not special visitors who are rushed by a Committee of Attendants from place to place, but casual, unheralded guests—would find their tour of inspection much simplified if it were "mapped" out for them at their entrance to the University. Then there is to be considered the large number of tradesmen who visit Varsity every day. To them, surely, a plan of the buildings would be a great convenience.

Hence it would appear that should the authorities decide to leave the official maps in place after the summer vacation, their action would meet with general approval.

The Tennysonian impetus is upon us again. An antediluvian dodderer signed Postumus is in our midst with loud cries of "Fools and Frivolity!" From his own senile viewpoint he is right, and if he wants the high serenity of ancient days, he should do one of three things—register at once in Shields University, Wycliffe College, or a nice lively monastery. Two more comments and we have done. He claims that we are a seeker after the dross rather than the true gold, which is quite disproven by the fact that that until now we have never taken any interest in him. The name "Postumus" is well chosen, but the correspondent should be interred, as the atmosphere is beginning to thicken.

Dear Champus Cat,—I wrote you once.
You promptly said I was a dunce.
At least, that all who made a try
To please your senses didn't. Why?
Do you expect some brainy things?
Well, then, keep in your claws and stings.

Thank goodness, some of us can write
A verse with rhyme, and not the fright.
Ful stuff thrown out by some contribs,
That most of us wrote in our cribs.
We all can't have a nightmare dapple
To bring forth fruit like your "Pine-apple."
Your tries at serious stuff is rot.
No use in saying what is not.
Remember this, while you may seem
Extremely clever, it's a dream.
Where once I lauded you, I swear
I'll run you down and pull your hair.
Your dig was dirt. Apologize,
And be one of these humble guys.

O well do I remember, 'twas early
In September,
I was walking down the street in drunken pride,
My heart began to flutter, so I lay down in the gutter,
And a pig walked up and lay down
by my side.

With my little heart a-flutter as I lay there in the gutter,
A lady passing by was heard to say:
"You can tell a man who boozes, by the company he chooses."
And the pig got up and promptly walked away!

LEAVES
How beautiful are leaves
Flaming down the quiet ways of Pregnant with silence.

How beautiful are leaves,
Held for one expectant moment on

Then blown by a breath

The gentle pressure of a hand,
The drooping of an eye,

To live with joy—then sadly fly.

Canto VI
As Captain Ebenezer Snoot
Pursued his perilous watery route
He came at last to savage Fiji,
And felt his moral sense grow
squegee,
For in those torrid southern islands
The folk wear less than in the Highlands.

But there's no fearful sound that gripes
As do the squealing Scotch bag-pipes.
Upon the beach saw Captain Snoot
A maiden dressed in sprays of fruit
Dancing most gaily on the sand
To tunes of a wild native band
Who made a most ungodly fuss
In manner most un-Postumus.
The captain waded up in fear
And felt his end perhaps was near,
But all his moral sense grew slimmer,
He cried: "A South Sea channel-swimmer
Am I—for I enjoyed ablation
Since I did leave the Aleutian!"
Whereat the natives one and all
Swelled his story huge and tall,
Made him professor who would start
To teach the natatorial art.
They paid him sums both large and dear

For work Bill Winterburn does here;
Although his class was scant in wit
Their Dr. Porter called them fit,
Nor had he any cause to mock
The Molloycoddle and the Crook.
Enough—our poem grow acrimonious,
Part Seven will be more harmonious.

DENTS BEAT FORESTRY IN FIRST OF MULOCK CUP PLAY-OFFS

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Varsity hockey fans have no need to worry about their team this year if the quantity of material out for the first two practices is any guide. There were too many men to practice in one hour, and a second hour had to be secured. The Senior squad has been divided into two outfits, one practising from five to six and the other from six to seven.

Almost all the old stalwarts are in uniform again, and with the new men who are out, the squad should go a long way. Richards, first year captain, has not put in an appearance as yet, but he will be out in a day or so. Devins, who played on the Seniors two years ago, is also expected out. Whitehead will not be able to practice for at least a couple of weeks, but he will be out then and team up with Kirkpatrick on the defence.

The basketball club has a real trip lined up for the Christmas holidays, and it is little wonder that the boys are fighting hard for a place on the team. This jaunt to the American College is regarded by many as a mere joy trip, but this is a wrong conception. The boys will be up against some strong teams in the Colleges across the line, where basketball ranks as a major sport next to football, and the competition with these teams should do them a world of good.

The first of the Mulock Cup play-off games has been played, and the second is scheduled for to-day. These games are productive of some real rugby despite the fact that the Mulock Cup series has been labelled "The worst rugby series in the world." The person who coined that phrase must have seen a very poor sample of Interfaculty rugby. Many of the teams in this series could give intermediate teams a real battle. It is to be hoped that the boys who are playing in the Interfaculty series receive the support that they are entitled to in the coming games. The support so far this season has been good, and now that the finals are drawing close, the interest should be keen indeed.

RUGBY CLUB ELECTIONS TAKE PLACE ON 28th

The annual meeting of the Rugby Club will be held in the Lecture Room, Hart House, on Monday, Nov. 28th, at 5 p.m. This meeting is open to all members, but voting members are restricted to the following: (a) Players of this Club who were registered in the C.I.A.U. during the past season (i.e., members of the Intercollegiate teams); (b) two playing members from each faculty and college who entered teams in the Interfaculty series during the past season; (c) members of the outgoing Executive.

Nominations must be made in writing signed by two voting members of the Club and filed with the Secretary of the Athletic Association not later than Monday, Nov. 21. Those nominated to any office must be members of the Athletic Association in good standing and at the time of nomination registered in the second or a higher year.

Dents: Moser (capt.), Brock, Barker, Merrell, Coupland, Walden, Model, Stodgell.

Varsity Basketeers Plan Two Extensive Trips During Next Month

EXHIBITION GAMES

The Varsity basketball team is fast rounding into shape. No one as yet has received a definite assignment on the team, and the men on the squad are still fighting for position. With another month of this preliminary training, plus the American training trip, the aggregation should prove a serious threat in the Intercollegiate race.

The American trip this year is one of the best that the men have had to look forward to. All types of teams will be encountered, in both clubs and universities. The Varsity squad will also find it interesting when they run up against Syracuse and Colgate, two of the strongest teams in the East.

The team will leave for a short trip before Christmas, when the following games will be played:—

Dec. 16—University of Buffalo.

Dec. 17—Colgate University.

Dec. 18—No game.

Dec. 19—Canisius College, Buffalo.

Dec. 20—Niagara University.

After the Christmas vacation the squad starts on the big end of the trip, when they will engage the following teams:—

Jan. 2—Syracuse University.

Jan. 3—St. John's College, N.Y.C.

Jan. 4—St. Francis College, N.Y.C.

Jan. 5—No game.

Jan. 6—Pratt Institute, N.Y.C.

Jan. 7—Savage School of Physical Education, N.Y.C.

Jan. 7—Stevens Institute, N.Y.C.

Jan. 8—No game.

Jan. 9—No game.

Jan. 10—Crescent Athletic Club, N.Y.C.

Jan. 11—Montclair A.C., Montclair, N.J.

Jan. 12—No game.

Jan. 13—No game.

Jan. 14—Buffalo A.C., Buffalo.

As may be seen from the above list, the team has a heavy schedule ahead of it. However, ample time has been allowed for rest, so that the boys should receive nothing but benefit, both in condition and experience, from the trip.

FORESTRY DEFEATED IN ONE-SIDED GAME

Dents Prove Their Mettle and Completely Outclass the Lighter Squad

TOUCHES PILED UP

In the first game of the play-downs for the holders of the Mulock Cup, the heavier and better trained Dental squad crushed the Forestry hopes by a 31 to 1 score. The Tree-men held the Extractors fairly well for the first part of the game, and the score at half-time was but 4-0. From then on it was a mere parade and the score rolled up by fives.

Dents so outclassed their opponents that the whole team seemed to be stars, while on the other hand the Green-shirts looked mediocre. Sinclair undoubtedly was the best man on the field, as he punted exceptionally well and made several long dashes from 20 to 50 yards. Dick Moore at quarter also turned a good game, his speed coming in very handy in running back punts.

The first touch came in the third period when the heavier Dents merely pushed their way down the field. At one point the Tall-Timers failed to take advantage of a break when they picked up a loose ball 15 yards from the Grinders' line. Later Sinclair romped through for 50 yards and then kicked for a point. Score 10-0.

The Forestry line failed to withstand the heavy bombardment, and soon Sinclair again "romped" 35 yards for a touch, which Moore converted.

Illegal interference was not closely checked up on, and at times men were blocked off the line of scrimmage. A very pretty play was pulled by Moore of Dents. While the attention of the opponents was taken with a supposed plunge, Sinclair ambled out to the wing, and on the delay took a long lateral pass and again "romped" 30 yards for a touch. Forestry's lone counter came after Dents were penalized a total of 25 yards and an attempted side went for a rouge. Score 21-1.

Lappin had a hard run when he picked up a loose ball near the Forestry line and had to go 90 yards before getting a chance to stop behind the posts. Runs of from 20 to 30 yards by McDougall, Moore and Sinclair got Dents in position for a safety play. When the drop-kick did not function properly, a man who was inside trotted up to recover the ball for a touch. That finished the scoring at 31 to 1.

CO-ED GYM JOTS

The effect of the new ruling prohibiting a girl from playing more than one kind of sport before Christmas and one after is being keenly felt among the basketball and baseball teams. Those who indulge in both sports are torn between two fires, and are finding it exceedingly difficult to decide to which team they will be true.

Especially unfortunate is the U.C. baseball team. Four of their members have elected to play basketball, leaving the nine-man team seriously depleted. A violent S.O.S. call was sent forth before the game with St. Mike's and the girls responded so gallantly that U.C. were able to go through for a decisive win.

This new ruling will give many more girls the chance to try out and have some hope of making a college team. Also it will arrange matters so that athletics do not take too much time from any one girl.

Juniors Will Turn Out For Hockey Practice at 1 p.m.

The following will be the Juniors requested to turn out at the Arena at 1 p.m. to-day:—Berwick, J. R.; Billson, A. G. L.; Champagne, E. T.; Drury, H. A.; Edwards, G. A. M.; Fotheringham, M. S.; Finnigan, J. J.; Finningley, E. F.; Funston, R. O.; Greer, R. T.; Hopper, W. T.; Klein, A. O.; Laing, J. H. C.; Hunnisset, F. W.; Little, C. H.; McDonnell, W. S.; Malcomson, S.; Mallon, G. T.; Middleton, K. T.; Moan, H. O.; Preston, F.; Smith, N. L.; Starr, R. N.; Thrush, D. C.

Aside from the one-sidedness of the play, it was a good game, and the incipient Dentists yelled their heads off, while the Woodsmen were decidedly silent.

Line-up:— Forestry: Snap, Cuoloch; insides, Andrews, Mellow; middles, Buelthee, Matthews; ends, Simpson, Start; flying wing, Robinson; quarter, Francis; halves, Leslie, Wylie, Parker; subs, Clarke, Flott, Nalka, Barnes.

Dentistry: Quarter, Moore; halves, Hudson, Sinclair, Chalmers; flying wing, Brown; snap, Lipson; insides, Grant, Luzine; middles, Lappin, Keenan; outsides, Hawtin, Roland; subs, Layter, Massiello, Merriott, Knowles, Shaver, McDougall, Jolofsky, Krysch. Officials: King and Park.

FIRST AID TO THE INJURED

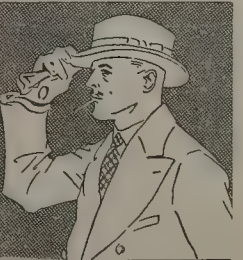

Especially important when the injured is the very best pair of silk stockings that have been carefully hoarded for party wear and the injury takes the form of a run that simply can't be mended.

At least that used to be the story. Now—just bundle them up and bring them down to Eaton's Hosiery Department. There, for a moderate price, you may have those ugly runs repaired so that they are practically invisible. And just think of the saving.

—T. EATON CO.—

Senior Hockey Practices At 5 and 6 p.m. To-day

The following candidates for the Senior hockey team will practice at the Arena at five o'clock to-day: Snyder, Whitehead, Kirkpatrick, King, Richards, Devins, Harley, Sinclair, McKnight, McMullen, Evans, Little, Legan, Crosby, Graham and Park. All other candidates will practice at six o'clock.

Candid Query Concerning Co-eds' Complicated Cooking

"Can you please tell me how to boil potatoes?"—or perhaps the query comes concerning a process slightly more complicated. Nevertheless, it comes—and it is answered satisfactorily by the Department of Household Science. This department issues a cook-book, a thing rather more popular than any other text-book. It contains recipes, all carefully tried and tested, and its popularity is well deserved, because "you simply cannot go wrong." The demand for this book goes outside the ranks of the students, the "may be" housekeepers, into the wider world of the "already are," and no one can tell what untold ailments this issue has avoided. Talk about preventative medicine! People seem to be taking advantage of this.

FAD FOR FRIVOLITY FADING DUE TO NEW ATTITUDE responsibilities and left them free to pursue an education.

Principal Hutton was not at all sure that all women at the University had come here for an education, and mentioned the fact one feminine undergrad had confided to one of Principal Hutton's colleagues that she had not come to hear him lecture but because she knew that if she stayed in the old home town she would have nothing but the Dorcas Society to attend every week, and perhaps one dance between September and Christmas, whereas down here she gets on very nicely with four late leaves a week.

Other members of the faculties interviewed were also of the opinion that if the universities did not provide and supervise the social functions the undergraduates would provide them for themselves, and probably without so much in the way of supervision.

As to the general opinion which appears to prevail among the undergraduates themselves, the majority disagree with "Postumus" and brand him as a crepe-hanger. Still he appears to have a following in some of the student body at least, who contend that while such dances as the Masquerade and the Arts Ball are important and should be preserved, we could do very well with fewer class parties and two-dollar dances, where there is nothing but weak punch and no food.

The lack of food at some of the smaller dances seems to be a sore spot for the reason that it is then necessary to charter a barouche of some sort to ferry their partner to Child's or elsewhere to receive nourishment.

Miss Franklin and Mr. Parks Are Winners at 2T8 Party

Men and women of 2T8 U.C. combined to enjoy themselves at their first party held at the Women's Union last night.

Doctor Longpre came from Quaraschi to give special lectures on Philosophy in the College as one of the visiting professors who are being brought to the College in connection with the introduction of a school of medieval studies.

In an address to the Board of Trade Club Saturday, Dr. Gordon Bates, general secretary of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, suggested periodic examination of all people over forty. As a means of stamping out communicable diseases he urged the establishment of efficient health services like Toronto. The poor and friendless should also be cared for in the interests of humanity and public health. Dr. Bates also outlined the work being done by the Social Hygiene Council in promoting health.

Carillon Programme

One more programme on the Carillon has shown the priceless value of this musical feature to the University. Sunday afternoon Mr. Percival Price, Dominion Carillonneur, again played a programme which drew auditors from all parts of the city. Cars lined the drive in front of Hart House and Hoskin Avenue.

With the many-coloured wreaths at the base of the Memorial Tablets, the Sunday programme proved a fitting aftermath to the Armistice ceremonies.

will gradually develop the ability to rule it.

After the war the officials of the colony had drawn up a budget of what they required in order to properly administer the colony. When the funds on hand were found to be insufficient, means were sought to increase the production of natural resources. In addition to this the Government had spent $39,000,000 to improve transportation. The result had been an annual increase in revenue of $14,000,000.

This increased revenue was devoted largely to improving the state of health and of education in the state; so that the Gold Coast has now the best equipped hospital in Africa and is to have the large medical university that will serve all British Western Africa. Her educational system was working very well, the object being not to Europeanize the natives but to keep them African in character.

Women Intercollegiate Debaters To Speak on System of Education

Queen's Team Oppose Varsity Here

OPEN HOUSE

Three Simultaneous Debates

The women's debating season is being opened with an Intercollegiate debate which will be held this year as an open house debate for the first time. The resolution is, "Resolved that the present system of education affords adequate preparation for modern life."

Two representatives from Toronto, Miss Nora Holden, 2T9 Victoria College, and Miss Helena McGrath, 2T9 St. Michael's College, will go to McGill to uphold the negative of the resolution, while Miss Timma Litner, 3T0 University College, and Miss Mary Winspear, 3T1 Trinity College, will uphold the affirmative of the resolution in Toronto. At Kingston two Queen's women will meet two representatives from McGill, and Miss Erna Beach and Miss Jean Royce from Queen's will defend the negative of the resolution in Toronto. Miss Eileen McCarthy, manager of the Queen's team, will accompany them to Toronto. Miss McCarthy is also the secretary of the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union.

The team from the University of Toronto is well known in debating circles here. Miss Holden spoke in an open house debate last year in Toronto and is the Victoria College representative on the executive of the University of Toronto Women's Debating Union. Miss Litner is on the executive of the University College Debating Society and has entered several debates in that society. Miss Winspear is a freshman from Trinity, who shows great promise, and Miss McGrath has been prominent in several debates at Loretto.

The subject for this debate was

"Check your overcoats." This is the dictum of Hart House authorities offered as a means of solution of the problem offered by the numerous recent thefts of overcoats, not only in Hart House, but in other colleges as well. It is impossible to make certain that only those who are in the building are undergraduates and members of Hart House only. There are half a dozen doors by which entry and exit from Hart House may be made. It is absolutely impossible for the staff to watch all these doors, and it is equally impossible to ask everyone to show their membership stamp. Ample facilities for the safeguarding of overcoats, books and hats are offered by the authorities in the Check Room in the basement, where a free service is maintained throughout the day and where in rush hours an extra man is used to take care of the increase in numbers.

Varsity Staff Hold Meeting

A joint meeting of "Varsity" staff was held in Wymilwood on Wednesday afternoon. After tea, Mr. Robson, the Editor-in-Chief, urged that the reporters acquire a newspaper style, and gave some advice to the probationers. Mr. Ryan and Mr. Sanders also spoke briefly, and a general discussion of some problems of the staff was held.

U.C. WOMEN OBJECT TO SHOWING OFF

Quotations More Favoured
For Torontonensis Than Biographies

WOULD LIKE CHOICE

Whether girls are more modest than men—less keen to "show off"—seems to be a vital question at U.C. Yesterday the girls of the Senior year held a mass meeting to discover the consensus of opinion regarding the required biographies for "Torontonensis," the University Year Book.

The requirement was that each Senior student should write a biography not exceeding thirty-five words, the substance of which should be an account of the achievements and interests of that particular person. Vehement opinions were expressed. Some felt they had no interests to relate; others that it was an opportunity merely for those who liked to talk about themselves. Those who had held important positions would be mentioned in other parts of the magazine. As an item of interest, it was felt that although the biographies might be enjoyed by the Graduating Year themselves, other readers would much prefer the old idea of "Quotations."

It was unanimously decided that a letter be written to the Editor of Torontonensis, stating the desire of the U.C. Senior women to be given a choice between Quotations and Biographies. This letter will be sent immediately.

SCIENTISTS SEARCH NOW FOR REALITY

Beginning of Discord Between Philosophy and Science

ONE-SIDED METHOD TO-DAY

"A hundred years ago the prime object of science was not to improve the quality of soap but to reveal the mind of the creator," said Professor Speakman at the University College Women's Union yesterday in his address on "Reality in Science." This was the second of a series of lectures on "The Search for Reality," of which Mr. Lismer's lecture on "Reality in Art" was the first. Dr. Speakman went on to say that in the last century the search for reality was the legitimate field of science. However, with the "Origin of the Species" and the work of Louis Pasteur, science took a different aspect. The discord between philosophy and science began. Darwin himself believed that the scientific method was not adequate enough to approach ultimate reality. Other scientists even went so far as to maintain that there was no ultimate reality to reach. The neo-Darwinians believed that the whole of life could be expressed in physics and chemistry.

However, the scientists of to-day are not so inclusive. To them the mind of man transcends the closed system of scientific method. A new set of categories must be used to deal with mental reality. We meet the unknowable in all living things and even in inanimate objects. The realm of science does not probe reality; it merely describes objects in analogies. It deals with the quantitative aspect and does not attempt the qualitative aspect of life. Science is a set of postulates which on philosophic investigation can be quite irrational. To approach the conception of ultimate reality, Dr. Speakman advised that we use more than the one-sided scientific method. We must view the whole of life from a totality of experience before we can hope to comprehend an ultimate reality.

FRANK E. BLACHFORD LEADS VICTORIA ORCHESTRA

Victoria College Orchestra, now in its eighth year, have begun practices for the coming season. F. E. Blachford, well-known Toronto violinist, is the conductor of this orchestra, which is composed of 35 pieces, including all instruments to be found in the best symphony orchestras. This orchestra is not purely a college organization, but includes representatives from all faculties. A tentative date for the first of the season's concerts has been fixed for Monday, 16th January, in Burwash Hall. An eminent vocalist or instrumentalist will be engaged to supplement the programme of the orchestra.

HEAR PROFESSORS LECTURE

Among recent visitors to the Royal Ontario Museum were thirty-seven boys and girls, school fair champions of Ontario County, who were awarded a day in the city on November 4th. They were given a talk by Professor Diamond on the exhibits of the museum of Zoology, and by Dr. Fritz on dinosaurs.

On November 9th seventy-five members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Simon's Church visited the Museum and were given a lecture on Egypt by Professor Corelli.

Forty-eight members of the American Women's Club were at the Museum on November 14th and heard a talk on Chinese Art by Professor Corelli.

The government is bringing five hundred boys, ten from each county, to the city as its guests. These boys are winners of prizes for judging livestock, grain, etc. The first of these, fifty-two in number, were in Toronto on Tuesday, November 15th, and visited the Museum. Professor Corelli gave them a talk on ancient agricultural implements.

Mr. L. L. Snyder of the Museum of Zoology has gone to Washington, D.C., to attend a convention of the American Ornithologists' Union.

WOMEN'S UNION RESOUNDS TO GAY CLASS PARTY

Last night the auditorium of the Women's Union resounded to the strains of Bunnell's orchestra while U.C. 3T0 held its first combined class party. Over two hundred students were received by Mrs. Kirkwood and Professor and Mrs. Cochran. After a couple of Paul Jones, the crowd settled down to steady dancing. The supper dance was also the lucky spot dance, which was won by Miss Margaret Frost and Mr. Frederick Saxby.

UNPOPULARITY OF LATIN IS HEATEDLY DISCUSSED

Terence and Wilde Contrasted and Compared in Second Paper

Latin in the secondary schools of Ontario was the subject of Miss Jessie Ramsden's paper, given at the Classical Association which met at Professor Dale's home last evening. "This is not the most thrilling subject in the world, but well worth the consideration of the Classical Association," announced Miss Ramsden. "Latin is the most unpopular subject on the curriculum"—which statement Principal Hutton interrupted and questioned, but was soon convinced of its truth. Miss Ramsden went on to criticize the text books used and the inferior class of teachers employed in our secondary schools. Very few of these teachers are Classics graduates and only take Latin as a compulsory subject and because of the ever present demand for Latin teachers by the school boards. The excess of military phraseology made Caesar uninteresting to the average student, and Aeneas as a hero does not appeal to the average Canadian schoolboy. Latin conversation was advocated by Miss Ramsden, but this met with disapproval from several of the members.

Mr. Paul Gardiner read the second paper of the evening, his subject being "Comparisons and Contrasts: Terence and Wilde." Mr. Gardiner spoke at length on Terence—about the cold beauty of his drama—about his magic in the use of words—the triviality of his subject matter. He translated Greek plays into Latin without any attempt at Romanizing them. "Exquisite trash"—so Mr. Gardiner characterized his plays, and emphasized the pity of clothing such incidents in such divine phrases. John Sargent's translation of Terence was an admirable piece of work.

"If Terence is over-polished in style,

Farmers Royally Entertained

Hart House is participating in the entertainment of the hundreds of farm lads from all parts of Ontario who are in the city as guests of the provincial government at the Royal Winter Fair. The boys are having breakfast at Hart House on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and have already become familiar figures about the campus with their purple badges.

Must Enter as a Child or Not at all. Is Difficult Question To Decide

IN HART HOUSE CHAPEL

"There Is So Much That Is Good
In Life, Let Us Be Glad In
It," Says Speaker

"Except a man shall enter the kingdom of Heaven as a child, he shall in no wise enter therein." Dr. J. R. P. Sclater, of St. Andrew's United Church, took this significant saying of our Lord as the theme of his discourse in Hart House Chapel at the S.C.A. noon-hour service yesterday. It was a difficult problem to decide in what way to take this remark. To the student of theology, it appears to be entirely divorced from the doctrines of "original sin" and "depravity of will." None of the disciples understood the viewpoint of their Master; they would have sent away the children to whom He gave His blessing.

The speaker declared that the average child "a mischievous imp" was hardly a logical model to be followed by those who were endeavouring to continue on the straight and narrow path. He went on to explain that Jesus probably had in mind the Sadducees, "the intellectuals of the society of his day." This people regarded religion quite disinterestedly; for them it was an abstract thing, to be discussed in a detached way. To do this was to gain a misconceived notion of religion. It was necessary, averred Dr. Sclater, to associate it with life.

Pursuing the idea of likening oneself to a child in the search for the kingdom of Heaven, the speaker pointed out that many things in life and essential to life had to be taken for granted because they were beyond human comprehension. "We can't be certain of objective reality," he said, but we cannot deny it. It was important to lay claim to all available

'GOOD THEATRE' GIVEN BY PLAYERS' GUILD

Shakespeare and Bacon Came to Life and Visited Broadway

SLANG AND BLANK VERSE

Will Shakespeare came to life at the Players' Guild yesterday afternoon, brought into being under the direction of Miss Helen Allen. In "Good Theatre" Shakespeare and Bacon pay a visit to a Broadway playhouse, and, comparing this modern product of the stage to "As You Like It," they decide that, in spite of differences, there remains the constant element of a crowd to be amused.

The strangers cannot reconcile themselves to the participation of "Women—female women" in the play, and wonder at the courage of the heroine who proves the "undaunted bounds" in her lover's "hot-dog parlour."

Shakespeare is not discountenanced by the evolution of drama. "Ah," he exclaims to his friend, "thou shouldst write plays now," and later adds, "Methinks I still might move a heart or two."

The play emphasizes throughout the discrepancy between ultra-modern American slang and Shakespearean blank verse.

VACCINATION EDICT EARNS SILENT APPROBATION

The fact that no adverse criticism has yet been voiced against the recent decision of the Caput and the Board of Governors of the University that all prospective freshmen be required either to show proof of vaccination or to be vaccinated before being permitted to register for the year 1928-29 may be taken as an indication that the Canadian people fully recognize the value of this measure as a relief from the dread scourge of smallpox. It is recognized that, with the recent outbreak in Victoria College and its successful frustration by vaccination and other precautions, the finger of wisdom pointed toward such a move. McGill had led the way in this direction with a similar ruling several years ago with results eminently satisfactory, students proving most amenable and the attitude of the general public being that of sympathy and co-operation.

According to the statement of the medical authorities here, eighty-five per cent. of the new students registering each year would be accepted under the new requirement. Of the remainder, perhaps fourteen per cent. had not been vaccinated because of indifference, lack of opportunity, or carelessness, while the small one per cent. might be rated as conscientious objectors or disbelievers, or, perhaps, children of objectors but not necessarily so themselves. It is more than probable that these latter would comply when placed on their own responsibility and initiative.

In the present day the majority of us have outgrown thoughts or appreciation of a real smallpox epidemic. We little realize its vast death toll of the past, nor do we feel the urge of taking precautions under the penalty of death. Rather, knowing the personal ravages left by the disease, are our preventive measures taken as a means of conserving beauty or appearance. It has been said that the only cure for the objector would be an outbreak such as one of those through which our forebears passed, and that the comparison of such situation with conditions as they are found to-day would be such a valid and clinching argument in favour of vaccination that it would result in the elimination of the objector.

Although the fact that there may be a slight decrease in attendance as a direct result of this regulation has been recognized, we do believe that the Board of Governors has made a wise and judicious move that should offer benefit and protection to every undergraduate within this University; one which, from a standpoint of health, will readily offset any harm caused by a small drop in the expectant number of freshmen.

OPEN-HOUSE

Since their introduction within the last few years, the Women's Open House Debates have created a great deal of interest and enthusiasm. The popular subjects have attracted many, and drawn out talent formerly latent.

Debating is an intellectual sport which ought to appeal to the University women even more than it does. At the Intercollegiate debate this year, the discussion will be thrown open to student speakers. The evening then, will offer not only an excellent debate between the representatives of Queen's and Toronto, but a chance for self-expression. It is hoped that the participation on Monday night will justify a continuance of the custom.

FLONZALEY QUARTET PLAYS AT CONVOCATION

Chamber Music At Its Best Will Be Heard

This afternoon at five o'clock the second of the series of string quartet concerts for students will be given in Convocation Hall by the famous Flonzaley Quartet. No body of players in the world of chamber music has a greater reputation; the name Flonzaley has come to be associated with all that is most perfect and finished in quartet playing. This afternoon's concert will give students a unique opportunity of hearing chamber music at its very best. Season tickets are still on sale at one dollar. Even though you have missed the first concert, you may still hear the remaining concerts of the season for the ridiculously low price of twenty-five cents each. Tickets for single performances will not, however, be sold at this concert. The programme is as follows: Haydn's Quartet in C Major, Mozart in D Minor, and Quartet by Mannes.

Flonzaley Quartet

It has been announced by Mr. Milton Blackstone that students may purchase a series of tickets for the remaining four string-quartet concerts for the sum of one dollar, making the cost of each ticket only 25c, an incredibly small price to hear such renowned musical artists as the Flonzaley, Persinger and Hart House String Quartets. The tickets may be purchased at the box-office of Hart House Theatre or at Convocation

Hall at 4.45 p.m. on the 17th of November, to-day.

At 8.30 this evening the second concert will be given by the Flonzaley String Quartet in Hart House Theatre. Surely the students of this University will not fail to show their artistic discrimination in giving enthusiastic patronage to an organization as famous as the Flonzaley, celebrated throughout the world as the greatest string quartet of the present day.

S.S. PINEAPPLE
(Canto VII)

Day after day old Captain Snoot
Saw his tuition bearing fruit,
And very soon he had developed
A band of swimmers who enveloped
The blue lagoons with blithesome antics,
And cried aloud: "Bring your Atlantics!"

With patience, peril and persistence,
Exhorting and severe insistence,
He trained a water-polo team
Whose talent made his eye-balls gleam.

He said: "I'll train these boys until They're fit to conquer old McGill,
And then perhaps I'll take them unto
The champions' home-town, old Toronto."

But down the great lagoon that day
Ten war-canoes in wild array
Sailed with invading cannibals
Who loosed their savage, awful calls.
Their spears were quite ten yards in length
And they were swung with wicked strength.

One hurled by a most savage brute
Caught on the honored seat of Snoot,
And then with warlike cries for pillage
They rushed upon the Fiji village.
To see their fierce ferocious hate
You'll have to wait for Canto Eight.

"THE FAIR CO-ED" AT LOEW'S
"The first frank story of the Varsity Freshette"—what a story—what a freshette! A freshette that never was on land or sea and her various strange antics are vividly portrayed in "The Fair Co-ed." We fail to comprehend why the movie is supposed to be a true picture of college life, but we do realize how such false impressions as are created in a movie of this type inevitably detract from the reputation of any university.

The charming freshette arrives at Bingham and proceeds to antagonize her Varsity sisters, who, by the way, are all of the flapper type so prevalent in College Humour. Her youthful infatuation for the handsome basketball coach results in her trying out for the team, of which she becomes a valued though unpopular member. The coach overhears her triumphant report to her school-mates of his

THINKS FEW ARTS MEN HAVE CULTURE

Dear Sir:

Editor, "The Varsity."

I experience a feeling of considerable elation to see the amount of space that my viewing-with-alarm letter has gained in comment in "The Varsity." As for the Champus Cat and his vitrolisms, I call to mind the old saw, "The guilty flee." I also notice that both Principal Hutton and Dean DeWitt are agreed that there is frivolity among the students, and also that the peak is passed.

However, it is extremely doubtful in my mind if more than twenty per cent. of the undergraduates in Arts will be any the better for having spent four years at college. As an undergraduate I have noticed that practically every conversation between students has to do with some jape, exploit or escapade far removed from curricular activities. The shibboleth of the male student is "What'll we do to-night? Let's go down an' wreck Child's!"

How many of the butter-and-egg men, advertising men, brokers, master-minds of finance, and other meddlers in the marts displaying the B.A. after their names can show any signs of an education? Very, very few, for the majority of these did just enough work at college to get past, read only the recommended books, and swotted heavily just before the test, spending the rest of their time at college in Frohlichkeit.

Just what amount of culture can the graduate in Arts show? Culture is avowedly the purpose of a college course, apart from practical subjects such as Dentistry, Medicine, Science, etc. Could a fourth year man in Arts tell us who Pindar, Terence, Voltaire, Goethe, Schiller, Marlowe, Bede, Thales, Agricola were? Could he answer 50% of the following:—What is I.Q.? Fabianism? Chauvinism? Eroticism? Communism? Who is Walter de la Mare? Kopeck? Memento? Sinclair Lewis?

Are there many undergraduates here working their way through college? Pitifully few. In spite of our accustomed attitude of superiority to the American universities, I venture to say that their view of college as a whole is much more serious. Are the waiters in any fraternity houses undergraduates? Do they wait on the table in restaurants? Wash windows? Do janitor work? Many here toil during the summer, but this is usually more of a mild spree.

I would like to see this have the earnest consideration of the readers of "The Varsity" and at least one member of the staff.

I am, Yours,

Postumus.

VICTORIA ENTER MULOCK CUP FINALS BY BEATING JR. S.P.S.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

An article in the McGill Daily intimates the possibility of including some College teams of across the border in the Intercollegiate hockey series. Queen's decision to drop out for a year leaves but three in the league now, so assistance from the States would be welcome. However, it is hardly probable that this will take place this year.

The autumn Interfaculty sports are quickly drawing to a close. In the Mulock Cup series only St. Mike's, Dents and Victoria remain in the running; while in the soccer series, Vic by defeating O.A.C. 1 to 0 on the round earned the right to meet the winners of Knox-Meds for the Arts Cup. And just as soon as these series are finished up, the managers of the Hockey, Basketball and Indoor Baseball squads will have their men out sweating for the various championships. After that comes studies—perhaps.

And talking about Mulock Cup games again, the question arises as to the advisability of playing these games in any or every kind of weather. Whether or not a so-called "good" brand is played, quite a bit of "stuff" goes in these games, and a more or less rough and tumble is made worse when the game is attempted to be played on a worse than muddy field. Aside from this, neither team is given a fair chance to display its wares in such quagmires.

VICTORIA WINS FIRST ROUND OF SOCCER SERIES

Will Play Winners of Meds and Knox Game

The four teams entering the finals for the Soccer Cup were Knox, O.A.C., Victoria and Meds. O.A.C. and Victoria played their first game, in Guelph, last week. They played sixty minutes of fast soccer, resulting in the score 0-0. In their final game, played here Tuesday afternoon, Victoria won the round 1-0. They will enter the finals. Meds and Knox played their first game Wednesday night, and their last game will be played on Monday, the 21st. The dates for the play-offs have not been fixed yet. However, it is certain that at least one game of the finals will be played next week.

That fencing is staging a real revival in these quarters is an undisputed fact. The number of men turning out for foil work has more than trebled in the past two years, and so it seems decidedly unfair that only one fencer has the chance to win a first "T." Until last year, the ruling allowed two to be eligible, providing they were good enough, but now that has been changed so that one is the maximum able to win his colours. To quote our old friend Bill Shakespeare, "Something's rotten in Denmark," and it is up to the men of the foil to get busy and try to have the present ruling altered. It would be only fair, because there are nearly as many fencers out as there are boxers and wrestlers combined, and the latter have at least ten chances to win colours.

The Arts Cup this year is certainly being closely contested. Vic only won from O.A.C. by scoring one goal in two games, while last night Meds and Knox battled to a 1-1 tie in their first game to provide an opponent to Victoria. These front campus games always have a bunch of rooters whose numbers vary by semi-soccer fans pausing for a few minutes on their way to and from lectures.

Varsity certainly made a good move toward the 1928 football title when Murray Snyder was elected captain. Best of luck, Murray.

Murray Snyder Elected To Captain Rugby Team

The Varsity rugby sweater bearing the number "one" will be worn next season by Murray Snyder, popular quarter-back of the squad. Murray was elected to the position yesterday after the picture of the team was taken. The new captain started his rugby career as an outside wing, but he was moved to the quarter-back position this year after Westwood was put out of the game, and he certainly made good at this position.

The University of Indiana has recently put into effect a set of rules by which it hopes to eliminate a great percentage of cheating.

VICTORIA DEFEAT JUNIOR SCHOOL

Semi-finals in Mulock Cup Series Played on Sudden Field

DOUGLAS MAKES LONG RUN

Yesterday afternoon Victoria defeated Jr. School 4-0 at the Varsity Stadium in a semi-final Mulock Cup game. A sodden field and a slippery ball made fast rugby impossible, and resulted in numerous fumbles by both sides. Time after time one team would get into a scoring position only to drop the ball, while the slippery footing greatly impeded the end runs.

Near the middle of the first period Vic obtained possession a short distance from the School line. On the resulting onside kick, Crosby fell on the ball behind the line, but the play was called back for offside.

Just before half-time, Douglas raised the spectators to their feet by a dash from his own 40-yard line to the School 10-yard line. It certainly looked as though he were away for a touch, but a School man racing up from behind pulled him down. On the next play Vic fumbled the ball and the Engineers dribbled it out to centre field. A short time later, however, Vic opened the scoring when they downed a School man behind the Green line. Vic 1, School 0.

In the last quarter Crosby got away for a nice run to the School 10-yard line, where he was pulled down with only one man to beat. This time Frame kicked for a point, which was followed at short intervals by two others scored in the same way. Vic 4, School 0.

The Scarlet and Gold were very unfortunate in losing the services of Lindsay in the first half when he received a sprained ankle. It is very unlikely that he will be able to get into the game again this season. Howe, too, was hurt when he wrenched his knee, but it is hoped that he will be in shape for the final game.

Grovener, Hancock, Wilson and McVeand were outstanding for School, while Crosby, Douglas, Howe and Hager all turned in nice games for Vic.

The line-up:—
Victoria: Halves, Crosby, Howe, Douglas; flying wing, Hutton; quarter, Cannon; snap, Armstrong; insides, Searle, Service; middles, W. Addison, Lindsay; outsides, Hager, Turnbull; subs, Frame, McDonald, Gilbert, Hart, Carson, Neild, Fletcher, Birge, P. Addison.

School: Halves, Grovener, Hancock, Clarke; flying wing, Langford; quarter, Chalmer; snap, Wilson; insides, White, McMordy; middles, McVeand, Campbell; outsides, Scott, Davidson; subs, Algie, Champagne, Watts, Little, Williamson, Smith.

Senior Hockey Players

The following Senior hockey players will practice from 4-5 to-day:—Snyder, Little, Kirkpatrick, Whitehead, Graham, King, Harley, McKnight, Legon, Stewart, Sinclair, McMullen, Lark.

The Intermediates will practice from 6.30 to 7.30.

MEDS-KNOX SOCCER GAME ENDS WITH ONE-ALL SCORE

Fast and Furious Contest in Pouring Rain Shows Good Brand of Play

In a fast and furious battle yesterday afternoon Meds and Knox College soccer teams fought to a draw in the first game of the semi-finals, the score being 1-1. In spite of the pouring rain and the heavy ball, both teams played good soccer, and the score shows how well they were matched. Knox had several chances to score in the first half of the game, frequently having the ball right in the goal mouth, but missing.

King was the outstanding player for Meds, doing some pretty defensive work in the backfield. For Knox, Roland and D. Davidson starred; Irving making some spectacular saves in goal.

The line-ups were as follows:—
Meds: Benson, King, Whitla, Nodwell, West, McKinney, Dixon, Ayres, Lee, Ririe, Tylor and Wilford.

Knox: Irving, H. Davidson, W. Jack, D. Perry, Roland, D. Jack, McCullough, Young, D. Davidson, Johnson, Kerr.

INDIVIDUALITY LOST IN GENERAL COURSE

Norah Holden Upholds Honour Courses in Polity Club Debate

PASS GIVES WIDER VIEWS

"The Pass course is a regular Cook's tour," stated Miss Mary Winespear, upholding the merits of the Pass course at the meeting of the Women's Polity Club, held in Wymilwood last evening.

"I had not the foggiest intention of entering the Pass course until I found out that the University had not the foggiest intention of allowing me to enter anything else," said the speaker. She found, however, that the course offered a wide training, resulting in a breadth of view useful in every walk of life. It was possible to skim over the work, and from an examination standpoint an inferior knowledge was sufficient, but a serious student could delve to the heart of things.

Miss Nora Holden, in upholding the Honour course, stated that an incongruous group of subjects could be selected in the Pass course, while in the Honour course there was a decided unity of thought; one central idea was developed throughout the four years. A student's individuality was crushed in the mass production of the large Pass course lectures; his independent research was hampered by the too close supervision of the professors.

The University of Toronto owes its high ranking among the universities of this continent to the standards of her Honour courses. While it is to a certain extent a matter of pride to belong to an Honour course, the Honour students derived an undoubted advantage from thus contributing directly to that which gives our Alma Mater her distinctive character.

U.C. VS. S.P.S. IS FEATURE IN TANK THIS AFTERNOON

Game at 5.30 Will Have a Bearing on Group Championship

Senior U.C. meet Senior S.P.S. this afternoon at 5.30 in what promises to be one of the best water polo games of the series. When these two teams met earlier in the season, Senior U.C. were somewhat lucky to win by 1-0. Since then the School men have been waiting for this afternoon's game. With L. Latchford opposed to Johnny Goss, both of whom are players of Intercollegiate calibre, the game should be a real battle, and will have quite a bearing on the group leadership. Junior Meds meet Dents in the 5 o'clock game.

The standing of the teams:—

U.C. Women Hold Tea at Union

A delightful tea was held Tuesday from 4 to 6 in the cosy Common Room of the Women's Union. Mrs. M. M. Kirkwood received. Mrs. Howard poured tea, assisted by Miss S. Boyd. Many students gladly accepted of their hospitality and enjoyed immensely meeting with other members of the Women's Union of U.C. and the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the dean of women.

spiritual forces, for support in the battle of life. Unless we could go to God as a child goes to its father and ask for those things of which we had need, stated the speaker, we couldn't reach our goal. He stressed the fact that God must be regarded not as an austere, forbidding deity but as a friend and advisor to whom one could go in time of trouble.

Dr. Sclater went on to say that Jesus expected us to enjoy life, as children do. For them, while existence was not one continuous dream of bliss, sadness was only a thing of the moment. The knowledge that God was watching over us would make it possible for us to take pleasure in the present. "There is so much that is good in life, let us rejoice and be glad in it," declared the speaker. He regretted the fact that much of his own boyhood had been spent in grousing, amid the Highland surroundings of Perthshire, in Scotland. "By living on the good we know, with such faith as we possess, making our claim upon God, and rejoicing immensely in the good that we have," concluded Dr. Sclater, "we would be obeying the injunction of our Lord, and living like little children. By imitating the simplicity of their minds, we would achieve that peacefulness that comes from the knowledge that God is near us."

chosen by vote of the three Universities, the executives of the Debating Society of each University being allowed two votes. The subject has been limited to the educational systems of Canada and the United States and includes the entire system from kindergarten to a college degree. Miss Rhoda Howe, President of the Women's Intercollegiate Debating Union, in giving her opinion of this subject, said it should be of great interest to a University gathering, since the whole aim in college education lies in an attempt to adjust oneself to modern life. She also felt there was too great an opportunity for various interpretations of the subject for it to be so easily debatable.

The debate in Toronto is to be held in Trinity College Library on November 21. There will be a decision by judges as well as a vote from the House, and the executive is looking forward to several speeches from the floor.

CLASSICAL ASSOCIATION

Wilde went to the other extreme." Mr. Gardiner claimed that Wilde is sadly misjudged by the majority of people, and this is because his fall was the fall of an idealist. Taking the Duchess of Padoc as an example, it was pointed out how Wilde toyed with the epigram—so that it almost became his master. In dealing with "Salome," it was described as "a play of sheer, divine, mad beauty." The Importance of Being Earnest is the one Wilde play similar of Terence's evils. It has the common device of discovery of relationship between two of the characters. Terence's characters in this type of play have the advantage over Wilde's of being true to life. Mr. Gardiner was of the opinion that The Brother and Sister were Terence's best plays. "Terence's plays are all clever, but he was capable of better things," he claimed. "If I could find a man combining Terence's subtle skill and Wilde's fire and idealism, I would have another Shakespeare," concluded Mr. Gardiner.

The papers gave plenty of scope for discussion, and Principal Hutton and Professor Norwood delighted the members with their comments. A delicious lunch was served, and the guests lingered in groups—loathe to leave such interesting chat.

The undergraduates are reminded that it is reputed that a common saying among the dead beats who frequent Simcoe and York Streets is: "Want an overcoat? Get one at Hart House." Unfortunately this advice has been acted upon only too often, in spite of the fact that some of the thieves have been apprehended and sentenced to a month or more in jail.

"easy fall" for her charms, and consequently ignores her to such an extent that she deserts the team upon whose fortunes the whole university seems to depend. The fair co-ed is made the object of scathing remarks in public by the undergrads, but she sees her duty at the eleventh hour, joins the team on the eve of its battle with a rival university, plays the game and Bingham wins.

The basketball game was an interesting one and well shown in the picture. Marion Davies took the part of a vivacious freshette very well, and the ceremonies enacted by the enthusiastic students on the eve of the game were of a unique character, as were the odd initiation rites.

But we doubt that the brand of college life as represented in "The Fair Co-ed" is true in many respects to that of the average college. The girls were each and everyone an ultra-flapper; collectively and individually they were more than rude to each other; the men openly jeered at the ill-fated star on the team in most ungallant fashion, and the star herself deserted the team for no reason but that of childish pique. Now we ask you!

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS FOR HART HOUSE MASQUERADE ISSUED

Taxis Come to South Door,
Private Cars to West Door, of Hart House

TWENTY-FOUR DANCES

No One Will Be Permitted to Enter or Re-enter House
Without Ticket

Final announcements concerning the Hart House Masquerade have been issued from the S.A.C. Office. Holders of tickets are asked to pay special attention to the regulations concerning taxis and private cars, and also to notice the location of the Cloak Rooms. It is pointed out that observance of rules will greatly minimize congestion of traffic and confusion in Hart House itself.

In order to facilitate the large number coming to Hart House on the evening of the Masquerade, all cars approaching and leaving Hart House must do so by arranged routes. Taxis will enter from Queen's Park and proceed west to the southern front of Hart House, leaving their passengers at the south-west door. They will then turn south and leave by College Street. Taxis calling for masqueraders after the dance will line up on the road around the lawn in front of the House. They will be called by number as they are wanted. When its number is called, each taxi will drive up to the south-west door from the east to get its passengers. They will turn north then and leave via the Tower and Hoskin Avenue.

Private cars bringing masqueraders will enter from Hoskin Avenue and leave their passengers at the west door of Hart House. They will proceed south through the Arch to the parking places around the front campus. Cars may be parked around the front campus on both sides of Devonshire Place and on one side of Hoskin Avenue. There will be ample parking for a limited number of cars on the road north of the Tower to Hoskin Avenue.

Private cars taking masqueraders home will get their passengers at the west door of the House. They must approach from the south through the Arch and leave via Hoskin Avenue. It will relieve the congestion greatly if guests will walk to their cars instead of waiting to be called for.

Guests are requested to have the exact fare to pay their taxis if they

COMPENSATION PROMISED FOR BAY ST. EXTENSION

Father Carr Gives Evidence at Hearing of Arbitration for St. Michael's

"St. Michael's College used to stand in one of the most secluded districts of the city, until the extension of Bay Street," stated Reverend Father Henry Carr, former president of St. Michael's College, at the hearing of arbitration Wednesday.

But several years ago, when it was decided to make a new artery, it was necessary to take over some of St. Michael's property. The city promised at the time to make compensation, but the amount has not yet been decided upon.

Reverend Father Henry Carr was called as the first witness at the City Hall, and by means of blue printed maps, showed the exact position of the grounds.

The members of the board were: Sir Thomas White, chairman; Judge Morson and F. Arnold, K.C.

Nearly two hundred editors, their assistants, and staff advisors are assembled in Convocation Hall this morning for their second annual convention. This conference is devoted to the discussion of the various problems confronting the high school journalist, and to the elevation generally of the standards of collegiate papers in Ontario. The delegates come from almost every large town and city in Ontario.

Mr. Mark L. Haas, Circulation Manager of "The American Boy," will address the Convention to-morrow morning on the various types of high school papers in the United States, and will outline the high school press associations which have been formed. Mr. Haas has had wide experience in college and general magazine work, and will be able to give a comprehensive outline of journalism in schools across the border. He will also take part in the general discussion following his address.

John M. Elson, widely known as an author and a free lance in Ontario, will also speak to the delegates Saturday morning on "From an Author's Window." Mr. Elson conducts the University Extension lectures in journalism and has achieved a noteworthy success.

Mr. J. P. S. Nethercott, of the Central Collegiate, London, will preside over the discussion on Saturday. Mr. Nethercott is the faculty advisor of the Central Collegiate journal and has had wide experience in school papers.

The technical side of the conference will be covered by field trips to photo engravers and printing establishments. Mr. George Gardiner of the Photo-Engravers and Electrotypers Limited will explain the mechanical features of publishing in

SCARLET FEVER RUMOUR DENIED

The seizure of J. C. Stevenson, a fourth year Victoria student residing in Middle House, Burwash Hall, with an attack of slight poisoning accompanied by a rash, has given rise to many stories, all unofficial, of a scarlet fever epidemic equal in excitement to the recent smallpox. Burwash officials, however, are more than emphatic in their statement that Mr. Stevenson has been suffering only from a temporary indisposition, and that yesterday evening he seemed to be as well as ever.

THEORIES AND SCIENCE SUBJECT OF DEBATE

M. and P. Society Upholds
Value of Theories for Advance of Science

"Resolved that theories are more detrimental than useful to the advancement of Science," was the subject of the debate at the M. and P. Society meeting last night. Mr. Cannon of fourth year rose to speak for the affirmative and pointed out that the propounders of old theories were so revered that those with new conceptions had great hesitancy in advancing them. Miss Watson of first year spoke on the negative, and went on to say that the efforts to prove or disprove a theory were an incentive to scientific investigation. By theory Newton extended his laws of gravitations to bodies other than the earth. Mendeleeff predicted existence of unknown compounds by theory.

GOLD COAST COLONY GROWTH DESCRIBED

Engineering Society Hears
Sir Gordon Guggisberg on African Development

4,000 MILES OF ROADS

"You have to be, if you go to Africa, not a specialist engineer, but a jackass of all trades," said Sir Gordon Guggisberg in addressing the undergraduates at a special open meeting of the Engineering Society yesterday afternoon.

About six branches of engineering are being developed in the Gold Coast colony. The topographical survey, or mapping, of the country is of very great importance, especially in laying out roads, railways and towns. The town of Takoradi was named as one of the engineering centres. The whole town was completely transformed and divided into sections—the natives' residential section, the business, the white man's section, and others. Doctors prescribed a neutral zone of about 450 yards between the native section and the others to keep the flies and mosquitoes from blowing over. This land, however, was not named neutral zone, but anything appropriate, such as golf links, parks, and public grounds. The harbour of this town is also a great improvement.

Motor roads are being built; there are now about 4,000 miles of good roads and about 8,000 automobiles to cover them.

The Gold Coast was the first colony in Africa to lay down a trunk telephone system. Wireless is being developed. The question of public health is of major importance. Large concrete market places have been built to enable the natives to display their farm products in a more hygienic manner. The installation of an electric power system has resulted in a large sale of cooking ranges to the natives.

STUDENT PARLIAMENT OF ST. MICHAEL'S HOLD FIRST SESSION

Canada's Present Status Compared With Other Parts of Empire

MOTION DEFEATED

Lively Discussion Follows
Resolution on Findings of Imperial Conference

With traditional ceremony and circumstance, the first session of St. Michael's Students' Parliament was opened Wednesday. A former speaker of Ontario's Legislature, the Hon. Nelson Parliament, was in the chair. A robed and returned Governor General, Mr. Paul Martin, was on hand, and all the customary parliamentary paraphernalia from a stiff-backed sergeant-at-arms to the inevitable page boys lent atmosphere to the affair.

The Governor-General outlined his ministry intentions, wished the project success, and formally installed Mr. Parliament as Speaker pro tem. Mr. Parliament, in turn, expressed his pleasure at the appointment and proceeded to put the motion, "That in the opinion of this House, the findings of the recent Imperial Conference finally and rightfully decreed that Canada's present constitutional status is one of equality with all other parts of the Empire."

In presenting the motion, the Prime Minister, F. J. MacNamara, traced the development of Canadian self-government since 1759. He stressed the importance of the Great War and of the constitutional crisis of 1926 in the fostering of Canadian autonomy, and quoted the conference report to support his claims of equality in status.

In opening the case for the opposition, George Power pointed out that from historical precedent no Imperial Conference has power to "decree." An Empire implies the existence of a sovereign state and a subservient state; furthermore Canada is no more the equal of Great Britain than

BIOLOGICAL CLUB HEARS ABOUT INDIA

Professor Coleman Describes Agricultural Conditions and Plant Diseases

SCIENCE RETARDED

"The great variation in climate and soil in a tropical country, such as India, leads to an amazing variety of agricultural conditions," said Professor Coleman last evening, speaking to the Biological Club at Wymilwood. Professor Coleman speaks from personal experience, as he has been carrying on biological work in India for the past eighteen years and is returning there very shortly. He stated that a large part of India is inhabited by poor people, the average size of a farm being seven acres. For this reason the introduction of scientific methods on a large scale is at present restricted. The biologist must confine himself to elementary improvements.

Another serious problem to be taken into consideration is the great variation in climatic conditions, ranging from heavy rainfall of 300 inches per annum to severe drought. These facts must be taken into account if science is to be put to a practical use in that country. Dr. Coleman stated that practically every biological

HART HOUSE, A WORLD'S STANDARD

For some time past we have proudly realized that Hart House has been upheld throughout the college centres of the United States as a model institution in which to house undergraduate activities of every nature—social, athletic, and, yes, educational. In fact, such a standard has it become that universities generally, contemplating the erection of a new undergraduate establishment, have first carefully gained a first-hand knowledge of the House. Nor has this personal interest been confined to the newer universities or colleges alone, for visitors and enquiries have often come from American seats of learning that achieved a world-wide reputation many many years ago.

But it remained for His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales and, more definitely, Stanley Baldwin, Premier of Great Britain, to introduce and acknowledge the beauty, advantages and value of Hart House to the students of a school within the British Isles. In a recent address at the University of Birmingham the British Premier was loud in his praise of this institution as providing a core to the university, a heart from which pulsed student thought and undergraduate achievement and endeavour. He continued on to point out its value as a common stamping ground where those individual members of a vast college composed of many scattered faculties might gather and converse, and thus provide a more united spirit of the whole than would in other wise be possible.

It would not be unexpected if some British university saw fit to follow the suggestion of such a man as Mr. Baldwin, nor would the arrival of a group of inspectors from the University of Birmingham now occasion any great surprise. As men who use Hart House we would welcome them. Quietly proud of the House, appreciative, with a full sense of its value to the student, we would joyously share our advantages with the undergraduate of the world. And so it is that we will greet kindly a coming delegation—one appointed by the French Government—to inspect and note the plans and layout of the House with a view to the possible erection of its counterpart somewhere in France. And if our hospitality be tainted with the thought that the University of Toronto may be about to spread a new idea, that may bring to us a greater appreciation of our own privileges together with a feeling of elation over the fact that one of our buildings has become the standard of the world, who will blame us for it?

SUPPORTS "NO QUOTATION" RULING

Editor, "The Varsity."

Dear Sir:

From the front page of yesterday's "Varsity" we discover that the women of the graduating class of U.C. are objecting to the Editor of Torontoensis because in the form suggested for biographies no place is given to quotations.

As one interested in the matter, may I make a few remarks (as briefly as possible in a discussion of such a controversial subject). First of all, I think it worth while to peruse the past few volumes of the Year Book to see the situation that has led up to the present. At one time every one struggled hard to discover some quotation that most aptly expressed their outlook upon life or work in the University or else they tried to be funny. Sometimes with success—more often with failure. Combined with this was a "history" of the graduate's previous career, telling that he was born, educated and came to Varsity. All of this is surely taken for granted by the fact that the individual hopes to graduate. Also one finds many brief biographies, while those who enter their attainments waste useful ink by the gross use of prepositions and adjectives. On the other hand, should not the University Year Book, as it gives a record of the year's progress and attainments in athletics and other activities, also give in its biographies what each graduate has done for the University and College to which he belongs. If there be those who have done nothing, either from neglect, lack of interest or vicious selfishness, the less said of them the better. If, however, they have taken an interest in their course and the University's affairs let them frankly admit it, but at least say where they helped or where their interests lay. One who has not been at the forefront of leadership can undoubtedly say that they have helped in the ranks behind, for

The Flonzaley String Quartet last evening gave a magnificent concert to a rapt audience which filled Hart House Theatre to capacity. This quartet, one of the most famous in the world, were as careful in their choice of a well-balanced programme, as they were consummate in their artistry. The first and last numbers were those of old masters, which contrasted in form and matter with the middle selection and the single encore given.

The first number was Haydn's Quartet in C Major, Op. 33, No. 3. The first movement Allegro moderato, light and fanciful on the whole, was followed by the graceful, dancing Scherzo whose lighter passages varied with others more deep in tone and meaning. The slow melody of the Adagio was carried by the first and second violins and repeated by the violoncello, and the concluding Rondo movement was fantastic and graceful, taking at times a minor tone as Haydn reached his Finale built on a cuckoo-theme, from which the Quartet takes its name, "The Birds." The artists revealed the true serenity of Haydn, a serenity born of the free play of artistic skill, and of joy in moulding the organic forces of music to the highest perfection in every detail. Mere words fail lamentably in thus attempting to convey the true abstract beauty of pure music conceived in the mind of a master, and reborn from strings pregnant with flawless artistry.

The second number, Quartet in C Minor, by L. D. Mannes, one of the younger American modernists, and a grandson of Leopold Damrosch, provided a striking and interesting contrast with the previous selection. In the first movement the composer evolves his theme with modern digressions, and closes it with the cello pizzicato in deep minor key. The second movement, Andante, is most intricate, opening with solemnity that is changed to a passionate fervour and closed with the cello sounding with the mournfulness of a muffled drum. The Scherzo is opened with the viola in tremolo, and is altered at times with a mocking and fanciful return and repetition by the violoncello. In this movement modern music is given full strange voice, with the stress and tumult of one passage changing to a deep sorrowful strain which in itself

When I was in Ottawa last Thanksgiving a strange adventure befell me, partly because I had decided to investigate the scenic beauties of the transpantine city of Hull. When parading the "Rue principale" I encountered a friend who had a very beautiful wife; she was exceedingly beautiful and almost as cultured as "Postumus." I asked my friend if he had a picture of his pulchritudinous spouse. He said that he had only one with him at the time, and it was

TIGERS FAVOURITES IN GAME WITH QUEEN'S ON SATURDAY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

It begins to look more and more as if Harry Batstone would be missing from the Tricolour line-up when Queen's take on the Tigers to-morrow in the C.R.U. semi-final at Kingston. "Red" was injured in the game with McGill and has not been out to practice this week. If it is at all possible he will be in the game, and it is to be hoped that he will be playing. The long awaited duel between Leadley and Batstone will be watched with great interest, and it is indeed a pity that the Queen's star is not in the best of shape for the contest.

Without Batstone or with a crippled Batstone, Queen's will be in a bad way. Ike Sutton, the quarter-back, is a great field general, but Batstone is without doubt one of the brainiest players in the game, and to say that his loss will be felt is to beg the question.

On the face of things, and judging by the strength of the teams on paper, Tigers have an edge over the Tricolour stalwarts. It is almost certain that the Rodden coached team will enter the game the favourites in the popular fancy. But this means less than nothing to Queen's. They have come from behind so often this season that they are used to being the under-dog in the betting and it no longer worries them.

Above everything else, Queen's has that old fighting spirit that will not say die. They play better football when they are behind than when they are leading, and that is saying something. The Tricolour simply does not know when to quit, and five or six points mean nothing at all.

The following quotation appeared in the McGill Daily as an editorial announcement:

"We do not wish to announce the resignation of Robert W. Jones from the managing board of the McGill Daily. But we have to.

"After competently and successfully superintending the 'Daily's' sporting department during the most exciting rugby season in many years, he has resigned his position upon leaving the university."

"He was in third year Commerce when he tendered his resignation as a McGill student. He was promoted to the office of sporting editor at the beginning of the 1927-28. His successor will be appointed within a few days."

We deeply regret the retirement from college journalism of the estimable Sporting Editor of The Daily. He raised the life of a Sporting Editor out of the rut and made it an adventure by his outspoken and sometimes rash statements. His most famous efforts were devoted to a war with the Queen's Journal. But being of a naturally retiring disposition we refused to be drawn into the conflict except in the role of referee, and we declare the battle a draw.

is repeated with ironical and scornful lightness, as though Mannes were mocking his own feelings, and their subtle evolution. The closing movement, Allegro Molto, opens with ineffable sweetness, and the Quartet reaches no conclusion, or finale—it simply stops, and leaves the listeners to work out the conclusion for themselves.

The third number, Mozart's Quartet in D Major, shows the influence of his master Haydn, united with his own particular genius. It possesses the aristocratic grace and perfection of form characteristic of Mozart, and is joyful in the extreme. In tribute to his royal patron, the King of Prussia, a great amateur cellist, the composer gave the cello a very prominent part. After Mannes', Mozart gives one a sense of the restoration of form and full clarity, a light daintiness of feeling without great depth or poignance. The Andante possesses a sort of pastoral sorrow, refined with conventional and courtly grace. The Minuetto is carried on dancingly with the melody rising and falling and carried chiefly by the cello, yet at times given to the other strings as the cello accompanies. The Finale is quiet and without special distinction save for its lightness of treatment and quietude of tone.

As an encore, the Flonzaley Quartet rendered the Scherzo of Quartet No. 1 by Dohnanji, one of the modern Pole composers. It is begun extraordinarily with a diabolic dancing cello-passage. Throughout the movement the cello dominates completely, haunting the other strings with its deep weird fantasy as they carry on the theme.

Appreciation of music or description of it is so very futile in words, and after all has been said, one may only conclude with the judgment after hearing the Flonzaley, that there is true greatness, perfect artistry, and flawless beauty in the abstract.

The artists of the Quartet were: Adolfo Betti First violin Alfred Pochon Second violin Iwan d'Archembeau Violoncello Nicolas Moldavan Viola

THEORIES AND SCIENCE SUBJECT OF DEBATE

Miss Quance of first year, in speaking for the affirmative, showed that for a great while theory had been detrimental to Science. The views of Aristotle were undisputed for centuries, and Galileo who contended them met with great opposition.

Mr. Scholfield of fourth year supported the negative by reminding us that although the theory of atomic structure is changing, advances have been made by use of the old theories. The discussion was thrown open to the House, and many interesting notions were advanced.

Mr. McFarlane set out to prove that both sides were in the wrong. One theory he advanced was that since the universe was made on a sensible basis, why should the sun be of such an immense size and so far away, when it could be much smaller and correspondingly nearer to the earth. Hence the sun was about 3/4 miles wide and 40 miles away. A theory was advanced that the planets were shoved about by an angel. This gave a sinner some consolation in that he was not going to miss so much after all.

Dr. Satterly maintained that the moon was of more use than the sun, since it shone at night when light was needed.

A few more discussions, serious and otherwise, were volunteered, and the leader of the affirmative replied. The audience sojourned and passed through doors, thereby designating which team they supported. The latest report credits the negative with 36, and the affirmative 25.
